FROSH BLOC BROKEN IN REDISTRIBUTION THROUGH BURWASH

Separating of 'Sheep' and 'Goats' has Been Plan at Vic
Since 1925

NOW TO BE ABANDONED

Present System Calculated to Create Better Spirit
Between Years

This year, for the first time since the fall of 1925, each of the men's residences at Victoria College shelters an allotment of "Frosh".

Bent on solving the why and wherefore of this reversion to the older system, "The Varsity" first approached a learned-appearing senior who gave his initials as A.H.

"The answer is obvious," he informed us, "we seniors have simply wearied of doing our own 'phone duty and getting our own mail."

"But the Freshmen," we questioned, "do they gain or lose by this re-adopted arrangement?"

"Most decidedly they gain. The influence of our studious habits, our regular hours, and our quiet respect for constituted authority, are of immeasurable benefit to the growing boy."

Another student — a fair-haired Junior — considered the other system the better.

"You'll find it's always best to separate the sheep from the goats," he assured us.

"The goats being . . . ?" we queried.

"The Frosh."

"And the sheep . . . ?"

Right here our interview ended.

Our next prospect was what we assumed to be a first year man, but were quickly and indignantly informed that such was not the case. This was none other than a Fresh-Soph. He had nothing to say to the press.

These preliminaries over, we called at the College Office and obtained an interview with Rev. W. J. Little, Accountant and Senior Tutor. Mr. Little explained, that, until 1926 the present system had been in vogue at Victoria. It was then felt that there would be certain advantages if the Freshmen were in houses by themselves. For three years this system has been tried, but owing, partly to the greatly increased registration at Victoria, and partly to the feeling that valuable contacts between the upper and lower years were being lost, the older system has again been officially adopted.

C. W. Leslie, president of the Victoria College Students' Parliament, believed the system in use this year to be much the better plan.

"It creates a better feeling between the years, and a more desirable spirit all round," he stated.

In Mr. Leslie's opinion the ideal system would be one in which each house would contain a proportionate number of Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, and "Frosh". This, as Mr. Leslie had previously informed us, was the ultimate aim under the present system.

Distinguished Visitor

Mrs. W. D. Ross, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, was a visitor at Hart House yesterday evening. She was shown the main features of the house by Warden J. B. Bickersteth.

Opening For Reporters

Owing to promotions and graduations, there are several openings on "The Varsity" news staff for new reporters. Those desiring journalistic training should report to the News Office, Hart House, at 4.30 this evening.

JIMMY DOUGLAS

"Miracle Man" of Orphan fame, who is handling the Senior Intercollegiate Football squad.

HART HOUSE SOLONS RESTRICT VISITORS

Supervision of Privileges to be Stricter than in the Past

NEW RULES POSTED

Owing to the fact that the facilities of Hart House are thought to have been used by persons in no way connected with the University, the Board of Stewards has considered it advisable to lay down definite regulations governing the introduction of guests.

These regulations have been passed in view of the already limited accommodation of the House, and are posted on the Bulletin Boards as follows:

Any undergraduate member introducing a guest into Hart House must obtain permission to do so from the Warden's Office (when his guest desires to make use of or be shown any part of the House) or from the Athletic Office (when his guest desires to make use of the Athletic Wing.)

When an undergraduate member wishes to introduce a guest to play squash racquets, he is required to enquire on the reservation list as usual, but before playing to notify the Warden's Office that he is introducing a guest. The stipulation is made that no player shall be introduced as a guest by a member of Hart House more frequently than once in each calendar month.

Members not observing these rules, the Board decided, are liable to suspension from Hart House privileges.

It is to be hoped that the Sino-Russian dispute is settled before it becomes of sufficient importance that the history books carry the names of all the generals in the conflict.

HART HOUSE THEATRE HAS A NEW DIRECTOR

Edgar Stone is Presiding
Genius for Season's Entertainment

MORE POPULAR PROGRAM

Contrary to reports in the downtown papers, Hart House Theatre will not be dark this year. This is due to the recent appointment of Mr. Edgar Stone as director of the theatre, succeeding Mr. Carrol Aikens, who returned to Vancouver last spring.

In the absence of Mr. Stone, who is at present in Ottawa, Professor Dale of University College gave it as his opinion that the class of plays which will be offered at Hart House Theatre this year will have a more popular appeal than those offered during the past few years. There will again be four regular productions, including the traditional Canadian bill. But, while bearing in mind the position of Hart House in the Little Theatre world, Mr. Stone is expected to choose his offerings with due regard for the box office.

According to several members of the technical staff, a vigorous policy of economy is already apparent as the new director prepares to take charge. It seems evident from gossip in university dramatic circles, that a determined effort is about to be made to put Hart House on a paying basis.

A new venture in the form of an organization to be known as the University Players is being contemplated at the present time. This organization, which will be independent of the Hart House Theatre direction, will take the form of a pool for the various campus players' clubs, and will give picked members of these clubs an opportunity to display their talents on the Hart House boards in one production a year.

Mr. Stone has been prominent in local amateur theatrical circles for many years and has been interested in Hart House Theatre from its inception. He is widely connected in the city, and has many friends on the campus.

MANY FRESHMEN COME TO SEEK B.A. DEGREE

University College Has Largest Registration on the Campus

INCREASE IN TOTAL

Registration figures for the year, though incomplete in many faculties and colleges, will be slightly larger in total this year, it is believed.

University College, with the largest registration on the campus, shows approximately the same total as last year, with many registrations still expected. First year registrations account for over one third of the total with men leading in point of numbers. Trinity reports no change in figures, whereas Victoria College reports a large freshman year which is over 100 in excess of the registration one year ago.

Engineering as a profession is finding more favor with students, according to officials, who state that registration is greatly increased. The Faculty of Medicine shows no change in registration figures.

Dentistry, which has shown a yearly decreasing registration, has 30 first year students and 19 dental nurses-in-training.

College of Education has a much larger registration this year over any former year.

VICTORIAN FRESHMEN TENDERLY CARED FOR

Feasted on Food and Speeches
Timorous Frosh Rejoice
In Varsity Life

MUCH EDIFICATION

It will come as a surprise to many in the ruder and cruder faculties to learn how nicely Victoria College treats her freshmen. Last Friday was Freshman Day at Vic, and a pleasant surprise to many a timorous new student.

The day opened with breakfast in Burwash Hall, followed by an official welcome from Chancellor Bowles, and a few words of sorely needed advice by Professor Auger, Registrar. Then came a visit to Hart House, with a cordial greeting by Warden Bickersteth and a tour of the University buildings and grounds.

After luncheon at Burwash Hall, Dr. Bowles delivered his address on "The Origin, Early History and Traditions of Victoria College," tracing its development from the opening in 1836 under Royal Charter as Upper Canada Academy at Cobourg to the amending of the charter in 1928 to form Victoria University, containing Victoria and Emmanuel Colleges.

A brief address by Dr. Barber, Bursar and Librarian, was followed by a visit through the plant of a downtown newspaper, which reports that one young gentleman, staring about him with open-mouthed amazement, ejaculated at last, "It's a h— of a big town, ain't it?"

Dinner, again at Burwash, was much appreciated, though followed by many after-dinner speeches, headed by an address by Rev. William J. Little, Senior Tutor and Accountant, and Don of North House, Burwash. The evening was completed with speeches by heads of eight of Victoria's student societies.

After registration, the lot of "poor frosh" is not so easy. Yesterday the first year at Victoria held a class-meeting under difficulties and the auspices of the Student Parliament. A small amount of carbon bisulphide introduced into the crowded classroom in which the meeting was held created an atmosphere of suspicion. Nevertheless one courageous sophomore insinuated himself past the doorman and remained till aforesaid atmosphere forced him to retire. In the hall outside, a large crowd of sneering "sophs" soon congregated, and the walls echoed with '32 yells and cries of "poor frosh". At the conclusion of the meeting a wild melee ensued, when a handful of second year students attempted to resist the exit of a horde of freshmen. For the next few weeks it will be war to the knife between the two years, and "vae victis".

NEW CAMPUS WEEKLY STARS FREE OPINION

'No Censorship' is Keynote of Undergraduate Journal
—'The Privateer'

APPEARS OCTOBER 4

A new venture in college journalism is being prepared at present, and is scheduled by the promoters to appear on Friday, October 4. It is to be called "The Privateer", and is intended by the publishers to be an independent weekly with literary and news departments.

The organizer and prime mover is G. O. Murrell-Wright, of fourth year, Trinity College. Mr. Murrell-Wright explained to "The Varsity" that "The Privateer" was meant to fill the need for independent opinion upon the university campus and throughout Canada.

"The Privateer" has no official connection with the university and hence, according to the publishers, cannot be influenced in any independent editorial stand they may take. Moreover, the paper would not be subject to the discipline of the Caput. The editorial policies will support the liberal arts at the university; there will also be news, humourous, and sport departments. In size "The Privateer" will be medium magazine size, smooth paper, with two columns of print.

Mr. Murrell-Wright is a former member of "The Varsity" staff; during the spring term, 1929, he was assistant managing editor; after the reorganization following the resignation of the staff on February 12, he was managing editor until the end of the term.

"The Privateer" will be issued every Friday until the end of the academic year from the editorial offices,

MANY CHANGES SEEN AT OPENING OF TERM IN FACULTY RANKS

Five Departmental Heads Appointed with Numerous Other Changes

THIRTEEN NEW ASSOCIATES

Dr. Brebner is Granted Leave of Absence for One Year

There have been wide changes and numerous appointments in the staff of the University in preparation for the Session of 1929-30, according to information obtained at Simcoe Hall. The Registrar, Dr. James Brebner, has been granted leave of absence for one year, and A. B. Fennel, formerly Assistant Registrar, has been appointed Acting Registrar in his place. The Department of History has obtained a new head in the person of Professor versty of Manitoba, who succeeds Chester Martin, formerly of the University of G. M. Smith.

Four other Departmental heads appear in the list of appointments. In the Faculty of Medicine, Dr. W. E. Gallie, formerly Assistant Professor of Clinical Surgery, becomes head of the Department of Surgery, and Dr. W. H. Lowry, formerly Assistant Professor of Ophthalmology, becomes head of the Department of Ophthalmology. Likewise, in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, Professor C. R. Young has been promoted from the Professorship of Structural Engineering to the Professorship of Civil Engineering and is now head of that Department.

Professor Milner of University College has retired, and in his place Professor C. N. Cochrane becomes head of the Department of Ancient History. The other appointments to chairs all take the form of promotions from associate professorships. Professor A. L. Parsons becomes Professor of Mineralogy, Professor W. E. Blatz of Psychology, Professor E. G. R. Ardagh of Chemical Engineering, and in the Ontario College of Education Professors G. M. Jones and F. E. Coombs have been appointed Professors of Methods in English and History and in Elementary Education respectively.

In addition to these major appointments there are thirteen new Associate Professors, and thirteen new Assistants, as well as a number of lecturers and fellows.

Would Speed Probe Of Student Affairs

The following resolution was passed at the last meeting of the Men Students' Administrative Council for the year 1928-29:

"That this Men Students' Administrative Council, meeting for the last time during the year 1928-29, learns with regret that no reply has been received from the Caput, to its request for an investigation into 'Students' Government, and that it protests this apparent discourtesy to the elected representatives of the male students of the University. Furthermore, this Council desires that the situation as it existed at the beginning of this year be brought to the attention of the new Council at its first meeting in the Fall, for such action as the new Council might deem fit."

"Ford Adds to Museum"—headline. Which explains why there are fewer motor cars at the University of Toronto this year.

BY WAY OF PREFACE

The editors of this paper will be expected to set forth during the next five months in these columns opinions on current topics of interest to the student body. They will also be expected to have opinions that will represent the views of the undergraduates as a whole; an expectation that is probably optimistic, as there is surely not a large number of students in the university with opinions worth representing—with opinions originating in the individual—opinions not dictated by ingrained prejudice, environment and faculty.

Let it be understood, however, that we mean no libel on our fellow students, who, being such, are more independent mentally than the representative individual in this country. Unfortunately, we of to-day are accustomed to have our opinions handed to us, such as they are, ready to use by those whom we employ to think for us. We are advised for whom and for what to vote, and why; we are told about heaven and its well-known opposite when personal research in such a vital matter would undoubtedly be advisable; even at university the tendency is to rely upon prepared ideas rather than upon individual effort.

There is, to be sure, more thinking in universities than among the laity, for a university is, by tradition, a place where one is taught to think. But, as there is probably not more than one great thinker born among a million humans, we can be pardoned if we assume that there are not more than twenty-five original mentalities operating amongst us.

With this in mind it can be readily seen that the editors of a college paper are going to have an uncomfortable time. They are recruited from the public themselves and hence cannot be expected to have startling ideas five times a week. And again, their job will be made no easier by this apathy which has resulted from living on prepared brain foods—the job, as we have seen, being partly to act as interpreters of student opinions—which do not exist.

As to certain other functions of the college paper, opinion is divided. Some feel that the journal should be forthright and fearless, finding wrong and making right. Others feel that facts are rather nasty things, and should be shushed tactfully, just as the rather matter-of-fact relation between poppa and Santa Claus is soft-pedalled until the younger generation starts to put this and that together.

So the editors must also please everybody; a task that requires a high tact and polish, and is, as a matter of fact, impossible. There is only one equation between two opinions and it is mediocrity; the value of a journal that pleases everybody is on a par with that of a mail order catalogue.

The prospect, accordingly, becomes still sadder. There are, to be sure, certain consolations. This world is a vale of tears anyway. One can also reflect that mediocrity has never been a persistent failing of "The Varsity"; one has only to review its history to see this. And it is favourably known abroad, if not always at home. It has a name elsewhere that is a pride and a credit to the students of the university. It is organized upon a basis that is absolutely unique and must endure. Its editors have traditionally followed what seemed to them the best interests of the student body, and they have published a newspaper as nearly as their talents would permit. And in the newspaper ideal lies the solution to whatever melancholy besets the editors, for in running a newspaper for the students, with a persistent resolution to interpret and pursue their interests, they will have nothing to fear from a sense of duty nor any conscience; they will be working in the interests of the university, for a university is not a collection of buildings nor a staff of professors, but a body of students.

Such, then, has been the attitude of the editors of "The Varsity" in the past. The present editors shall not change this attitude.

Art, Music and Drama

Introduction

The mantle of the critic, with no due regard for apostolic or any other succession, falls upon new shoulders again this year.

Unlike the hapless news reporter, the critic is expected to do more than register a set of facts; he is expected to evaluate. And this, one might add, without any particular reference to the demands of personal friendship, the exigencies of advertising, or the prejudices of the letter-writing moron who signs himself "The Man in the Street". If the voice of the people is indeed the voice of God, one must feel called upon at times to abandon the side of the angels.

As for the down-town theatres, sentence reviews in the closest possible approximation to the Benchley manner will probably be the order of the day. Some attempt will be made to bring out of the necessary multiplicity of reviewers a certain singleness of standard and cohesion of tone. One feels that the reviews in "The Varsity" have value and significance only insofar as they are reflections of the opinions of students who are naturally theatre-minded, set down for the benefit of other students whose major interests lie elsewhere and who go to the theatre merely to be amused.

All of which reads like the introduction to a text book on elementary ethics . . . . .

But you might at least write letters to the editor complaining about the fat-head dramatic critics. 'Twill wrap this despised department in a fresh dignity.

"In spite of reducing our fees and cutting the overhead, our registration has continued to drop off," stated Dean Dandruft to the faculty of barbering last evening, in his annual address. "There is an urgent need for more young men for this profession."

The members present were also entertained by an address given by Prof. Ferrier, "Fruit cultivating for the Tired Business Man." At the end of the evening all rose and sang the new college anthem written by W. Hisker. Hairs to us big strong stropping

BLUE AND WHITE MEET ARGOS IN EXHIBITION GAME TOMORROW

VICTORIA SOPHS SELL FLAMING TIES TO FROSH

Disgraceful Orgy Staged by Freshmen Follows Bargain
Sale

The day before yesterday three enterprising Sophomores, of Victoria College, the name of one of whom is usually succeeded by the words "Handle with Care", being unable to brook the delay of the V.C.S.P. in selling ties to the Frosh, called upon Solomon Levi, the w.k. local haberdasher. From him they purchased two dozen carmine cravats for the sum of one dollar. Disguised as students of a higher order, they gained entrance to the Frosh stronghold on Charles Street and began to dispose of their wares. With the same gullibility with which they buy chapel seats and pay fees to the Women's Union the Freshmen eagerly snatched up the flaming neckcloths at seventy-five cents apiece and bedecked themselves withal.

It is not only rumoured that they staged a parade on Charles Street afterward, but also that they retreated to their den and consumed large quantities of milk and arrowroots, the orgy lasting far, far into the night. One night next week the Sophomore women, with the proceeds of the sale, through the kindness of the perpetrators of it, are indulging in a big binge and corn-roast on the Humber, which three Husky men will no doubt attend.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The annual Varsity-Argo game marks the beginning of the longest football campaign that the Blue have yet been asked to face. Starting at the Stadium to-morrow the Senior Intercollegiate squad will be in action for at least seven consecutive Saturdays and if predictions can be made at this early date there should be a few extra battles before the moth balls are pressed into service.

The Argo game will likely see at least three different Blue outfits strutting their stuff before the watchful eyes of the coaches and Monday should bring something fairly definite as to the line-up of the Intercollegiates.

Argos have a husky bunch but will be matched in that respect by Douglas' men. Last year Varsity had a smart line, and to-morrow will show to some extent what success has been made in the way of getting a half-line that measures up to senior calibre. Jack Sinclair is slated as the "strong man" of the Blue rear-guard and much is expected of him. He is sure to start, but who will be his running-mates is difficult to state.

For the first time in some years the Blue and White are lacking in outside wings with considerable experience in big-time football. The Intercollegiates used five men in those positions last season. Of the five only one is left, and he is on the injured list. Dunne has left the University, Baker is not eligible for the first team, and Gooderham is on the shelf with an injured leg. Steve Cartwright, who showed up well in the final game with McGill last season has also graduated. "Gordie" Knowles of last year's Orphans seems sure of one of the ends.

Queen's take on their "Old Boys" in an exhibition affair at Kingston to-morrow. Harry Batstone has a line-up that looks neat on paper, and are sure to give Varsity and McGill real opposition.

McGill play R.M.C. another pre-season tilt. According to reports from Montreal Don Young, McGill's star outside wing, is not returning to the eastern institution of learning. Young played a large part in the Red victory last fall and his loss will be a dear one. However, Ralph Saint Germain will be on hand when the whistle blows, and he will strengthen McGill's half-line immensely.

AN EXHIBITION GAME OPENS RUGBY SEASON

Illness of Coach Douglas Mars the Brightness of the Opening Game

STRONG VARSITY TEAM

To-morrow Varsity and Argos meet in an exhibition game, the first of the season at the Stadium. The encounter is promising of a real gridiron spectacle, and will give the fans a chance to compare the brand of football in the two leagues this year. The Big Blue squad is being touted by many as the team of the year, and Varsity rooters will be given a chance to look over what will likely cop the Intercollegiate title this fall.

The only dark spot is the illness of Coach Jimmy Douglas, the popular mentor who has been confined to bed during the past few days due to overwork, but it is expected that he will be up for to-morrow's game. As a result the weeding out process is being postponed till after next week. Coach Earl Douglas of the Orfuns, the "Miracle Man's" brother, and George Morgan, Captain of the Intercollegiates, have, however, been working the squad hard in preparation for the tussle, and this certainly is no easy matter as the turnout is increasing with new men reporting every day.

The Intercollegiate and O.R.F.U. have been working out together, and the scrimmages are giving the numerous railhairs plenty to enthuse over. The Big Blue is as yet indefinite and everyone will be given a chance to perform to-morrow. A lot of last year's stars are out again strengthened by Orfun graduates and new men.

The Blue wing line has plenty of beef and stopped the O.R.F.U. plunges like a rock wall. The secondary defense is fast and shifty, and the backfield, with Jack Sinclair, Hallam, Bailey, can catch, boot and run the ball. The Argos have been working hard

TENNIS TOURNAMENT TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Keen Competition Assured As Many Outstanding Players
Enter

TEAM POSSIBILITIES

The annual tennis tournament of the University of Toronto will be held on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club, Price Street, next week, beginning Monday, September 30th at ten o'clock in the morning. As the notices have been sent out rather late entries may be received till Monday night, if the number of entries do not warrant the tournament to begin. Entries should be handed in to the Athletic Office by Saturday at noon.

This year's tournament should provide keen competition for the team as two of last year's team are absent. As for candidates for this year's squad Walter Martin is probably the outstanding. He is the 6th ranking player in Canada at present and has had a very successful summer on the courts and has gained much very valuable experience. Bill Noyes is back from last year's team and will be a hard man to keep off this year's outfit. Max Meighen of R.M.C. will be a strong candidate this year and also Hartley Holmes, one of the younger stars at the Toronto Tennis Club.

However, at present the team is a toss-up and everyone who enters the Varsity tourney will have an excellent chance of making the team. Competitors are requested to get their entries in as soon as possible to the Athletic Office at Hart House.

every night on the back campus and are improving every time out. The squad is heavier than Varsity, and "Buck" McKenna isn't saying much, but the Double Blue are out to give the students plenty of fight.

Applications for the positions of Cheer Leaders in the Rooters' Club should be sent in immediately to Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House.

University Rifle Association Presents Attractive Program to Marksmen

NOVICES TAUGHT

Under another column of the paper an invitation is issued to those interested in shooting to embrace the opportunity of improving their marksmanship, by joining the University Rifle Association.

The University of Toronto Rifle Association was organized early in 1904 by a small group of enthusiasts who desired to see rifle shooting take its proper place in university activities. Due to the untiring efforts of a small number of the staff the organization thrived in its early years, and many who learned the use of the rifle in the Association served in the Great War.

Following the organization of the C.O.T.C., the rifle association, after the war, was disbanded by the Department for Militia and Defence, and it required considerable effort to have its charter re-issued. After its revival in 1921 it became essentially an undergraduate organization.

For undergraduates who do not wish to become members of the C.O.T.C., or those who already are members, the wish to gain proficiency in marksmanship is sufficient qualification for entry to the Association. Both outdoor and gallery shooting practice is provided, rifles and ammunition being supplied by the Department of National Defence, and only a small membership fee is charged. All members are eligible to compete in sweepstakes and for a large number of cups and shields.

During the winter indoor shooting is held in the Hart House range. In

STRONGER THAN LAST YEAR

Every afternoon finds over thirty freshmen booting the pigskin on the back campus in the hope of making a place on the Junior Intercollegiate rugby squad. Lou Carroll, flying wing on Varsity's Senior Intercollegiate team of 1925-6, is the coach. He is quite jubilant over the material with which he expects to cop the junior title. At any rate he will field a stronger squad than last year.

O.A.C., McMaster, and Varsity comprise the league, but as yet the schedule has not been drawn up. However, two exhibition tilts are booked. The juniors take on Ridley, October 5th, and St. Andrew's College the 12th. These two matches should round the squad into condition for their championship games. As yet Coach Carroll can say nothing regarding the personnel of his team. He will be able to state more definitely in a week's time.

Golf is charged with the murder of 74,000 fish at Glacier National Park fish hatchery. A player slipped badly, the ball entered and clogged the intake water line and thousands of little fish had nothing to swim in.

this as well as outdoor shooting, good coaching is given, and every effort is made to teach the novice to shoot and the marksman to improve.

HARRIER SEASON OPENS WITH PROMISING START

First Class Team Is Raising Hopes for Return of Cup

With only one month before the Brotherton Cup Race, Oct. 26, followed by the Intercollegiate Harrier Race at McGill, Nov. 2, the Harrier season is in full swing.

Wally Graham turned up on Monday in uniform and has been showing his old form. The expected return of Hap. Gilbert will complete the appearance of everyone of last year's team, while MacLennan, who is still laid up with an injured ankle, may be out later.

With a number of likely freshmen already out, hopes are high that the Blue team will romp down Mount Royal and bring home the wandering silverware.

UNIVERSITY'S BEAUTY AIOEO BY PAVEMENTS AND CURBS

Timeworn Steps are Replaced By More Modern Ones Of Cement

The campus has taken on a new appearance since last spring. The construction gangs who were at work on the grounds in the early part of the summer, have decidedly improved conditions.

Formerly the campus had an unsightly ragged edge which reached the roadway. Now a neat four foot curb runs completely round the field. Also new curbing has been constructed in front of University College.

The ancient stone steps leading up to the main entrance of University College have been replaced with cement ones. They had sunk into the earth during countless decades and had been worn by succeeding generations of footsteps. At last after a venerable old age, they had to bow to the march of progress.

The Library now boasts a new pavement up to the entrance. New sidewalks have also been built leading to Queen's Park and Knox College.

PALESTINIAN RELIEF FUND CONSIDERED BY MENORAH

A Great Deal of Work Already Done by Some Individuals

"As a body the Jewish students at the University have as yet done nothing active for the Palestine Relief Fund," said Mr. S. Goldhar, president of the Menorah Society. But a promise had been sent that an active interest would be taken in the near future. As soon as Menorah starts its year's work this problem will in all probability be of foremost interest.

Quite a deal of active work had been done by individual students, although Mr. Goldhar declined to mention any names, or say in just what way help had been given.

The President of one Toronto sorority also felt that the school term was not far enough advanced for any active work. Although some aid will probably be given by the sorority, it was difficult to say how, since the parents are helping the cause financially.

WATER DAMPENS AROUOR OF ENTHUSIASTIC FROSH

Tapping Begins with Due Ceremony at Residence On Hoskin Avenue

The venerable institution of tapping had its official opening Wednesday evening on the University campus. The residences north of Hoskin Ave. were the scene of much activity in this regard, as over-fresh newcomers were duly initiated to the rites of a cold shower, draped in sheets. It is said that many freshmen reposed during the later hours between mattresses and bedspreads, as sheets dripped dry over a radiator.

Beds were upset and freshmen tapped at North House, but it was in South House that a more serious disturbance took place. While sophomores were busily engaged, unknown intruders capsized a fire extinguisher

GRADUATE WOMEN ACQUIRE NEW CLUB HOUSE NEAR CAMPUS

Permanent Location Required Because of Continued Growth of the Club

EXTENSIVE PLANS

Club Composed Entirely of Graduates Plays Important Role

With shares selling at $100.00 each, the Graduate University Women's Club of Toronto have purchased for the sum of $45,000.00 the attractive residence at 162 St. George Street, opposite the St. George Mansions, which will be used as the club house for general meetings, study groups, teas and other social activities. Formerly rooms and apartments in various parts of the city provided temporary headquarters, but the growth of the club necessitated a permanent location. The plans for the new club house call for a dining room for members and their friends, provision for local residents, and guest rooms for visiting associates.

The University Women's Club, though composed entirely of graduates, plays an active part in both campus and international affairs. The University Settlement receives the attention of many of the members, while the International University Club House in London, England, receives a yearly subscription. The Toronto branch also contributes to the Canadian Federation of University Women's scholarship of $1,200, which yearly goes to a Canadian woman graduate for further study abroad. Doris Saunders, recent winner of the scholarship and lecturer in English in Manitoba, has returned to Oxford, while Alice Wilson, a graduate of University College, is at present benefiting Canada by her work in the Department of Geology at Ottawa.

"I really couldn't say what caused that awful smell," stated Mr. D. Brace, when questioned last evening, regarding the hydrogen sulphide which created a decidedly strained atmosphere in the Victoria freshman organization meeting yesterday afternoon.

The senior members present, who were acting as chaperones, attempted to trace the unpleasant odor to its source. But after a careful search for any signs of disintegrating bodies of erstwhile rats, suspicion centred upon the group of sophomores outside the door. All efforts to ventilate the room proved useless, but Mr. Charles Leslie, head of the Students' Parliament, persuaded the rapidly departing frosh to remain by assuring them that it was not the usual atmosphere of

UNCHANGED THIS YEAR

Committee's Report Deferred
Until Later in the Year
Says Dean DeLury

"The report will be made to the Caput well on in the year," said Dean Alfred DeLury last night when interviewed in regard to the findings of the Committee of the Caput which was appointed last spring to investigate the system of student government. A resolution published elsewhere in this issue was passed last year by the men's S.A.C. protesting the delay in the appointment of this committee.

Dean DeLury explained that the findings of the committee would have no effect this year on the organization of the student government, but would be ready for a change next year. The report was being deferred so that the deliberations of the committee might not be in any way rushed.

A number of prominent undergraduate officials were called before the committee in the midst of examinations last spring that views might be expressed and the members get the atmosphere of the situation.

The committee consists of Dean DeLury, Provost Cosgrave, of Trinity College and Dean MacMurrich of the School of Graduate Studies.

CHAIRS SHOW SIGNS OF ROUGH USAGE

So Hart House Comptroller Concentrates on Them
During Summer

ANNUAL OVERHAUL

Hart House has just experienced its annual "clean-up". During each academic year, the ever-increasing body of members gives the building a severe usage which necessitates careful repairs and cleaning. The only opportunity for such proceedings comes with the beginning of the summer vacation.

Although every section of the House requires attention, it has been the practice of the Comptroller's office for the past few years to concentrate the work on some particular section of Hart House.

This summer special care was devoted to furniture. Most of the upholstered furniture in the Music Room, Lecture Room, Library and Graduates' Common Room has been completely re-upholstered.

There have been purchased fifty new Windsor chairs, which will be scattered throughout Hart House to replace the discarded ones. The difficulty with these, according to Assistant Comptroller Cowan is that very often, when some of the members become slightly boisterous in their leisure hours, the chairs are very easily tipped over and once the backs are broken the chairs must be scrapped.

The rush-bottom chairs, so prominent in the lecture room, receive unusually hard usage, and this summer one hundred and fifty were entirely replaced and new bottoms placed in them.

There is an unusually large variety of types of floors in Hart House, at least seven or eight being enumerated by Mr. Cowan. These each require a specialized treatment to be kept in proper shape. The linoleum floor in the Billiard Room received exceptionally hard wear and has this year been painted, washed and varnished to give it a harder surface. It is now expected to withstand the constant pounding of the billiard enthusiast.

And now the news reveals that the weling in Europe, cabled his barber American millionaire who, while travelling to come over and out his hair, was bald all the time. That seems to be the height of sensitiveness.

KNOX MEN RESENT
PAY TELEPHONES

Change Provokes Comments of Caustic Nature from Students

PRINCIPAL INTERVIEWED

"I consider it an affront to the men of the college." Such was the opinion expressed in Knox College, by one of the residents who declined to be quoted, regarding recent changes in the telephone system in that college.

"It is one of the smallest things that has been done in any college on the campus," another Knox man was heard to say.

The cause of the dissatisfaction appears to be that house telephones have been taken out and pay telephones installed.

Dr. Eakin, principal of Knox College, interviewed on the subject by "The Varsity" last evening, stated that the telephones were merely installed on the advice of the Board of Knox College, and was inclined to treat the matter as a trivial affair.

"Any dissatisfaction on the part of the men should be expressed to me," Dr. Eakin stated.

It is understood that in former years, when the house telephone system was in operation many men used the telephone for long distance calls, and did not reverse the charges. Whether or not this is the reason for the change could not be ascertained from the authorities.

Jimmy Douglas Critically Ill Undergoes Major Operation

While the Varsity students were wending their way homeward from the exhibition game between Varsity and Argonauts on Saturday, and as the players of the big blue team were trotting down to Hart House to change from their football togs to their street clothes, Jimmie Douglas, beloved head mentor of Varsity football, was lying in a severe white room stretched out on the operating table waiting for the sharp incision of the surgeon's scalpel. Unknown to the players and the fans alike, many things were going on, but not only seriously concerned future chances of the blues for a football victory, but held a life in the balance.

Jimmie, as he is known to his many friends and admirers, had been ill in bed with what was thought to be a case of intestinal flu since a week ago last Thursday. On Saturday afternoon he was rushed to St. Michael's hospital to be operated upon for acute appendicitis. Meanwhile the Advisory Board of the Athletic Association was meeting at Hart House to decide who could handle the team for the season as Jimmie was now out of the question. It was decided to ask Ronnie McPherson, the coach of the senior Intercollegiate squad in 1926 and 1927 to step into the breach. While the game was still in progress McPherson was approached to take the position. He hesitated as his brokerage business is keeping him a busy man, but it did not take him long to come around and he decided to help the Blue hopes in the emergency.

The fact that Jimmie Douglas was in such serious danger spread around amongst the chosen few and caused a great deal of worry, but the reports from the hospital at 5 o'clock this morning show that "he is resting comfortably".

It is understood that Lou Carroll, the manager of the Varsity seniors last fall and this year coach of the juniors will be called to help McPherson as a knowledge of what the players were doing last year is important.

Jimmie Douglas at present can see no one and he is under the care of Dr. M. H. V. Cameron of 11 Prince Arthur Ave., the surgeon performing the operation. Jimmie is a private patient in Room 403A.

HART HOUSE LIBRARY CLOSED TO STUDENTS TILL FURTHER NOTICE

Sixty Missing Volumes Move
Library Committee to Stringent Action

BOOKS MUST BE RETURNED
Many Students Possess Books
They Inadvertently Removed

Hart House Library has been locked since the beginning of the term; today members know why. At nine this morning a notice of the Library Committee was posted on the house bulletin boards explaining that the Library was to be closed indefinitely because books were taken away last year in spite of the rule against this, and not returned.

It will be remembered that this is the second time that the removal of books has made necessary action on the part of the authorities. In January, 1926, the same situation was faced by the Committee. At that time a number of the books were returned, and the library was reopened. The statement of the Library Committee follows:

"The Library Committee again desires to call the attention of members to the regulation which prohibits their removing books of any kind from the Library of Hart House. Repeated losses of books, particularly during the past year, have made it necessary for the Committee to consider once more what measures may be taken to meet this difficulty."

(A list of over sixty books is included in the notice).

VICTORIANS' IRE ROUSED Righteous Rage Results in Perilous Expedition to Rescue Pants

The lot of the lowly frosh in residence is indeed a hard one, according to representatives interviewed by "The Varsity".

On Saturday evening, a green Victoria frosh, despatched upon a message to one of the houses north of Hoskin Avenue, was treated, it is said, in the ancient and time-honoured custom. Calling to their aid all that traditions had to offer in technique, the sophomores sent the freshman home, resplendent in war paint and lacking some of the garments usually held to be essential to the garb of civilized man. Creeping along the dark highways and byways, the freshman finally reached his sanctuary.

Irate with righteous rage, the Victorians sent a demand for the immediate return of the missing paraphernalia. Four lone freshmen embarked upon the strange and perilous mission of returning a pair of trousers to Burwash Hall, and it is asserted, returned unscathed from the fire and brimstone atmosphere.

Later in the evening, the restless urge prompted South House to send their freshmen in a body to invade East House. Whether they feared the onslaught or not, East House confined the intruders to a washroom for some time, from which neither party could gain advantage.

"Only a Freshman Myself"
Declares Modest Professor

LIKES CANADIAN STUDENTS

"What is your impression of Toronto students?" "The Varsity" asked Professor Chester Martin, the new head of the History department, who was found in his office in Baldwin House.

"Oh, I am only a freshman myself," he replied. But somehow or other he wasn't convincing, for he had none of the timid and nervous bearing of the high-school student who treads for the first time the sacred halls of higher learning. "I had a lecture this morning with a class of nearly three hundred fellow-freshmen," he went on. "Their responsiveness, I must say, was an inspiration. I think all Canadian students must be like that. I hope these mutual relations will survive when we come to grips with the real work of the course."

"What was your staff at the University of Manitoba?" we asked.

"We had five men in History at the central University, and three or four at the affiliated colleges. Here there are nine of us in History at Baldwin House; as congenial a set of colleagues as one could wish for. But I confess I am a bit appalled by the number of students."

"Will there be many changes in the curriculum in History?" was another question.

"It's too early to say much about that yet," replied the Professor with a smile. "My colleagues are full of ideas. Of one thing you may be sure: we shall continue to emphasize Canadian history."

"One more question, Dr. Martin. Have you had any experience at American universities?"

"No, but I have many friends across the border, particularly at Harvard. But I think the system in Canada is much better. In the United States it is a case of mass-production, whether in a factory or a university. Here we endeavour, by means of discussion groups and so on, to keep in contact with the individual undergraduate student. We must bend all our energies to the preservation of that contact."

10-9 Win Over Oarsmen Raises High Expectations For Future Triumphs

MANY LONG RUNS

Warm Weather Tended to Make Game a Bit
Choppy

In the last minute of play Varsity grabbed a 10-9 victory from Argonauts in their annual exhibition game on Saturday.

The score is a good indication of the play with little to choose between the two teams. Argos had a slight edge in their line and tackling. Jack Sinclair and Hallam turned in a performance as good if not better than Turville and Johnston.

Play was rather sloppy and loose in spots as both teams gave every man a chance to show his stuff. Argos got away to a whirlwind start, but the better condition of the Blues told in the end. For Varsity Jack Sinclair, Hallam, Harrison, Bell and Levinsky turned in fine efforts. Johnston, Turville, Hank Sinclair and Palmer worked well for the Argonauts.

Argos had the better of the first few minutes of play, making yards on end runs, and plunges. Turville kicked a long punt which went for a rouge. Varsity got a break when Kane muffed a high spiral from Jack Sinclair's toe, but lost the ball when the Double Blue blocked a kick and dribbled it down to Varsity's 30 yard line from where Turville booted for Argos' second counter.

A fumble gave Argos possession of the ball on Varsity's ten yard line, but they failed to make yards on three downs. Varsity kicked on their first down. Turville rounded the end for a touch after a run of thirty-five yards and converted. Sinclair pulled off a trick kick-off and Argos were now on the defensive, on their thirty yard line. Kane took a kick behind the deadline, and ran it out. Play was brought back to midfield and the first quarter ended 8-0 for the Oarsmen.

Varsity began with a rush when Galloway picked up the ball on Kane's muff and ran twenty yards for a try. Levinsky returned the Argo kick-off. Varsity again got the ball when Johnston redeemed himself a little later by taking a punt behind his line and running it out forty-five yards. Offsides became plentiful with both teams. Sinclair kicked for a rouge.

Levinsky added a little colour to the game when he broke through the Argo line and seemed headed for a touch, but was tackled for a five yard gain. Varsity was now in position for a field goal and Sinclair booted a pretty drop. Half-time ended with Varsity 9 and Argonauts 8.

There was no scoring in the third (Continued on page 3)

Women's Staff

Will any women desiring to join "The Varsity" staff for the coming year please meet in Room 6, U.C., at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

My Pet Peeve

"My Pet Peeve is the way by pet professor scowls when I come in late to lectures," says Helen Massey, IV Vic.

"My Pet Peeve is the lack of proper deference accorded their seniors by members of the first year," says Ned. Madison, II, U.C.

OLDEST VARSITY EMPLOYEE PASSES

Custodian of Locker Room
Connected with U. of T.
For Past 66 Years

FAMILIAR TO ATHLETES

The boys returning to Hart House after the long vacation have missed about the locker rooms a well-known and long-familiar face—that of one who was for 66 years connected with the University of Toronto; George Hare, custodian of the locker room is no more.

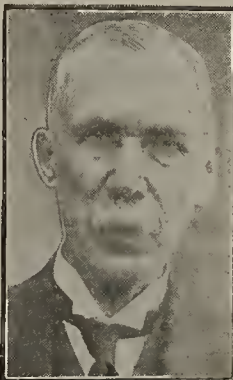

On Labor Day last, the late Mr. Hare was to be seen taking tickets at the south door of the Stadium. The following Tuesday (Sept. 3rd), he had passed on, when heart-failure ended the long and useful life of one who both in point of age and years of service was the oldest employee of Toronto University.

Born near Enniskillen, County Fermanagh, Ireland in 1849, Mr. Hare came with his parents to Canada in 1863, and two years later secured a position in the university residence. From that time until his death, with the exception of an interval of two years, Mr. Hare served the university. The University of Toronto was his first and last employer.

Mr. Hare's first duties were those of attendant in the dining hall of the residences which were then in the west wing of University College. He later became head gardener until the building, in 1892, of the Gymnasium on the site where Hart House now stands. Of this Gymnasium, Mr. Hare was appointed first caretaker, and had the honour of lighting its first fire and filling its swimming-pool for the first time.

When, in 1919, Hart House was opened, he became custodian of the locker room, which post he held until the time of his death.

As gardener, keeper of the grounds, caretaker, and custodian, Mr. Hare came into close touch with university athletics, and was a familiar figure to every athlete who has passed through the University of Toronto these past sixty-six years.

GEORGE HARE

For 66 years an employee of the University of Toronto, who died Sept. 3rd, at his home, 247 Brunswick Ave.

Opening For Reporters

Owing to graduations and promotions, there are several vacancies on the staff of "The Varsity" for new men. Those desiring a journalistic training should report to the news office, Hart House, Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

HART HOUSE LUNCH ROOM BLOSSOMS WITH MURALS

Series of Distinctive Panels Designed by Lismor
Depict Activities

Hart House Lunch Room, next door to the Tuck Shop, has this year blossomed forth with a series of murals designed by Arthur Lismor and executed by one of his most promising pupils, Gordon Webber. The designs, Mr. Bickersteth pointed out to the representative of "The Varsity", are strikingly original and present fresh detail to the onlooker at each succeeding inspection. They appear to be whimsically humorous, for the most part, presenting various aspects of the student's life.

Hear, Freshmen, and Obey The Charter is Pronounced

Ancient feudal rights over property and person have their modern parallel in the proclamation issued by Wycliffe College sophomores concerning the attire and conduct of freshmen.

The all embracing statement of rights and privileges which was read in open session of the Wycliffe College sophs and frosh proceeds as follows: TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS MAY COME, BE SEEN OR KNOWN; PARTICULARLY THE "FROSH" OF WYCLIFFE COLLEGE:—

WHEREAS by tradition of bygone academic years, the following Charter has been handed down by an unbroken line of Sophomores, who have passed on to the glorious heritage that is theirs, and reaping the benefit of their hard studies;

AND this document will in future years be revered as the Magna Charta, Act of Uniformity, Bill of Rights, Declaration of Independence, and Jiggs comic strip in the daily papers;

AND WHEREAS you, the Freshmen of 3T3 must learn to lightly tread the steps of scholarship, by the initiatory rights, performances and duties now about to be imposed upon you; AND WHEREAS it has been known that some Freshmen, in previous years, have worn such unseemly things as, Derbys, bow ties, wing collars, and it is whispered in College Halls that some even ventured to wear spats;

AND WHEREAS you are now CHARGED with the following limitations, that from the time you make your exit from this Common Room, every condition, performance and stipulation must be strictly, and unequivocally, and unconditionally performed, fulfilled, carried out, completed and done without reservation, mental or physical, whatsoever.

No Freshman must appear anywhere clothed in the following monstrosities, such as—spats, Derbys, bow ties, and wing collars; nor carry walking-sticks.

No Freshman is to be seen in the company of any young lady, until such times as they have been duly and formally initiated and admitted into the secrets of Freshmanship;

No Freshman must use of the Front door of the College until after the said initiation has been performed. No student must appear in the Rotunda attired in such things as bedroom slippers, or without collars, or in any way improperly or insufficiently clothed.

No Freshman must lock, bolt or in any way whatsoever bar, fasten or wedge the door to his or her room to prevent entrance to same; i.e. regulations do not permit otherwise;

BUT IT IS DISTINCTLY UNDERSTOOD, ORDERED AND DIRECTED that all Freshmen shall:—

1. Appear in morning Chapel regularly;

2. Attend all meetings of the various societies of the College;

3. That the tennis Court MUST be watered and rolled once each day.

4. THAT the Freshmen MUST see to all arranging of chairs, moving of furniture, etc., when so required. ALSO act as ushers at all public meetings, and in the absence of the Hall Porter MUST answer the telephone (Continued on page 4)

A QUESTION OF ETHICS

Hart House Library is closed, and there will doubtless be complaints from those who are deprived of a cosy place for a snooze. But something more serious than literary insomnia is at hand; the cause, not the effect, of the closing, offers opportunity for thought and soul-searching.

So many books, we are informed, have vanished from the shelves, that the Library Committee has found it necessary to lock the door that emphasis may be laid upon the situation. And it is a situation that becomes, upon consideration, a severe blow to the considerate and conscientious.

For it is evident that a trust has been violated; the books were there upon the shelves, unwatched and unattended, and a gentleman's pact the only restraint. When the books were removed, "inadvertently", or otherwise, this pact was violated.

The removal of a book from the Library, judging by the facts of the act alone, will be called theft, and nothing else. To apply this term to the Library situation, however, is harsh beyond warrant, for carelessness or lack of realization what the act involves, cannot justly be given a hard name. But it must be realized that there are those who will know the facts alone, and their judgment will be a painful stigma to innocent and guilty alike.

Now, when one investigates, it becomes evident that our daily life is full of unwritten pacts based on a certain honesty; the newspaper boxes on the corner, for example; the relations between the average depositor and his banker; in fact, business as done to-day would fall flat were it not for this quality which characterizes almost every transaction. These pacts, to be sure, belong to University life as well.

The statement of the Committee is fair, and polite; there can be but one reasonable reply—return the books. If the Library remains closed, it will be a perpetual reminder, and forcible, that this peculiar quality, call it pact, or honesty, is weakening amongst us. In fact, it may be a sign of the times, for when the ethics of the University student become inconsiderate and careless, the people must be slipping.

CURRENT ABBREVIATIONS

The open season for freshmen is now on, and a number of the nosier sophomores are harvesting the necktie crop about the campus. We have no doubt that it is all good, cleanfun for those concerned in the process, and we shall not point out that most of the freshmen four years ago were not bothered by such asininity. Nor shall we make mention of the fact that the tie-snipping is a custom that has grown up rather recently; we shall pass over the fact that the tie was intended primarily as a decoration and a badge to indicate the newcomer, and not as a rather pathetic reminder of what might have been.

And we particularly wish to say nothing about this clause from the university calendar:

42. All interference on the part of any student with the personal liberty of another by arresting him, or summoning him to appear before any unauthorized tribunal of students, or otherwise subjecting him to any indignity or personal violence, is forbidden by the Caput.

43. No initiation ceremony involving physical violence, personal indignity, interference with personal liberty or destruction of property, may be held by the students of any Faculty or College of the University under the penalty of suspension or expulsion.

All that "The Varsity" wishes to point out is that as long as freshmen travel in groups of nine or ten for protection, and the sophomores travel in similar groups for the offensive, rare scraps are going to develop, as they already have. And something more than inter-year ill feeling is likely to develop.

The tie clipping is done with scissors and knives. Scissors are rather harmless; if the possessor loses his temper, the worst he can do is to gouge an eye. But with a knife or two, a tie fight has possibilities of resembling an informal meeting of the Black Hand disagreeing over a point of order.

We are informed that a number of freshmen from a college to the east were set upon in the front door of Hart House recently by assailants with knives, with the result that in spite of the spirit of fun which prevailed, several received cuts upon the hand. Bearing this in mind, we ask the sophomore year not to be surprised if this paper rises to shout, "What did we tell you!" when someone really gets hurt.

Instead of making so much fun of the frosh this year we are going to give them a little fatherly advice. The annual jokes are getting a little the worse for wear. We all know that the freshmen ask where the sub-basement of Hart House is; they have to be told to pass the soup in Great Hall; they lean against the wall in Simcoe Hall and attempt to pay their fees without a registration card. All well and good, but let's help them along a bit.

C-C

Take this fraternity business for instance. —Great thing.—"The associations you form in your collich days—" and so on. Nearly everyone wants to join a frat. Frats are exclusive. That is, if you haven't any drag. Now they want good college types, and as you should know, college men are detected by their feet. So the first thing to do is to buy a pair of heavy walking shoes with soles about two inches thick (be sure they make a loud click on the pavement). And if you have a sophisticated way of draping a pipe from the corner of your mouth, so much the better.

C-C

Some day you will be pounced upon and invited "up for dinner". If you can accept graciously without shuddering you are all set.

C-C

Next on the program is bridge. This is a great thing in frat life so, don't on any account admit that you don't know how to play. Sit down and play anyhow; they won't know the difference.

C-C

After a while run your eye along the rogue's gallery on the walls and pick out an inconspicuous mug and say, "By jove, I believe that's a chap I met up north two years ago. I have forgotten his name. He is a great friend of my dad's. Splendid fellow. He didn't know the lay of the land so we took him along with our party." That is all you need, and you are as good as pledged. Don't be afraid you will be found out: all those pictures are of prominent members who haven't been near the house in years, and who have forgotten that they ever belonged to one.

And if you do join, don't blame me. Gaspard McGuffey

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Graduates in Moderns Will Pursue Studies At Sorbonne

That University of Toronto students compare favorably with those from other universities has again been demonstrated. Two University of Toronto students, both graduates in Moderns, have won scholarships which will enable them to pursue their studies at the Sorbonne, Paris.

Miss Madeline Lake, a graduate in Moderns, 1929, has won the Bourse offered by the French Government, entitling her to one year's study in Paris. Miss Lake, who sailed very recently to take up her studies, held various offices in the French Society of University College during her undergraduate career and was president during her final year.

Miss Beatrice Abbott has won the scholarship granted by the Federation of University Women after applications from all over Canada had been considered.

"This is indeed an honor to our university, as there was considerable competition for this award," said Prof. J. S. Will.

Miss Abbott, who graduated in Moderns in 1927, was very popular with her classmates, and was also president of the French Society of U.C. during her final year. The scholarship which is of an annual value of twelve hundred dollars, is being held over for one year at Miss Abbott's request in order that she may continue the graduate studies which she has been pursuing during the last year at this university.

PROGRESS?

Editor "Varsity",
Dear Sir,

With the opening of the season, the enclosed opinions of the game, expressed four hundred years ago, might be of interest to the "Fans" of to-day:

In 1531, Sir Thomas Elyot writes of football, "That it was nothing but beastly fury and extreme violence, whereof proceedeth hurte and consequently rancour and malice do remayne with them that be wounded."

In 1580, Phillips Stubbs writes thus: "As concerning playing football, I protest unto you it may rather be called a freendly kinde of fight than a play or recreation; a bleedie and murdering practise than a felowly sporte or pastime. For doeth not every one lye in wait for his adversarie, seeking to overthrowe him, and to piche him on his nose, though it be upon hard stones? In the ditch or dale, valley or hill, or what place soever it be, hee careth not, so he have him down . . . so that by this means, sometimes their necks are broken, sometime their backs, sometime their legs, sometime their arms . . . They have sleights to meet one betwixt two, to dash him against the heart with their elbows, to hit him under the short ribbes with their gripped fists, and with their knees to catch him upon the hip, and to pick him on his neck, with a hundred such murdering devices."

How about it, Mr. Editor? "On with the game!"

Sincerely Yours,
A. M. McCullough.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES FOR S.A.C. CONSIDERED

Efforts Being Made to Have Chairman Who Knows His Job

Possible candidates for the post of President of the Combined Students' Administrative Council were considered by the Nomination Committee of the men's S.A.C. on Friday. Their report will be presented to the S.A.C. meeting on Tuesday afternoon, when the voting will take place.

A member of the committee informed "The Varsity" that efforts were being made to nominate men who had served in executive capacities on the council and who would be interested in the work. In view of the controversies of last year, and in view of the fact that certain constitutional changes would have to be considered later on in the year, this member of the committee thought that it was very important that the council have a chairman who knew his job.

VARSITY OPEN SEASON BY DEFEATING ARCONAUTS BY 10-9 SCORE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity made a good start in their campaign for the football title when they defeated Argonauts on Saturday. While the game was not productive of much high-class football, it was a good effort for an exhibition affair, and had a finish as sizzling as the weather. In spots the Blue looked real good and in spots they were bad. But they showed enough to be rated as the team to beat for the Intercollegiate championship.

While one swallow doesn't make a summer, etc. etc., the Varsity rear-guard seemed to be a big improvement over last year's. Jack Sinclair booted well and caught neatly. Hallam also drove the pigskin as it should be done, and was much steadier than on his former appearances. Bell worked nicely at quarter. Perhaps the greatest improvement goes to the credit of Earl Davey. Outside of one bobbie and the tendency to slow up when attempting to run a kick back, Davey turned in a smart effort. Jimmy Sinclair hit the line like a tank, being about Varsity's best in this respect. The Blue outside wings were none too good especially in the early stages of the game, but hit their stride later on. One thing they didn't lack was speed. Fitzpatrick can do the "100" under ten seconds and Knowles is also fast. In fact the latter took Turville's feet from under him while the oval was still in the air. Johnny Stuart tackled well and looks like Varsity's best all-round outside wing.

The line did nothing sensational but except for part of the first quarter held their own with the Argo collection and that is no mean feat. As usual Keith at snap was in the thick of it and showed why he is rated as the best at this position in the Intercollegiate. Captain George Morgan turned in a good defensive game.

MULOCK CUP SCHEDULES TO BE ARRANGED

There will be a meeting of the Mulock Cup managers in the Athletic Office, Hart House, on Wednesday afternoon at 4.30 to elect a Committee of Management and to arrange schedules for the carrying out of the Interfaculty Rugby Series.

WESTERN "U" REUNION TICKETS NOW ON SALE

The Toronto Branch of the University of Western Ontario Alumni Association has placed on sale at the Student Council office, Hart House, a number of tickets for the Western "U" Reunion on October 5. This reunion is being held in the main Ball Room of the Royal York Hotel, Saturday evening, following Western's first game in senior intercollegiate rugby at the Varsity stadium. These tickets will be sold at three dollars and will be available until Friday.

ADAMS PRESIDENT OF ENGINEERING SOCIETY

Very Marked Increase in Registration At S.P.S.

Jerry McVean, president-elect of the Engineering Society having failed in his exams, nominations were held Friday, Sept. 27, for president. They resulted in Nate Adams being elected by acclamation. W. L. Dutton and J. Frank Dyer were nominated for the office of Treasurer. For third year Treasurer, W. L. Dutton and J. M. Boyd were nominated. The elections will be held Monday and keen interest is expected.

The increase in S.P.S. registration has been phenomenal. In a period of three days the Engineering Society store has sold over three thousand dollars worth of goods, which point was only reached last year after three months had passed. This fact also indicates a willingness of the undergraduates to patronize their own store.

INTERNATIONAL POLO LEAGUE COMPLETED

Varsity Water Polo Team To Contend Against U.S. Champions

FINE GAMES EXPECTED

"Great oaks from little acorns grow or from College sport to international sport," was the way Tommy Marsh, III Dents, while talking to the Varsity on Friday, described the University's first venture into the realm of international sport.

Last year Toronto played the Montreal A.A.A. two friendly home and home games of water polo, with each team winning a game. New York A.C., the champions of the United States, in turn played the M.A.A.A. team, defeating them only by the narrow margin of 6-3.

These games gave birth to the idea of forming an international league. Mr. McLaurin, manager of the Montreal A.A.A., got in touch with Mr. Ruddy of the New York A.C. Finally, after much preliminary discussion, Mr. Ruddy asked Eddie Sinclair, the captain of the U. of T. water polo team, and also manager of this year's Intercollegiate Rugby team, if Toronto would go into the league.

Sinclair took the matter up with the Athletic Directorate, and was given permission to enter Toronto in the league for one year. Then the Penn A.C. was approached and readily agreed to complete the league. This club is famous for its water sport activities and should be a strong contender.

Mr. Carswell, General Manager of Vickers Airplane Co., Montreal, very kindly consented to donate a cup for this new league.

The officers of the league are: Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Carswell, Vickers Airplane Co. Hon. Vice-Pres.—Hon. Augustus Smith, Penn A.C. Pres.—Mr. J. Ruddy, New York A.C.

Vice-Pres.—Eddie Sinclair, U. of T. Sec.—Harold Cornforth, M.A.A.A. "The students will readily see the great opportunity afforded them of witnessing the best in water polo for the coming year," said Mr. Marsh. "It is essential that the team receive the support of all the students, because its existence in the league depends on the support received by them. The teams that Varsity will play are the very best on the continent, so every game bids fair to be a thriller. The Toronto team itself is a team to be feared, it being the Intercollegiate and city championship team for 1928."

Tommy Marsh wished to emphasize the great honour that has been conferred on Toronto, by being asked to join this league. The University will receive publicity in the cities in which the games are to be played as well as all over the continent. A great chance is afforded Toronto to show the fine sportsmanship for which our University is famous, to the fans in the other cities.

Already favourable comments have reached "The Varsity's" ears on this first venture of the University in International sport and the opening game on Nov. 30, with the Penn A.C. will be looked forward to with great expectations. It is expected that many prominent Torontonians will assist in the opening ceremonies.

Kingston, Ont.—It is estimated that the total registration of freshmen at Queen's University will be more than double that of last year. As a result, additional tutors will be required in arts.

VARSITY RUGGER MORE POPULAR

U. of T. Hopes to Defeat McGill, Last Year's Champions

BOTH IN FINE FETTER

The game of rugger has, of late, been becoming considerably more popular around Varsity and this promises to be the best year yet. There are expected to be two teams at Varsity this fall. One will take part in the inter-Varsity competition and the other will play in the Ontario Union. Captain Goldenburg has had some promising material out to practices. The blues have displayed fine form in city competition and expect to turn the tables on McGill, last year's winners. Varsity will have no easy time defeating the Red as they are said to be just as formidable as ever.

Varsity will be playing its first game of the season on October 5 on the back campus with the Toronto Club as its opponent.

INTERFACULTY SOCCER MANAGERS MEET

There will be a meeting of the Interfaculty Soccer managers to-morrow, Tuesday, at 5.00 p.m. at the Athletic Office, Hart House, to elect a Committee of Management and arrange schedules and other details in connection with the Interfaculty Soccer Series.

KNOX FRESHMEN BOW TO ANCIENT CUSTOM

Season's First Froas in Time-Honoured Manner Victory for Sophs

Despite increased strictness on the part of Knox College authorities this year and an apparent intention to enforce the rules against tapping and kindred undergraduate pastimes, Friday night saw the season's first fracas at Knox, in the most time-honoured manner of that college, when a musical freshman received an unexpected cold tub—clothes and all—at the hands of his seniors.

The reading-room piano was suffering under the assault of the freshman in question when the upper classmen decided they could stand it no longer and something must be done about it. Accordingly, although they were at the time outnumbered by the frosh almost two to one, they proceeded to take what they deemed the most effective measures. The first year men appear to have bowed gracefully to venerable custom, and it is reported that the matter passed off without a hitch.

NO CHANGE IN SYSTEM OF SEASON TICKET SALE

There will be no change this year in the system of ticket sale over last year, according to A. Gordon Burns and officials of the Athletic department in a statement made to "The Varsity" on Saturday.

"The present system of season ticket sale was proven to be so satisfactory last year, that it is being continued this year," said Mr. Burns. It was pointed out that while the season ticket includes an extra game this year, the price of the ticket will remain the same. The tickets, which will include all rugby and track events, will go on sale soon.

CHEER LEADERS

Applications for the positions of Cheer Leaders in the Rooters' Club should be sent in immediately to Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House.

RUGBY TICKETS FOR WOMEN STUDENTS

VARSITY GRABS VICTORY IN LAST MINUTE OF GAME

quarter Argos found the Blue line harder to break through. The warm weather was beginning to tell and the play became pretty choppy. Davy caught a high punt behind the deadline and ran it out ten yards, giving the Argos ends the air. In this quarter Jack Sinclair was outkicking Turville. Jimmy Sinclair crashed through for twenty-five yards. Twaites as quarter for Varsity carried the ball for a small gain but his repeats resulted in being thrown for losses. Hallam replaced Jack Sinclair and his shorter kicks gave the ends plenty of time to get down.

Twaites fumbled to start the last quarter and Argos secured the ball. Johnston took one of Hallam's punts and got through half a dozen Blue tacklers for a twenty-five yard gain and Palmer turned the same trick a little later. Argos made yards twice but nine new Varsity men came on and the line held the Oarsmen. The Blues crashed through and blocked Turville's kicks twice. Hallam was injured and was forced out of play. Turville kicked for a rouge for Argos last point. Kane chased a bounding ball and recovered it on Argos' five-yard line. With one minute to go Sinclair forced Kane to rouge and the game ended 10-9.

Line-ups:

Argonauts: Flying Wings: Bowman, Darling, Charney; Halves: Turville, Sinclair, Kane, Johnston, Armstrong, McKay, Hardy; Quarters: Beal, Stone; Snaps: Wright, Hendry, Morton; Insides: Wilson, Palmer, Thomas, Boden; Middle: Nicholls, Butt, Murdoch, Hicks, Wesley; Outsides: Hutchinson, Neill, Agnew, Gilmore, Chilcott, Phalen, Parker, Hooker.

Varsity:

VICTORIA PARLIAMENT ELECTIONS ANNOUNCED

The appointment of various officials in the present government of the Victoria College Students' Parliament was announced Friday by the Premier, Howe Martin. The administrator of social affairs in his cabinet will be Merk Hager, to be assisted by Art. Annis. Debates will be in the department of James Gibson, with the assistance of Earl Lautenslager.

These appointments were announced to the Executive Council, and at the same meeting Joseph Binning was appointed Leader of the Opposition by the Council. The Council also discussed constitutional changes.

VARSITY CARILLONEUR STUDIES IN OTTAWA

Mr. Skillicorn's Departure Leaves Soldiers' Tower Chimes Silent

One of the losses which the University has suffered this summer is the departure of Mr. Skillicorn, who has been the carillonneur for some time at Hart House.

Lately Mr. Skillicorn has taken advantage of the opportunity to study in Ottawa under the direction of Mr. Price, carillonneur at the Peace Tower. Whether Mr. Skillicorn will eventually return to Toronto is not known. At present his plans are to spend a few years with Mr. Price.

"So far," Dr. MacMillan of the Toronto Conservatory of Music stated, "there has been no one appointed to this position and possibly there will be no appointment for a month or so."

BUMPTIOUS FROSH CROP COMES TO JUDGMENT

Students of Upper Years Disagree on Initiations for First Year

Judgment was passed on the bump-tiousness of this year's frosh crop when members of the upper classes stated their opinions on the initiation question. The fact that in the last few years, practically all having except for the wearing of coloured neckties which were snipped if not worn outside the vest, has been quashed by authorities, does not lack in support from some quarters. However, the feeling is far from general and serious consideration is being given the question of deciding in just what manner the corners and knobs are to be sand-papery off the first year. Foolish hazing is unanimously tabooed, but the majority of the upper years feel that some universal arrangement should be adopted whereby freshies of one faculty will not be displaying humility by carrying a parasol and large green bows, while those of another are pushing inconspicuous green ribbons up their cuffs.

"The first year not only expects initiation, but needs it," stated Helen Day, head of Annesley student government regarding this matter. "Especially in Victoria where the freshies are coddled during the house party, some means should be taken to instil respect in them." Following this line of discussion, Keith McMillan, 370 Victoria, opined that one-night initiations were not effective, but there should be some system in force for the whole year. "The ties are practically necessary as a distinguishing mark," he said.

The other side was upheld by Edith McCollum, grad of '29, when she stated that she thought initiation was both impracticable and foolish in a large university like Toronto. "Frosh have enough worries on arrival without the added affliction of personal ridicule."

Lionel Gelber, U.C., 370, while he emphasized that he had not given the matter a moment's consideration, averred that he felt the comic conception of initiation to be childish and superfluous. "I have not observed any more immaturity in the frosh mind than in a lot of senior years," he continued. He also stated that the proverbial "place" of frosh was a mythical thing, for they had no special place. They were part of a large institution and had as much right there as their predecessors.

Ada Brett of St. Hilda's felt that some general system should be adopted, but that it should not be too stringent.

Cousin Eustace Defies Police Doesn't Desire To Don Cravat

By P. E. Usher

Our cousin Eustace liked Varsity at first. The mediaeval architecture of Hart House and U.C. impressed him. He considered Trinity very fine. In time he may see the best in all the buildings.

But the bargain sales-counter in the rotunda of University College jarred him. Upon receiving the time-honoured insignia of froshdom, he expostulated. "You know," he said, "it's perfectly absurd for me to wear a thing like that. I don't even like it." . . . . He left the building a sadder and a wetter man.

Later on we introduced him to the Great Hall in Hart House. Eustace brightened up visibly at the sight of soup, but became depressed over the salad. He is terrified of encountering fauna in addition to flora. Then we had the happy inspiration of showing him Milton's verbal marathon. "I love to read Milton at lunch time," he declared. With the arrival of pie, conversation descended from the classical plane to the menace of semi-finished pastry.

How Eustace brought a folding camp stool with him when he lined up to pay his fees at Simcoe Hall and how he had a long altercation with a stalwart in blue over the said stool is another story. We are hoping that he will soon settle down and become a normal student. But there is little chance of that until he casts aside the mantle of intellectualism.

Of course, Eustace is primarily devoting himself to studies at Varsity, but we hope to interest him in other representative activities. Life is a trifle wearing for us until we can find some place to leave him out of harm's way, but there should be no trouble in locating such a place within the precincts of these halls of learning.

BULLETIN BOARD

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE TRACK MEET

VARSITY TENNIS

The annual tennis tournament of the University of Toronto will not start until Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club. Entries will be received at the Athletic Office till 5 p.m. to-day (Monday). The draw for Tuesday will be in all the morning papers.

T.I.C.C.U.

The first meeting of the Toronto Inter-Collegiate Christian Union will be held at Wymilwood on Tuesday.

NUMEROUS SUMMER JOBS FOUND BY FAIR CO-EDS

College Girls Spend Vacation In Profitable and Exciting Forms of Employment

Numerous and varied were the methods employed by our versatile co-eds in their pursuit of wherewithal during the so-called summer vacation. Waitressing on the high seas and at northern hotels drew its quota of hopefuls. In one instance the girls were called upon to entertain the guests and pinch hit in the orchestra in their spare moments. Reporting and editorial work on Toronto and others newspapers proved profitable and exciting to many of our journalistic sisters. One young lady is said to have amassed an infant fortune acting as press agent and business manager for a Chataqua which toured the province. Another was employed as musical directress at a summer camp, while still others saved lives and taught the young idea how to swim.

The threefold duties of companion, chauffeur and student were successfully combined by one girl in the employ of a French family. Another confined herself to chauffeuring in which capacity she was called upon to drive on an average of eight hours a day. Less adventurous spirits found remunerative positions in downtown offices, stores and publishing houses.

Many have returned flaunting a diamond on the finger elected by tradition for such insignia, and many, alas, by the same token, have not returned.

FIRST YEAR TRINITY ELECTIONS HELO

At a meeting presided over by J. E. A. Crane, president of the year, the freshman class of Trinity College has elected T. D. Whatumough, vice-chairman; Henry H. Bull, secretary; and W. Bradley, treasurer.

October 1st, at 5 p.m. Dr. H. W. Guinness, the original founder of the Union, will be the special speaker. The programme of the Union is of a distinctly devotional and evangelistic nature. All students interested will be welcome.

BRITISH RUGBY CLUB MEETING

A meeting of the British Rugby Club has been called for 4.30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 1. It will be held in the Debating Hall, Hart House. All Rugby enthusiasts are asked to be present.

St. Michael's College Annual Freshman Reception will be held in the East Common Room, Hart House, Monday, Sept. 30, at 8 p.m. All students should be on hand.

A swimming meeting will be held to-day at 5 p.m. in the Lecture Room of Hart House for all swimming representatives of all faculties and all those interested in swimming or water polo. Swimming practices start next week.

PROFESSOR McDOUGALL RETURNS TO VARSITY

Graduate of '25 in Modern History Returns To Baldwin House

This year Baldwin House welcomes back one of its own men to the staff of the history department in the person of Professor D. J. McDougall, graduate in Modern History, '25. The loss of his sight during the War has not kept Professor McDougall from his study of history. He is a keen scholar and in his work has made adept use of the Braille system. He studied at Balliol College, Oxford, receiving his B.A. there in 1927, and remaining to specialize in nineteenth century Anglo-Irish history under the Bryce Research Studentship. He is the first Toronto graduate to receive this studentship. Mr. McDougall, who knows Baldwin House well, expresses himself delighted to be back in Toronto again where he will both lecture and continue his work in history.

"In view of the present facts the Committee has decided to close the Library until further notice."

SIR ROBERT FALCONER RETURNS WITH STORE OF INTERESTING EXPERIENCES

Good Voyage is Reported by President's Party On Return Trip

TOURED SOUTH AFRICA

British Association Meetings Of South Africa Attended

Yesterday evening the well beloved President of the University, arrived in Toronto, and within an hour, "The Varsity" was on his front doorstep demanding an interview. The reporter's knees knocked together, but Sir Robert Falconer like the gentleman he is, soon put him at his ease.

"Did you have a good trip, Sir Robert?" enquired the reporter. "We had some terribly bad storms," replied the President, "and it made us two days late." Asked if he was a good sailor, the kindly scholar said that he had never missed a meal on board.

Sir Robert has been attending a meeting in South Africa of the British Association, a collection of scientific scholars from all over the British Empire. South Africa, he said, was a wonderful country, so different from ours. It was a particularly good location for astronomers, the sky being so clear, and several important American universities had observatories there. The bilingual question there was much more bitter and pressing than in Canada, particularly so, because each state in the Union had very little self-government and the power was centralized in Pretoria. Largely for the reason Rhodesia refuses to join the Union of South Africa. There are three universities, Cape Town, Witwatersrand and the Dutch University. The two former are the only ones of one of the agricultural schools is with medical colleges. The president a Canadian graduate from Guelph. There are several colleges, and both languages are used at all educational institutions. Cape Town University has a registration of about 1,200 and is beautifully situated at Grootshoer on part of the former Cecil Rhodes estate. Examinations are set for all the Universities by a board called the University of South Africa, a body which does not teach.

Sir Robert met an Arts graduate of this University in supreme command of the Ford Motor Car Company of South Africa. It was remarked that Arts is according to a wholly useless course. There are many Canadians in positions of trust in South Africa. A Dr. Middleton is Deputy Minister of Health in Bloemfontein, and others had illustrated the sterling worth of Canadians abroad.

Sir Robert had spent two days at Victoria Falls on the Zambezi, which though superior to Niagara are not a resort for honeymooners.

Professors McLennan and Walker from this University had also been present at the meeting of the Association. Sir Robert had spent four days in England on his way back and though he did not have much opportunity to observe conditions, he marked a very optimistic note struck in his conversation with the tight little islanders. At this juncture the Globe representative was announced and "The Varsity" picked up his copy paper and faded, regretting to terminate a very enjoyable interview.

Lawrence, Kansas.—More than 4,000 students have registered at the University of Kansas in the opening week, breaking all records for that institution. Students are enrolled from thirty-four states and from seven foreign countries, including Canada.

TRINITY PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED

Miss Edith Young Was Leading Student in Fourth Year At St. Hilda's

Trinity College ceased activities to pay their last respects to one of their number who will be sadly missed by her many intimate friends. Miss Irene Young, of 86 Lowther Ave., who was entering her fourth year at St. Hilda's, had undergone an operation for appendicitis three weeks ago. Pneumonia developed and three critical days proved too great a strain.

Miss Young was an outstanding member of the Modern History course, and leaves besides her parents, a sister in second year English and History.

One of the distinguishing characteristics for which Miss Young will be remembered was her sincere devotion to her College. Pall-bearers were Stuart Ryan, Jack Clough, John Gil-mour, Arnold Brooks, Hugh Baker, and Archie Kerr.

FASHIONS CHANGE SKIRTS GO DOWN

Knees are to be More Rare Fashion's Dictate Decreases

MEN UNOBSERVANT

"Yes, my skirts are two inches longer than last year, but after looking them over here, I've decided to take them up again this evening!" declared one vehement co-ed when approached by "The Varsity" on the subject of the collegiate skirt. "They're positively sloppy!" she concluded and rushed off to her scissors and needle.

"Without a doubt they are much longer this year," said one broad-shouldered young thing, smoothing down her smart tweed in corroboration. "You see far fewer knees." Whereupon the reporter turned, only to be confronted by a row of six expensive beige knees decoratively exposed beneath a row of three equally smart tweeds.

The men interviewed seemed decidedly apathetic on the subject. "I haven't noticed skirts particularly, but the girls certainly do look exceptionally attractive this year," was the usual reply.

Shops devoted exclusively to the anywhere from two to three inches needs of the collegiate sponsor skirts longer than in previous years; but the clerks report that almost invariably, the purchaser insists on their being shortened before she takes them away.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that, while skirts are definitely on the downward trend, the average lecture-going co-ed, for the time being, at least, will follow the dictates of her own sweet will in the matter of campus clothes. In more formal afternoon or evening wear, however, she will submit herself to the dominion of insidious fashion headlines and stink more or less gracefully in the new long, swathing silhouette.

A part of the regular early season practice of Boston University's football men is a regular game of tag each afternoon. Every player handles the ball, exercises his leg muscles, learns to think while running and develops his wind in this way.

GREAT HALL STAFF HAS MANY CHANGES SINCE LAST TERM

Mr. H. H. Campbell no Longer Superintendent of the Dining Hall

NEW APPOINTMENT MADE

New Cook Improves Pie Crust And Great Hall Filled To Capacity

Several changes have taken place over the summer holidays in the staff of Great Hall, Hart House. They appear to have been well timed as the numbers taking meals in the Great Hall this year are unprecedented.

After careful consideration, Mr. H. H. Campbell decided at the end of the last academic year that having been for five years at Hart House he would be wise in making a change. Mr. Campbell rendered devoted and efficient service to members of Hart House giving unsparingly of his time and ability to the affairs of his department. He took an unflinching interest in the general welfare of the House as a whole. Mr. Campbell gave up his position in May last, and Mr. A. Gunn was appointed Superintendent of the Dining Hall Department in his place. Mr. Gunn is no stranger to Hart House as he formerly held an appointment in the Comptroller's office and for a short time in the Warden's office. Last winter Mr. Gunn occupied a position of responsibility in the city on which he was required to serve many thousands of meals each week. Before taking hold at the Great Hall he was sent to Cornell and Wisconsin to absorb some pointers on what collegians like to eat.

There is no assistant superintendent at present. Mr. H. H. Davis having resigned with Mr. Campbell.

Comments have been heard this term on the improved quality of the pie-crust, and it was learned that a new day cook, a lady, had been employed. The rumour that this pie-crust is the cause of the hordes pouring in for lunch is unconfirmed. At noon on Monday, 1,133 students lunched, the largest ever. It has been suggested by Mr. Gilley, the Comptroller, that if more lectures got out at 12:00 noon or at 12:30 p.m., that the situation would be relieved. It is Mr. Gilley's opinion something will have to be done sooner or later.

VISIT OF FORMER EDITOR

A former editor of "The Varsity" was a visitor to the offices during the week-end, in the person of C. P. Stacey, B.A., Tor., Oxon. Mr. Stacey was editor during 1926-27. He displayed a keen interest in events on the campus which occurred during his two years' absence at Oxford. He is now on his way to Princeton University, where he will take Ph.D. work in English.

My Pet Peeve

My chief objections around the University are the pseudo-Oxford accents sported by some of the undergraduates and the store-clothes sported by some of the others, said P. C. Wornick, IV, Arts.

My Pet Peeve is the supercilious young males who frown upon artless young meddles, says Jessie Gray, III B. & M., U.C.

STUDENTS ACCEPT VACCINATION RULE WITHOUT TROUBLE

Conscientious Objectors Are Requested to Report Frequently

FEW BECOME ILL

Health of Men Students Is Reported Good For This Term

"Compulsory vaccination is accepted by the women students as a matter of course, and very little exception is taken to this new ruling," reported Dr. Gordon when questioned by "The Varsity". There are always a few conscientious objectors, however, who are requested to report frequently to the Medical Office to guard against any chance of infection.

The percentage who object is small. Most of the freshettes welcome this opportunity of being vaccinated by their family doctor, and getting over the ill-effects before leaving home.

There are a few unfortunates, of course, who leave this little operation till the last minute and come to college bringing a stiff arm with them. But on the whole this method of compulsory vaccination interferes very little with lectures or personal comfort. "The student health in general is good this year," said Dr. Porter, director of University Health Service, interviewed by "The Varsity" in the midst of conducting medical examinations of a horde of students.

Asked if there had been any trouble regarding the compulsory vaccination ruling, Dr. Porter stated that a great many of the students were already vaccinated when they entered the university, and there had been no difficulty with the remainder.

UNIVERSITY SUFFERS LOSS OF PROMINENT SCIENCE PROFESSORS

Prof. Borsook Becomes Department Head at Pasadena Tech Institute

PROF. HUNTER TO ALBERT

University of Toronto has recently suffered the loss of two professors, who have resigned to accept professorships in other universities.

Henry Borsook, M.A., Ph.D., M.B., formerly Assistant head of the Department of Biochemistry, has accepted a position at Pasadena Technical Institute as head of the Department of Biochemistry there. Prof. Borsook graduated from the University of Toronto, and in 1921 played on the Intercollegiate football team as outside wing and on the Intercollegiate Senior Basketball team in the same year. He won the Reeve prize, the Ellen Mickle, the prize in Medicine, and the prize in pathology.

"Mr. Borsook was a very brilliant biological chemist, and a very promising young man. His departure is a great loss to the university," said Prof. Wastney, head of the Department of Biochemistry in an interview with "The Varsity" last evening.

Prof. George Hunter, M.A., B.Sc., assistant professor in pathological chemistry, also leaves the University of Toronto to become head of the same department in Albert University.

Varsity Coach Improves

Jimmie Douglas, the Head Coach of the Varsity football teams whose condition was very low late yesterday morning, is rallying again, although it will be at least two or three days before he can be pronounced as being out of danger.

PROTESTING VICTIM PROMENADED IN PARK

Residence Revellers Raise Ructions in the Wee Sma' Hours

ROUSING BEO RACE FINISH

After East House had won the bed race on Hoskins Avenue at one o'clock last night, the gang from the three University Residences, clad in pyjamas, dressing gowns and Varsity blazers, made the welkin ring with continuous yelling as they paraded up t. George Street with one of the beds in tow, and observing two reeling revellers, put the slightest one on the bed with shouts of "A potentate". Hoisting the bed on their shoulders, they took him for a ride on Bloor, Avenue Road and Queen's Park. The women's residences were serenaded en route and the "passenger" in many speeches declared that he had spent four years around the university and knew that "boys must be boys" when he was not telling them that they would be "sorry for this if you'll excuse my language."

Returning with the bed and its burden, the gang gave three cheers for their "potentate" and heard a final speech before breaking up after some questioning as to where the bed had been procured.

STUDES RUN GAMUT PREACHER TO COOK

U.C. Student Heaved Ice While Med. Men Carved Human Flesh And Others Taught

ISAACS HANDED CLOTH

The average male student at the University of Toronto does not have a taste in common for summer employment with his fellow seekers of higher education. A thousand and one ways of making money have been employed this summer by university men, according to views expressed herewith.

Many novel experiences have been undergone by the undergraduates of this college. Freak positions and human jobs are commonplace. "The Varsity" reporter, in eliciting information about the campus, secured some startling facts about the way students conduct themselves during the long vacation.

"I navigated a cruiser for the Dominion Fisheries, looking after salmon fish regulations. Prince Rupert, which is about 300 miles north of Vancouver, was my starting point, of a cruise of 6,000 miles. In any spare time at my disposal, I did grizzly-bear hunting," said W. S. Kergin, VI Meds, and president of the Medical Society.

Alex. Stringer, IV U.C., President of the University College Literary and Athletic Society, went up north towards the North Pole, to Champagne Landing, on the Yukon River, and from thence into the interior. There he taught school all summer to Indian and Esquimaux children.

On bright freshman from S.P.S. stated that he worked in a Hamilton plant doing electrical construction and wiring. Another chap from Knox, (Continued on page 4)

POLITICAL CLUBS TAKE ACTIVE PART IN NEAR ELECTION

MacDonald-Cartier Club Plans To Assist Conservative Party Ranks

LIBERALS ALSO ACTIVE

Prominent Liberal to Address Luncheon of Club in Near Future

"There are some very definite plans on foot regarding the functions of the Macdonald-Cartier Club in the coming election," said B. D. Beamish, secretary of the club in an interview with "The Varsity" last evening. Questioned as to what these particular negotiations were, Mr. Beamish declined to commit himself further, except to state that it was a step designed to bring the Club into a much more important place within the Conservative party.

"The chief aim of the club, at present, is, however, to assist the Conservative party in every way possible," continued Mr. Beamish, "and the chief work of the club will be done in close co-operation with the Young Men's Conservative Club of downtown and the Osgoode Hall Conservative Club. It is expected that these clubs will unite to give a luncheon to a prominent Conservative."

The Club, Mr. Beamish stated, is keenly interested in securing the franchise for all University students away from home. There are no definite plans, however, for carrying on electioneering work within the University outside of its own membership.

"We may possibly send representatives from our club to voice the opinions of youth to outside ridings," Mr. Beamish further stated. "The Club desires to voice student opinion in favor of the Conservative policy and particularly of the Liquor Control Act."

Interviewed enant the plans of the Liberal Club of the University of Toronto, Mr. J. F. Strenkowsky, an official of the Association, stated that plans were being made by the Club with regard to the approaching election.

"The Club particularly attempts to keep in touch with the provincial organization, and also hopes to exert some influence on the student vote," stated Mr. Strenkowsky.

A luncheon of the Liberal Club will be held, possibly on Thursday, "The Varsity" was informed, at which a prominent Liberal will probably give an address.

Mr. Allin, the president of the club, could not be reached last evening.

TORONTO PROFESSOR TO BE CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVE

Professor Wrong at Conference On Pacific Relations In Kyoto

Professor G. M. Wrong, former head of the department of history, will represent Canada at the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations to be held in Kyoto, Japan, this fall. The professor, who is now en route to Vancouver, sails on the Empress of Asia on October 3. The purpose of the conference, according to Professor N. A. Mackenzie, is to study Pacific relations along co-operative lines. Social, political and economic affairs of countries bordering on the Pacific will be probed with a view to improving conditions. Prof. Mackenzie informed "The Varsity" that his colleague would play a noteworthy role at the conference.

THE BAD BOYS

Being connected in a disciplinary or administrative way with a university must be a rather uncomfortable position, comparable to playing double catch with a grenade or cuddling a wild-cat under the chin. For the college student has a custom of doing things in a big, whole-hearted manner; things that are alarming, if not actually terrifying, to those who have become somewhat sedate and saddened by experience. So long as the boys confine their exuberance to yanking ties, wearing fancy hats, hard collars, sprinkling, dumping, smacking, shouting, and general hazing, no one is startled. Now and again, however, the lads have a fling; make additions to the haberdashery and anatomy of statues of revered statesmen in parks; squirt fire-hoses at notable visitors to the campus; push in the faces of objectionable policemen; swipe signs from essential locations in hotels; holler "boo" lustily at exalted orators in assembly halls; give vent to cat calls from the gallery when the plot gets specially thick; in fact, raise more Cain per acre than any other experts in such agriculture, including anarchists.

Now, consider the matter of the sophomore year at Cornell University, across the lake at Ithaca, N.Y., last year. Our version of the episode has it that they decided to throw a grand party, which, in the course of the preparations, was named a name that our policy this year will not permit us to repeat. Suffice it to say, though, that it was a synonym for the region to which all too many sophomores are ultimately destined. Of course, the value of the name, to which we refer, for publicity purposes is not to be denied; gaudy posters urged one to "Go to . . . !" Signs were put on the rear of motor cars suggesting a trip to . . . Students of various faculties proved and disproved the existence of any such place as . . . Even the theological faculties took a whirl at it.

Presently the enormity of the thing dawned upon parents, friends, guardians, and alumni. The authorities were assailed, and quite a time was had by all. The columns of the "Cornell Sun" were the scene of many a verbal altercation. The fuss, to be sure, subsided after the ball was over, but one cannot avoid the suspicion that the deans will think about . . . for some time.

And at Harvard, the home of the bean, the cod, and the long a, there was a rumpus at graduation time, when such notables as J. P. Morgan were back at the Alma Mater. The final year elected a man of known poetic ability to compose a valedictory song. From reports, it turned out to be a daisy. Duly printed and sung, the result was a distinct success until some observant person made a discovery of import.

It seems, from résumés of the affair printed in the reviews, that the first letters of the lines in each quatrain spelled a four letter word. The first two words are said to have been words that we cannot print, policy or no policy. The last two were compounds of an even more objectionable nature. The culprit was promptly fired from Harvard, his last words being, "I guess I never did grow up!" The last reports indicate that back copies of the Boston Herald, in which the verses appeared, were quoted at fifty cents bid, with no takers.

The year before last students of the University of Washington ducked the president of their student council. At Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island, students clad in pajamas had a row with the local police last May. "The worst riot in my experience!" said the chief of police. The boys of the University of Iowa slid eggs at the home of their director of athletics. The eggs, we understand, were grade A, strictly fresh. At Des Moines, however, last spring, the eggs the students fired at their president and his secretary were more political, being well advanced. In June Yale undergrads set fire to the traditional fence, broke windows, beat policemen up, pulled street-car trolleys from the wires . . .

And so it goes. Even our own campus has not been free from excitement. Late prowlers along Hoskins Avenue can at times see strange and weird figures running about, and their motives are obviously not exercise. Nor is the time out of memory when visitors to a college on the west were roused from bed by the raid of inmates of a near-by dormitory. Fire hoses subsequently played an important part in the festivities. And there are those who remember the strange doings in the old gymnasium up near the Stadium at initiation time in 1925.

Indeed, one can never tell when the undergraduate enthusiasm is going to create some grotesquerie. And this has undoubtedly much to do with the strange ideas of college life current among the

DISCUSS CANADIAN STUDENT EXCHANGE

Foster Understanding Among Various Sections of Dominion

A plan to conduct N.F.C.U.S. tours to Europe solely for university students, and at rates much lower than any at present procurable, was one of the things discussed at the recent Annual Conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, held at Montreal. According to Mr. A. Gordon Burns, U. of T. representative at the conference, it is hoped to get this plan into operation in time for next summer. Through the courtesy of England's organization corresponding to the N.F.C.U.S., it is expected that access will be obtained to the cheap rates accorded European Universities.

The putting into effect of a regular exchange of students between Canadian universities was another of the items discussed. The University of Toronto, said Mr. Burns, has agreed to allow students from other universities to attend the third year of the pass course without tuition fees, for the sake of the exchange of ideas and the promotion of a better understanding between the various sections of the Dominion.

The year's debating schedule, the proposed All-Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, and the projected establishment of an information bureau as a clearing house for information regarding the various organizations and phases of undergraduate life at the different universities, were matters also brought before the conference.

At the Imperial Conference, which was held at Montreal during the ten days immediately following the Annual Conference, Miss Ada Brett of Trinity and Mr. Jerry McVean of S.P.S., were the official U. of T. delegates. They were accompanied by Mr. Mel. Kenney of the class of '28, sometime member of the N.F.C.U.S. debating team which toured Europe. The reports of these conferences are now in the hands of the printers.

public. It has, in addition, a connection with the grey hairs of college dons, and must be a benison to desk men on newspapers who want subjects for snappy heads. . . .

With the Theatres

THE UPTOWN

Ann Harding is superlatively good in the phonoplay version of Philip Barry's stage success in which she starred a season ago. Despite the audience's typical Toronto reaction to certain scenes, the picture is well directed and smoothly done by an intelligent cast. There is an amusing short feature on the bill, in which Harry Langdon blossoms forth with a voice as funny as his pantomime. Jack Holland heads a diverting stage show with a really impressive finale.

—A.E.F.A.

SHEA'S HIPPODROME

A nicely rounded programme of vaudeville makes the bill at the Hippodrome rather attractive this week. The head line act is exceptionally good, John Steel, a tenor of great ability proving very popular with semi-classical selections. A first class acrobatic act, Miss Jean Ford, ever popular with Toronto audiences, in clever impersonations, and a couple of dance acts, complete a bill which is well up to the average. The feature picture is on a rather hackneyed theme, but if any students need a little relaxation from over study it will provide a good laugh. On the whole, a good show.

SEASON TICKETS GO ON SALE WEDNESDAY

Four Extra Rugby Games Carded on Student Tickets at Same Price

Following last year's scheme, the Students' Athletic Tickets will go on sale for men in the West Common Room of Hart House on Wednesday, at 1.00 p.m., and for the women in Room 82, U.C., the same day at 10.00 a.m. The tickets, admitting to all games held under the Athletic Directorate either at the Varsity Stadium or the Varsity Arena, will again sell for four dollars. It is pointed out that there will be at least four extra rugby games this year—including one additional Intercollegiate scheduled game, one extra O.R.F.U. game, and two double headers in the Interprovincial. Students are reminded that they must present their registration cards when applying for these tickets.

"The Students' Tickets were a complete success last year, both financially and from the point of view of hockey support," stated Mr. A. Gordon Burns yesterday. He mentioned the fact that whereas the minimum hockey crowd of previous years had been twenty or twenty-five, last year's minimum was five hundred.

With the advent of these tickets, the old idea of a rooters' practice has been discontinued. The cheer leaders are now in the course of training. The students are urged by the Directorate to give them full support on their first appearance this Saturday.

The election of this year's president of the Men Students' Administrative Council will be held in Hart House today, following the report of the nominating committee, which is at present in session.

INTERFACULTY TENNIS TOURNAMENT TO-DAY AT TORONTO CLUB

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The past week's gloom over the Varsity camp due to the illness of Jimmy Douglas, has been dispelled by the news that Ronnie McPherson has taken charge of the Big Blue. Ronnie was coach in 1926 and 1927. In his first year Varsity copped the Intercollegiate in that memorable three-cornered tie play-off, and made a strong bid for the Dominion honours.

McPherson lost no time and began the long-overdue weeding-out process yesterday. His methods put plenty of vim and vigour into the "mediocre" squad. Ronnie succeeded in getting rid of a lot of Saturday's sloppiness and awful tackling. Eight men were relegated to the Orphans yesterday: McCulloch, Squires, Levinsky, Henderson, Solandt, Stewart and McGibbon, and a dozen more will follow to-day. Ronnie is going to put the team in tip-top shape by Saturday with the aid of morning practices and chalk-talks. Downtown sporting writers take notice!

All four Intercollegiate teams performed in exhibition games on Saturday. Western were the only squad to drop a game, losing to Sarnia Imperials 10-4. This is the Purple and White's first year in senior company and they will find the going mighty different. The Tricolor is being touted as the team to beat for the Intercollegiate title. In addition to almost the same line-up as last year they have plenty of new material. Carter and Munro on the backfield, Bubbs Britton on secondary defense, Hamlin, Kilgour and Stuart on the line, Gourlay as end, are a crew calculated to put the other college moleskins in moth balls pretty early in the season.

VAUGHN HIGH SCORER AT VIC TRACK MEET

Champion First in Javelin, Running Broad Jump and Also Furlong

Favoured with good weather conditions, though it was rather chilly, the Victoria College Track Meet came off yesterday at the Stadium with a fair crowd in attendance. The individual championship, awarded on points, was taken by Vaughn, who scored three firsts, one second and one third. The following are the results—Shot Put: 1st, Leslie, 2nd, Stewart, 3rd, Partridge, distance, 29 ft., 10 in. 100 yards dash: 1st, Vaughn, 2nd, Buchanan, 3rd, Vaughn. Time, 10.3 sec. 800 yards run: 1st, King, 2nd, Hodgetts, 3rd, Amos. Time, 2:11 minutes. 220 yards: 1st, Vaughn, 2nd, Davidson, 3rd, Hillards. Time, 25 sec. High Jump: 1st, Ford, 2nd, Vaughn, 3rd, Michner. Height, 5 ft., 7 in. Discus Throw: 1st, Lautenslager, 2nd, Partridge, 3rd, Gregory. Distance, 89 ft., 5 in. Javelin: 1st, Vaughn, 2nd, Leslie, 3rd, Woolner. Distance, 114 ft. Running Broad Jump: 1st, Vaughn, 2nd, Pierce, 3rd, Buchanan. Distance, 18 ft 6 1/2 in. Mile Run: 1st, King, 2nd, Howey, 3rd, Amos. Time, 5:04 min. Inter-House Relay: 1st North House, 2nd Gate House, 3rd Middle House.

First Interfaculty Water Polo practices to-night. All players are asked to come out between 5-6 p.m.

RETURNING REGULARS GOOD BACKBONE FOR 1929 SOCCER ELEVEN

Confident of Turning Tables on Ancient Rivals From Old McGill

DOWNING MANAGER

Right at this present date, Varsity's chances look more than rosy in Intercollegiate soccer for season 1929. U. of T. soccer fans have reason for much exultation over the fact that the great majority of last year's regulars are back on the job again. Indeed, a check-up shows that only two, Jack and Cox, are missing. King, centre half, Ward, Davidson, the tricky forward man, and other stalwarts of the 1928 edition have returned large as life, and will be showing the opposition stunts that will tie them in knots.

Team elections have placed Jackson, last year's manager, in the president's past, while Downing, another of the old team, will fill his shoes as manager.

The opening engagement of the season will bring the Torontonians against the Royal Military College, at Kingston. But of course the big interest will centre on the approaching tilt with McGill, to take place in the local backyard on November second. Bitter has been the rivalry in the realms of soccer between Ontario's and Quebec's leading seats of things educative, and, sad to relate, McGill has edged out a majority of victories. This year it is confidently expected the results will tell a different story.

The team management are anxious that none will absorb the idea that there is no place on the team for new candidates. Any aspirants to team

TWO BITS ENTRY FEE FOR WOMEN'S TENNIS

Modest Sum Gives Right to Compete in U.C. Racquet Tourney; Draw Thursday

The U.C. Women's Tennis Tournament is to be started, we hope with a bang, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 3rd. The first draw will be published in "The Varsity" Thursday morning, and the first round will probably be played off Thursday afternoon. The entrance fee is 25 cents and will be paid at the first game you play. Please sign up immediately; the list will be up in the U.C. Women's cloak room, until Wednesday, Oct. 2nd at 4 o'clock. The draw will be made Wednesday night. Everybody sign up! We're looking for lots of fun and we sincerely hope we'll find some good new material among the freshettes.

From the winners of the tournament a team will be picked which will compete in the Interfaculty tournament. Audrey Purkis is managing the tournament and she wants all the old stars and lots of new ones, to make competition. So don't forget to sign before Wednesday afternoon and the more the merrier.

WOMEN'S UNION DIET IS TOO ATTRACTIVE

Cafeteria Experiences Record Rush of Hungry Co-Ed Freshies

"We like the crowds, but it is a little inconvenient," said Miss Barber, the dietitian at the Women's Union. The cafeteria at the Union has had an unprecedented attendance lately, the hungry Freshies arriving in hordes every noon-hour. Miss Barber explained that it was not lack of food, but rather lack of accommodation which honors, experienced or otherwise, will be more than welcomed, and freshmen are particularly urged not to be bashful in making their abilities known. Practices will be held each day this week at four p.m.

ORFUNKS GIVE VARSITY VERY STIFF WORKOUT

Coach McPherson Puts Team Through Tackling Workout to Bolster Main Weakness

HALVES COOPERATE WELL

The Intercollegiate Seniors got down to business in earnest last night at the stadium. Ronnie McPherson certainly made his presence felt at his first practice. The tackling of the Blue and White was below the usual standard of Varsity teams last Saturday, and Ronnie staged a good tackling practice to lead for the way for an improvement in this department. Bailey, Bell, Davey and McFayden played back for the kicks and were working well together. A newcomer out last night, Mueller, an outside from Hamilton Tech., has a good turn of speed and although a little over-anxious, should develop into a decided acquisition with more experience.

Gooderham, the Blue's good outside wing, was in uniform, but did not take part in the activities. There do not seem to have been any injuries of consequence suffered in last Saturday's affray although Hallam will be out for a few days with an injured knee. Jimmy Sinclair was also unable to take part in the practice, but will be O.K. shortly.

After a signal practice Coach McPherson sent his boys in against the Orfuns and the latter gave the first team as stiff a workout as anyone could desire. It was just what the Blue team needed. For the troublesome position of quarter Ronnie used Don Wood and Twaits, late of Sarnia, and both showed to advantage.

The Blue and White will not enter next Saturday's game with Western afflicted with the disease of over-confidence if Ronnie can possibly help it. There is going to be a lot of hard work put in between now and Saturday and it will be a well-trained outfit that will take the field for the Blue in the opening clash of the Intercollegiate series.

DENTAL FROSH ADORENO IN NOVEL NECK ATTIRE

Eton Collars and Bright Ties Standard Equipment On Dents

Wide Eton collars, draped about gentle freshmen necks, trimmed with brightly coloured ribbon, are the distinctive costumes of the Dental frosh, decided upon by their sophomores.

"They struck an average of neck sizes and gave us all size fourteen collars," said one freshman as he ruefully adjusted an oversize collar. It is understood that in case the collars are too small, a slit is made up the back in order to accommodate an over-large neck.

The neck-wear bears the name of the freshman, "just so that they will not go astray", as one sophomore said. The broad collars provide also a wide field for artistic design on the part of the sophs so inclined.

caused the inconvenience. She thought that possible expansion of the cafeteria was unlikely as the new residence for University College women would eventually take care of the larger numbers.

The number of Freshies at Victoria has doubled this year, causing much overcrowding at the Wymwood cafeteria. Miss Van Allen, the dietitian, stated that the attendance is almost five times as great as that of last year. She did not think it possible that the cafeteria would be expanded, but said that the present arrangement was most unsatisfactory for the students. She knew of no solution to the problem unless registration was curtailed at Victoria. She thought, however, that once time-tables were adjusted and after the usual confusion of the first two weeks, the congestion would be greatly relieved.

At ten o'clock yesterday morning His Grace Archbishop McNeal celebrated Mass in St. Basil's Church in honor of the feast of St. Michael and at the same time officially opened the Mediaeval Institute of St. Michael's College, an event which has been heralded for many months. The Mediaeval Institute of St. Michael's is the first of its kind on the American continent and is intended to awaken an interest in mediaeval studies which, it is felt, have been neglected on this continent until the present time. The course of studies which has been inaugurated at St. Michael's is under the supervision of Professor Leon Noel, late of the Sorbonne, Paris. Professor Noel has had offers from the largest American Universities to open a course of mediaeval studies in their environs, but has turned them down in order to open such a course to the students of the University of Toronto, whom he feels will be more appreciative of such a course than their American brothers. From this date the course mentioned will be opened to the students of the University, and all interested are invited to enquire at St. Michael's about particulars of the course.

By G. G. Brooks

Dear Uncle Ned,
 I am a freshman. I am eighteen years old. I go to the University of Toronto. There are a lot of other people there too. They make me wear a beautiful red and white tie. I like the tie, but some great big naughty man came along and grabbed me by it, and would you believe it, he cut my tie right off! They told me he was a sophomore. What is a sophomore? I wrote this letter all by myself.
 Teddie Ivanoffalitch.

Dear Teddie,
 Thank you for your little letter, it was just too sweet. There are several different kinds of sophomores. From your letter I imagine the one who assaulted you was of the genus ignoramus. They can be identified by a college swagger, some of them wear coon coats, and they are all incurably addicted to running for year elections. Do write again soon and tell us some more of your thrilling experiences. I have assigned you the pen name of Minniehocho.
 UNCLE NED.

Dear Uncle Ned,
 Here I am back again. Do you remember me? I won your contest for the best letter last year and got a trip to Hamilton to see the tigers.

 What is the new building on College Street across from the hospital?
 South Wind.

Welcome back, South Wind. That new building is an intellectual library for the use of School men.
 UNCLE NED.

Dear Uncle Ned,
 Can you please tell me what the little building is in front of Hart House?
 DODO.

Dear Dodo,
 That building was an observatory, but since the wide sidewalks were installed on Bloor Street the students do all their observing there. The building is no longer in use.
 UNCLE NED.

If there is anything you want to know, or if you would like to correspond, write to Uncle Ned, at "The Varsity" Office, Hart House. He will be glad to hear from you.

ST. MIKE'S FROSH GET MUSICAL INITIATION

Mr. Bickersteth and Father McCorkell Impart Advice to First Year

Last evening the freshmen of St. Michael's were formally initiated into the student body in a rousing reception in the East Common Room, Hart House. T. V. Kennedy, the popular president of St. Michael's S.A.C., was a knock-out as master of ceremonies.

The evening started with a song by a male quartette, Thompson, McGuey, Dunn and Hughes. Everyone still felt musical so a saxophonist named Gilman rendered a solo. An antidote being then needed, the Warden of Hart House, Mr. Bickersteth, gave a neat speech, principally directed to the freshmen. He referred to the connection between St. Michael's and Hart House, which was ever growing closer. A short and interesting history of the House from its foundation followed. It was celebrating its tenth birthday. Nov. 11th of this year. Though it contained all the amenities of a first rate men's club, the spirit was not that of a club. Hart House had features not duplicated in similar institutions in American universities. These were the Sketch Room, Sunday Evening Concerts and Songsters, Debating Union, Theatre and Library.

Father McCorkell, the genial president, made a speech of welcome which was characteristically witty. The freshmen obliged with a number of original and entertaining songs. In the intervals a snappy orchestra dispensed music. The most welcome event of the evening was the cats in the Great Hall, and then "To fresh fields and pastures new" was the order for one and all.

An unidentified "Grateful American Woman", left more than a million dollars to the Bad Nauheim Hospital, Germany.

U.C. LIT MEETING

All men of U.C. are asked to be present at the first meeting of the year. Freshmen must attend and the nominations for the 1st Year Executive will take place. The meeting is held at 8.00 p.m. in the Junior Common Room.

The Players' Guild of University College will hold a tea to-morrow afternoon in the common room of the Women's Union at 4.15. Members of the first year are especially urged to attend.

S.C.A. BOOK EXCHANGE

Books for all faculties still remain on the shelves. There are all selling at greatly reduced prices and it would be to your advantage to come in and look around.

ST. JOSEPH'S FEATURE BRILLIANT PARASOLS

Annual Initiation Ceremony is Brought to a Close Last Evening

Leaves may be falling, and summer on the wane, yet the brilliantly tinted parasols of St. Joseph's Freshettes have been adding a sunshine note to the Varsity Campus for the past five days. In among the unmistakable yellow and green and red-check ties, and various bows, they passed, finding only a partial refuge in the College where they were carried lowered.

Initiation was brought to a close last night with a concert by the entire Freshman class of St. Joseph's, followed by a rather hilarious auction of the Freshmen to the lowest bidder. The audience waxed enthusiastic over the bidding, and prices hovered between two-cent stamps, ancient grammars, half in Latin translation, and disused waste-paper baskets.

Afterwards, a friendly lunch and dance brought the years together again, and the parasols have retired from publicity to be vivid souvenirs of a long-to-be-remembered period.

"This year's freshman class is very fortunate in having Miss Kilpatrick as their dean of women," said Principal Wallace of University College at the tea given for the first year girls at the Women's Union; and we are confident that she will ably fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Kirkwood's resignation.

Principal Wallace was introduced to the large representative crowd of freshettes by Miss Kilpatrick, who spoke a few words of welcome to the incoming year. The heads of the three women's residences,—Mrs. Howard, Miss Biss and Dr. Wright, poured tea, assisted by members of the Women's Undergraduate Association.

PREHISTORIC PIG HAD TOOTHACHE TROUBLE

Ontario Museum Man Does Research Work Among Roman Ruins of England

PROF. ILIFF EXCAVATES

The jaw bone of a boar which had been suffering from a tooth ache before it was killed was one of the interesting things which Professor Iliff of the Royal Ontario Museum found while digging at Alchester, England, this summer. The excavation which he has been superintending for the summer months during the past four years, is carried on under the auspices of Oxford University. Professor Iliff said there were a number of ancient Roman cities yet to be uncovered in England, but one great difficulty lies in the fact that present English cities are on top of them. The history of Alchester can be traced to 410 A.D., but seems to have been abandoned after that.

While the Island of the Britons was the tail end of the Roman Empire, and thus much less luxurious than Rome, nevertheless they had central heating plants for their houses, which the modern British are just beginning to adopt. This was accomplished by putting hollow tiles in the wall partitions and under the floors, and then forcing hot air through them. The art of glass making was also practised before 410 B.C., but was lost in the next two centuries, which are the darkest in English history.

Legend places King Arthur and his court in the fifth and sixth centuries, and in a region near Alchester, so excavation here may yield interesting information concerning the good king and his Knights of the Round Table.

Professor Iliff and his party have unearthed many wares and pieces of pottery of value, and this summer they found about seven hundred weight of bones of animals which had been strewn about after they were eaten. Also they found many oyster shells which proves they were popular then as now. The ancients evidently had no garbage collection.

In the Royal Ontario Museum is a grindstone made of pudding stone from Hertfordshire. This is a natural formation looking like a plum pudding only the plums are pieces of jasper and flint. This same stone is found in northern Ontario.

The party led by Professor Iliff affords an opportunity to any who wish to go to England and enjoy this historical research away from books, essays and exams which attend the usual lecture courses.

Posters and Individual Notices Draw U.C. Women

That the U.C. women have at last discovered how to get their students out to mass meetings was evidenced at the Women's Undergraduate Association meeting held in the Union yesterday afternoon. About two hundred girls were present as a result of posters and individual notices.

After a welcome to the freshies by the vice-president, Mrs. Kirkwood and the chief business of the meeting was Miss Kilpatrick addressed the girls, nominations to the offices of president of the W.U.A., president of 3T2, and all those of 3T3. Announcements of future events, such as the Freshie Tea and elections, which will be held later, in the week were made.

who would not divulge his name, said that he preached during the hot weather, and worked in a fruit establishment in the week. It is quite the usual thing for the theologians to give sermons in vacation.

"I labored in a tailoring house, slinging cloth around, and lifting heavy bolts of goods," was the pert reply of Louis "Marge" Isaacs, 3T2, U.C.

Cecil Roebuck, II Pass, U.C., worked in an ice-house heaving 300 pound blocks of frozen water. "The women object when they think it is put over them in the amount of ice they get. They come up in big limousines and then coolly argue about the size of a 10 cent piece of ice."

Another student cooked for a surveying party in the Georgian Bay district. Some of the Meds pulled tonsils, removed appendices. Shouting through a megaphone, on a T.T.C. bus, working at the Exhibition, slinging hash, and reporting are only some of the other unusual ways a student draws in the kale during the holidays.

UNDERGRADUATE INERTIA

The lackadaisical attitude of the undergraduates of this University toward their own administrative organizations and activities is deplorable. Every college has its few enthusiastically effervescing souls who plan programs, map out campaigns, and do anything in the way of publicity for their cause, except draw chalk pictures on the pavement in front of U.C.; or orate wildly from a cracker barrel. Every college, as the third element, has its bodies of students suffering from public-spirit inertia. At meetings of councils, societies and associations held throughout last year, the chairman would rise to announce the business of the day, hopefully praying that perhaps before the vote was taken a quorum would appear either through the door or out of thin air. The quorum would more frequently than not, fail to appear, and the chairman would be left alone with his revised constitution, or his program for extending shining little rows of nickels from Knox College to U.C.

Baits and traps proved fairly successful, but stiff exercise for the budget. Cups of tea and biscuits were dangled before the eyes of the women—scarlet-screaming posters and jazzy slogans enticed the male undergraduates to attend meetings in which they should be taking a vital part.

University College has approximately six hundred women registered and every one of them is a member of the Undergraduate Association. The lack of attendance at meetings, however, became so acute that they were forced to lower their quorum to thirty, which is five per cent. of the total. This fall, in order to ensure a quorum at their first meeting, the executive sent a personal letter to each woman—"You are expected to attend the W.U.A. Mass Meeting . . .". Such indeed, is a sad state of affairs.

Crowds may flock to a basketball or a water polo game when there is a dance tacked on to the program. The players otherwise, would play to an enthusiastic gallery of empty chairs and the heartening roar of the referee's whistle.

If every student was public spirited enough to interest himself sufficiently in the organizations of this University, and to express his much vaunted student opinion more frequently, the organs of student government would then have half a chance of being representative of the student body as a body. Otherwise they would not.

CORRESPONDENCE

An interesting feature of "The Varsity" is the opportunity which is offered to its readers of expressing their opinions and views in the correspondence column. Letters of reasonable length and sound argument on topics which are, or may be, of general interest, are invited, and will be welcomed.

To assist the editors, we request that letters be on one side of the paper only, double spaced, legible, and correctly punctuated.

During past years discussions of considerable value and interest have been conducted through the correspondence columns.

BLAZER DISCUSSION FINALLY CONCLUDED

S.A.C. Discusses Changes in Constitution and Probe in Student Government

ELECT ADAMS VICE-PRES.

The ancient topic of blazers and crests was finally brought to a close after two years of discussion at the meeting of the Students' Administrative Council held yesterday in Room A, Hart House. It was announced that regular crests were on sale and blazers would be available shortly.

In view of the fact that the representative from S.P.S. appointed to the vice-presidency of the council had failed in his examinations last spring, his successor, N. B. Adams, was elected unanimously to that position.

The meeting discussed the question of the changes begun last year in the constitution of the council and it was felt that a letter should be written to Dean Alfred DeLury asking what steps had been taken by the committee of the Caput which was appointed last spring to look into the constitution. It was moved that this letter be written by the secretary treasurer.

It was pointed out that the council should see to it that the interest in the probe into student government should not be allowed to die down.

Social and Personal

Mr. Otto Choake, Bearer of the Shovel in Trinity Parliament, has been spending the past few afternoons running about the track at Varsity stadium to get into condition for a strenuous year.

Mr. Choake was attired in a charming gymnasium ensemble composed of a garnet and green roll neck sweater, with open work at the elbows and chic white broadcloth trunks flared at the knee, showing to advantage his beige calves.

C—C

Members of first year plumbing were entertained at bridge last evening by members of Psi Lambda Gyn fraternity. Unfortunately as none of the freshmen played the game the program was slightly changed, and omelette bowling was substituted for cards. Although one of the guests wrenched a knee the party was voted a huge success.

C—C

A unique contest in the form of a highway bottle hunt was held yesterday evening by members of the Victoria Bohemian Club on No. 2 Highway near Port Credit. Dean Shudderskunk of the University of Mimico officiated as judge. The party was divided into two groups, each taking one side of the road. Mr. Skook's party won with a score of 112.

More bottles were, however, returned than the official score would indicate.

WYCLIFFE LIBRARY

the panels around and above the fireplace, which thus becomes the central feature of the interior. The ceiling is of oak relieved with heavy open carved rafters supported by carved stone bases. The stack rooms are of cement and steel construction of most recent design, with accommodation for 35,000 to 40,000 volumes, which will be available to students and Staff of all the theological colleges of the University. The architects, Messrs. Chapman and Oxley, and the donors have spared no effort or expense in order to make the Library complete in every respect, and a worthy unit architecturally to harmonize with the adjoining beautiful buildings. It is expected that the new Library will be ready for occupancy before Christmas.

A very valuable gift presented to the college this year took the form of coloured etchings which were presented on condition that the set should remain intact and be in such a position that they might be viewed at any time by the friends of the college. The pictures, Dr. Taylor said, had been arranged in the ambulatory between the college and the chapel.

Following the address by Dr. Taylor, Rev. Dr. Cody, chairman of the board of governors of the university, arose to introduce the special speaker of the evening, Rev. Canon Head, Archbishop-elect of Melbourne, Australia. Dr. Cody conveyed the greetings of the university to the college and paid a tribute to the late Archbishop Armitage of Halifax, whose recent death has meant such a loss to the Anglican Church in Canada.

Dr. Head, a man who has had a most distinguished academic career, is a graduate of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and until his recent appointment as Archbishop of Melbourne, was Chaplain general of His Majesty's forces.

Dr. Head spoke at some length on the glorious opportunity before the church of to-day, the unique opportunities it now has in foreign lands, and the eager expectation with which most of them looked to the Christian church to solve their racial problems of the present time. As an ambassador of ecclesiastical and imperial relations Dr. Head said that never before had the hope of unity in the church and empire seemed closer to realization, and he concluded by urging the divinity students present to rise to the knowledge of their opportunities and possibilities before the vision disappeared, and to boldly grasp the things which were so easily within their reach.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Suffrage

The Editor,

"The Varsity",

Dear Sir,—

I have just now heard that Mr. Allan Ferry has been elected President of the S.A.C. for the coming year. Although I have every faith in Mr. Ferry's ability to fill the office, very capably, I should like to enquire through your column why the Women's S.A.C. did not have a vote in this election.

I understand also that a nomination committee was appointed last spring, and it seems to me that if the men did ignore the Women's S.A.C. when appointing the committee, the least they might have done was to allow them the honour of voting. The office of President of the Council includes the Chairmanship of the Joint Executive, which controls both the Women's and the Men's S.A.C. Therefore, why should not the women representatives of this University have equal opportunity with the men in voting for the President of the S.A.C?

I feel sure that the subject is something which should be investigated and will feel obliged if you can find space for this letter in your columns.

Sincerely yours,

H. L. D., IV Arts.

"I also travelled in Mexico, and found it very uncivilized. It reminded me of remotest Palestine in scenery and the costumes of the peons, spelled p-e-o-n-s, the farming classes of the country," said Mr. Hotson as he leisurely changed his shirt. "We got out of the country just the day before the resolution, in September, 1927. The next day a Toronto paper wired me to send them a $500 word story about the revolution. They printed it on the front page."

"I don't expect to be very active in Victoria Student Parliament in my first year, but I'll be on my feet if a real opportunity arises. I expect to attend the Hart House Debates, as I need experience in extemporaneous speaking."

Mr. Hotson was well entertained by Lieutenant-Governor Ross at Government House. "They made me quite at home," he said. "It's an experience everybody doesn't get. I found Mr. Ross quite friendly. Premier Ferguson, as I found him, seemed to me very genial, and very much interested in my contest."

"My earliest ambition was to be an Italian selling cabbages on the streets. I have also wanted to be on the stage and in newspaper work. Yes, I saw the notice in "The Varsity" asking for reporters, but I wasn't personally approached. I'm a person who has to be personally approached."

"I don't just know why I was elected president of my year," said Mr. Hotson, "unless it was because they knew my name."

At the conclusion of the interview "The Varsity" noticed that Mr. Hotson was not wearing the yellow tie prescribed for Vic. freshmen. "We only wear them about the University grounds and the campus," he said.

McPHERSON WELDING BLUE INTO SHAPE FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Blue and White gridiron squad are certainly having a tough grind this week. Ronnie McPherson, who took over the command on Monday, is driving his men at top speed. Western University make their entry into Senior Intercollegiate ranks at the Varsity Stadium Saturday and Varsity have but three days left to perfect their plans. The unfortunate illness of Jimmy Douglas left the Blue without a leader at the time when one was most needed. The unusually large squad had not been weeded to a working proportion nor had the Intercollegiates been definitely picked. This left McPherson with the task of picking his men, tightening up on their mechanical play, have them working in harmony and in short getting them in shape for a fairly tough assignment all in the space of one week. And that's tough going.

George Morgan, the popular Blue and White captain, has been called upon to shoulder more than the ordinary responsibilities of his office. When Douglas was taken ill, Earl Douglas, the Orphan's coach, took temporary charge of the First Team. As this left the Ontario Union entry without a guiding hand, Morgan spent much of his time coaching them. Since McPherson's appointment, George has been back with the Intercollegiates and is setting a hot pace.

While this Western bunch are a new entry Varsity cannot afford to take any chances. A loss to Western in the opener would just about ruin the Blue's chances or at the best place them under a heavy handicap. The Mustangs bit the dust when they played Sarnia an exhibition game Saturday but the latter are a greatly improved aggregation. Western have a smart coach, some good material, and will be in there fighting tooth and nail to make a good showing in their first game in senior ranks.

"Art" Squires, who has been making a real bid for a berth on the Blue backfield, has run into some real tough luck. Art injured his shoulder in yesterday's practice, coming out of a scrimmage apparently suffering great pain. Squires hurt his knee early in last season's campaign and after resting it for some time, incurred another when he turned out just before the final game.

S.P.S. FROSH ATTEND BANQUET IN HART HOUSE

The two hundred and seventy or so School freshmen were officially welcomed into college life at a reception given last night at Hart House. Following a feed in the Great Hall, they assembled in the East Common Room under the direction of Nate Adams, the President of the Engineering Society, where they absorbed a supply of useful information from the various speakers and made the nominations for their year executive. Dr. Moore, the head of the S.C.A., outlined the work of that body and extended an invitation to all the men to attend the meetings in the coming winter.

Nominations for the year executive were then called for after which the candidates addressed the meeting in very informal fashion. Following this, Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, the Warden of Hart House, gave an interesting sketch of its history and then launched into a description of its many facilities that visibly impressed his audience with the wide scope and the unique position of the organization.

Jerry Wood, President of the School Athletic Association mentioned School's glowing record in sport and appealed to the freshmen to turn out for the teams and support them as Schoolmen should. Ross Workman then took over the meeting and in his own inimitable style led the frosh in a sing-song, which he interlarded with anecdotes told as only Worky can tell them. The party broke up with a Tojke Oike which showed that the frosh were rapidly acquiring at least some parts of their education.

INTERCOLLEGIATES PREPARE FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

Coach McPherson Sends Big Blue Men Through Gruelling Workout

TEAM STILL UNCERTAIN

Mueller, Hamilton Product, Makes Good Showing As Outside Wing

Up at the stadium last night the candidates for the Big Blue team underwent a gruelling workout. McPherson is sparing no efforts to have his men ready for Saturday's game with Western and with but four days at his disposal he drove the squad at a terrific speed. Places on the team seem to be wide open, and already there has been a shake-up.

Yesterday evening the Intercollegiates faced the Orphans in a heavy scrimmage and both teams went at it without fear or favour. The personnel of the Intercollegiates was composed of Keith, White, Kelly, Bean, Morgan, Little, Mueller, Fitzpatrick, Harrison, Bell, MacFadyen, Davey, Hallam, Don Wood and Twaites. As yet it is too early to even guess at who will start this Saturday. Keith, Morgan, Little and Jack Sinclair seem sure of a place, but the others are hard to pick.

Mueller, a Hamilton high-school product, made his first appearance yesterday and attracted considerable attention by his good showing. He looks like a high class outside wing.

The Blue squad is suffering considerably from injuries. Jack Sinclair has a sore ankle, Gooderham an injured wrist, Jimmy Sinclair a bruised leg and Hallam also has one of his underpinnings slightly crooked. Yesterday Squires was forced to retire with an injury to his shoulder.

At any rate it's going to be a tough week. With morning practice, the Varsity ought to be in shape when the whistle blows for the kick-off.

U.C. TRACK STARS TAKE FIELD TO-MORROW

Event Will Disclose U.C. Material for Coming Inter-faculty Meet

U.C. runners and aspiring runners will have a chance to show their wares to-morrow afternoon when the annual track and field meet of that college will get under way. Bill Finlayson, of 4th year U.C., is the Varsity track captain for the coming year and will take part in to-morrow's meet.

This will be a good opportunity for new men to gain an idea of their chances in the coming Inter-faculty meet on Wednesday next. Most of the men taking part are new men so this will be a splendid opportunity for freshmen to win some medals.

Jack Villa, the U.C. track captain, is as anxious as possible to have a large turnout of all those who have any ability in the track and field events so that U.C. may lift the Rowell Memorial Cup from S.P.S. next Wednesday. A mile relay race with Vic is being arranged which offers a chance for the relay men to show their ability.

The meet commences at 2 p.m. at the Varsity Stadium. Any who have not yet signed the lists may do so to-morrow morning in the Junior Common Room.

Special to the Varsity

Norman, Oklahoma—Fifty-nine men students at University of Oklahoma have been suspended for hazing of freshmen. Members of two organizations known as the "Ruf-Neks" and "Jazz-Hounds" held a "padding" initiation as a result of which the organizations were abolished and several members suspended after a special meeting of the Board of Regents.

Interfaculty Rowing

Interfaculty Rowing Machines are available in Rowing Room, Hart House. U.C., 4-4.30; Vic, 4.30-5; Meds, 5-5.30; School, 5.30-6; Dents, to be determined later.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT REVEALS GOOD PLAY

Absence of Former Stars Makes for Keenest Competition

FINALS TO-MORROW

Those who were unable to get to the first and second rounds in the University Tennis Tournament, played on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club yesterday, missed a real treat. Excellent weather added a zest to the play.

This year there are 51 entries. The fact that Gunn has graduated and Balfour is not competing because of an operation earlier in the summer, has made the competition very keen. Those players who have been in the city all summer appeared to have the edge on the others.

All the players who were called as winners in the early rounds, came through after close sets. Some sets went to five games before declaring a victor. There was a high class of tennis played. Many hard volleys and much back court play featured the games. Maitland and Everett played for two hours before Everett finally won by 6-2, 6-4.

Hartley Holmes a new player to Varsity looks like a decided find and should make the team easily. He is a heady player and won his sets handily. Martin, Noyes, Meighen, and Coupland look good for the finals, which go on to-morrow. All the tennis fans are urged to come out and see some good tennis. Admission is free.

Yesterday's winners follow:

Martin, 6-0, 6-0.
Robinetto, 6-1, 7-5.
Lehman, 6-1, 6-2.
Armstrong, 6-3, 6-2.
Coupland, 6-3, 6-0.
Everett, 6-2, 6-4.
Hetherington, 6-3, 8-6.

VIC WOMEN PREPARE FOR SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Several Former Basketball Stars Will Again Don Scarlet and Gold

Women's basketball at Victoria is already in full swing. Kay Eaton, curator for the senior team, has been extremely fortunate in securing as coach, Marion Forward, Vic graduate, and Don Wood of basketball fame will train the junior team.

Several of last year's stars will again appear on the floor. Elenor Sedgewick also of the Varsity team is expected to display her usual brilliant style as running centre. Helen Hilliard's fast play and famous long distance shooting, along with Norma Bateman's splendid guard work, will do much towards making this year's senior team a dangerous enemy for sister colleges. Elenor Taylor will play again this year.

Much of the success of the junior team depends on the freshman year. Dot Bishop, junior curator and speedy jumping centre, is in the hopes that all Victoria freshettes interested in playing will turn out to the special practices in the men's gym.

BRITISH RUGBY CLUB JOINS NEW LEAGUE

Toronto Hopes to Defeat McGill This Year For Championship

LOCAL WEEKLY GAMES

The University of Toronto British Rugby Club will play this year in the newly formed Ontario British Rugby League, with games every Saturday. The big interest lies, however, in the home-and-home games with McGill. Keen rivalry exists between the two universities, and this year Toronto hopes to wrest the championship from the Montreal students.

Dr. S. J. McKenzie, Hon. President of the club, addressed the meeting. He congratulated the members on the enthusiasm shown and spoke of the fine features of the game of rugby.

Mr. Merry, an executive of the new Ontario League, also spoke. He sketched the progress made by the game in the Dominion and expressed a hope of bringing over a star English team to tour Canada.

Practices start to-morrow at 5 o'clock and all candidates are expected to turn out.

Special to the Varsity

organic body of people who are facing these problems together."

In speaking of the many changes in the staff during this past year, Sir Robert spoke with regret of the absence of Dr. Brebner, Professor Hunter and others, adding that, "although we have lost very valuable men, we welcome others who will certainly strengthen our staff." Sir Robert welcomed, particularly, the first year students, who, as he said, already know the situation here in the university and are capable now of striking out for themselves.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," said Sir Robert, "and the man of each country is an optimist, believing in an ultimate solution of its problems."

What travel helps us to realize is that each individual's problems are those of the world at large, and to be settled by the people of the whole world."

ondly, that its members should feel that every department of Hart House was sensibly and efficiently administered and thirdly, that great care and thought should be devoted to those things which cannot find a direct place in the lecture-room, namely, the encouragement of a practical interest in public affairs through political discussion, the forming of a cultivated ear for good music, a knowledge of the skill of our own Canadian artists and an attempt to arrive at the truth by reconciling the religion of the heart with the religion of the head.

Whatever had been accomplished in this respect during the past ten years had been achieved, the Warden said, by the devoted work of countless undergraduates, by many faculty and graduate members, and by many other friends such as artists and musicians who had caught what might be described as "the Hart House idea". At the beginning of this, the second decade of the life of Hart House, he could appeal with confidence to the undergraduate body to carry on what had been well begun by those who had gone before them.

CHRISTIAN UNION GIVES LIFE PURPOSE

Davies went on to say, "I invited Mr. Douglas Johnson, at King's College Hospital, London, England, who is secretary of the Inter Varsity Fellowship. This is an executive of all the executives, which links the unions together and promotes the organization in other lands. It was through their efforts that Dr. Guinness came and began the movement in Canada last year, and it is hoped that he will be able to do the same work this year in Australia and New Zealand."

When asked as to the definite need that the T.I.C.C.U. filled, Mr. Hart-Davies replied that in most universities, particularly in the practical colleges, men entering with definite spiritual ideals and a high standard of conduct frequently failed in their aims because of a feeling of isolation, and it was to prevent the lowering of the spiritual ideals and to foster the progress of the individual that the T.I.C.C.U. was formed.

"In short," said Mr. Hart-Davies, "the T.I.C.C.U. is to encourage men and women to a higher plane of living, in a closer and conscious fellowship with God, that our lives may not be in vain."

U.C. Freshman Paul Revere Cannot Go The Diet Here

By E. R. Tall

In the spring of 1929 the great dykes protecting the Erieau reclaimed lands gave way, and the once-fertile onion-fields became, and still are, a veritable frog-pond.

Listen, my children, and you shall hear of the midnight swim of Paul Revere; not the gallant lad of red-coat days, but a modern youth with tie ablaze, and feet so big that all could see he must be a frosh from old U.C.

When he sampled the beans at Hart House here, instead of Listerine Revere sought onion juice. He craved it so, night found him nearing Erieau, where tons would be. He little knew that a frog-pond lay where the onions grew.

Arrived, he reined his panting coupe, leaped out and sank in the ghastly soup where the onions used to sprout. The great carp fed when they heard him bray, the frogs in terror swam away, the swarming mudpots ceased to play, and slowly Paul crawled out.

He spread himself on the road to dry, and fell asleep. Then came strolling by, two chaps with a lantern spearing carp; their light was dull but the forks were sharp. Said the one: "There's something phoney here!" And then they spotted Paul Revere. Said the second chap: "By the way he reeks, I reckon the critter's been dead for weeks. I'll just make sure." And the pitch-fork sank a full half foot in the sleeper's flank. And truly my children 'twas awful to hear those Varsity yells of Paul Revere!

The bull-frogs blushed and the carp turned red, the snappers sank, the mudpots hid, and the sandflies ceased to hum. But then Paul's heart stood still with fright, for he now beheld in the lantern light two unkempt forms with a pitch-fork each—and he knew his time had come.

With one mad leap he was in the drink, he swam blank blank in that sea of ink, and scaled the distant dyke to make a southward plunge in the rolling lake. They say he broke all records set, and for all I know he's going yet.

And there you have it, plain and clear, what Hart House beans did to Paul Revere.

COLLEGE LIFE IN U.S. IS HACKNEYED

praised, on the average, three professors—a relatively insignificant number when a total of the faculties is estimated. "This then, is the verdict of survivors whose wounds are still fresh: that not more than one American pedagogue in twenty is worth his salt. The rest run in a grand curve from scholars who know something, but want the skill to impart it, to frauds who lack both the learning they pretend to sell and the wit to conceal the lack of it."

In a closer study of the faculties most under fire Mr. Mencken reported that the English Department seemed to be getting the heaviest of the gunning. He says "The English faculty got the worst of this criticism, and perhaps naturally, for it is notoriously a refuge for third-raters. In general, the American English professor's view of the art of letters coincides with that of a women's club gabbler or a somewhat advanced suburban clergyman and when it comes to actual writing they are hopeless. To be sure there are brilliant exceptions, but there are not many."

Projects of reform were advanced by some of the most ambitious of the essayists, but none of them were particularly workable. An impression of the attitude toward universities held by the American movies, and the average American public, however, could be traced through these graduate students' impressions. To quote—"Going to college, especially in the more backward parts of the country, has come to be a sort of social necessity: it almost ranks with having a bathroom and keeping a car."

Mr. Mencken states the American learned degree, once a pearl of great price, has come to have no more value or significance than the ruby-studded insignia of the Elks. "The kind of education on tap in the colleges seems to be of the kind that the country wants, and maybe it is also the kind that such a country needs."

A well-educated Vienna man has offered to sell the film rights to his suicide which he is planning for the near future.

CANADIANS LACK ACCENT OF OTHER STUDENTS

definite arrangements were made in regard to athletic competitions.

The principal suggestion offered by the English students was that scholarships be established in the Dominions so that the English students could come to the Dominions to study. At the present time a great many scholarships are offered by the American universities to English and Scottish students, while few if any are offered by the Canadian. Many delegates at this Convention were British students who are at the present time studying at some of the larger American universities.

"Many Australian students actually do think of Canada as a vast sheet of ice and snow," affirmed Miss Ada Brett, head of St. Hilda's College, in telling some of her impressions of the Imperial Conference of Students held in Montreal during September. One of the resolutions of the Conference was that history and geography should be better taught throughout the Empire to correct such wrong impressions. Miss Brett also noticed wide differences in the speech of the students from the different parts of the Empire. Australian students, she said, had a pronounced English, almost Cockney, accent.

This conference, which was the second imperial conference, was entertained by the University of Montreal, and the delegates were welcomed by Lord Willingdon. Among other matters, the conference was interested in promoting student tours, and in procuring as cheap rates as possible from steamship companies and railroads. The conference also aims to promote co-operation among the universities by stimulating intercollegiate debating and sports.

Miss Hermes, of London University, secretary of the Travel Club discussed the work of Travel Clubs and advised the students from the dominions to travel under the auspices of clubs which assure cheaper rates, more comfort in seeing, all the "places of interest."

The Convention terminated with a discussion of the League of Nations and the Hague Conferences, and the delegates were profuse in their praise of Canadian hospitality as exemplified by the University of Montreal, who entertained lavishly, with dances, teas and garden parties.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE STUDENTS DESIRE FACULTY STATUS

Form New Organization As Culmination of Agitation For Recognition

HOLD MASS MEETING

Representatives to Women's S.A.C. To Be Appointed

Formation of the Household Science Undergraduate Association, with representatives to the Women's S.A.C., was the outcome of a mass meeting of students in that course yesterday. The meeting was the outcome of growing agitation for recognition as a faculty. Nearly fifty girls were present at the Household Science Building to participate in the adoption of the constitution and nomination of executives.

Miss A. Barber, IV year, conducted the meeting and read the constitution. The old Household Science Club has been changed to a purely social one, taking care of the functions of the year, while the new organization is to be known as the Household Science Undergraduate Association, with membership comprised of all those students registered in the faculty of Household Science. The purpose was read as follows: "The purpose of the aforementioned Household Science Undergraduate Association shall be to bring the undergraduate members of the faculty of Household Science together in one body so that their opinions may be presented to the Women's Student Administrative Council by two duly appointed representatives. The second purpose shall be to sponsor and maintain Faculty of Household Science athletics."

Following the adoption of constitution, nominations were made for the executive and representatives and arrangements were made for voting, which is to be held today in the common room of the Lillian Massey Building. Dr. Benson was unanimously chosen as the honorary president of this new body.

AGGRESSIVE PLAY FEATURES WORKOUT

Intercollegiate Squad Takes On Orfuns and Husky Argonauts

SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

With the opener of the season just two days away, Varsity's Senior Intercollegiate entry had probably their best workout of the season last night. The plays of the Blue and White were engineered with much more snap and precision than formerly and in every way the team showed the influence of Coach Ronnie McPherson's aggressive leadership. There were no injuries suffered in last night's session barring Mueller, the new outside wing who had a nail torn off his finger. Those who were unable to take part in the workout due to injuries included Johnny Fitzpatrick, Lloyd Hamill, Jimmy Sinclair, Herb Little and Geo. Gooderham. It is expected, however, that all these worthies will be able to take their regular stations in next Saturday's tussle.

Ronnie McPherson spent considerable time last night in showing his boys how to make good interference. Then the Senior Blues lined up for a scrimmage with the Orfuns. The

McGill Daily Profits

Special to "The Varsity" Montreal, October 2—An excess of revenue over expenditure of $3,494.34 for the year ending June 30th, 1929, was the substance of the financial report of the Students' Council of McGill University. The Council at its first meeting did not go on a spree of spending, but voted to invest $2,000 of the money.

"The McGill Daily" showed an operation profit of over $750, which fully justified the policy of making all student societies pay for their advertising. "No free space" is the rule.

Other activities included the Players' Clubs, with surplus of almost $700, and the Red and White Revue.

NEW VARSITY BLAZER IS OFFICIALLY CHOSEN

Garment to be Blue, Bound With White Corded Ribbon

CREST NOW ON SALE

What is chic in blazers? The latest fashion in sporting togs has been a vital question for the S.A.C. for several years, but at a meeting on Tuesday a style for an official Varsity blazer was chosen.

It is to be all blue, but bound with white silk corded ribbon and on the left the official crest is embroidered in silk.

The official crest is a shield with the blue crown on a white background and the white books and beaver on a blue background. It is likely that they will be worn on all playing uniforms of University Athletic Clubs from now on.

After the students will be able to look away back when—any blue and white blazer or any short coat bearing a U. of T. monogram was sported as a Varsity blazer.

Owing to the fact that the blazers are ordered from England it will be some weeks before they will be on sale at the S.A.C. office. The price is not yet determined. The crests sell for 50c and may be purchased at the S.A.C. Office or Room 82, U.C. now.

Embryo Medicos Have Impromptu Bath

The growing-pains of the Med frosh seem to be of a particularly severe variety. In the fracas last evening while the freshmen were forcibly receiving their ties and were getting bumped, one of them was slammed into the wall and was taken to the hospital with injuries to his head. It is feared that he may have suffered a concussion.

Yesterday morning a rousing Donnybrook was staged on the front steps of the Medical Building. About thirty freshmen attempted to enter by the forbidden front entrance, the meek ones having gone around by the lowly back door. A superior number of second-year men barred the way and it was hot and heavy for a while. The scene resembled an attack on a medieval castle. While the assailants besieged the door below, the defenders poured water on them from four storeys up. It would seem that the cycle is swinging back to the days of strenuous initiations. A violent gauntlet running is inflicted on the frightened freshmen and their clothes are ripped. The frosh are full of fight and tear off their ties and collars, but of course this all helps to make good doctors.

DON DOES NOT AGREE PUPIL SHOULD WORK AT OUTSIDE BUSINESS

Freshman Believes Scholar Should Stress Social Side Of College

"PRACTICE IS HARMFUL"

Medical Student Thinks Part-Time Work is "Darn Good Idea"

"I regard it as a regrettable necessity," stated Professor Cochrane, dean of U.C., when approached by "The Varsity" on the subject of students working their way through college. "In the university a student is offered the opportunity of reading and reflecting with an occasional lecture to keep him in his work. He will have the rest of his life in which to make a living and his mind is diverted by the sordid necessity of working during the school term."

"Except in the Commerce course, in which some practical experience is no doubt useful, I think the practice is harmful. All worthy students should be financed by scholarships, and not faced with the necessity of working during their academic careers."

"The Varsity" found a variety of student opinion on the subject. R. S. Molton, III Meds, emphatically approved it: "I think it is a darn good idea."

E. Everett, I U.C., took the opposite view: "Sometimes it's necessary," he said, "but it takes too much valuable time off studies."

An enthusiastic booster was found in G. L. Cassidy, III Philosophy, St. Mike's. "I think it's a very good thing and in no way detrimental to the student or harmful to his scholastic progress."

F. Brennan, I S.P.S., said, "I think working during the year interferes with the social side of college life which is not stressed sufficiently. When a man loses the opportunity of mixing socially with his fellow-students, he has missed one of the big advantages offered by the university."

Awaits Ratification

In an interview with "The Varsity" last night Allan H. Ferry, president-elect of the S.A.C., pointed out that it was hardly in order for him to make any statement until his appointment had been ratified by Sir Robert Falconer. This is a necessary part of the constitutional procedure in electing the president of the S.A.C.

DENTS. ARE TAUGHT LOUD MOUTH WORK

Sophomores Give Lesson On Voice Culture To Freshmen

Dental frosh will know their university and faculty yells, if their sophomores have any say in the matter. For an hour last evening, college yells echoed through the corridors of the Physics Building, as the freshmen, herded into a cloak room in the basement, were forced to demonstrate their vocal ability.

"The scheme is that we must give the yell without hesitation or mistakes before we leave," said one bearer of the Eton collars, as he left the room.

"The Varsity" representative was not allowed to enter the room and view the proceedings, although a full account was secured from other witnesses of the affair.

COMMERCE CLAIMS SOME

Graduates from the University of Toronto are finding positions in a variety of different places, judging by investigations made by "The Varsity". Last year's seniors are located as instructors, in journalistic work, engaged in advanced study, or, in some cases, have entered the field of commerce.

Enid Walker, Household Economics, 2T9, is in sole charge of a new experimental school for blind pupils, and is teaching subjects as diverse as French and the history of the phonograph records. She is at present giving her services free of charge, but if the school becomes a permanent institution and she decides to carry on with it, she will receive some emolument for her services.

Miss Beryl Gottler, Arts '29, has taken a position as secretary of the Y.W.C.A. for all the girls' high-school work done in the city. Miss Checha Elpe, of Vic, has gone back to India to open up a Household Science department at the University there. Miss Evelyn Westmann, another graduate of Household Science, has taken the position of dietitian at the St. George's School for Child Study.

Among those who were journalistically inclined are Miss Helen Allan, who is on "The Telegram", Jean Hamilton on "The Star", and Iris Robinson, assistant editor of "Mayfair".

Miss Edith McCollum, Arts, U.C., received a scholarship in psychology, and is taking M.A. work, and assisting in the psychology department here. Eileen Dowler and Margaret Struthers, graduates in Arts, are continuing French studies at the Sorbonne, Paris.

Of those more inclined to commercial life, there are Edna Cress, who is helping the Robert Simpson Co. to open a new store in Kitchener, Jean McIntosh, who is with the Bell Telephone Co., and two graduates in Mathematics, who have gone into Life Insurance.

Orders Issued For First Meeting

STATUS IMPROVED

Members Entitled To Recognition

Rumours were current about the campus late yesterday afternoon that Varsity was to have no band this year on account of the loss of several instruments last year. "The Varsity" learned in an interview with Capt. John Slatter, Bandmaster for the past ten years of the C.O.T.C. bands, that these rumours were false. "I have just talked with Col. T. R. Loudon, O.C.," said Capt. Slatter, "and he tells me that he has issued orders for the first meeting of the band on Monday, October 7th at 5 p.m."

"The preliminary meeting for organization and enrolment will meet in the equipment room downstairs in the Engineering Building. All members of the University who can play any band instrument are urged to be in attendance. First and second year men find the band a convenient way of disposing of compulsory P.T. The future of the band this year looks brighter than ever, and while I am not in a position to divulge any details, I think I can safely say that the status of the band will be improved and more encouragement offered to its members."

Questioned as to whether the C.O.T.C. Band could, as a Blue and White Band, attend football and hockey games, Capt. Slatter could not say definitely. "I see no reason why they could not if the band was properly organized. There would have to be support from some outside source. It is really outside of my jurisdiction." The fact remains nevertheless, that there should be a University band of at least 60 pieces. The position the University of Toronto holds in an academic way demands that it have

Students' Directory

Every University student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press, and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

ST. HILDA'S JUNIORS MOURN FELINE MASCOT

"Where, O, where, is our poor pussy gone?"

Lonesome longing and deep despondency hang over 371 St. Hilda's. No more shall prowling paws disturb sweet maiden slumbers! No more shall straying felines pass in rapid transit from airy heights to depths unknown! No more shall excretion rise from porch cots at wee, wan hours before the dawn! Gone are kittenish days—and gone the mascot. It is rumoured that certain Unions are short of rations. Poor Pussy!

According to Trainer Bert Mundall, Carnegie Tech will have one pound less than a ton of backfield material this year.

ENROLMENT INCREASE IS STRIKINGLY SHOWN BY COLLEGE FIGURES

St. Michael's Total Exceeds Trinity's For The First Time

OVER THOUSAND FRESHIES

Victoria Has 75 Per Cent. Increase of First Year Registrants

Registration statistics, although not yet complete, show a general increase in the number of students entering the University of Toronto this year. At present 2,829 students, not including occasional scholars and registrants at the College of Education, are registered; in Arts an increase of 8.72 per cent. over the number for last year when 2,602 registered for the arts course in addition to 261 occasionals and 220 for teachers' course.

For the first time in the history of the University, St. Michael's College registration exceeds that of Trinity College. The registration at Trinity is 308, an increase of 33 over last year, and for St. Michael's 327, with an increase of 60.

The registration for First Year in Arts in all the Colleges is 1,022 over last year's 850. Victoria College leads in freshman registration, and shows an increase of over 75 per cent. over last year. St. Michael's College is next with an increase of 27 per cent. Trinity College follows with an increase of 18 per cent. and University College is last with a 13 per cent. increase.

At present 390 women have registered in first year of the Arts course. 229 of these are registered at University College, 66 at Trinity College, 48

Section For Co-Eds To Be Stadium Rule

"There will be a co-educational section this year at the stadium for those who hold student season tickets," announced A. Gordon Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the S.A.C. yesterday. "Last year there was no provision for anyone who wished to take his lady friend to the game on a season ticket. This year they will be able to sit together. A block of seats has been set aside in Section P."

It was explained to "The Varsity" that the precise financial arrangements between ticket holders going to sit together would be up to the individuals. Previously sections have been reserved strictly for men and for women apart, but this year the "fussers" will have a chance. Of course, both will have to own season tickets.

Yesterday over 300 tickets were sold; considerable increase over last year for the first day the tickets were sold. Only 800 tickets in all were sold last year. Members of the Students' Council assisted in the sale in Hart House, and in Room 82, U.C.

To-day's Events

WHY PUSH?

The registration figures in the Arts Colleges are appalling. More and more men and women are anxious to have two letters appended to their name. A greater number is desirous of having the coveted "open sesame" to the exclusive clubs, and as a result the lack of accommodation at University, Victoria, St. Michael's and Trinity colleges is a most serious problem. Putting aside entirely the question of the fitness or stupidity of the would-be followers of the liberal arts there is the incessant query that is flinging itself at the registrars, "Where can they be placed?"

That the accommodation is taxed is nothing new. There was serious overcrowding some years ago. That admission can be refused to none is apparent since a state subsidized university must open its doors to any number of people who have the required standing. The problem then devolves on the necessity of more room.

All the colleges have an increased first year registration. University has an increase in the first year of 13.76 per cent., the smallest percentage increase of the four. Trinity has an increase of 18.9 per cent. and St. Michael's a surplus over last year of 27.1 per cent. But the most stupendous is that of Victoria which has an increase in first year registration of some 75.13 per cent. What is Victoria going to do with them all?

The freshmen have from their earliest youth heard of the advantages of a small college. That in large measure accounts for their flocking to Victoria, which not many years ago was a tiny institute. That inculcated desire will in very short time lead to the demand for another Arts College, that will be state subsidized entirely, state controlled since he who pays has control, and distinct from any sect. It is a solution that will in part solve the problem of too many students at one college.

Lacking the desire to found another Arts College there is a further possibility. That is, another university building to be used solely for university lectures. At present the university lectures are held in University College, which is the real reason why U.C. faculty lacks the paternal outlook towards its students. Even medical students and sometimes the engineers make use of U.C. for central lectures. That kills any community spirit at the heart of the university which is reflecting itself in its almost stationary percentage increase. The numbers at University College are not too large for an adequate college spirit. The difficulty there which the other colleges do not have to face, is that students can have no contact with each other when most of their lecture rooms are filled with what are technically outsiders. The solution does not lie here in "more and greater" year parties or "bigger and better" U.C. Lit. meetings, but bluntly, in keeping members of other colleges out.

If this were accomplished it would mean that the undesirably large lectures taken by the entire university will not be foisted upon U.C. It will then necessitate a building constructed with rooms somewhat on the plan of Room 43 of the Physics Building. That solution would end the overcrowding at lectures at any one college and would still allow the cultivation of college spirit at every college. It is most unfair to hoist the onus of looking after the extras of all the colleges upon one.

A further solution might be that of having all students registered in such courses that necessitate university and not college tuition, enroll with the university alone. As it is some register in, for example's sake, Biology and Medicine, and some in Commerce and Finance, and never go near their college for a lecture. Why not then have a C. & F. building and a B. & M. institution? That step has already been taken in having all students studying honour economics and honour history, with but few exceptions, take their work at Baldwin House. Why not then extend that principle to the logical conclusion.

There will have to be something done and done very soon. The solution we feel lies in some combination of all the suggestions given. It is a problem, the solution of which, is most urgent.

P.M. Curious, eh? Well, that's no crime.

Scribe. What is your—er—impression of university students?

P.M. Man and boy, I've set up this peanut stand here for forty years. And I can't say that these here students have made such a dam' impression on me.

FAY AND FREE SPEECH

Dear Sir,—
Doubtless you along with others of us, received this morning No. 1 of Vol. 1 of the "Canadian Republic" issued under the editorship of Gordon M. Weir, from 1190 University St., Montreal. I hope you will exert your influence on behalf of Free Speech.

My own reply to this present I give you in Extensio for what it is worth: "Dear Sir,—

I have received the first number of this "Canadian Republic", and should be gratified if you would send no more. You seem to me to be both perverse and stupid. You clearly know nothing about England, and not much more, I suspect, about your own country.

P.S.—I ought to add that I hope the police will suppress neither you nor the Communists.

I am, Mr. Editor,
Yours very truly,
C. R. Fay (Professor)

SACRILEGE

The Editor:
Sir:—

As an undergraduate of the finest Alma Mater anyone has ever had the privilege of attending, I was amazed to note recently that an alien has procured, by some means or other, window plates (or whatever they are called) of the official crest of the University of Toronto. I have since questioned various other members of the student body and so far have found some who were favourably impressed with the innovation. If the privilege of using our crest has been granted by the powers that be to the proprietor of the establishment on Bloor St., to which I allude, I might ask in the vernacular, "How come?" What has he done for the honour of Old Varsity to merit such a mark of distinction? Surely we are not so financially embarrassed that it is necessary to stoop to selling our sacred rights to outsiders for mere pecuniary gain.

If, so I trust, there is good and sufficient reason for allowing the use of our crest by outsiders, I think the students generally would like to know it. At any rate, I am sure that we would all appreciate some assurance that this practice will be reserved only for those who for some cause or other really deserve it.

Thanking you for this space I am yours till we have no crest to sell, 371, U.C.

cuff.) Forty years! What has struck you most in your university career?

P.M. Well, one day there was a Hebrew lexicon somebody threw outa that Wycliffe window there . . . But, I'll tell y'u. (Points dramatically in a north-westerly direction.) See out yonder. On a clear day you can see the University Residences from here. Real pretty with the autumn leaves fallin' and the mattresses leanin' out the windows and all. (Simply.) I like that.

Scribe. What is your opinion of the professors, sir?

P.M. Well, you may not believe it, but as a matter of fact I ain't never attended no lectures here. You see, although I do live right in the midst of the thickest part of this university atmosphere, so to speak, I'm still just a plain peanut man with plain peanut ways. My father was a peanut man before me and his father before him. As far back as we have been able to trace, the peanut strain has ran in our blood. It's the family tradition. Like some families raise horses, and others raise boy orators, ours raises peanuts. . . . Well, we don't really raise them—but you know what I mean . . . Scribe (gently). And your son—do you expect him to follow the family tradition?

P.M. My—my son? . . . Yes, I had a son. It would of been the proudest moment of my life to see him stand in his daddy's shoes here warmin' his hands over this old tooter and upholdin' the family honour . . . But . . . (Choking) . . . It—it didn't turn out that way. He got big ideas. He got it into his head peanuts wasn't good enough for him and he made up his mind he was goin' to enter this here course in honour classics. So—well—there was nothin' else to do, so finally I just had to up and shoot him . . . (Philosophically.) It wasn't to be, I guess. It just about broke my heart. But life is like that. (The curtain falls slowly to strains of "Sonny Boy").

SEMI-FINALS ARE REACHED IN VARSITY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

HOLMES' FAST DRIVES WIN TWICE AT TENNIS

Balfour and Noyes; Martin And Holmes, Battle
To-Day

SIX HARD GAMES PLAYED

The Varsity tennis tournament has reached the semi-final stage and this morning on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club the penultimate round will be finished. Yesterday's play furnished many close and exciting matches and if they are any indication the two matches today will be well worth seeing.

Hartley Holmes advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Sid Hetherington and then Jim Coupland. Holmes had his difficulties with both men but his forehand and backhand drives were not to be denied in the pinches and he got the points when they were needed. Bill Noyes also advanced to the last four by defeating a fine opponent in

Varsity Intermediates Open Rugby Season on Saturday

Coach Chaffe of the Intermediate Intercollegiate rugby squad is particularly optimistic over the prospects of his team. With all the assurance of one who is confident of success, he states that he will field a stronger and heavier aggregation than the one which took it on the nose from St. Michael's last year. Sullivan, at quarter, Arnold, at half, and Brooks-Hill, on the line, all of last year's team, are back. A large number have stepped up from the junior ranks and are expected to bolster the intermediates considerably. Farrell, Connors, Buchanan, Jackson and Reeves are aspiring to line positions while Heintzman is an applicant for quarter and Smith for flying wing.

Varsity is grouped with O.A.C., Western and probably McMaster. St. Michael's, winners of the western intercollegiate title in 1928, have dropped out of the intermediate league and are playing senior O.R.F.U. Osgoode Hall will not enter a team this year.

Musgrave, who is one of the leading players in Nova Scotia. Noyes scored a clean cut victory, defeating his opponent 6-2, 6-0.

Art Balfour encountered the stiffest opposition in his bracket and it required two three set matches before he Max Meighen the ex-R.M.C. star, in reached the semi-finals. He defeated a very close three set match in the morning and later on in the day he subdued Morrow of Hamilton 6-4 in the third set.

Walter Martin defeated Armstrong 6-1, 6-2 in the other half of the draw. He was too steady for his opponent and although many fine rallies ensued the last stroke usually came from the young Regina star's racket.

To-day Walter Martin meets Hartley Holmes in the upper half and on the other side Art Balfour and Noyes will fight it out. Both matches promise to be close. The doubles will also start this morning.

To-day's draw:
10.30 a.m.
Bell-Punchard vs. Hetherington-Coupland.
Boland-Boardman vs. Tomlinson-Caldcott.
11 a.m.
Martin vs. Holmes.
Balfour vs. Noyes.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

As the time draws at hand for the opening tussle of the Senior Intercollegiate football series, it finds the Blue and White gridders grinding away harder than ever. Coach Ronnie McPherson is certainly showing no mercy to his players. Besides the regular afternoon workouts he has the team going through a brisk signal practice every morning at seven a.m. Ronnie is going to be a very disappointed mentor if his Blue team does not take the Western outfit into camp handily next Saturday.

This week-end will see three Varsity teams in action. The Intercollegiate take on Western, the "Orfuns" engage Windsor on the latter's grounds, and the Intermediates play O.A.C. here. Three victories would be the right way to start the season.

The Varsity Tennis Tournament is now down to the semi-finals. Out of the smoke of battle has emerged a bright prospect for the Blue and White tennis team. Hartley Holmes, a newcomer to Varsity, although already well-known on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club, is the player in question. He has reached the semi-finals and is pitted to play against Walter Martin to-day. Although Holmes is very unlikely to defeat Martin, who was last year's champion, he looks to be the man to fill Martin's shoes when the latter graduates next spring.

Old Rugby Rivals Meet To Open Season on Sat.

When Varsity plays its first game of the season next Saturday, the Blue team will meet its old rival, the Toronto Club. It should be a hard game as this club has been playing already this fall.

Coach Burton has held practices for the last two weeks and this will be a good chance to try out his new men. The Varsity forwards should be a fast-moving pack though a lighter one than their opponents, but if they can hold their own in the scrummages and heel the ball to the half-back combination of "Red" Roome and McFee, it should be an interesting game. McFee has plenty of speed and his "three-quarters" should be given plenty of good openings.

Archbold, Lee and McLean should give a spectacular showing. The game will give the lads a chance to settle into their new positions.

MONDAY, OCT. 7

7.30 p.m.—All former members and prospective members urged to attend Victoria College Music Club open meeting in Wymilwood. Refreshments.

TUESDAY, OCT. 8

4.30 p.m.—Honour Science Club hike and wicker roast. First year men and women in Honour and Household Science invited.

SATURDAY, OCT. 5

8.30—Scarlet and Gold dance at Wymilwood.

Swimming and Polo Class Holding Special Practices

All those interested in Swimming and Water Polo are urged to take advantage of the special practices being held each night in the plunge at 5 p.m. Intercollegiate practices will begin on Monday, Oct. 7th. The schedule of interfaculty practice hours and games will be announced in an early issue of "The Varsity". Through the Interfaculty League an opportunity is afforded those unfamiliar with water polo to learn the principles and practice of the sport. The majority of Intercollegiate players in former years have had no previous experience prior to participation in the Interfaculty League.

AGGRESSIVE PLAY

Intercollegiate line-up consisted of the following: Stewart, Bean, Morgan, Keith, White, Dewar, Subotski, Rudell, Harrison, Wood, Bell and Sinclair. Don Wood was at quarter again with Jack Sinclair and Bill Bell playing back for the kicks. After a short scrimmage with the Orions the Blue took on the hefty Argonaut Senior team who provided stiff opposition for the rest of the practice. John Harrison featured the Varsity attack with several neat plunging performances. It was in the tackling department, however, that the Blue and White showed the most improvement. Evidently Coach McPherson's effort to improve this end of the Varsity game is beginning to bear fruit.

With the Intercollegiate squad cut down to workable proportions, rapid progress is now being made in working up team play. By next Saturday, by the aid of the early morning practices and the usual afternoon workouts, Varsity is going to field a much improved twelve from the one that faced Argos last Saturday.

The Table Round

The need for a distinctive Canadian culture is recalled by a timely article in the Canadian Forum. We agree with the writer of this article that the translation of English culture is hardly feasible, while the infiltration of American culture is undesirable. Intellectual Americanization is not, to our way of thinking, a welcome prospect.

The New Student has announced—in language that is by now fairly hackneyed—that it is discontinuing publication owing to lack of financial support. The Canadian Mercury, we are told, has also departed to the Elysian fields of literature. These tidings will be received with mixed feelings by students. At least they serve to remind us, at once of the ephemeral nature of most new undertakings in the magazine field, and the need for exceptional endeavour if they are to be kept alive.

Contributions to this column, in the form of prose or poetry, will be welcome. They should be addressed to Editor, the Table Round, "The Varsity".

THE ADVENTURER

"This humdrum life . . ." the Freshman sighed,

"I was not born for this.

Let others seek for French and Greek
If that will bring them bliss.

Give me the heaving restless sea—
Alaska's chill—high Barbary—

The tropic night—from Latin free—
And Spanish lips to kiss.

"With drowsy lectures far behind
I'll be Adventure's guest.

We'll have our fling; fight, love and sing,
And last come home to rest.

But first, we'll taste of every vine—
We'll duel for love—we'll brawl in wine—

The world holds nothing quite so fine
As a manly blade-searred chest.

"At home I'll tell of midnight raids,
Of Moorish prison bars,"

Of how I saw a guard and crew,
And won the praise of Mars.

And if they think I merely jest—
And if they put me to the test—

Why then I'll bare my brawny chest
And show my manly scars."

Sea dreams intoxicate like wine,
One day the Freshman quit;

His college home he left to roam:
He'll show the boys his grit!

He scrubbed a freighter—bunked below—
Three months and he was home, by Jol!

And now he bares his chest to show
The scars—where bed-bugs bit!!!

Bunkley Shuter Glad to Return Condemns Frosh as Green-Horns

By N. J. DeWitt

"I was glad to see the boys again," said Mr. Bunkley Shuter, when interviewed by ye scribe. "There is nothing like getting back to college," he added, "except getting away in the spring."

"You're a sophomore now, Mr. Shuter?" we asked.

"Yes," said Bunkley, with a genial smile, "I am. I failed last spring, you know. I can't understand my professors. They refused to give me my year. I didn't have any term mark. Narrow-minded, I think," said Bunkley, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"How did you work it?" we asked, breathlessly.

"I registered in Trinity," replied Bunkley, "where such little details don't matter at all."

"Well," we said, with admiration, "why should you be expected to study at college? That's old-fashioned!"

"Yes," agreed Bunkley, "it is. But let me tell you about the freshmen. Terrible bunch of green-horns. They have to be shown their place."

"Sounds like you were theatre ushers," we remarked absently.

Bunkley Shuter ignored the ill-timed interruption. "Their ties have to be cut off. They don't like it. But it is our duty to make them into better university students and instill traditions into them—"

"It smacks of idealism," we remarked.

"We do smack them," said Bunkley.

"You would," we replied.

HARVARD DON TO SPEAK BEFORE MENORAH SOCIETY

Ambitious Programme for Year
Outlined by President
Goldhar

Song and dance featured the first meeting of the Menorah Society held at the Women's Union last evening. An innovation in the form of a vaudeville skit by "Curly" Nixon and Pat Rafferty, stars of the "Merrymakers" won the hearty applause of an audience which taxed the capacity of the auditorium. The president, Mr. Goldhar, voiced a few words of welcome to new members, and outlined an ambitious programme for the coming year. Mr. David Raiblat, the artist of the evening, gave a programme of music; his accompanist was Miss Florence Craig. Dancing and refreshments rounded out the entertainment.

The statement was given to "The Varsity" that Dr. Isaacs of Harvard was expected to speak before the Society before the end of the first semester. The announcement was also made that informal teas would be given on every second Saturday afternoon in the various girls' residences, in years. The regatta will take place on Oct. 26th. This week and the next will be spent on the machines followed by two on the water. Competition is keen so S.P.S. will have to strain themselves to the utmost to retain the title. It is probable that U.C. will enter two teams. The meet will be held on the water front near the rowing club's quarters at the foot of John Street. It is a mile race. Those interested in rowing should turn out a band of similar rank. Yale has a band of 200, Illinois the same, while Cornell with a smaller registration than Toronto, has a band of 85 members. In the States a band is a vital part of the student life, on a par with football and other sports. It should occupy a similar position here.

"There is no lack of talent in the various faculties to ensure an outstanding band, one that will be a credit to its Alma Mater. The chief difficulty here seems to be the lack of an inducement in the way of recognition by the governing bodies, to keep the boys together for the year. To secure the faithful attendance necessary, the sinner scheme such as a rebate Board of overnors, I feel, should concern the whole or a part of a year's tuition, the arrangement of visits to sister universities, or the accompaniment of football teams on their trips. So far as I know this is the only University of its kind where band members (undergraduates) render a real service, and devote time to an organization which is a vital part of student life, and receive no recognition nor pay for those services. However, I hope that this year's band will be accorded the recognition long due its predecessors. I can give you no more information than that, but I feel sure that once the matter is brought to the attention of the proper authorities it will be well taken care of."

VARSITY GRAD PLAYER, DOT GREER, VERY ILL

Dorothy Greer, one of Toronto's best-known girl athletes, and a former member of the University College and the Varsity basketball teams, is seriously ill in Toronto General Hospital suffering from pleural pneumonia and streptococcal infection.

Miss Greer entered University College in 1924 after establishing a splendid basketball reputation at Oakwood Collegiate, Toronto. Successfully passing her examinations, Miss Greer left Varsity at the end of her first year, entered Normal School, and has lately been teaching at Hodgson Public School.

As well as playing softball with the Toronto Ladies, the Supremes, and Parkdale, Miss Greer was a basketball player for Normal School, Epiphany Church, for Varsity Grads for two years and for Parkdale.

At University College 529 have registered, a considerably greater number than last year when 465 registered. In Victoria there are 338 registrants in comparison with 193 in 1928, 136 have registered at St. Michael's, while only 107 enrolled in the previous year. At Trinity College 113 registered this year and 95 last year.

TEMPERANCE ISSUE DRAGS THE CHURCH INTO POLITICS

Liberal Club Speaker Scores
Tory Platform on Many Counts

EDUCATION ARRAIGNED

Impossible for Premier To Do Justice to Second Job

"The Temperance question necessarily drags the Church into politics to the detriment of church and politics," declared Mr. Evan Gray, speaking on "Principle of Liberalism" at the first meeting of the Liberal Club at Hart House last night.

In giving his outline of the aims of the Liberal party, the speaker asserted that he believes in submitting the liquor question to the judgment of the people and that is a plebiscite.

"The L.C.A. will not be recognized by the Liberal party, but it will be given a fair trial," he stated.

He also dealt with another important plank in the Conservative platform—that of education. Emphasizing the necessity of revision of the present educational system, he declared that it was "impossible for one man to fulfil adequately the position of premier and give the department of education the attention it requires. He criticized the Ferguson plan for extending the high school course to include one year of University work. He advised that educational reform be carried out by experts.

Dealing with the financial administration of the Conservative government, Mr. Gray made the statement that "there has not been a competent man as provincial treasurer for years." "Increased expenditures—increased taxation, that is the record of the Conservative administration," he concluded.

Following Mr. Gray's address, Mr. Dewar, Liberal candidate for the riding of St. Patrick's, and a graduate of the university, made a brief statement of his stand in the coming elections.

C.O.T.C. PROGRAMME PRESENTS ITS LURES

Would Forestall Complaint Of Lack of Publicity Regarding Work

As announced in Thursday's Varsity, the year's activities of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps are starting immediately. In previous years there has been considerable complaint by men who have not learned of the advantages of the program offered by the Corps until after the closing date for enrolment. A few of the main points are mentioned below.

1. The U. of T. C.O.T.C. is a purely University organization and is so divided as to promote and foster college spirit.

2. Physical Training credit is allowed for all drills, parades, etc. attended, with the added advantage that drills are held at convenient hours, a choice from nearly a dozen periods.

A number of tickets for the Reunion are on sale in the Students' Council Office, Hart House, at three dollars.

VARSITY DON LIKES AFRIC HOSPITALITY

World Geologists Travel After Their South African Conference

PROFESSOR WALKER NOTES

"I found the South Africans a very hospitable people," stated Professor T. L. Walker of the department of Mineralogy and Petrography when interviewed by "The Varsity" on the subject of his recent South African trip. "It is a nice country, but I think a Canadian would be glad to return from it to his native land. I went over to attend the International Geological Conference and to make an inspection of the country with regard to its mineral deposits. After the meeting of the Congress in Pretoria, at which there were representatives of forty-nine different countries, we toured South Africa by train and viewed the coal, asbestos and comite deposits in the Transvaal. I believe the government took some interest in the Congress as we travelled for about half fare on state trains.

"South Africa is largely dependent on fashion for its prosperity. In the past, when every lady's hat was decked with a gorgeous ostrich plume, the raising of these birds constituted one of the principle industries of the country, but now, since the decline of the fashion, farms which were formerly stocked by half a million ostriches now have but four or five thousand. This same condition necessitates the careful supervision of the diamond output to prevent this precious stone becoming too common and falling into disfavor with the world of fashion.

"The South African farmer," stated Professor Walker, "must have several thousand acres on which to graze his stock. The work is all done by black boys while the master smokes his pipe at home in ease. If he has a neighbour within sight, he considers he is being crowded, and promptly moves farther north."

Professor Walker was particularly impressed by the diamond mines which he described as being "the biggest holes I ever saw." He returned home with Sir Robert Falconer, who was attending a convention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which was held in South Africa.

NEW ARTS COLLEGE OUT OF QUESTION SAYS U.C. HEAD

Excessive Cost Would Be Bar
Even if Step Seemed Necessary

RESIDENCE NEED GREATER

Students See Mass Production
In Expansion And Low Standards

"A new Arts college or special building for lectures is out of the question due to the excessive cost," said Professor Wallace, Principal of University College when approached to-day with respect to the editorial, "Why Push?", in yesterday's "Varsity".

Principal Wallace further stated that the real need was for increased residential accommodation especially for University College, which has rooms for less than two hundred. He pointed out that the total registration in Arts was not greatly increased and that the excessively large increase at Victoria might be caused by the desire of students for a residential life and the restricted entrance at Trinity. The increase at Victoria was not due to the advantages offered by small colleges because these advantages are far outweighed by those of the large college. The total increase might possibly be an indication of the country's prosperity because a good education was one of the best things in life.

As for the invasion of University College by alien colleges he stated this must be accepted for the present and that when the time came room would be found for the classes in mathematics, etc., as had been done for history, economics and psychology.

Principal Wallace closed the interview by stating that the number of students passing through was not so important as raising the quality and high standards of the university.

Professor Woodcock, registrar of Trinity College, stated that the building for university lectures would not prevent overcrowding. He felt that

USE OF VARSITY CREST AS AD CAN BE STOPPED

So Says Sir Robert Falconer
Though Inscription
Seems Bogus

"I know nothing at all about the matter," said A. Gordon Burns, of the S.A.C., when interviewed by "The Varsity", regarding the letter appearing in yesterday's issue, in which the writer stated that a Bloor Street store had used the University of Toronto crest. He had not read the letter he said, and could offer no comment. "Better see Sir Robert Falconer," was his terse comment.

Sir Robert expressed great surprise when informed of the matter.

"No, I don't think they were authorized to do such a thing," he replied when asked if the proprietors of the store had obtained permission from responsible authorities to use the crest. "I have heard nothing about the matter and really don't know what to say, but I think it can be stopped."

The crest in question depicts a shield half blue and half white, bearing a crown, two open Bibles and a beaver. Underneath is an inscription which does not seem to resemble the famed Velut Arbor-Aevo. Try as he could, "The Varsity" reporter failed to decipher the mysterious motto.

It is said that there are at least three firms in the city where anyone may purchase a Varsity crest. Rings, however, are made and sold only under the authority of the S.A.C.

UNTIMELY DEATH OF JIMMIE DOUGLAS CASTS GLOOM OVER CAMPUS AS BLOW IS FELT BY ALL ALIKE

JIMMIE

By Lou Golden

The steady tick, tick, of the telegraph instrument was resounding through the press box at the Varsity stadium. The two people present were silent, one was writing copy, the other sending it to the Daily Star. Suddenly the operator stopped sending his message. His companion only mildly interested, asked the cause of the delay. The answer was that the receivers were sending out a message and that he would get it. Taking up a pencil, he slowly wrote, letter by letter, the words as he received them and, looking over his shoulder the words came, though agonizingly, at a deadly ominous speed, "J-i-m-m-i-e D-o-u-g-l-a-s i-s d-e-a-d."

There was a moment's silence. Both men looked at each other. The tick rang out through the empty box, its incessant tick tick burning into the hearts of the men while the devastating news stood unaltered. Then there suddenly broke out a horrible stream of cursing. The reporter screeched his curses, belabored himself into a state of almost exhaustion. Then came the reaction. He sat down quietly on the long wooden bench of the box, lowered his head in his arms and was silent. Collecting himself he slowly walked over to the successor and friend of Jimmie, his face an ashen mask. There were a few words passed between them. Then a call to the players who were practising, still oblivious of the fact that their leader had passed on. The news was slowly broken and over the features that just seconds ago were happy, there drew a deathly pallor as they whispered to one another, "He's gone, he's gone".

Practice was out of the question as groups of players stood in knots dumb in their grief, unbelievable in the enormity of the news.

At Hart House all spoke with hushed voices. "It's hell—Jimmie gone—Jimmie gone." Groups of newspaper men flocked around the offices and into the dressing rooms. Questions were asked, their answers recorded. Old friends of Jimmie coming back from work dropped in at Hart House. The silence of death hung over the house.

It was only Wednesday that Jimmie told a visitor that he would like a radio installed in his room so that he could hear the announcement of the game. Instead the crowds will pack the Stadium as Jimmie's body will be carried to its final resting place.

To Jimmie, football was never a business. In all his years at the game never a harsh word left his lips when a play miscarried or when a player did not follow instructions as given. Jimmie never tired of repeating things over again, of playing with the

FUNERAL TO-MORROW

Varsity Coach Was Prominent In Various Spheres And Loved by Everyone

The many friends of Jimmie Douglas, coach of the Senior Intercollegiate football team were shocked and surprised to hear of his untimely passing at 3.45 yesterday afternoon at St. Michael's Hospital. Ill for only two weeks, Jimmie's passing came as a distinct shock to all.

Taken ill on the 19th of September, at his last practice, with what was supposedly intestinal flu, Jimmie Douglas' condition was not at first regarded as serious. It was only last Saturday that the doctors diagnosed his case as acute appendicitis, and while an operation was performed and every attempt made to save his life, it was found that gangrene had set in on the appendix. From then on, his condition at first regarded as serious, became more and more dangerous.

The late James Douglas was born 30 years ago in Sarnia, his parents moving to Toronto shortly afterwards. His early education was secured at Rosedale Public School, and he afterwards entered University of Toronto Schools. Graduating from there he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Kingston as a gunner. In that same contingent was Earl Douglas, who is now coach of the Orphans, and also Curly Carroll, another personal friend. While overseas he was badly wounded.

James Douglas had a long and successful sports record. His athletic career began in 1919, when he played on the second team in the intercollegiate Union. For seven successive years from 1921 to 1927 he played with the Argonaut Club team and was captain of that team in 1926. He was coach of the juniors for four years, and in 1928 was coach of the "Orphan" team, which team was Eastern Canada finalists. It was said of him that he was one of the best middle wings who ever played in that position. Last year Mr. Douglas also coached the Intermediate hockey team.

In addition to his numerous sports activities James Douglas was a captain in the Toronto Scottish Regiment and was second in command of C Company. In addition he belonged to several fraternities and was a member of Old St. Andrew's United Church. Since leaving college he has been employed with the Sun Life Company, in an important capacity.

Surviving him are his mother, with whom he lived, a sister, Mrs. George Dimick, now living in Montreal, and two brothers, William and Kenneth. His father died several years ago, and one brother was killed during the war.

The funeral will take place from Knox College Chapel at 3 o'clock on Saturday.

charges under his care, of having some real fun out of a sport.

It was the same in the big fight where Jimmie lost a brother and where he was seriously wounded. His back was against the wall again and again and yet Jimmie never forgot to smile. The dearest college memory to many is that of Jimmie Douglas always kindly, always fair.

A COMMUNITY TOUCHED

We speak for those who know James Douglas by fame only, and not by personal contact. It would be unseemly, then, for us to speak of him personally; this has been done elsewhere in this paper, ably, we feel, and sincerely.

But we can say, and with genuine feeling, that the whole university has been touched by sorrow. And to those who have been bereaved, we voice the sympathy of the university community, entire, and to the last individual. We realize that the sentiments of strangers are trivial in face of death; nevertheless, we offer them in all sincerity.

PERSONAL LOSS FELT IN DEATH OF COACH

Colleagues Voice Deep Grief When Tragic News Is Broken

HELD IN HIGH ESTEEM

The high esteem in which the late James Douglas was held, not only by those who knew him best, but by all with whom he came in any contact pays ample tribute to the sterling worth of the Intercollegiate coach.

"It is rather difficult to begin to do justice to Jimmie Douglas," said T. A. Reed, secretary of the Athletic Association. "Anything that I could say would be very inadequate. We all know what kind of a coach he was. The high esteem in which he was held by all is the truest indication of his worth. He had a large circle of friends, and I never knew him to have an enemy. He was highly thought of as an undergraduate, both for his athletic ability and as a member of the Athletic Directorate. He was highly esteemed in the business world and in military circles."

Ronnie McPherson, now head coach of the Intercollegiate team, and successor of Jimmie Douglas, said last evening to "The Varsity": "I have known Jimmie since I was five years of age and I can't say too much for him. He was certainly one of the finest chaps I have ever known."

Sir Robert Falconer, the honorary president of the Athletic Directorate, to whom the news of James Douglas' passing was broken, said, "I am very, very sorry. I knew of course of the work he did last winter, and it is with great regret that I hear of this. He will be greatly missed."

"It seems too bad that he was so suddenly taken from us," said Prof. C. H. C. Wright, member of the Athletic Directorate. "I feel sure that not only the student body, but also the members of the staff will feel his loss very keenly."

QUEEN'S SEES INCREASE IN NUMBER OF STUDENTS

Special to "The Varsity"
Kingston, Ont.—Although complete figures are not yet available, the registration in Queen's University is certain to be larger than ever before. First year registration in Arts and Science shows the greatest advance, being almost double that of last year in the latter faculty. Medical registration is, to date, slightly lower than last year but it is not yet complete.

MCGILL REGISTRATION SHOWS SLIGHT SLUMP

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Que.—Though exact figures have not yet been compiled, Registrar T. M. Matthews of McGill University, states that registration this year is probably slightly smaller than last year. The Faculty of Science has a record number of students registered, but there is a distinct falling-off in Arts.

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Que.—Major John W. Jenkins, for the past six years assistant Registrar at McGill University has resigned his position to go into business. He is connected with the Royal Trust Company.

Time—Eve of the big home game. Scene—Home of captain of the Blue Phone rings—The capt. answers, "Hello."

Voice—"Hello, there, Big Boy, how ya feeling? Gonna win to-morrow? Thass fine. Say old pal do you know where I can get hold of a couple tickets for the big show to-morrow? The girl friend's god father has just blown in from Chiblain Corners—good scout—he runs the slaughter house there you know. He asked for a couple tickets and it kinda puts me in an embarrassin' position, if you know what I mean. I thought maybe you—oh, I see. Well, sorry Old Man. Do you know where I can get any? No? So long." . . . . . Click.

C—C

Later—Phone rings. Capt—"Hello—What's that? What time does the game start? How should I know. I'm only the captain. . . . . click.

C—C

Later—Phone rings. Capt—"Hello." Young lady's voice—"Hello, is that you captain? This is Hernia Jones speaking. Don't you remember, I was in second form with you at high school. Remember our Latin teacher, Miss Asthma? Wasn't she simply dreadful? Yes, I'm at Varsity now. By the way, I was wondering where I could get two tickets for the game to-morrow. I've heard so much about you and I do want to see you play. Oh, you haven't got any? Oh, that's too bad. You know I was just saying to mother— . . . . . Click.

C—C

Still later—Phone ticks once more. Capt—"Hello. Who? Ammonia Fume? No, I don't remember you at the Sunday School picnic. No, I haven't any tickets. No, my picture with the helmet on isn't on the tickets; they tear them up. . . . . click. C—C

Even later. Phone honks—Capt—"Hello." Voice—"This is Joe Swindle speaking. Say, will you take 100 shares of Pyrite Preferred for a couple tickets? They won't take 'em at the gate. But it is good stuff. You'll get in on the ground floor. The latest report says they've made a big strike on the 400 foot level. In fact the men are on a big strike right now. No? Why, man, you don't know what you are missing—why . . . . . click. C—C Later yet. Phone moans. Capt—"Hella—what'sat? No, I don't care if you did just get in from Polecat Junction. I haven't any tickets. Who? Who? Not Charlie Cheesel? Well, well, well. Gool old Charlie! When did you come in? You wanta see the game? Sure thing! But say, Charlie, I can't get any more tickets now. But that's all right. Just disguise yourself as a photographer and walk right in. ## DOG GREETES GUESTS AT FACULTY TEA

Canine Aids at Croft Chapter As U.C. Welcomes First Year

The Faculty Tea, held in the Senior Common Room, Croft Chapter House, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, was well attended and very much enjoyed by the students of University College. First year students were especially invited, and welcomed the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with each other.

A large number of the faculty was present to meet the students, and a delightful tea was served.

Lady Falconer, Mrs. F. B. Allan and Mrs. Malcolm Wallace received.

An amusing incident arose when a small dog tied to the door, greeted each student who arrived. The dog wagged his tail happily to welcome each guest.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow afternoon will witness the first appearance in senior intercollegiate football of the University of Western Ontario. After many years in intermediate ranks, during which they made an excellent showing, particularly in the last few years, the Purple and White have become a welcome addition to the ranks of the Blue, Tricolour, and Red. For some time it was felt that the inclusion of a fourth team was necessary to round out the senior college series. Western gives promise of amply satisfying this need. No longer will there be Saturdays with one team idle and with the attendant two week interval between games. In addition there will be three home games for each team, helping to provide a more extensive bill of fare for those whom the great fall pastime draws in huge crowds to the college stadia.

When Western secured Joe Breen as a coach, they certainly made a ten-strike. Joe was one of the best halves that ever starred on a University of Toronto team. Joe captained the Blue team of 1920 which won the Intercollegiate and Dominion championships. In that year Varsity defeated Argos to cop the title. Harry Batstone, who is now coaching the Tricolour, was then starting his senior gridiron career with the Double Blue. The following season Breen went to Parkdale and played with the Paddlers for several years before he retired with an injured knee. Breen has taken an active interest in football, is a student of the game and appears to have the necessary leadership to get the best out of his men.

On Saturday McGill entertain Queen's at the Molson Stadium. This is a hard game to pick. McGill will be strengthened by the return of the sensational Ralph St. Germain, two seasons ago the greatest scoring threat in Intercollegiate football.

VARSITY SENIORS ENGAGE WESTERN

Blue Squads Primed for First Intercollegiate Tussle Of Season

VARSITY FAVOURED TO WIN

To-morrow afternoon the curtain will be raised on intercollegiate football when Varsity and Western meet at the Stadium. The performance is doubly significant since it is Western's first senior game, and also will show Varsity as the team to beat for the title.

The Big Blue enter the game as heavy favourites. The underrated Mustangs are fighting to make good in senior ranks, and have displayed plenty of aggressiveness in their workouts. Joe Breen's charges have been cleaning up regularly on the London Gas House Gang, hoping to extend this cleaning-up process to to-morrow.

Coach McPherson has put the boys through plenty of hard work this past week. Ronnie has his eyes on Varsity's weaknesses as shown up by the Argos tilt and the benefits of his tutelage will be apparent at the Purple's expense.

Ronnie has called a temporary halt to the weeding-out process and the intercollegiate squad is cut down to twenty-five men. Some of the players are still suffering from injuries received in the strenuous practices. Mueller with a finger nail torn off, and Twaites with a case of water on the knee, are the two most injured. Jack Sinclair, Gooderham, Little and Jimmie Sinclair have recovered and will be out to to-morrow.

The greatest worry on the team has been the lack of good tackling. Mueller is a distinct acquisition to the squad, and with Gooderham should grass the Mustang backfield in their tracks. Harrison and Jimmie Sinclair on secondary defense present a pretty strong pair. Bell and Jack Sinclair should demonstrate that combination as good as any in the game. Kelley, Bean, Little, Morgan and Keith present the strongest line in the Union. And the thirteen other men in uniform are every bit as good as the regular line-up.

This afternoon the team will go through a light signal practice, and all will be in readiness for the game. Ronnie is welding a football machine that has no place for sloppiness, and has succeeded in the little time on his hands in developing a faster squad bent on victory.

The line-up for to-morrow's game will be as follows:

Keith, snap; Kelley, Bean, insides; Little, Morgan, middles; Gooderham, Mueller, outsides; Wood, quarterback; Harrison, Jimmie Sinclair, flying wings; Bell, Jack Sinclair, halfbacks.

Subs: Galloway, Dewar, White, Long, Elson, Stewart, Subosits, Fitzpatrick, Hallam, McFadyen, Davey, Riddell, Twaites.

MARTIN MEETS HOLMES IN VARSITY TENNIS FINAL

The finals were reached in yesterday's play in the Varsity tennis tournament when Walter Martin easily disposed of Hartley Holmes 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 and Bill Noyes vanquished Balfour. Noyes and Martin meet for the title 11 o'clock this morning and a brilliant match is assured.

ORPHANS PLAY FIRST CONTEST IN WINDSOR

Douglas Has Formed Powerful Contenders for Ontario Union Title

ENTRAIN TO-MORROW

Earl Douglas, coach of Varsity's senior O.R.F.U. rugby team, has rounded out a powerful machine which hope to take Windsor into camp in their own back yard to-morrow in the first game of the 1929 schedule. Many stars of last year's squad which reached the Eastern finals are back.

McCullough, Henderson, Stringer, Scott, Knowles and Smith, all of last year's team, are back. Moreover, it is expected that Levinsky at flying wing will strengthen the team. Gridiron fans may expect great things from Knowles, the deadly tackler who was picked as one of the best outsides of the 1928 season. Baker, the other outside man, starred for the intercollegiates of last year. Ralph Adams, Canadian sprint artist, heralded as the fastest man in Canadian rugby, will relieve the wing men. Hal Richardson will do the kicking for the team and he and Baillie should team well on the half line. The latter has been showing up to good effect in practice. He is a dependable performer.

Probable line-up for Saturday's game: snap, McCullough; insides, Henderson, Robinson; middles, A. Stringer, M. Scott; outsides, Knowles, Baker; flying wing, Levinsky; quarter, Graham; halves, Smith, Baillie, Richardson. Subs, Adams, Bietnell, Burke, Bennett, Perkins, McGibbon, R. Stringer, McLeod, MacMillan, Dickson.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTER IN U.C. SENIOR RUGBY

Prospects for a strong U.C. Senior football team look brighter with the news that McMullen, Ward, Bell and Burgess, star players of previous U.C. teams are turning out. U.C. might surprise the railbirds and win the cup this year. Uniforms will be given out in the Junior Common Room from 3 to 4 to those who have not already been outfitted.

The following and any others who are interested, are asked to turn out at 4 p.m. on the back campus: McMullen, Ward, Bell, Burgess, McGibbon, Davies, Collingwood, Cook, Finningley, Harrington, Arnold, Jackson, Westwood.

Diary of a Sincere Man--Arts 3T3 Promises Soul-Stirring Revelations

By B. D. Beamish

Oct. 2, Eve.—At last I am a man. Eighteen years old today! And a member of a great university whose graduates are known the world over. Already I begin to feel the great strength of a man, the physical strength, the mental strength, the moral strength. With one sweep I put away all childish thoughts—my dreams of becoming a great aviator, of coming back to Stephendale, famous, in two years—how ridiculous. It is four years before I can try conclusions with the world, and the way to success is hard. But I feel in my soul the strength of manhood, and here at my hand is the tool of economics. Armed with this I shall go out, and seven years from now I shall have accomplished. And my love for Marion is no longer a child's love, but a man's, constant and settled.

A fool in the second year eloped off the end of my silly tie to-day. How I loathe this fatuous superiority, this assinine horse-play, to me a scholarshipman from Stephendale. And that P.T. class, being made to stand in a row like a child. But it is only through suffering that the soul is born and my character is deeper for it.

This is a great thought. Only the rigorous strengthening of my character through suffering can save me from the temptations of this city. Only this can keep me to my resolution not to let a drop of liquor pass my lips so that I can keep my scholarship mind unblemished for my great battle of business.

With this thought I shall go to bed: that I can bear lining up for meals, all the insults of the sophomores and the utter lack of recognition shown me by both professors and students, for they are all building my character. Then I can show my father and these American scoffers that all youth of to-day is not shallow, that a man can go through college sincerely, uprightly, borne up by a man's ideals and a man's love.

NEW ARTS COLLEGE
the only way was to restrict registration, but that was not feasible in a provincial university. Professor Woodcock advocated separate provincial universities for men and for women, saying that he thought that the women would like it better.

"The Varsity" next approached a number of undergraduates on the question. The first, J. L. Ball, I S.P.S., urged raising the age limit for entrance and increasing the standards. H. J. Perkin, III P. & B., thought that having a separate building for lectures was a step towards mass production which was not to be thought of at Toronto.

M. W. Whiteside, III Vic, declared that the present editorials were the best he had seen in "The Varsity". He said, "Raise the entrance qualifications, they can't keep me out now." L. W. J. Carton, III U.C., stated, "I am not interested so long as the 'frosh' are kept out of third year lectures."

per week being allowed. Uniforms are not worn at drills.

3. All men who even consider teaching, high or public school, are advised to take advantage of the C.O.T.C. training as it supplies the necessary qualifications for cadet instruction.

4. Target practice for prizes is conducted as part of the course, at least four drills being allowed for shooting.

5. Military Studies, an academic subject of unusual interest, may be taken in the Pass Arts Course, most Honour Arts Courses, and in some other courses.

6. Undergraduates who are musically inclined are urged to enrol in the Band Corps in which good practical experience may be obtained under the distinguished leadership of Capt. John Slater, Bandmaster of the 48th Highlanders.

This brief list will be concluded in the next issue of "The Varsity". Complete information may be obtained at the Corps Headquarters, 184 College St., where students will enrol. Notices for "A" Company will also be posted in the rotunda of U.C. directly beneath the clock.

The first meeting of the Band will be held in the basement of the Engineering Building on Monday, 7th October at 5 o'clock. Members of the Corps who are able to play an instrument in the band are invited to attend this meeting for information and organization.

WESTERN UNIVERSITY SNOWED UNDER IN SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE OPENER

27-3 Victory for Blue Team
In Face of Game Stand
By Losers

"LAST POST" SOUNDED

Wood, Bell, Sinclair, Harrison Are The Stars For Varsity

Western University signaled their entry into the Intercollegiate senior series by taking a 27 to 3 drubbing at the hands of the Varsity team. Although plainly nervous, the Western gridders never ceased trying and in the later stages of the game gave the strong Blue and White aggregation a better argument. Every member of the Varsity team played well, but perhaps Don Wood at quarter, Billy Bell and Jack Sinclair on the half-line and John Harrison at flying wing were most prominent. Paul Hauch was the outstanding player for the Purple and White and Kress, at middle wing, also turned in a nice game.

At half-time the crowd of nearly 10,000 and the players stood at attention for a full minute at the conclusion of which a bugler from the Highlanders' band sounded the "Last Post". It was a fitting tribute to the memory of Jimmie Douglas, Varsity coach, who died so tragically last Thursday.

The Blue and White drew first blood within seven minutes of the opening play. Jack Sinclair rounded Western's left end for 35 yards, and placed the ball within 12 yards of the touch line. Harrison made yards and Wood then went over for a touch which was not converted. Jack Sinclair gave Varsity another point on a long hoist and before the period was closed the Blue team carried the ball 70 yards for a touchdown on three successive plays. Harrison found a hole and made 25 yards. On the next play Don Wood tore off 30 yards around Western's right flank. Then Jack Sinclair took a pass from Jim Sinclair and romped over for a soft touch which was not converted.

Early in the second quarter Western made yards for the first time.

VICTORIA FRESHMEN SHOW SIMIAN ANCESTRY

Victoria Annual Stunts Night
Proves Most Enjoyable Event

True to tradition the Freshmen were allowed to display the remaining vestiges of their Simian ancestry as they scrambled madly for elusive peanuts. How many discoloured optics were suffered was only learned this morning when they washed their faces. The more timorous individuals wanted no encouragement to enter the scramble, but were promptly seized by the scruff of the neck and the slack of the pants and tossed into the maelstrom of bobbing heads and heaving backs. As they emerged amid peanut shells and glory, they stood about with shining faces which seemed to say, "My, if the folks back at the Corners could only see us now!"

Any bump which may have been acquired in the peanut scramble must certainly have been removed when they were required to shine the shoes of the Upper-Classmen. Shoe polish was not, however, the only material used in the process. Stove polish, and certain mild acids were employed with astonishing

GAY SOCK BAO VENTILATOR

"In my opinion all these Student Councils ought to be abolished, and supreme authority should be entirely in the hands of the Faculty," said Professor Satterly of the Department of Physics, to a representative of "The Varsity", on Saturday, when told that Victoria freshmen are forced by the Vic Students' Parliament to wear the yellow ties which he finds so obnoxious.

"It is a supremely foolish practice to make the freshmen wear such a ridiculous badge. It is only allowed because of bunch of silly professors don't object. I have told students that they ought to take some of these fat-headed sophomores and wring their silly necks. I will never allow any Victoria freshman to wear a yellow tie in one of my lectures."

Asked if he also objected to the distinctive neckwear of U.C. frosh, Professor Satterly stated that he did. He is reported to have said in a lecture that Trinity is the only sensible college because the freshmen don't have to wear ridiculous costumes.

Asked his opinion of the single red stockings worn by certain of the freshettes, the professor stated, "I consider it extremely foolish. Don't you?"

"It is impossible for a man to do good work under poor conditions. Students object to bad ventilation, and clothing is intimately connected with ventilation and health. We wear clothes here in a cold climate and in the warmer climates they don't." When "The Varsity" disagreed with this statement, he said, "Well, they won't inside fifteen years. Standards are changing."

"I find it impossible to lecture at my best when I see rows of silly freshmen dressed up like Guy Fawkes. Take those stupid Meds for instance. They can't work in those costumes. Alluding to politics, Professor Satterly stated, "Nobody in this country takes politics seriously. For one thing, you have no politics. It is not a serious profession."

LATE VARSITY COACH LAID TO LAST REST SATURDAY AT 3 P.M.

Former Captain of Toronto
Scottish Borne to Grave
By Comrades

PLAY "LAST POST"

Representatives of All Walks
Of Life Present
At Funeral

To the sound of the "Last Post" stood thousands with uncovered heads at Varsity Stadium while the funeral cortege of "Jimmy" Douglas was leaving the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church to carry "Jimmy" to his last rest. It was fitting that simultaneously thousands assembled at the various stadiums throughout the province, also stood in silence for one minute in memory of him who was "first" master in the art of playing rugby. The funeral cortege consisted of the Toronto Scottish regiment, who filed past with arms reversed, and the coffin draped with a flag and mounted on a gun carriage. With steady step the procession moved in solemn file to the Mount Pleasant Cemetery, where the body was interred. The Scottish regiment fired a solitary volley and the "Last Post" was sounded. Thus ended the career of a soldier, sportsman and "a man's man" as the Rev. J. B. Paulin, who conducted the service with the Rev. J. G. Inkster, called "Jimmy" Douglas in an impressive eulogy of the late coach of the intercollegiate team. "He developed a ruggedness without and within," continued his reverence. "Patience, generosity, gallantry, courtesy and sincerity—these inspired the stature of the man."

All branches of life were represented at the funeral and those who were unable to attend were represented by numerous floral offerings. The intercollegiate teams, Queen's, Western, McGill and Varsity, and the Varsity O.R.F.U. team of 1928 and numerous others were among those who sent flowers.

STADION BREVITIES

"Aren't those rah, rah men perfectly adorable in their newly cleaned and pressed ducks!" was the observation of one fair fan. But give the ushers credit. Two of them went over big with the crowd when they pulled the "permanent hair-waving" advertising stunt by totting around the field a huge ad of the coming intercollegiate track and field meet.

Bright Remarks of Mighty Males Move Mere Co-Eds To Tears

"Yeah—smart little party over there—yes, little girl, those big men in the corner are from Western."

The admiring eyes of our co-eds did not follow the men in the mixed rooting section, but—the men seemed to be so busy thinking up bright remarks for the benefit of the co-eds that those mere football players didn't receive very much attention.

However, we must be fair, and admit that all the men weren't that way. The apparent shyness of the co-eds forced them to retire as usual to one section, as usual, a few of the more enterprising, and to tell the truth, the later comers, ventured into the lion's den and caused great interest thereby.

Several hard-boiled specimens, noticeably from S.P.S. were so little af-

Corridors

Western University's coming of age was celebrated in a fitting manner at the Royal York Hotel, Saturday night. The Toronto branch of the Alumni Association staged a dance, reunion and banquet in the Grand Ball Room, which festival in the words of Cecil L. Snyder was "a wonderful success".

The lights shone on fair women and brave men, and in case they were not bright enough two monstrous gentlemen in the blue uniform of Chief Draper's army, scanned the proceedings with eagle eyes from the balcony. Despite this handicap the Wright brothers and their orchestra, Western's own band, dispensed red-hot synopation to the sedate crowd of dancing alumni and undergraduates.

When half-time was called much hand-shaking and back-slapping was in evidence and speeches were heard from the orchestra dais by C. L. Snyder, the dynamic alumni president, Dr. Sherwood Fox, the beloved president of the university, and Dr. J. W. Crane, a prominent member of the medical faculty. The beaten but not disgraced team was then introduced to the crowd and a few words were heard from J. M. Breen, the hard-bitten and competent coach. Everyone then swung into the dance again till midnight, when they departed to supper, with the Western and Varsity yell reverberating through the halls of the C.P.R.'s pride.

The U. of T. Stadium was the scene of the first great social event of the rugby season. The Purple and White were the guests. Varsity accorded the debutantes a warm reception. A large crowd turned out for the "T". In fact it was all "T". Western never had a chance.

Fashion dictates were appropriate. The Blue was predominant at all times. The co-eds were attired accordingly but with striking variations. Red and white tams and an occasional green hair ribbon afforded a distinct relief to the sombre gray and brown of the male contingent.

USE OF CREST SANCTIONED

"Yes, of course, we have permission to use the crest of the University of Toronto on our windows," stated Mr. G. J. Karrys, the proprietor of the Varsity Tea Rooms, when interviewed by "The Varsity". "We should never have used it otherwise." Mr. Karrys proceeded to verify the statement by showing "The Varsity" a framed letter which comes from the Registrar's office and which reads as follows:

Registrar's Office,
June 13, 1929.

Dear Sir:
Yesterday at the meeting of the Board of Governors you were given permission to use the crest of the University of Toronto as requested in your letter to me of May 26, 1929. You will be able to get a copy of it from the Registrar of the University.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) Robert Falconer.
"I respect the crest of the University and I am proud to have the privilege of using it," said Mr. Karrys, and he continued to assure us that the crest is not used in any manner that is disrespectful or detrimental to the University but that it is used only on the windows.

The crest was put on about three weeks ago, Mr. Karrys explained, in the hope that it would add more students to the already large number that frequent the shop.

Special to "The Varsity"

A general inquiry into the situation is "alarming". The general average for sororities exceeded that of all students at the university.

WARY OF REPORTERS

Received "Croix de Guerre" From Government Of France

Prof. E. Gilson, Doctor of Letters, University of Paris, who comes to St. Michael's College to assume the headship of the newly established Institute of Mediaeval Studies, evinces little faith in the accuracy of quotation manifested by members of the journalistic profession.

At any rate when approached for an interview by "The Varsity" the distinguished professor insisted that it be carried on through the medium of a questionnaire to be prepared by the reporters, to which he very willingly assented to write out the answers.

Painfully the questions were written out, and with fear and trembling and no little doubt submitted to the professor, who explained much to the relief of the questioner, who was beginning to feel very much like a prosecuting attorney, that this was his usual method of giving interviews.

Prof. Gilson has been Professor of Mediaeval Philosophy in the University of Paris since 1922—a position which he still holds. Upon completion of his lectures as exchange professor at Harvard in 1926, he was asked by their department of philosophy to stay on as full professor of Mediaeval Philosophy. "I liked the idea," writes Prof. Gilson in answer to a question regarding his work in Harvard, from which place he comes here, "but I had to think of my French students and the needs of my own country, so the agreement was reached that I should come to Harvard University as full professor three months each year. In order to come to St. Michael's College, however, I resigned this professorship, and I expect to be here for a similar period of time each year."

Outlining the scope of the work included in a department of Mediaeval Studies, the professor continues: "Roughly speaking, we may say that the Middle Ages is that period of history which lies between the 7th and 15th centuries, and one of the most outstanding academic developments of recent years is the ever increasing manifestation of interest in the life of that time."

Explain Aims and Organization At Players' Guild Meeting

A very successful tea was held Wednesday afternoon in the common room of the Women's Union when the Players' Guild of University College opened this informally its new season. The Executive was delighted to welcome the host of freshmen who were present as well as many of the former members.

After tea had been served, the President, Mr. J. J. Knights, spoke to the gathering of the aims and organization of the Guild, and Professor Dale, the Past Honorary President, kindly consented to add a few remarks about the way the Guild has been conducted formerly and also suggested to the newcomers how they help in making the programme of the year a satisfaction to its members.

REQUIEM

The winds blow chill and melancholy upon the editors of forward literary reviews and left wing magazines, and the roll of those who have perished by the way is a sad spectacle, indeed. One has but to cast an eye upon the obituary for the past season to realize this truth and to sigh with the poet who sings:

"Of all the literary deaths
The saddest seem to me
The deaths of little magazines
That died to make verse free."

These casualties, to be sure, are due without exception to collapse of the advertising; a condition that is usually brought about by a weakness in the circulation. Unfortunately, advertisers are unwilling to deal with journals whose subscribers are confined to the violent, the whiskered, the Bohemian and the mystic.

Even last week there came to this office a letter announcing that the "New Student" had joined the celestial presses; a deplorable event because this review made a distinct contribution to American student thought. Of course, it was on the far left-wing, and of a rosy pink hue, yet its editors and contributors frequently had ideas—a novelty quite worth condoning. And it surely cannot be gainsaid that even the radical has a place somewhere in society.

The grim creditor also overtook the "Canadian Mercury" during the dog days. This magazine it was that so shook the public by starting out in its first issue with a picture of the mythological celestial messenger on its cover. It was not so much the heathen significance of this that soured people as the fact that the chubby Mercury was quite frankly thumbing his nose. And when subscription solicitors approached officials of the more conservative rank, we are informed, they were promptly invited to make use of the exit facilities when the dreadful gesture was observed. In fact, we have even the report that the magazine did not appear in certain reading rooms on the campus until the plaque of Mercury had been cut out with a razor blade.

Yet, even so, the "Mercury" would have been beneficial to this country, even though we hold no brief for the finger twiddling. The fact that people do not care for opinions is a palsy, and a narrow excuse, for suppression. Indeed, when opinions met with violent opposition, it is a reasonable indication that they are opinions worth observing.

Again, we reflect, and reflecting, call to mind certain other literary demises. Where, for one, is the "Rebel" published in late war days at this very university? Back shelves in attics hold the clue. Where, for another, is "Patches" which, for many, is a pleasant memory? Where are others, unwept, unpublished and suppressed?

The only advanced magazine in this country, we believe, that has persevered for an appreciable time is backed by an astute publisher, and is edited by hardened thinkers. And in the United States, the outstanding derision comes from a paper that is also an adjunct of a publishing house.

As a matter of fact, the public does not want radical opinion, and the enthusiast who purposes filling the alleged need for such is going to have a melancholy surprise. It is certainly a dismal reflection, but, nevertheless, true. We, as a public, do not wish to be told the facts about ourselves; we prefer to listen to those who are willing to view us as we wish to be viewed.

Only by catering to public taste have magazines started and succeeded. The "Goblin" was founded at this university, back in 1923, and look at the thing now! It obviously did not achieve its present position by wielding the lead-pipe.

If the venturer is prepared for the worst, and is willing to make a contribution to progress that will be realized too late, well and good; if he has a heavy bank account behind him, magnificent. But if he should be unable to meet these conditions, he has two alternatives. The first involves the shameful debasing of his ideals by mixing in some popular clowning; the second is simple, and consists only of summoning the undertaker.

CHAMPUS CAT

They say that the big blue team won from the Western "Spiders" on Saturday afternoon. Although we were present we failed to notice the same on account of our attention being divided between the passing of 45 odd aeroplanes and the epileptic convulsions of the cheer leaders.

Was it the middle system they were using?

"Gosh," cried one of the freshmen reading the score, "11-6-5-4, Varsity is getting worse every quarter."

The advantage you have in sitting up on the top row of the stand is that you don't have somebody's uninformed best friend screaming down your collar (when the score is 19-0 in our favour) "Come on Varsity, de old fight in there—"

It is whispered that the chief of police has been warned by the chief of detectives that the leaves have turned red in Queen's Park.

News Item—Urbana, Ill.,—Infantile paralysis in active form has broken out among members of Phi Tau Alpha fraternity at the University of Illinois, and medical authorities are taking steps to check the disease before it becomes an epidemic. We wish to warn the members of the local organizations against the dangers of similar outbreaks of croup, rickets, whooping-cough and sororities against house-maid's knee, etc.

Let us close with a touching little limerick:
When I look in a mirror I see

APPLAUSE

The applause at the stadium on Saturday was, at times, reasonably lusty, but never enough to indicate the spectators' feeling that the team was fighting at personal risk for the Alma Mater. And we were astounded to hear that the occupants of the covered stands generally expressed their emotions by polite clapping of the hands.

This is news that causes one to reflect. Tea at half-time for the players, with a bouillon option, we fear, is on its way. Of course, there is no possible objection to such applause when a man is injured and limps, or is carried, in; at these moments it is decorous, indeed. But to clap mildly when the alien line dissolves and the quickness of the hand deceives the eye for a long plunge . . . . . Vocabulary fails us.

This disloyal lethargy, as some would have it, cannot be said to be due to the English tradition imported—the English being notorious hand-clappers, though by tradition only, we suspect. Some of the mightiest shouts ever heard by our ears at ball-games have been quite Oxonian.

May we suggest that the vice is distinctly native. It is hard to avoid the speculation that the Torontonians are very afraid of making a show of himself—which undoubtedly occurs when he stamps and bellows at ball games.

The game may or may not need pepping-up; we leave that to the experts. But as spectators, we feel that a large part of the funeral aspect of recent games is due to the spectators who are afraid to rise on their legs and make a noise in the world. If this is so, we propose to the Students' Councils that they add several qualified psychologists to the cheer-leading corps.

LONE STAR STRANGER DESIRES TO FLY ALOFT

Pupils of Aeronautics Fail To Turn Out in Large Numbers

"Only one student of the University, a Chinaman who graduated this June in Architecture, has taken advantage of the special offer made by the Toronto Flying Club to the undergraduates of the university who are interested in flying," stated Dr. Fletcher Sharp in an interview with "The Varsity".

Last year the students had the opportunity of an excellent lecture course in aeronautics under Professor Parkin, who is now in Ottawa, and who is recognized the world over for his knowledge along this line.

That such an exceptional offer enabling the combination of experience with theory aroused such little interest resulted in the questioning of various students.

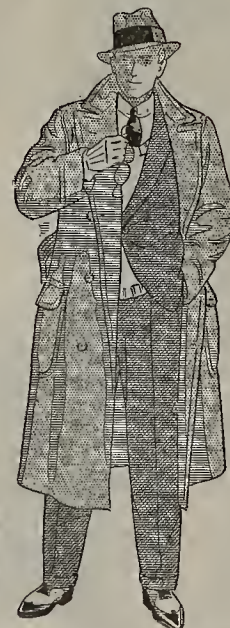

"I intended to take a lecture course in aeronautics but decided that it was too heavy along with my other work, so I gave up the idea," said one third year man from S.P.S.

"Sure I'm interested in flying, but I need all my hard earned shekels for various items enumerated in the Calendar, Willie's wee wallet is not exactly patterned after a cornucopia, but after I graduate I hope to be able to take up flying seriously," replied another.

"I am interested in aeroplanes entirely from the mechanical standpoint, and not because of any desire to fly," stated a student whose tie betrayed the fact that his term in college has been about two weeks.

A clever and very amusing skit was produced by the Freshmen of South House, the star performer being a trained "dog" which could answer questions by nodding its head and count up to five or six with its paws and perform such feats as pointing out the handsome sophomores. Unlike most dogs the creature experienced considerable difficulty in keeping its head in place; what with its head and a refractory tail the dog's time was spent mostly in adjustments between acts. Its trainer seemed greatly pleased when it finished its performances without becoming disintegrated. The best skit was staged by the first year men of Charles House. Twelve statuesque Apostles were the organ-pipes whose upturned palms were the manual. Ivan Igknovestan-efneski was at the console of this remarkable instrument, four Freshmen were the organ-bench, a "Frisco Whistle" was the blower. The organist turned on the switch which operation produced a crescendo on the whistle and mysterious grunts from somewhere underneath. Toward the end of the selection M. Igknovestan-efneski became so energetic that his efforts resulted in the complete collapse of the organ. Household utensils of other days made excellent chariots for a race which was run in several heats. Pillow fights, biscuit-eating contests, peanut races and what-not and the Freshmen are considered initiated. A round of songs, yells and groceries concluded a hilarious and strenuous evening.

NOW BROADCASTING STATION U. OF T.

Are We Sufficiently Air-Minded
To Train Our Minds
By Air?

"I approve of radio for giving information on subjects of interest to the public and would like to see radio regularly used for that purpose so long as there is no idea of writing examinations or obtaining university standing by that means," said Mr. W. J. Dunlop of the University Extension, when asked his opinion on college courses by radio. "As I see it at present," he continued, "I think that it would not do to attempt to give regular university courses for university credit in this way."

For three years the University Extension made a trial of broadcasting lectures in Chemistry, Astronomy, Literature, History and Economics, which proved very profitable for the general public.

"Let us suppose," said Mr. Dunlop, "that in a town such as St. John's there are six students who for financial reasons cannot attend the university and that in Collingwood there are twelve such students and so on over the province, and that ten years from now there are one thousand students in Ontario similarly situated. Suppose that these are commencing the second year and have been able to choose five subjects in second year arts which do not involve either science or mathematics; suppose then a microphone is set up in the classroom and that these students hear over the air the lectures given in the university, being allowed to write to the University Library for books and to send in their exercises for correction. The questions before us are these—What would these students miss in university life? If this system were possible would it mean the abolition of the pass arts course? I see possibilities in this, perhaps some possibilities which at the present time I do not contemplate with pleasure, but yet we never know what the future may bring."

Prof. Norwood of the Classics Department of U.C., when approached on the subject, said, "That is all very well for stimulating interest and for people who know nothing about the subject. A university teacher is trying to educate. Education is the impact of one person on another in an atmosphere of a disinterested search for knowledge and the appreciation of knowledge. The interests of both teachers and pupils coming together sets up new truth and new appreciation of truth. The student must bring his own contribution, his own knowledge, and the questions he wants to ask." Prof. Norwood considered radio ideal for giving out specific information or specific commands which are not susceptible to discussion and do not admit of argument. "It is only mechanical facts you can do by radio," he continued, "You can teach people statistics in history or any subject, but anything more profound can't be done except by the give and take of intercourse."

Prof. Glazebrooke of the History Department, thought university broadcasting an interesting experiment, the success of which could only be known after trying it. "It is only a makeshift device," said Prof. Glazebrooke. "It couldn't be a substitute for a university, but might be tried as an experiment in an additional way for those who are unable to attend a university."

And Another Chapter is Added To The Ancient Arabian Nights

By A. E. F. Allan

Myself when young did eagerly frequent Doctor and Saint, and heard great argument . . .

(Dated at the University of Baghdad, shortly before dawn.)

I have come, O Saki, to that renowned School wherein dispute great and mighty Minds upon subjects of learned import. On a day when darkling Autumn east her Leaves, I wended my hopeful way across that barren Wilderness—how oft, alas! 'neath other Moons surveyed in vain—and in at the pictured Portal, when there did espy me one who shouted: "Omar! beloved Omar! Maker of Tents! stands thy Ground for we would girdle thy Neck with the Yoke of the Lesser World!"

Whereupon I, all trembling, stopped; while violent Hands did bind my Neck and unburden me of certain of my Gold. "Scum!" quoth I, irate, and "Scum!" again. "Know ye not that I am that choice Spirit, that exalted Personage upon whose glowing Head but yesterday was placed the Crown and Sovereignty of all the Mouthing Leather Tongues!"

"Go bait a hook, Frosh!" rejoined the Assembled Multitude in their strange jargon. "Anon we will smite thee Where it will do thee the most Good, and betime bath thee that thou mayest be clean."

"Thy Mouths shall be stopt with Dust!" cried I aloud. "Nor shall This lightly be forgiven!"

"Thou talkest through thy Hat, Frosh!" chorused the Carping Crowd.

Whereat I, reaching my hand within my mantle, drew forth a saffron Card. "What sayest to this Talisman?" propounded I.

"A saffron Card!" said They; and, drawing back a Pace: "Why didst not tell us This before? We thought thou wert of the white Card. But thou art one of us." And "Brother!" cried They.

Thus, O Saki! is one welcomed into the Circle of Lofty Minds. If thou enterest the First Year, thou art a Frosh and a Poor Sap. But, lo! if thou enterest Second Year Pass, thou are a Brother and a Good Egg.

Fools, They who give Thought and put their Stock in Labels! How many a tassel Mortar-Board covereth a vacuum!

This much have I learnt in a week. Who can say what a Year will bring? I ought to be quite a Wise Guy.

MEDIAEVAL STUDIES FOSTERED BY ST. MIKE'S

"The latest significant event in this connection is the recent establishment of the Institute of Mediaeval Studies in St. Michael's College. The particular work of the institute is the study of mediaeval civilization in all its aspects." Here the professor goes on to explain that this work will include not only mediaeval history but also the history of sciences, fine arts, moral, social, and political theories of the Middle Ages, philosophy and theology.

Prof. Gilson served in the artillery during the great war and was decorated by the French Government with the Croix de Guerre. In 1916 he was taken a prisoner of war at Verdun, and he recounts an interesting story laid in a German prison camp of his first contact with Canada. "I occupied the cell of a Canadian officer, Captain Thorne, who had left on the wall a splendid inscription which is not for public record, but ended with 'The Maple Leaf forever'. I have never been able to find him, but I still hope to some day. I shall be very grateful to anyone who can give me any clues as to his whereabouts."

The professor declined to give any impressions as to student bodies as he has known them in his experience in universities on two continents, saying: "Since I have been in Toronto only a week, I am unable to make any comparison between Canadian and American universities. As to Europe, the system of education is so entirely different from what one finds both here and in the United States that a satisfactory comparison cannot be made."

VIC S.V.M.

The Student Volunteer Group of Victoria College will hold an open meeting in Wymilwood on Wed. Oct. 9, at 4.30 p.m. All students who are interested in missionary work or study are cordially invited to attend this meeting. Tea will be served.

INTERCOLLEGIATE CHRISTIAN UNION

The second general meeting of the Toronto Intercollegiate Christian Union will be held at Wymilwood on Tuesday, Oct. 8th at 5 p.m., when a new president will be elected and important items of news announced. All those interested are asked to be present.

Mass meeting of U.C. women of first year to be held in the Women's Union at 4.15 on Tuesday afternoon.

U.C. BASEBALL

The first practice of the U.C. baseball team will be held to-night, Oct. 7, at U.T.S. gymnasium corner Bloor and Huron. Everyone please be out on time. 8 p.m.—9 p.m.

C. O. T. C.

Following is the conclusion of the brief resumé of the activities of the U. of T. contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps:

7. Members may qualify through their academic Military Studies or by special lectures for Certificate "A" (Lieut.) and Certificate "B" (Capt). This is the only method by which officers' qualifications can be gained without first receiving an appointment in a militia regiment.

8. Membership in the C.O.T.C. does not entail liability for active service other than that of any citizen of Canada.

9. Promotions to N.C.O.'s, and officers' ranks are made from members who show interest and ability in the work of the corps.

10. The C.O.T.C. offers flying instruction, including several flights, to selected members at a nominal cost. There is also an opportunity of attending Summer Camp Courses in flying, signalling, etc.

11. The course of training in the C.O.T.C. is completed in mid-March and enrolment for the following session is the option of the student.

12. It is expected that the long awaited C.O.T.C. Ball will this year materialize as one of the outstanding social events of the season.

The number of students who may enrol in the corps is limited and as the closing date for enrolment is near at hand students should apply to 184 College St., (Department of Military Studies), immediately.

BLOOR ST. SHOP HAS PERMISSION TO SHOW CREST

Proprietor Wishes Students To Feel At Home
In Shop

GOVERNORS APPROVED

President Says Regulations Do Not Prohibit Use Of Crest

"I suppose if the man has a signed letter it is quite in order," said Sir Robert Falconer to a "Varsity" reporter last night in connection with the use of the University crest by Mr. G. J. Karrys, a Bloor St. business-man.

Mr. Karrys claims that he was authorized to use the crest by the Board of Governors, and has a framed letter in his store to that effect, bearing the signature of the President.

"I was present at the meeting of the Board of Governors to which the letter refers," continued Sir Robert, "but it was held just the day before I went away, and I don't remember any of the circumstances of the affair."

Asked whether any steps would be taken to stop the use of the crest, and whether anyone else would be permitted to use it, Sir Robert said, "I've never heard the matter particularly discussed. I don't know that there's any general regulation against it. I know that Gordon MacKay was given permission to put a crest on sweaters to sell to students, but that was the only type of crest that every school has on its sweaters."

Mr. Karrys, when interviewed, agreed with "The Varsity" that the crest should not be used for commercial purposes. "I only put it on the windows to make the boys at home," he said. "I wanted it to express to them a welcome which I could not put into words. I wanted to make them feel, when they came here that it was just like home to them. They all like it. I sent a man down to the Registrar's office to copy the crest and then he came up here and put it on the windows properly, colours and all just right."

Mr. A. B. Fennell, acting-Registrar, could not tell "The Varsity" whether the crest had been procured through the Registrar's office or not, when interviewed last night. "I couldn't say offhand," he said, "I would have to look up the records."

Mr. A. T. Laidlow, assistant Registrar, was considerably surprised to hear that anyone had been using the university crest in such a way. "It's strange to me," he said. "I've never heard of such a thing. I didn't think they would grant the privilege to anyone for commercial purposes. If they did it for one they would have to do it for all. It looks strange on the face of it. Of course, the matter would hardly pass through my hands anyway."

Part Time Work Finds No Favour

"Shall I get me a part-time job?" is a current question on the campus, if the student is not at present so engaged, and "Shall I give up my outside work?" if he is. It is largely a matter of great material need versus a limited amount of time for study. Co-ed opinion is quite divided on the subject.

"Bunk!" says Jeannette Breslin, IV U.C. "It's a waste of time."

"Spleudid!" says Isabel Jordan, I Eng. & Hist. "You cannot remove education from the plod-plod of present-day existence. If you do not wish to be ground in the mill of big butter-

Camera Club

The opening meeting of the Hart House Camera Club will be held in the Music Room, Hart House, at 8.00 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 8th. All members of the House interested in photography are invited to be present as this meeting will give them an opportunity of meeting members of the club and seeing their work, and of learning the programme for the session. There will also be a demonstration of home talks and refreshments.

SOCIALIST PREMIER MAY RECEIVE DEGREE

George Washington University Conferred Degree
In States

HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY

A rumour has been travelling around the campus to the effect that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, who is at present in the focus of the public eye because of his recent arrival in America to confer with Mr. Hoover, President of the United States, about disarmament, will receive an honorary degree from the University of Toronto when he visits this city on Oct. 14 or 15.

Mr. A. B. Fennell, acting-Registrar, on being interviewed, could not verify the statement.

When Miss A. W. Patterson, secretary for Sir Robert Falconer, was approached on the matter she stated that she could give no information on the subject, but she did indicate that the matter was being considered for she stated that there was to be a meeting of the Senate of the University on Friday, Oct. 10, and information would be given out by the registrar after that meeting.

Yesterday Mr. MacDonald received the degree of Doctor of Laws from the George Washington University after he had refused degrees from several other Universities of noted standing, including Princeton.

His reason for accepting the degree from this university and not from the others was because it was non-sectarian and also nearly two-thirds of the students there are attending night classes in much the same manner as the poor boys in the Prime Minister's native Scotland. It will also be remembered that Mr. MacDonald, a man of that peculiar nobility of manner which is said to make other men around him feel undistinguished, had to work his way up through dire poverty and he has always shown the greatest of sympathy for any who are struggling for an education.

and-egg men, you must weave into the fabric of your dreams the practical wool of hard labour."

"Against it!" says Margaret Dunham, I Modern History. "I disagree with Isabel Jordan on principle, because she's full of the ethereal fancies of youth."

"If it weren't for my part-time job I wouldn't be here," says Marjorie James, III Moderns. "Yes, my standing may be lowered, but outside work partly compensates for first-class hours. Besides it is necessary to maintain a balance between the theoretical and the practical." To the question whether a summer job was not enough for that, Miss James answered, "No, there is not enough practical work done during the summer. A big job is heart-breaking for a young girl, but some part-time work should not hurt anyone. Of course," confessed Miss James in conclusion, "I was expecting to be asked my opinion, and had it all thought out ready for you."

HART HOUSE LIBRARY ONCE MORE IS OPEN

Many New Books Purchased For Members To Enjoy

PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Undergraduates will rejoice when they hear that their favourite resting place is now open for accommodation. The familiar figure of the student sleeping soundly with a book across his chest will be once more in evidence and will greet the patrons of Hart House Library.

"The reason that the library has been closed for the past ten days," Mr. Beamish stated to "The Varsity" reporter, "is that it will serve as a definite protest to the undergraduates who are abusing the privilege offered them. The Library Committee sees no reason why the library should not be opened but they feel that the students should know about the books that have been ransacked from the shelves."

"As yet," Mr. Beamish went on, "there have only been one quarter of the books returned. Some sixty were missing and now fifteen have been returned."

It seems that the books which have been returned up to date are ones that would help particularly around examination time.

The Committee is apparently undaunted by this deplorable state of affairs and they have purchased many new books. There are twenty-six fiction, among which number is the new world famous, "All Quiet on the Western Front". Two biographical books have been purchased, one of which is an interesting account of "King Henry the Eighth". The rest are various non-fiction books of special interest. There are many detective stories among the recent addition and many books that are not new but which are very valuable and necessary assets to the library.

Surely the students will see that the Committee has been very considerate under the injustice that the library has suffered in the past. Is it too much to expect of a student body such that attends a university to abide by regulations that are essential to the smooth running of a public library?

Your representatives serving on the Men Students' Administrative Council have done me the honour of electing me as the President of their Council for this academic year, and by virtue of that position I become also President of the Joint Executive. The honour thus conferred upon me I greatly appreciate, more particularly as I feel that it is not so much a result of any outstanding ability of mine, but rather a gesture of welcome and appreciation of my college, Emmanuel—the youngest of the federated colleges.

In taking advantage of the generous offer of the Editor-in-Chief of the "Varsity", that I should use the columns of your paper for a "statement", I am departing from precedent and laying before you certain information about student government in this university, the general knowledge of which will undoubtedly help towards mutual understanding and goodwill between the large body of undergraduates and their elected representatives.

In the first place it must be remembered that at present we have only a measure of student self-government, albeit a generous measure, all things being considered. How much more self-government may be granted in the near future will no doubt depend on the use we make of, the interest all students take in, what we now possess. It is a well-known fact that very few undergraduates take any interest in the affairs of the two Students' Administrative Councils and the Joint Executive. In past years some of the very elected representatives were not interested enough to attend meetings of the Councils. May I ask for your co-operation in this matter? If you will insist on your college or faculty representatives attending the Council meetings and reporting back to your organizations better and more helpful meetings of the Councils will result.

Remember that at present there are two councils, one controlling men students' activities, and another similarly for women students. The officers of these two councils constitute the Joint Executive which controls all administration affecting the student body as a whole. The name "Students' Administrative Council" is misleading, and indeed is out of date now. Besides these two councils and the Joint Executive, there is the "Finance Committee", responsible to the Joint Executive, but under the watchful eye of the Board of Governors of the University. To this Committee is delegated the expenditure of all moneys that are paid over by the Bursar as S.A.C. fees.

2. A Committee appointed last spring by the Caput is still engaged in an investigation of the present form of

Best Scrap of the Season Say

FRIENDSHIP FOSTERED

Fire Hose Plays Large Part In Ejecting Enemy
From Building

The best S.P.S. scrap of the season (according to both Sophs and Frosh) got under way yesterday afternoon in the Science Building. It started when the Frosh gathered to rescue some of their number who were undergoing the gentle Soph custom of "tapping"—and when the frosh gathered, the sophs gathered—and then the fun began.

For a while the fighting was general, but finally it centered around the soph stronghold, the front door. Failing to take this position by a front assault the freshmen tried a rear attack. The sophs, however, executing a brilliant piece of strategy, allowed the frosh momentarily to gain the door and then proceeded to eject them.

For those who were not so fortunate as to get chucked out the door, tie cutting and tapping were the order of the hour.

Aqua pura made its appearance early in the game when the frosh manned a hose from the third story and played it indiscriminately on all the combatants. The coup de grace, however, was when the hose in the lower hall was called into play and poured cooling streams over the combatants until the hall was a close rival to Hart House tank.

Casualties were evenly divided, ripped shirts, blackened optics and ruined suits being much in evidence during the remainder of the afternoon. Miss Bradshaw in the Engineering Society Office was besieged by a constant: "Where's my pen?" "Did any one bring in a wallet?" "Say, I just lost a—" etc., ad infinitum.

The Sophomores finally declared themselves victors and finished the day with a defiant "Toke Oike" and the well-known "We are, we are—etc., followed by a chorus of "Poor Soph".

School however takes its fights kindly and as an aftermath the Varsity reporter overheard a soph and frosh unite in declaring it "one peach of a scrap".

INTOLERANT CITY TO BE DISCUSSED IN HOUSE DEBATE

Committee Desires a Change
In Appellation Of Room

MAYOR TO DEFEND POLICY

Distinguished Guests to Speak
On Delicate Question
Next Month

"Resolved that in the opinion of this house Toronto deserves its reputation for intolerance," is the subject for the first Hart House debate which will take place on Tuesday, November 6th, in Hart House Lecture Room. This should be of especial interest to students and outsiders in view of the wide publicity that has been given in the press to clashes between the Toronto police and members of the Communist group in the city.

It is expected that Mayor McBride will be present to speak on the resolution. Dr. Salem G. Bland, who is widely known both in clerical and press circles of Toronto, is mentioned as a likely visitor.

The resolution will be moved by T. V. Kennedy, a member of the debates committee.

"The Varsity" learned last evening that the Debates Committee was making an attempt to get R. B. Bennett, leader of the federal Conservative Party, to speak in a coming debate. The Committee has made a request to the Board of Stewards that the name "Debates Room" be substituted for "Lecture Room."

DIVERSE VIEWS HELD CONCERNING ROOTING

Freshmen Ignorant of Yells Cannot be Expected
To Cheer

CURLY GRAHAM RECALLED

Varsity won the game on Saturday, but according to many, it was far from a rooters' victory. The cheer-leaders went through most of the antics known to circusdom but only got a meagre response from the bleachers.

P. Pentun, 3T2 says the freshmen are to blame. "I think," he said, "that the main trouble is that the freshmen don't know the yells yet." On the other hand K. W. Langford, 3T0, does not feel that there was anything lacking in Saturday's cheering. "As far as I know," he said, "there was just as much cheering Saturday as at any other game."

When questioned by "The Varsity" as to what he thought was wrong with the rooting on Saturday, T. A. Reed, secretary of the Athletic Office, did not care to venture an opinion as he was not present at Saturday's game, being out of town. In his opinion, "Cheering is something that must come from within and cannot be manufactured. When there is a good play, the students are usually not lacking in enthusiasm."

"Rooting was a different matter in the days of Curly Graham and McCutcheon," opined Dr. W. E. Brown of the Athletic Directorate. "Why, those chaps were born to it, and the rooters would do anything for them."

"There are a few reasons," claimed A. G. Burns of the S.A.C., "for the poor cheering on Saturday, if it was poor." The team only had a few days to prepare for the game, interest was

AGAIN THE COUNCIL

We print herein a statement from the President of our local student government. To read it through and digest its contents should be a matter, not only of curiosity, but of conscience, to every individual who pays in good dollars through the Bursar's grill for S.A.C. fees. The reader will doubtless find it to be a reasonable definition of the status of our government, and sane in its views of the relations between the student and the constituted powers.

We have no intention of repeating the President's statements. To do so would be to imply an insufficiency in his treatment of the matter. But there will doubtless be two criticisms, or rather, points of view, that will promptly be raised by those who ponder the question of students and their political activities.

The first school will say that student governments are not worth taking seriously, and that those who do indulge in these deliberations are simply making a mountain out of a sand-pile. This observation is popular with the blasé and the intellectual who frequent Bohemian tea places and talk about what, after all, is the meaning of life. Now, to be blunt, if men and women at the age of twenty or so are not prepared to take things seriously, when will they begin? The experience gained in agitating at college, mayhap will be useful later. In fact, it is said that Dominion politics since 1920 are the results of lessons learned in the University College "Lit" about 1895. It is, to be sure, a dubious compliment to the "Lit", but valuable as an opinion of student activities.

The only attitude, indeed, that one can take, is that of respect and gravity in regard to undergraduate activities. Where would the U.C. Players' Guild be, one wonders, if all its members took the stand that it is not worth taking seriously? Of course it is trivial when one gazes upon the dominion, the world, and the universe, but, fortunately, the campus is our universe and the importance of our activities proportional.

This is, as we point out, a student viewpoint. The second opinion comes from the older folk who regard us all as striplings and school-girls, and incapable of forming ideas that are not half-baked. Their views, unfortunately, are fortified from time to time by the claim that students raise.

The only answer to this is to laugh vociferously. Call university students childish, immature, and then view a bunch of fifty-year-olds at luncheon or in convention; read the reports of the notorious A.B.C.; read any average political speech; go to a meeting of the average municipal council . . . . .

As a matter of fact, the young, when earnest, are usually more direct, and quicker to see the point than older people. Experience teaches one to seek the path of least resistance by devious ways, occasionally, while youth moves straight ahead.

Students are capable of governing themselves. Of this there can be no reasonable doubt, provided the participants in the government are aware of their responsibilities. The leaders in student government at present have no desire to take an unreasonable stand. They only feel that the relations between the students and the authorities should be well-defined, with no trespassing beyond the lines of authority on either side, and that the existing system of government be reasonably and earnestly regarded.

W.U.A. ELECTIONS

The elections of the W.U.A. which were held Monday in the Women's Common Room, resulted in a poll of two hundred voters. Clara Gray, IV Classics, was elected president of the association; Jean McKeown, president of second year; Ruth Holdenby, treasurer. The first year elected Isabel M. Jordan, president, and Kathleen Harkness vice-president. Margaret Dunham and Connie McNeill tied for treasurer. Margaret Hogarth was elected secretary. Betsy Burrows is S.A.C. representative and Jean Mills social service.

I chanced to meet my old friend Addlewit at the table the other day and we had quite a chat while we ate. We were so engrossed in our talk, however, that we failed to notice the passage of time, and, as we found out later, of food. For it seems that we lingered longer than necessary over the soup, and by the time we were ready for the second course a cohort of waiters descended upon our table and removed everything, including the oak finish. Although it is my belief that we lost nothing by passing up the next dish, which was a food cleverly disguised as spaghetti, we were nevertheless disappointed at missing a delicious looking piece of raisin pie which was whisked away from our vision before we could even swear. By this time we were the only ones left at the table, but we continued our chat in spite of it.

At length when we were finished and made to arise when my friend grasped my arm in amazement. "I say, old chap, I can't get up!"

"Can't get up?" I repeated curiously. "Are you ill?"

"Not at all, I am stuck to the bench. Look!"

And sure enough, so he was. He had not missed the raisin pie after all. He had been sitting on a piece of it all through the meal. "Here, let me give you a hand," I cried, grasping him under the shoulders and heaving with all my strength. But it was no use. Beyond a faint creak of straining tweed there was no movement whatever. Here indeed was a problem. He would not hear of making a break for the door minus his trousers as he is very sensitive about his appearance at all times. At last we were forced to move Addlewit and the bench in one piece from the eating hall. A couple of stout school men, taking it for a form of initiation, proffered their assistance, and together we carried him to the Head's office to talk the matter over.

"Delighted to see you," cried that gentleman pleasantly, upon our arrival, "but don't you know," he continued, eyeing the bench, "that we always have chairs provided for the students entering the office?"

I explained my friend's predicament. "Most extraordinary!" murmured the Head, shaking his head. "Would you give us permission to remove my friend from the house with the bench attached?" I finally asked. "Impossible, my dear fellow, impossible, it simply can't be done. Don't you see that if every chap who became stuck to a bench in this fashion should be allowed to do the same thing that we would soon be completely stumped for seating accommodation in a very short time?"

"By Jove!" cried my friend, "you are right. I am going right back to the eating hall. No one shall ever say that an Addlewit has failed his duty, even on his seat."

"The whole incident is very regrettable, I am sure," said the Head, "and I shall not fail to take the matter up with the committee."

So my friend went back to his post at the table. Some naughty Meds have since spread the rumour that Addlewit was swept up by the waiters and eventually landed in the soup, but there is no truth in the story whatever as far as I could find out. The main point is the matter has been taken up with the committee.

With the Theatres

SHEA'S

Shea's this week is largely Ken Murray rolling them in the aisles with his rough comedy and a flock of fast ones. A singing trio labelled Foster, Fagan, and Cox ought to stop the show nightly with their agreeable rhythms. Powers and Jarrett provide a quite unhackneyed comedy act. The screen features "Big News", comedy-drama of somebody's idea of newspaper life. Conversation in a newspaper office is decoded for the benefit of the Great Unpolluted, and the customary formula of scoops, murders, dope-rings, and speakeasies is added. As usual the bill is well calculated to appeal to the T.B.M. and the allegedly jaded scholastic mind.

A.E.F.A.

UPTOWN

The feature presentation at the Uptown this week is Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in "Lucky Star". The story is merely what it has been so often called—"the vehicle"—by means of which the actors were presented. For those who like a sentimental story, interspersed with quivering sighs, this is real stuff, to others it will probably be amusing. The feminine theatre goers will enjoy an attractively staged Furriers' Fashion Revue, rather long, but the quality of the models helps to make up for that. This bill will probably appeal to those who are not too critical.

JERMYN, FINLAYSON AND ENGEL PLACE IN U.C. TRACK MEET

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Probably the greatest game of the season will be staged by Varsity and Queen's at Kingston this Saturday. Both won with rather lop-sided scores, and the coming encounter is being touted as the one to decide the collegiate championship. However, McGill's famous "never-say-die" spirit may upset the dope somewhat.

There were only three injuries reported over the week-end. Sinclair is having some trouble with both knees, but it is expected that a week's rest will put him back in shape to stage an interesting duel with Howard Carter. Hallam's injury is not considered serious, as is also the case of Baillie.

"Red" Batstone has certainly succeeded in welding a smooth-running football machine. Carter carries out his idea of aerial attacks to perfection, but Sinclair may force Batstone to change his tactics somewhat. The Blue and White's sloppiness is gradually disappearing and given a few days McPherson will have a team strong in every department.

The interfaculty track meet will be run off to-morrow at the Stadium. There has been a wealth of new material out this year, and places on the Blue and White track team will be hard fought for. It looks like Varsity's year in track.

MANY STARS DISCOVERED AT TRINITY TRACK MEET

"The best meet in college history," was the way everyone described the Trinity College track meet, held yesterday at the stadium. Many new stars have come into the firmament at Trinity and they laid fair to win many points at the interfaculty meet on Wednesday. The large turnout of students and the many close contests combined to create no lack of enthusiasm.

There were four heats in the 100 yards before Stewart was finally declared the winner.
Both Stewart and Clough look like point winners on Wednesday. The winners are as follows:

100 yards—Stewart, Minnet, Dickson.
Half mile—Stewart, Walters, Moore.
Discuss—Clough, Berwick, Merwynne.
Javelin—Stewart, Clough, Rapsey.
High jump—Rapsey, Berwick.
440 yards—Stewart, Penlinton, Robinson.
Pole vault—Dickson, Rapsey, Berwick.
Individual champion—Stewart.

U.C. COLLEGE SPIRIT

If University College were to shut her doors to all but those students registered in arts in University College, would she develop a better college spirit?

"What," answered one U.C. senior, "has anything so provincial as college spirit got to do with U.C.? We have something which I consider bigger and finer here—university spirit. University College is the heart of the university and, as such, should remain accessible to the life-stream of the institution."

"In a college as large as U.C. it would be practically impossible to develop that esprit de corps which we find in smaller colleges and faculties. As it is, I think we have a broader outlook here than in other colleges." Such was the verdict of a prominent junior.

Another student when questioned by "The Varsity" waxed wrathful at the implication. "Why," he exclaimed, "do they always keep harping on the subject of the lack of college spirit at U.C.? There is no lack, but her spirit is embodied in such a multitude of societies and associations that it is difficult to arrive at a unified expression of that spirit."

For the most part, students of Uni-

BLUE TEAM IS INACTIVE AFTER WEEK-END GAME

Orfuns Have Stiff Workout In Preparation for Game On Saturday

Following their flashy victory over Western on Saturday the Blue and White Intercollegiate took a well-earned rest on Monday. No practice was called by McPherson, but this afternoon the squad will get down to hard work. This Saturday the Blue play in Kingston and are in for a real battle. "Ike" Sutton and his men have already shown themselves as a dangerous team and will be out to repeat their victory over McGill.

Their is not likely to be much change in the first team although there is always the possibility of some of the Orphans coming up to replace several of those who were in uniform against Western.

Coach Earl Douglas had the Orphans out yesterday evening and sent them through a stiff workout. He divided the squad into two teams and put them through a scrimmage. The work of the Blue at Windsor on Saturday was not satisfactory, and the Orphans will have to improve greatly to take Sarnia here this Saturday. Against the Borderites the Blue field looked terrible, particularly on the punts, letting the ball bounce or occasionally failing to go back far enough to make a catch. The result was that they had no opportunity to elude the opposing tacklers and were often thrown for big losses. It is only fair, however, to point out that the Orphans have had a very short time to get any team-work, as the squad was only picked about two days before the first game. The next game should see them nearer their true form.

Friday—4.30-5.00: Jr. U.C.; 5.00-5.30: Sr. Meds; 5.30-6.00: Dents.
On Monday, Wednesday and Thursday the last two periods shall be 5.00-5.20 and 5.20-5.40, to make room for the Varsity senior team.

Knox Soccerites Defeat O.C.E.

In the opening interfaculty soccer game of the season Knox defeated the Ontario College of Education eleven 1-0.

The game was rather listless due mainly to the fact that it was played so early in the season. As the score indicates Knox were slightly superior though both teams showed lack of practice being weak in combination and shooting. The players seemed to

ST. MIKE'S GIRLS PRACTICE

St. Michael's College women have started their basketball practices in an endeavour to develop a team who will prove a real contending factor in interfaculty games. They were fortunate to secure Miss Marjorie Walsh, an old St. Mike's girl, as coach, and a large number of enthusiastic freshmen turned out to the first practice. Of last year's team there are several players, around whom Miss Walsh intends to build her team. Loretta McGarry, Victoria Quinlan, Olive Macklin, are all very anxious to get going and they are to form the nucleus of this year's team.

prefer individual efforts. In the first half Knox were held scoreless due to Jackson's fine efforts.

Early in the second half Roland scored for Knox on a fine long shot making the score 1-0. D. Davidson and Goforth missed open goals. O.C.E. were pressing hard at the finish but were obliged to be content with a nil score. Jackson was the pick of the losers while Davidson and Roland starred for Knox.

Line-ups:
Knox—Goal, Irving; fullbacks, H. Davidson, W. Jack; halfbacks, D. Jack, Roland, West; forwards, McDonald, Johnston, D. Davidson, Milroy, Goforth.

O.C.E.—Goal, Styles; fullbacks, Cunningham, Jackson; halfbacks, Herbert, Buese, Carbert; forwards, Sweetzer, Brown, McVittie, Wallace, Leffer. Referee: N. Halper.

Willie Fails To Win Winnie Restaurant Scene of Rejection

Believe it or not the following incident took place recently in a well-known restaurant in the heart of Toronto.

A young man and woman known to their college chums as Willie and Winnie entered a restaurant, seated themselves at a table made for two, and while anxiously awaiting the waiter carried on this peculiar conversation over the menu card.

"Will Willie want weiners?" Winnie wants waffles-wafers-water. What will Willie wish? "Weiners-wheat-cakes-wine." While waiting waiter Willie whines, "Will winsome Winnie wed Willie Wednesday, Westminster?"

"Whoopee!" wails Winnie wisely. Why Winnie wanted Willie. Willie's wages were weighty, Willie's wisdom wide. Wild with Willie's whoopee, Willie wobbled, wavered, wilted. Wretched Winnie wakened waiter who was waiting without. Waiter wets Willie with water. Winnie whispers. When Willie wakens, Willie whispers—"weiners". Waiter withdraws.

While Winnie with weaking Willie wait waiter with weiners-waffles-wafers-wine-water we watched Winnie, Willie wondering whether Winnie would wed Willie Wednesday, Westminster.

We would wonder!

BULLETIN BOARD

U.C. SOCCER

There will be a practice of the U.C. soccer team this afternoon (Tuesday) at 4 p.m. on the front campus. Everybody out.

VIC GIRLS' BASKETBALL

There will be basketball practice for first year Vic girls on Tuesday, Oct. 8th from 5 to 6 o'clock in the Men's Gym, and for third and fourth year from 8 to 9 p.m. in O.C.E. Gym.

JR. MEDS-ATTENTION!

All men in Jr. Meds interested in Water Polo are asked to be on hand at Hart House Pool at 5.30 p.m. to-night for the initial practice. C. M. Bennett, manager, will be pleased to have any new men turn out.

VARSITY SOCCER TEAM

The Varsity Soccer team will practice each Tuesday and Thursday on the front campus at 4.00 p.m. It is urgently requested that all candidates turn out for these practices. Newcomers will be heartily welcomed.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE C.O.T.C.

MINING & METALLURGICAL CLUB

The first meeting of the club will take the form of a smoker and the introduction of the freshmen. It will be held on Tuesday evening at 7.30 p.m. in the East Common Room of Hart House. Refreshments. Every man out.

ISSUES STATEMENT

student government. It will be the duty of this year's councils to see that this committee does not take a winter's sleep, and to this end I promise you that we shall keep up a gentle probing. At the same time nothing should be done by either the councils or any other body of students that could interfere with the normal work of this committee.

3. The office of the Men Students' Administrative Council is in Hart House. Mr. A. Gordon Burns, the General Secretary-Treasurer, can be found in the office most of the time. He is there to be of service to you, and he is anxious to do all that he can for you. Please have no hesitation in entering the S.A.C. offices and seeking the help of Mr. Burns in any matter of general undergraduate interest. I think I can make bold to state that in a similar capacity Miss A. E. M. Parks is ready to serve the women undergraduates at her office, Room 82, University College. Your president has every confidence in the ability and value of these two permanent officials.

4. There is nothing in the constitution of the Men Students' Administrative Council to prohibit meetings from being open to all male undergraduates. As a matter of fact, believing that it was most desirable to have open meetings, both last year and the year previous, meetings were held in the lecture hall of Hart House, and an invitation was extended to all male undergraduates to attend. The response was practically nil. It is well to remember, however, that any male undergraduate may attend these meetings in the future, and if a sufficient number seek this right, we shall no doubt resort to the use of the lecture room, if it is available. Naturally, only elected representatives will be permitted to take any part in the meetings. The point which I desire to make clear is, that there is nothing secret about the meetings of your Council.

5. It is the intention of the Secretary-Treasurer to publish, as soon as space is available in the "Varsity" the last balance sheet of the Council, so that every undergraduate will have an opportunity of seeing how his S.A.C. fee has been spent.

6. May I ask that any matter which you feel may be for the good of undergraduates generally, be brought to the attention of the Council. There are only two proper ways of doing this: either by taking the matter to your representative on the Council, and requesting him to bring it up at a Council meeting, or by going directly to the Secretary-Treasurer or to the President of the Council. The former method is of course the nicer way. Your Council can hardly be Kleptomaniacs are rare in any community but it certainly seems as if there were an organized society of such people around the university. Ordinary stealing is not expected of any university student with the ordinary gifts of common sense.

Co-operation is necessary in most things around the university, especially is it so in this phase. The library committee puts forth their plea for the return of the remaining missing books and ask for the future co-operation of the students.

therefore not as high as it might have been. This year, too, the sale of season tickets has been more popular than in recent years. It would be very difficult to get students out to rooters' practice. Formerly, students had to attend rooters' practice before they could get their tickets. Season tickets get around that. However, it is early in the season and many of the freshmen have not yet learnt the yells. Wait until the Queen's game and we'll show our critics how we can yell!"

expected to take cognizance of say anonymous correspondence in the columns of a downtown newspaper, or of rumours that periodically float around the campus.

7. The Joint Executive, acting on your behalf, publish "The Varsity", as an undergraduate newspaper. An Editor-in-Chief is appointed and he is given a free hand in the production of the paper. Personally I am a believer in the freedom of the press. But, it must not be forgotten that freedom has more moral responsibility and greater obligation than has bondage, and that therefore even a free press should be limited by the dictates of common sense. I have no hesitation in saying that the Council places entire confidence in the ability and sound judgment of the present Editor-in-Chief and his staff. We feel we can expect a very worthwhile undergraduate newspaper, unhampered in its expression of student life and opinion, and yet worthy of our great university.

Montreal, Oct. 7, 1929.—The life of a ship's butcher is one of varied pursuit; curiously, he does not slaughter animals, but, in addition to his chief occupation of preparing meats for the chef, it is one of his duties to care for any livestock carried on board. The butcher of the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, which arrived in Montreal on Saturday morning, reported a busy voyage, for he had in his care no less than 155 canaries, six pigeons, two game bantams, two cats and three rabbits.

The canaries, consigned from Tilburg, Holland, to Toronto, were of purest species and breeds, 55 being Roller Canaries, 20 Green Budgerigars, 20 Fischer Lovebirds, 40 Zebrafinches and two Blue Budgerigars. "To feed the canaries, canary food two times a day, one time in the morning, one time in the evening at 4 o'clock, to give them water one time a day in the morning, the food you will know if you look in the cages of the canaries. Budgerigars, Lovebirds and Zebrafinches all one kind of food to feed them one time in the morning and one time in the evening, also one time in the morning to give them water. Please make nice all the cages every three days one time, for which a knife by this parcel also a drinking can for the canaries. Please beware all the wings of the birds and send these wings further to Quebec and Toronto. By bringing the birds in Quebec to the train, please take care that you do the paper round the cages, as the birds cannot have the cold weather, generally the canaries. We do not doubt or you will do so and thank you in advance," were the curiously-phrased instructions received by the Purser of the Montrose and duly passed on to the butcher.

The Montrose brought 152 cabin passengers to Montreal after landing over 300 third class at Quebec on Friday, from Antwerp, Southampton, Cherbourg and Cobh. Among Montrealers who arrived by this liner were: Emile R. Ancehrn, Mrs. Hermeline Boucher Ulric Caron, E. Clavel, Miss Therese Roussy de Sales, Mrs. Hermine Donner, Mrs. K. N. Drummond, A. Fleisher, Miss Faith Gibbon, Ernest Herodot, Mrs. M. Johansson, V. D. Kelsart, Mrs. L. McDougall, and her three daughters, Miss M. Paul, Mrs. K. K. Smith, Mrs. Edwige Theoret, Mrs. H. ### UNIVERSITY COLLEGE GIVEN ANCIENT NAME BY REASON OF HABIT

Junior and Senior Arts Copied
From Schedule Year
After Year

MERELY AN OVERSIGHT

Secretary of Athletic Association States Reason For Mistake

"It is a traditional custom as it were, handed down from father to son from the time when University College was the only Arts College," stated J. A. Reed, secretary treasurer of the athletic association, when asked why the announcement of the Mulock Cup schedule in yesterday's "Varsity" referred to University College teams as Sr. and Jr. Arts. "It was only through an oversight that the U.C. teams were mentioned as such since the lists were copied from year to year and inadvertently this error was not corrected. In reality," he claimed, "U.C. have now no more right to the term than any other arts college." However, he immediately saw to it that in future University College teams will be known under their own names and this trace of the long ago will no more be seen.

Professor C. H. C. Wright, a faculty member of the athletic directorate, when shown the item stated that he was away for the last meeting of the athletic association, but that the terms Sr. and Jr. Arts were not at all justified either to U.C. itself or the other arts colleges. By a reference to yesterday's article on University College loyalty he thought that by referring to U.C. teams as Arts, the fact of their being University College teams would be somewhat lost and naturally the students of the college would resent the fact that their teams were not given due recognition as their special representatives. Also the other colleges have equal claim to the term and are just as much Arts colleges as U.C. itself.

REORGANIZED CHORUS PREPARES PROGRAMME

Mr. Mazzolini Directs What Is Almost a New Venture

NO VOICE TESTS

For the first time since 1907 a university chorus met in Trinity last evening. E. Mazzolini, a graduate from Oxford in English and History, and at present the assistant musical director at Upper Canada College, was quite amazed to think there was no choral society in the University of Toronto and stated he was quite pleased to direct the new chorus.

In speaking of the musical qualifications Mr. Mazzolini decided it would be unnecessary to take a voice test, satisfying those present with the remark: "If you can't sing, at least look attractive."

It was suggested that one or two small choral works with organ accompaniments be attempted, with the hope that next year there would be recognition and an orchestra to accompany. Phandrig Crohoore (Patrick O'Connor) was chosen for the first musical work, an interesting thing about it being that it has never before been done in Canada. The director decided it was better and that more

LACK OF THOUGHT IS TO BE BLAMED ON WOMEN TEACHERS

No Interest in Ideals And Principles Says Professor
Rogers

ARE INCOMPETENT PEOPLE

Young People Are Not Taught To Analyze Or Criticize

Wellesley, Mass.—(IP)—American thinking is feminine thinking, incited by women teachers, highly competent in detail, immediate in its application, rigidly idealistic regardless of the working facts, and weak on critical examination, Professor Robert E. Rogers, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology told the sixteenth annual national business conference at Babson Park here recently.

The professor, who created a national sensation last spring by advising the senior class at M.I.T. to be snobs, analyzed "Our Young People" at the conference.

"Our boys and girls have not been taught to think," he said. "They are interested in applications, not ideals and principles. They have had, in school at least, no fundamental instruction in the problems of ethics and conduct, in the problems of society and government, in genuine science as opposed to tinkering. Above all they have not been taught to criticize or analyze."

"They come to higher education and life with a settled conviction that the only allowable criticism is 'constructive', as if one could construct without first tearing down."

"Whose fault is it? I will hazard one unpopular guess. For a half century now the largest part of our young people have been trained exclusively by women teachers. The faults I have been speaking about are the faults of women teachers. Fifty years of this has produced a people incompetent to think politically and philosophically."

FOSTER SCHOOL SPIRIT ADVICE TO FRESHIES

Initiation Scheduled For Friday Evening Next At The Union

The initial mass meeting of University College first year women was held at 4.15, Tuesday afternoon at the Women's Union and the large number who attended were warmly welcomed into the fellowship of University College by several senior representatives. The freshmen were urged to foster school spirit and arrangements were made for their initiation which will take place on Friday evening at the Union. Outlines of the various U.C. Societies were given and the first year girls were encouraged to partake of the advantages gained from the resulting social and educational contacts.

Hart House Camera Club had a meeting in the Music Room, Hart House, last evening. Prof. Covey gave a speech and a demonstration of home talks was given.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS

"The Students' Christian Movement expect to have a very interesting program for this year," said Rev. F. J. Moore, head of the local branch, in an interview with "The Varsity" recently.

An interesting itinerary for this season is announced, in which several important speakers are scheduled to appear in Toronto.

Dr. Herbert Gray, who is to speak on November 20th, is the author of several books and leader in the British Student Christian Movement. He will be present for four days and will speak twice in Convocation Hall during his stay. It is also expected that Dr. John R. Mott, chairman of the World's Christian Student Federation will speak in Convocation Hall on December 8th.

The regular Hart House series of addresses will begin on November 6th this year, and addresses will be given by prominent religious speakers, all dealing with different phases of Jesus' character.

The open forums for discussion will soon be begun, as well as chapel services which are being arranged.

"The Canadian Student" the official organ of the Student Christian Movement is edited by a board of which Rev. Mr. Moore is president.

"There are about 900 subscribers to this publication," said Mr. Moore, "and articles are written largely by students."

ANCIENT GREEK ACE TOOK NASTY TUMBLE

So J. T. Wilson Told Trinity Science Club Last Night

Mr. J. T. Wilson addressed the opening meeting of the Trinity College Science Club last evening on the "Progress of Aviation". "The first human being to attempt flight," said Mr. Wilson, "was a Greek who, many years before Christ constructed feathered wings which proved such a failure that the intrepid fellow ended the first recorded flight by man, with both legs broken."

The period immediately before the French Revolution marked some advance in France along the line of aviation, successful balloon flights having been made in 1783 by the Montgolfier brothers.

The beginning of the 20th century brought forth the Wright brothers, and the dawn of modern aviation.

During the course of this address, interesting models were exhibited, illustrating the principles of flight.

The use of aerial photography in map making was duly explained with the help of limelight views.

Three Hundred Gather In Hart House to Celebrate
Annual Occasion

The Great Hall was last night the scene of a happy assembly when about three hundred gathered to celebrate the annual U.C. Freshman and Sophomore Banquet of 1929. To the strains of a jazz orchestra, the smiling and somewhat scared freshmen wended their way to the Banquet Hall. This was preceded by a scuffle in the corridor during which many ties were partially deprived of their glory.

After the appetizing menu had been despatched with apparent relish, the assembly rose to the playing of the National Anthem and drank the toast to the King, proposed by Al Stringer, toastmaster, and president of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society.

With a few kind words to the freshmen, Mr. Bickersteth offered his respects to anyone in Hart House. Then Al Foot, president of the sophomore year, proposed a toast to the college. He recalled the good old days when freshmen were initiated and that this year's freshmen were very fortunate in that they were not to be roughly treated. Proceeding, he urged all newcomers to the university to take advantage of the many social affairs that offered during the academic year.

This toast was responded to by Principal M. W. Wallace. He stressed the fact that in such a large university as ours one cannot but help become a citizen of the world. The younger generation of to-day have in Canada wonderful opportunities that the people of other countries have not the

PLANS FOR THE YEAR

The Toronto Intercollegiate Christian Union created last year for purposes of prayer and fellowship in Jesus gives fair promise of increasing strength of the sincerity and conviction of its members.

Dr. Guinness of England, who was the instigator of the movement here has spent the past year in Canada forming unions. As a result Manitoba, Western and University of B.C., now have one, and McGill's is being formed now.

Yesterday's meeting in Wymilwood opened with prayer, led by Dr. Guinness, and also spoken by the students who represented many of the faculties. In the business meeting which followed, Mr. Harry Bonnell of III Knox, was unanimously elected president, and Mr. Arnold Hart-Davies, III Wycliffe, was made secretary for the Inter-Varsity fellowship of the Unions in Canada. Plans were discussed for the T.I.C.U.'s first reception to be held at Wymilwood next Tuesday night when Mr. Noel Palmer, and Mrs. Noel Palmer, grand-daughter of General Booth, are to be the chief guests.

All new students are heartily invited to attend and enjoy the fellowship of the Union. Plans for the year include more evangelistic meetings, talks by missionaries, daily and weekly prayer meetings.

Hart House Will Be Scene Of Gay Celebration On 75th

TO BE HELD OCTOBER 15th

Annual Arts Ball To Be Held
At The Royal York
This Year

Plans are complete for the 75th anniversary dance of the University College Literary and Athletic Society, which will be held Friday evening, October 18th. Contrary to practice of former years this dance is being held in Hart House instead of the Jenkins Art Galleries because of the fact that the Arts Ball will take place this year in the Royal York hotel, and it is the wish of the society to hold at least one formal affair in Hart House.

S. T. Beauregard, last year's social director, heads a committee consisting of the year presidents which is making preparations for the coming event. Much work is being expended in making this one of the worthwhile social affairs of the year, and the committee promises an enjoyable evening of fun and entertainment. A popular orchestra will furnish the music for the evening, and dance novelties and specialties have been planned.

This will be the second big dance at Hart House—the other one being the Centenary Ball—at which the quad is open and it is expected that this will greatly facilitate the passage of couples from one part of the building to another.

The committee has allotted 300 tickets, part of which are to go to U.C. graduates who should write immediately to the president of the literary society if they desire to secure one. The undergraduate lists will be open at the offices of the literary society on Tuesday, Oct. 15th from 12 to 2 p.m., and students wishing to secure tickets will be required to pay for them as they sign the lists. The price of the tickets is $2.50 and tax and they may be called for Thursday, Oct. 17th between the hours of 12 to 2 p.m.

REGISTRATION FIGURES COMPARE FAVOURABLY

Complete Figures For This Year Are Not Yet

Mr. W. J. McAndrew, University College Registrar, to-day gave the Varsity statistics of registration to October 5th of this year, showing an increase over last year's registration. Mr. McAndrew expressed the opinion that registration was not yet complete and that there were still a number of fourth year occasional students to enrol. The statistics of this year's registration to October 5th compare with last year's statistics as follows:

	1928-29	1929-30
First year	540	450
Second year	368	345
Third year	251	251
Fourth year	230	242

"You are not only members of a distinguished faculty but of a distinguished university ranking, I think, with the first four on the continent," stated Mr. J. R. Gilley in reply to Mr. F. E. Harris' toast to the Alma Mater at the Dental Soph-Fresh banquet at the Walker House last evening.

Mr. Gilley went on to explain the value of Hart House to the undergraduates and stated that when the University of Paris was establishing their Foyer International they received their greatest assistance from ideas obtained at Hart House.

Dr. W. Willmott in his address of welcome to the freshmen gave a brief resume of the history and achievements of the faculty and stressed the value of co-operation between the students and the faculty.

Dr. Cowling in a very clever and amusing talk, stated that he regretted the passage of the old time initiation as it helped to establish democracy among the undergraduates. "The

HART HOUSE BANQUET FOR ALL COMMITTEES

Over a Hundred Student Members to Attend Function
Thursday

On Thursday evening of this week the Great Hall will be the setting for a banquet given for all the members of the various committees of Hart House.

Few people realize that over one hundred men are connected with the management of this institution on its various committees which include House, Hall, Library, Music, Billiards, Sketch, Camera, Squash Racquets and Debates Committees. These are the men who daily occupy High Table in the Great Hall. The undergraduate members of the committees are elected annually by their fellow students. In days gone by it has quite often been the case that men on different committees have been entire strangers. It was not considered becoming that members of the management of what is virtually the undergraduate men's club should be unknown to each other so last year a dinner was held to give every member the opportunity of meeting every other member. In this way it was thought to promote co-operation and a spirit of unity in an institution which occupies a central position in Varsity life.

A full representation of the members of the committees is expected. Sir Robert Falconer will attend and will be introduced to everyone present.

Mr. Campbell McInnes, the well-known singer and director of "the Songsters" will entertain the company with a few folk songs.

AVE ATQUE VALE!

Yesterday the corner-stone of the new McMaster University was laid, well and truly, by His Excellency, the Governor-General, in Hamilton. This was a significant event for education in Canada; it marks the inauguration, undoubtedly, of a greater McMaster, and of a fourth large arts university in Ontario. In Toronto, McMaster has been somewhat overshadowed by the larger institutions; in Hamilton it will undoubtedly draw many local students, as well as the usual students of its denomination. The energy of Chancellor Whidden and his associates in the recent campaign for funds has been attended with enviable success; if their energy continues, the three senior universities will have, not only a consort, but a competitor.

MISDIRECTED ENERGY

To produce a flock of polished intellectuals with the individuality of a shipment of kitchen chairs has never been the aim and end of any university. But such is gradually becoming the case. Mass production of knowledge of all kinds, in assorted sizes, is being offered to the people—so that the blasé youth who emerge from the architectural beauty of our front portoullis, may compete successfully with the rest of the automatons of a mass production world.

The hordes of matriculated high school students who threaten to burst the roofs of our colleges, come here either in the pursuit of advanced learning, or for the lack of something better to do. Of the first class we cannot speak too highly, and the ceremony of adorning them with the tie that binds, and the caps which crown their freshmanhood so coyly is a pleasing one. But of the second class we cannot speak too scathingly; although, in a great measure they are to be pitied. They come here, these parasites, largely as a result of the urging of parents who consider that it is the "thing" for their sons and daughters to do.

William I. Nichols, until recently one of the assistant deans of Harvard College, has written at length in the Atlantic Monthly, regarding the students who should not be wasting their time in college. Their presence in the Universities is decidedly detrimental to both the University and themselves. They congest and overcrowd the classrooms and the classes, till the worthy pedagogues throw up their learned hands in holy horror at the thought of any attempt at the personal contacts and conferences necessary to thorough mental training. The organizers of student activities might as advantageously be selling hot dogs to the Eskimos as trying to raise student interest to the point of participation, either actively, or inactively among such hordes of undergraduates. Nor are these students any credit to the standards of the University—they skin through their examinations because they have not hitched their intellectual wagon to a star, because they are content to jog along in a rigid rut that permits only a slight interest in anything smacking of the scholastic. Yet they are to be pitied because there is very likely some trait which should be given prominence in their education, and which college curriculums fail to satisfy. It is impossible to expect that a college professor can miraculously examine a student, and subject him to an X-ray which will discover that occupation to which his mental and physical state best adapts him. It is for the parents to decide—it is for them to watch their children to discover their aptitudes and abilities—and it is for them, if necessary to forgo the pleasure of telling their conferees at a meeting of the Ladies' Aid, or a smoker at the club, "Oh yes, my boy is a freshman at Varsity this year".

According to Mr. Nichol there are, in general, three classes of students who should not be in an Arts college—the artisans, the adventurers, and the artists. Naturally enough, a boy who is primarily interested in gasoline engines, or model dairy farms would find the extensive study of seventeenth century French literature very dull, and would probably be flunked in his exam. But give him some subject that he is interested in, and he will show an assiduity in his study that would surprise even his fond parents. To come down to the commonplace study of integral calculus or ancient history, when a boy's head is filled with the desire to be "snapping behind a dog sled,

Victoria College Dramatics

The year's activities of the Victoria College Dramatic Society were opened last night by the presentation of two plays—Galsworthy's "The First and the Last" and Town's "The Weaver of Dreams". The choice of the Galsworthy play was not a particularly happy one for a college dramatic club meeting. Although they did succeed in holding the attention of the audience, the members of the east were inclined to walk stiffly through a much too heavy piece. Lois Reynolds, as Wanda, was easily best. Si Birge did Larrie Durrant, and B. Carson played Keith Durrant.

"The Weaver of Dreams"—the sort of thing overdone at summer camps—was calculated as a contrast to the first piece. It proved whimsical and quaint, but inclined to be childish. Ruth Moore played Pierrette; Harry Berry, Pierrot; and E. Joliffe, the Weaver of Dreams.

CONTRIBUTOR'S DAY

There are three things my friend never expects to do:

2. To ever make a girl walk home.
3. To become the father of a large family.

Reason:—She's a girl.

C—C

I crossed the campus all alone
I didn't know a soul
Boldly I went through U.C. doors
And thought I'd reached my goal
A soph clutched rudely my neck-gear
Said: "Frosh, remove that tie".
My eyes filled up, I could not speak
I thought that I would die
Weakly I fumbled with the rag
My ears and neck they burned
Soon I had donned a scarlet flag
My worst fears were confirmed
I started down the corridor
My lecture room to find Forgot what I was looking for Bewildered was my mind.

I walked in through the nearest door
In hopes it would be there
"Get out," I heard a prof's voice roar
I wilted neath his glare.
Like something small and low I felt,
A worm or perhaps a moth,
I couldn't understand at all
The reason for such wrath.
Then presently another tie
As green as mine was red,
Dashed through a door and passed me by,
I followed where it led.
At last, thank God, into a room
Completely filled with frosh
"Twas easy now to find the place
So easily, by gosh.

With the Theatres

THE PRINCESS

The Stratford-upon-Avon Festival Company last night offered their splendid production of "King Richard the Second" to Toronto theatre-goers, and Toronto nobly responded by quarter-filling the theatre. In defiance of all the canons of criticism, one is tempted to remind patrons of the drama that there are other plays of Shakespeare besides "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" and "Julius Caesar". In view of the excellent reception accorded the Stratford players here last spring, it would appear that local drama-lovers have forgotten that this play of the second Richard is possibly the most lyrical of all Shakespeare's historical dramas and most nearly embodies the stuff of pure tragedy.

Despite occasional creakings of the histrionic machinery on the part of some of the minor players, the production was nearly perfect of its kind. The staging—young intellectuals please copy!—was strongly suggestive of the bold contrasts of the Abbey paintings. The weaknesses of characterization resulting from an almost too-large repertoire—the prevailing criticism of the company last season—were not so apparent last night, and should be even less noticeable in the other offerings. What minor faults there may have been, were more than overshadowed by the superb work of George Hayes as King Richard. There is nothing of the heaviness proverbial in Shakespearean actors to be found in the delicate case of this player.

A list of the excellencies of the company would mean practically a roll-call, and would be quite superfluous. One devoutly hopes that the ensuing two weeks will spell "houses" at the Princess.

INTERFACULTY TRACK MEET VARSITY STADIUM 1.30 P.M. TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-day at 1.30 p.m. the Interfaculty Track and Field Meet gets under way up at the Stadium. This promises to be a real big afternoon's entertainment and should attract plenty of spectators. The competition will be extremely keen in most events, with the sprints in particular being the feature of the afternoon. Ralph Adams and Johnny Fitzpatrick are likely to have a red-hot battle in the "100" and "220". The rest of the card contains many classy performers and more than one Interfaculty record will go by the boards.

The Varsity-Queen's hook-up in Kingston this Saturday is one of the best attractions that Intercollegiate football has offered in some seasons. Both teams won their opening games and the winner of this battle will be undisputed leader of the college series. McGill have been called a weak team on account of Saturday's showing against Queen's, but on paper they look better than last year. Queen's must have had plenty to defeat the Montrealers in the shadow of the mountain. Varsity has undoubted strength and if they can emerge victors against the Tricolour a mighty good start will be made in the effort to bring back the championship mug to Hart House.

Transportation to Kingston via bus is being offered at a very reasonable rate. It is to be hoped that a large number will take advantage of this to support the Blue when they take the field against Harry Batstone's men.

Special to "The Varsity"
New Haven, Conn.—President Angell of Yale University has condemned the week-end visits by Yale students to nearby women's colleges, such as Smith and Vassar. He claims that this "week-end extension work for Yale" is "harmful both physically and mentally" to the students.

INTERFACULTY TRACK SPORTS MEET SEEMS TO PROMISE THRILLS

Fitzpatrick and Adams Keen Rivals For Sprint Championship

MANY FIELD EVENTS

Meet To Be Held In The Varsity Stadium At 1.30 To-Day

Although several faculties have already staged their own meets, the season really opens with the Interfaculty Meet this afternoon. This meet largely determines the composition of the Intercollegiate and intermediate teams. For the past two or three weeks 40 or 50 men have been working out under the watchful eyes of Coaches Martin and Halbus.

Johnny Fitzpatrick and Ralph Adams, of the Canadian Olympic team will have a great fight for the sprint honours. Ralph won the Canadian championships in the "100" and "200" at Banff this summer, and is out to hold the honours he won there while Johnny is just as anxious to show him up. Both of them have been playing football and are in good shape, and if the Interfaculty records of 9 4-5 secs. for the century and 22 secs. for the "220" is equalled or bettered don't be surprised. As both these men are in S.P.S. it looks like a walk away for School in the sprints but a frosh may create a sensation. Jim Watson, ST3, a coloured sprinter from Windsor, who has been burning up the track in the Ontario Athletic Commission meets for the past few years is showing good form and no less authority than Frank Halbus predicts a brilliant future for this lad.

In the furlong Motley (Meds), Connolly (S.P.S.), Jermyn and Stewart of U.C. are all extremely fast men. This race looks like a toss-up. King (Vic), Stewart (U.C.), and Jermyn (U.C.), have been shaping up well in the half-mile, and their time-trials have been fast. Stewart is a frosh from Upper Canada College who made a name for himself there. Jack Vila, the U.C. track captain, Harold Williams (Meds), Don Smith (U.C.), Fred Lees and Wally Graham (Meds) will fight it out for the mile supremacy. Vila and Smith had a merry old battle at the U.C. meet. Smith was victorious. Williams starred on the junior hockey team last winter. George Sparrow (Meds), and Mason (S.P.S.) will contest the hurdles.

Wally Graham (Meds), the popular president of the Track Club, Lee (U.C.), and Walters (U.C.), are the most prominent men in the three mile event. Field events will comprise a large part of the programme. Bill Finlayson, this year's track captain, has been getting good distance in both the shotput and discus. He should be a point winner for U.C. Ed. Peaker of S.P.S. is one of Varsity's most promising prospects in the javelin. In practice he has been bettering the Intercollegiate record daily. Ken Ford (Vic), Harold Vaughan (Vic), Eddie Hynnen (School), and others are all good field men.

This meet will be held at 1.30 p.m. to-day, in the Varsity Stadium.

team is counted on to make a good showing against the other colleges.

At St. Michael's College the girls have not yet completed their tournament play, so the personnel of the team cannot be announced just yet. However, it looks as though Marybel Quinn and Lorraine Paterson of last year's team will be sure repeaters. They both came through the first matches without being defeated and are showing fine style in practice. Several freshies are going to give last year's players a close battle for the honour of playing for the Double Blue. It is hoped that the team can be named by Tuesday night.

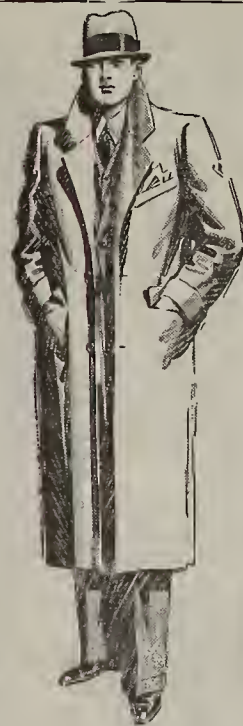

At Victoria the second round has only just been completed, so that no names can be announced for the team. However, several of last year's players are in good form and are expected to play again this year.

VARSITY RUGBY TEAM PROMISES GOOD GAME WITH KINGSTON BOYS

Blue Practice With Orphans Reveals Rather Bad Fumbling

GOODERHAM RETURNS

Herb. Little and Sinclair Are Absent From Practice Due To Injuries

Yesterday afternoon the Varsity senior rugby team engaged in their first practice since last Saturday's walkover with the Western Mustangs. Coach Ronnie McPherson put the blue team through a good stiff workout culminating with another of those strenuous tussles with the Orphans and the latter as usual did not back up from their highly-touted rivals.

The practice game with the Orphans although both teams went at it hammer and tongs, was not productive of good football. There was a lot of fumbling in evidence and both teams were equally guilty in this respect. This defect will be remedied with more practice and with Ronnie McPherson at the helm the Blue team will not lack practice by next Saturday, the date of the all-important struggle with the Tricolour of Queens.

The personnel of the Varsity team which opposed the Orphans was very similar to that which opposed the Purple and White Saturday last. Don Wood was again calling the signals with Thwaites relieving. Bill Hallam and Davey were used on the rear-guard. Jack Sinclair did not don a uniform as he is still suffering from an injured ankle sustained against Western. The front line was much the same as started against the men from London. Herb Little, however, was unable to take part in the proceedings due to injuries. Marsh, Dewar, husky middle from U.C.C., took Herb's place on the line and played impressively.

The Blue team welcomed the return of George Gooderham, yesterday. The latter an experienced outside wing, from last season's team, has been out of the game practically since the sea-

EXPECT DIRECTORY BY MID-NOVEMBER

Lack of Student Addresses Responsible For Delay In Publishing

"We hope to get the students' directory out about the second week of November," stated Miss McGillivray, assistant registrar of the university, to "The Varsity" reporter who approached her with the question of "About when will the Students' Directory appear?" "It is very hard to say exactly when it will be put out," continued Miss McGillivray, "owing to the fact that we haven't got all the students' addresses and often have to write away for them. It is obvious that all those written to will not answer 'en masse' and so only a surmise can be made of a possible date. The Directory is being compiled now and it is hoped that it will be ready for distribution not later than the middle of next month."

The Students' Directory is published yearly by the university for the use of the students. It consists of the names, faculties, home addresses, city addresses and phone numbers of staff and students.

NO COURSE IN JOURNALISM

University women, despite the fact of not being offered a course in journalism in Toronto, are preparing for future work within such organizations as the University Women's Press Association, which will hold its first meeting of this session at 4.30 on Thursday in the Women's Union. That this association is making progress was demonstrated when in June one of its members stepped into the position of Assistant Editor on one of the downtown magazines.

This year the plans of the club are extensive. At one meeting each month it is hoped to have an outside speaker on such topics as short story writing, play construction, interviewing, reviewing, writing for children, and poetry. At the other fortnightly meeting original work will be offered and

ARCHIE HARE PRESIDENT

The opening meeting of the Victoria College French Club was held at Wymilwood last evening with an attendance of about sixty. Grace Fuller, vice-president, stated that emphasis would be placed this year on actual practice in speaking French.

"If there are any who will not speak French during the social hour, we shall simply cut down on their supply of refreshments," announced Miss Fuller. And it was amazing the "air français" and the flow of French eloquence which this announcement called into being. At the first sight of the genuine French pastry, however, it was felt that the struggle with the foreign tongue had not been in vain.

The meeting was opened by singing "O, Canada" in French followed by a short business period in the same language. Archie Hare was unanimously elected president, and Marjorie Lang was appointed first year representative. Professor Lassere, honorary president, after expressing his appreciation, pointed out the benefits which such a club might be in the college.

Although the program for the year has not been decided in detail a number of French plays will be staged and interesting speakers will be secured from time to time.

Cousin Eustace Triumphantly Pursues Mistress Learning

By P. E. Usher

One of the first students to enter Hart House library when the doors were thrown open was our cousin Eustace. After dipping into Professor Adenoid's scholarly work on Bimet-talic values, and carefully scrutinizing a treatise on Hivite remains by Sir Oscar Lost, he turned to the lighter side of life. We found him buried in Bernard Shaw's "The Intelligent Women's Guide to Socialism" or whatever the title is called.

"Eustace," we said, "when are you going to catch the university spirit?"

He didn't seem to hear us. . . . Just the same, we are glad to report that he is beginning to take an interest in outside activities. We left him at the "Lit" meeting a few nights ago, but he wasn't much impressed. But he says that he will never forget this ingenious remark by one of the candidates for office: "$15,000 passed through my hands and not a cent was missed". Eustace exercised the franchise yesterday, but has not told us on whose behalf he exercised it. He even went so far as to attend the soph-fresh banquet, although this was probably due to the fact that he had been compelled to buy a ticket.

Another thing for which Eustace has found time outside of prescribed work is the occasional perusal of literary magazines. He was quite upset the other day when he saw the first issue of the Canadian Republic. Of course he does not approve of anyone whose opinions differ from his own; he has lived most of his life in Toronto. We cheered him up by showing him some of the grammatical errors, and left him quite happily studying the latest copy of the Times Literary Supplement.

Eustace finds that some of the lectures here lack stimulus. In history, he had hoped to hear some "inside" information on the bilingual question, and in English he was prepared to discuss tendencies in contemporary free verse. But he is slowly learning that adaptation to the standards of a large university involves a certain loss of prestige to the intellectually advanced student. He is planning to devote his spare time to writing a book on the university student as a species. As if he hadn't given us enough trouble already!

good fortune to possess. One of the dangers freshmen will encounter he said, is the diversity of interest and the convictions of others. "The future of the world rests with university men," he concluded.

Nat Shaw, the freshman representative, proposed a toast to the university and outlined the greatness of University college. Sir Robert Falconer, replying to the toast, complimented Mr. Shaw, and thanked the gathering for the invitation. "The university is to teach men to free themselves from adhering to one idea," Sir Robert said. "One should work hard and see things as they are. College men are expected to continue and build up the standard of the men they most admire." He exemplified David Livingstone as a great man, a man who was determined to carry out his ambition. This should be the object of everyone. In conclusion, he added, "Everyone should read and absorb great biographies."

Mr. Stringer then announced the result of the first year elections, which were as follows:

VIC. FROSH STORM ENEMY'S STRONGHOLD

Victoria freshmen went on the rampage last evening when they invaded the headquarters of the "Bob" committee at Bloor Street United Church and wreaked mighty havoc. A practice was in progress at the time, and the sophomores being greatly outnumbered offered little resistance to the hordes of yellow-tinted invaders.

A part of the "Bob" manuscript was secured by the freshmen. A little later the indignant sophomores attempted to secure the freshman president, Mr. Hotson, but the latter escaped unknown to them.

In the meantime the room of a sophomore named Glass suffered considerable damage at the hands of the assailants unknown.

DISCUSS NON-CONFIDENCE

Moot Private Beer Capacity As Student Parliament
Opens

Mr. Howe Martyn, Premier of Victoria College Student Parliament, was elected as a representative to the Men's S.A.C. at the first meeting of the Parliament last night, replacing N. J. DeWitt, who resigned as Victoria representative.

Mr. Martyn at first declared his intention of resigning from the S.A.C., in the event of the defeat of his government in the V.C.S.P., but was finally dissuaded from his purpose in the interests of good government.

The meeting opened with a prosy speech, from the Throne, followed by an energetic reply by "the Honorable Member from Martyn", in which he outlined the proposed policy of the government.

One important point mentioned was that the Cabinet will be entirely responsible to the members, considering a defeat in the House as a mark of want of confidence, and will immediately hand over the reins of leadership to the Opposition. Another was the intention of the government to save the undergraduates of Victoria College the sum of $300 by combining the Freshman Reception with the Charter Day program.

"Three hundred dollars is a lot of money!" said the Premier in introducing this proposal. Admissions will be limited to 350 undergraduates, half men and half women, and will be by ticket only.

During the proceedings the Government also announced its intention of instituting a "Royal Commission" to investigate for "His Majesty's Government" the relationships existing between the parliament and the undergraduate societies, and especially to discover the status of Acta Victoriana under the present Constitution of the Parliament.

A vigorous debate occurred over a complaint given to the president that certain freshmen, including the president of the year, were not wearing their yellow ties at all times. A motion was passed expressing regret that certain freshmen had failed to conform and confidence in the loyalty of the first year as a whole to Victorian traditions. A strong protest was raised by "the Hon. Member from Binning", Leader of the Opposition, against the system of allowing freshmen to attend the college for several days before they can obtain their yellow ties.

The House also expressed its disapproval when the premier referred to R. L. Fredenburg, last year's president of the parliament, as being at present "drinking beer in English pubs".

Martyn explained that he was speaking of Mr. Fredenburg "in his private capacity". He did not give an estimate of the gentleman's capacity.

The Opposition gave notice of motion of several bills, including one of disapproval of the present system of forming a Vice "slate" for the Hart House elections.

O.C.P. Elects

The election of officers for the senior class of the Ontario College of Pharmacy took place yesterday morning and the following officers were elected for the ensuing term, 1929-30:

Hon. Pres.: Dean Charles F. Heebner; Hon. Vice-Presidents: Miss Bernice Eason, Miss Jean Elder, Miss Mary Clark; Pres.: Frank Bawman; Vice-Pres.: W. Keith Donaldson; Secretary: Lawrence A. Mavens; Treasurer: David Webber; Committee: Lyle Statham (Chairman), James Keating, Harold Skinner, Ken Kalbfleish, Charles Misener; Cheer Leader: "Dunc" Woods; Reporter: E. V. McCormack.

This is O.C.P.'s first year as a fully fledged unit of the university.

ARTS MISFITS MANY CLAIMS PROFESSOR

EDITORIAL COMMENTED

"There is obviously a great number of misfits in the Arts course," said Professor Edgar of Victoria College when approached for his view on the subject of mass production in the colleges. "It would be quite possible to pluck more students than are being kept out at present. It would also be more satisfactory if the university ceased to grow. The increased student body doesn't pay for itself; the cost of hiring additional instructors and expanding our buildings in very great."

"The Varsity" mentioned the fact that a great many employers are today demanding college bred men in their firms. "Of course," said the professor, "one derives a mild practical advantage from a college education, but it is not commensurate with four years of business experience. Perhaps the university is not a real test of one's intellectual capacity. There are many admirable minds that are simply not suited for scholarship, but they have been known to shine in other fields. No intellectual advantage can be gained by students whose minds are not well organized."

"Everybody should be entitled to a university education, but not everybody should take advantage of it. I agree with the editorial in 'The Varsity' on the subject," he concluded.

A number of freshmen were interviewed in the corridors of U.C. The following quotations will serve as an example of what opinions on higher learning are entertained by first year men.

Frosh No. 1—"I'm here to improve myself generally, so that I may be of service to humanity (with a bow). I'm here for an education. The environment will do me a lot of good. Besides I am compelled to come here in order to be admitted to Osgoode Hall."

Frosh No. 2—"I, sir, am here for my self-advancement. Going to college is a means of social and cultural development. I, too, hope to become a member of the bar."

E. I. Richmond, third year S.P.S., thought that so many newcomers register in Arts because they are undecided about their future. "It takes (Continued on page 4)

Scope and Broader Aspects
Lost in Application
To Course

"Does anybody think?" queried Professor Irwin, and stated that, "Throughout society, the amount of critical thought is comparatively small. People follow their regular routine, in thinking. The university," he continued, "is too apt to be a sort of glorified public school and the students tend to swallow what is given them; whereas the university should stimulate their thinking organs." Professor Irwin maintained that boys should be taught by men, but he would not condemn women teachers. Historically man has ever been the fighting brute, and it has been the woman's part to contribute the cultural, refined phase that results in the amelioration of human life in its civilization. When criticism and opposition rise against this influence of women, does it mean that people are too civilized—is it time to retract?

Several undergraduates held the opinion that women teachers are apt to concentrate on getting the work done and tend to lose the scope and those broader aspects which lead to more critical and philosophical appreciation. But on the other hand, consider those students from private schools, where one finds none but women teachers. Women students who emerge from such an exclusively feminine realm do not consider that 6 or 7 years under such teaching has left undeveloped their individual critical faculties, but rather that it has encouraged and furthered their growth to a point frequently beyond that attained by pupils under men teachers.

ARTS SEES SOCIAL SIDE

Those Trained to Think Able to Tackle Any Job
Is Claim

"The 'Privateer' is obviously edited by S.P.S. men," stated the head of the chemistry laboratories when discussing the question of misfits in the university. "The viewpoint of a university as a training for a trade is absolutely an applied science viewpoint; we cannot refuse to admit people who wish to absorb some of the general culture. There are obviously many of the mentally unfit or misfit in the arts courses, more so perhaps than in the other faculties, but most of these who have scraped through high school in some way, and who crowd to the university are taken care of at the end of their first year. We train a man to think, and a man properly trained mentally is equipped to tackle any job, irrespective of his college training."

The consensus of opinion seems to be that classes are crowded with those who have practically no interest in their work, and are merely taking up the time of their professors to the detriment of the eager student and "obstructing them with their indifference."

"I agree entirely with the article in question," said Professor Gilbert Norwood, "as far as it deals with the problem. There is undoubtedly too much social cachet attached to the fact of having one's family at college, in such a way that it has become an admission of an income of over five thousand a year. Economically it is a waste to the nation when young people are wasting their time at college."

"In having a French viewpoint, I must admit that I do not approve of large universities," stated Professor Le Champ, "in that where there is a registration of five thousand, ten thousand and so on, there must be a great number of the obviously unfit. The faculty here all realize that such large classes are more than a handicap."

What do U.C. girls do on Sunday evening?

Miss Kilpatrick, head of the Women's Union, announced that "open house" will be kept at 79 St. George St. on Sunday from 8.30 to 10.30. She hopes that University College girls will find it a "homey" place to come and bring such members of the male persuasion as they desire.

There will be music. A grad of the Conservatory of Music has consented to play this coming Sunday evening and afterwards a real old-fashioned sing-song for everybody to join in. Miss Kilpatrick says she is certainly not trying to institute a rival for the Hart House Musicales, but rather a means of whiling away an otherwise dull evening. Several members of the faculty are to be present, not in their official capacity, but to act as referees in possible conversational deadlocks. And hard to this not least important feature—there will be eats! The girls are going to prepare and serve these viands, to make the evening really jolly and informal.

Miss Kilpatrick will aim to be there to greet the visitors on their arrival. She says she hopes to see University College living down that reputation it is supposed to have—no college spirit.

Hundred Yards and Mile Best
On Well Run Example
Of Annual Event

Amid weather suitable for coonskin coats of rugby fame, the 1929 Inter-faculty Track and Field Meet passed into history. The coolness of the day may have accounted for the rather ordinary times and distances made in the closely contested events. The program was run off in a highly commendable manner by the officials in charge. There was a considerable surprise in the century dash when Bill Finlayson (U.C.), almost tied Johnny Fitzpatrick (S.P.S.) for second place. Ralph Adams won the event quite easily in 10 seconds flat. The mile was a closely contested race. Wally Graham (Meds.) attempted a comeback and after leading for almost all the way, failed to answer Smith's (U.C.) terrific last minute sprint. The three mile run was very interesting with Williams (Meds.) running the race in creditable time.

Peaker, the S.P.S. weight man, won the all-round championship with 13 points, while Ralph Adams (S.P.S.), and Bill Finlayson (U.C.), were tied for second place with 10 points each.

S.P.S. won the Interfaculty championship by amassing a total of 66 points, while U.C. was second with 25 points and Meds. third with 23.

The results are as follows:
Discuss—Finlayson (U.C.); Peaker, (S.P.S.); Ballachy (S.P.S.). Distance, 108 feet, 6 inches.

Pole vault—Sprague (S.P.S.); Byrne (S.P.S.); Mitchner (Vic.). Height, 9 feet 9 inches.

120 yard hurdles—Sparrow (Meds.); Mason (S.P.S.); Scott (U.C.). Time, 17 1-5 seconds.

Heats—100 yards dash:
1st heat—Adams (S.P.S.); Engel, (U.C.); Time, 10.3

2nd heat—Tie between Finlayson (U.C.) and Fitzpatrick (S.P.S.). Time 10.4 seconds.

Final 100 yard dash—Adams (S.P.S.); Fitzpatrick (S.P.S.); Finlayson (U.C.). Time, 10 seconds.

880 yards—Jermyn (U.C.); King, (Vic.); Lee (S.P.S.). Time, 2 minutes, 4 seconds.

O.C.E. PICKS EXECUTIVE IN TRANQUIL ELECTION

The Ontario College of Education has chosen its executive for the fall term. The elections came off very quietly owing to the fact that the students from the various universities are not yet acquainted. The election results were, however, fairly representative, the following being chosen:

President, E. M. Stubbs; Vice-President, Miss Eleanor Walker; Secretary, Miss Peggy Scott; Treasurer, W. S. Kennedy; Councillors, Miss May Halfday and Miss Florence Scroggie.

Committees were also chosen to look after the dramatic, literary, athletic, social and music interests.

SMITH

In a novel by Chamblain, the hero is lost in the wilds of Haiti and there meet Papa Loi, the Beard of God, high priest of voodooism, a man who lived by wisdom. One of the four maxims of this man was, "If activity were life, a walking stick would be God." Think of it, not for a moment, not for an hour; let it burn.

It is said, and it is said again, it shrieks at us from the sophisticated magazine, it comes murmuring as the one incontrovertible truth which has been wrought out of the mental strife of the little discussion club, it drips from the lips of the undergraduate clinic of twenty-one who sip tea and smokes at a little shop, that our little world, our university, is over-run with morons. Here, in the cloister of Arts, the sanctuary where Thought should rise like a wraith from young foreheads to stalk the long halls with the shades of all thinkers from Plato to Einstein, from Aristotle to Keyserling, tread clods in the shape of men, who dream not with Schopenhauer and know not Rodin. "O Earth," they cry, these "petits philosophes", "How out of thy bowels should have come this demon, this satyr of a mass production age, which has brought these people to our Eden and transformed it into a shambles. How breathes there, O God, in this land, a man with soul so dead that he aspires to none of the activities, to write a jolly little piece for so-and-so, perhaps a couple of vers libre about the dark to throw his soul into a spot of nifty acting, to join a clublet, to talk deeply of this and of that, of the advisability of war and the advantage of wine, to make a speech upon vile industrialism, or J. B. Cabell." O merciless, a damning superiority, which in the effulgence of its own light, in the madness of its own ceaseless activity, judges all life by activity! O brilliant, sarcastic Intelligence, which, striving itself to feel every intellectual sensation and thereby, in perpetual lack of time, touching only many things which need to be dwelt on in leisure, denies to its half-brother Stolidity the right to a single feeling! Is, then, all this living breathing university of Arts and Sciences, save for those in activities and those who sip tea, but one homogeneous mass?

Intelligence indeed sees a mass, which reads not, thinks not, cares not save for rugby and dances. But what of Smith, one of the mass, Smith cannot grasp Russell in an hour, nor rise to a lecture on the concept of mathematics, but God has given him a soul. In the university Smith found Shelley's "Ode to a Skylark", and read it secretly a thousand times. The music of Swinbourne has found his soul. He has watched the moon among clouds over the towers of U.C. and Hart House and felt that twinge of vague longing which he remembers but which you, O Activity, forget in your strife. Perhaps he has even trod, back and forth, the cloisters of U.C. on some night when his world was black, and we say in all earnestness there is no occupation more fitted for finding oneself. He may lead a maternal life, but certain things will stay in his memory long after Intelligence has forgotten them. O cruel Intelligence, O cruel young Intelligence, will you deny him this? Can you despise him for this?

The Table Round

While we have not read the Canadian Republic from cover to cover, some of the statements made in it are so manifestly absurd that we do not consider it worth serious consideration. The attitude of the editor towards England is limited, to say the least; it is as unreasonable as the suggestion that skyscrapers and large cities be done away with. A footnote says: "We could not come by anyone who were daring enough to risk their national reputation and write for the magazine." They certainly found someone who has already lost his reputation as an authority on English grammar.

Despite a cover-plate that is reminiscent of frontispieces of yore, our new contemporary, the Privateer, is better than we had expected. The articles are fair though not brilliant. The numerous typographical errors can doubtless be attributed to the newness of the publication.

P. E. U.
All the "editorialists" in that page of our contemporary styled "And We Said", stroked our prejudices the right way, made us purr, save two. One of these is silly, and the other shows lack of research on the subject.

Why in the name of all sanity does our contemporary want to keep a man out of Arts till he is twenty-one? Noble indeed a university of mature minds, each having found, if not life, a certain excuse for living, each intent upon filling his soul with a share of (Continued on page 4)

Federated?

The Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,—

In your issue of Tuesday, Oct. 8th, Mr. Allan H. Ferry, President of the Students' Administrative Council, made the statement that Emmanuel College is the youngest of the federated colleges. Is this statement correct? In an "official statement" one does not expect to find errors, but I was of opinion that the so-called Emmanuel College was an "affiliated" college.

Yours sincerely,
"The Truth shall make you free".

Editorial Note: In a conversation with the Press last night, Reverend Alfred Gandier, Principal of Emmanuel College, pointed out that Emmanuel was "federated" with the University of Toronto and not merely "affiliated". The status of Emmanuel was not to be confused with that of the affiliated colleges in any way; Emmanuel was not only connected with the University by virtue of its being a theological college, but also through its position in Victoria University. There was no doubt, according to Dr. Gandier, that Emmanuel was a "federated" college.

Naughty!

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,—
Much has been said and written in criticism of the cheer-leading at Varsity rugby games in recent years. One hesitates to strike the first—or is it the first?—note of this season's anvil chorus, but a remark, a most unnecessary remark, by a cheer-leader at the Western-Varsity game on Saturday should not pass unnoticed.

After calling on the rooters' section for a yell for an injured Western University player, this cheer-leader megaphoned to the co-educationists in the bleachers: "For (*) sake, I hope we got the name right this time."

Any comment is, I believe, unnecessary. Suffice it to say that there will be quite a number of bleacherites in attendance at future games who will be more than satisfied for the cheer-leaders to confine themselves to undisciplined remarks or exhortations.

As a matter of fact, most of these cheer-leaders seem to be terribly self-conscious and the kindest thing will be to excuse this particular one on the ground that he was very much embarrassed or upset or something or other. It is not an enviable job, this leading of rooters.

Yours sincerely,
"G", '27.

Editorial Note: We quite agree with the sentiments of "G". In fact, we have taken the liberty of deleting from the letter the word to which "G" takes exception. It is our intention, (Continued on page 4)

An Amusing Incident in Dialogue Picture—Best Ever Seen on the Screen

College boys from three universities in Southern California are seen in "The Sophomore", a Pathe all-dialogue picture coming to the Pantages theatre on Saturday, Oct. 12th, for one week only with Eddie Quillan in the title role. They probably think that acting in the movies is a cinch after their experience, because all they had to do was to play themselves, college boys. Fraternity and sorority houses of various Los Angeles universities were ransacked before work on this picture was begun for their brightest disciples of terpsichore. Dancers with a flair for original steps were encouraged to do their stuff before the camera. Music furnished by Earl Burnett's Orchestra, played its part in making the scene one that will interest and thrill both grown-ups and adults.

The joy of commencement week—the TRAGEDY of examinations—the PAIN of fraternity initiations—the LAUGHTER of a class play—the ROMANCE of young love—the THRILL of a great football game—all these and more embraced in the story of this appealing and riotous dialogue picture. Adv.

S.P.S. WIN INTERFACULTY TRACK AND FIELD MEET WITH 66 POINTS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

At the annual Interfaculty Track and Field Meet there were, contrary to expectations, no records broken. Undoubtedly the coolness of the weather had a considerable effect in slowing up the athletes. Nevertheless there were a number of notable performances turned in. Ralph Adams ran true to the form he displayed in the Canadian championships by capturing the "100" from Johnny Fitzpatrick and leading Finlayson in the "220" in the good times of 10 and 23 seconds respectively. Ed. Peaker, School's good weight man, led the field in points with victories in the javelin and shot put and second place in the discuss throw. In the mile run Don Smith showed a wonderful sprint at the finish to lead the redoubtable Wally Graham to the tape by a yard margin.

* * *

With but two short days before they clash with the Tricolour, the Blue and White senior team cannot afford to take things easy. Ronnie McPherson is driving his team hard these days, and it is going to be a much improved aggregation from the one which faced or rather effaced the Western Mustangs last Saturday. After the Tricolour's decisive defeat of the Redshirts at Montreal they will probably enter the game slight favourites. But Varsity appear to have the best team they have had in years, and this Saturday's struggle should be one well worth remembering.

Ragged Intercollegiate Game

Varsity two games up

Varsity intermediates defeated Mc-

Master 3-1 yesterday, and with two victories lead the intermediate Intercollegiate group.

Play in the first half was pretty ragged. McMaster was minus three regulars who were injured in Saturday's encounter with O.A.C. Neither team was smart enough to take advantage of the breaks. Smith forced McMaster to rouge and half time score was 1-0.

The Blue and White came close to the McMaster deadline in the third quarter but lacked enough punch to shove the ball over for a touch. Two rouges made the score 3-0. McMaster tried a few place kicks in an effort to equalize the counter but managed to

VARSITY RUGGERITES GO TO WOODSTOCK

Saturday Will See Results Of Arduous Period Of Training

NOVEL PLAY USED

With two teams practising together all week, Varsity rugger supporters expect the Blue squad to give a fine showing next Saturday down at Woodstock. The pack of eight "forwards" should have had plenty of time by then to get settled into their positions in the phalanx-like serum. This formation may be altered before the McGill matches to a seven-man pack. This will give the backfield the advantage of an extra man. If he is fast and a good tackler, he can smother the enemy's movements should they be getting the ball back from the scrum to their "three quarters". Should his pack be losing ground in the scrimmages his weight would be more usefully applied with theirs. This formation was successfully used by the world-famous "All Black" team from New Zealand, a few years ago, and has long been the vogue in New Brunswick. McGill uses it to good advantage as many of their men have learned the game in the Maritimes.

The Varsity "three quarter" line of Goldenberg, Lee, McLean, Archbold, with Rogers and Roope as half-backs, will play together for the first time this season. To full experience of the game each can add a clever repertoire of trick-plays. In combination they have been showing up even better than expected this week.

Varsity B team will get a game with a Toronto team in the city this Saturday.

U.C. SOCCERITES SWAMPED BY POWERFUL SCHOOLMEN

University College suffered defeat in their first soccer game of the season yesterday when they lost to S.P.S. by the score of 4 to 0. The College crowd showed lack of condition, consequently S.P.S. were able to force the play through the entire game. Half time ended with the ball in U.C. territory. Score 2-0.

On resuming play both teams worked hard to score but on a pass from Bailey, Downing scored for S.P.S. U.C. began to feature individual play in which Goldenberg, Gray and Rudkin were outstanding. The line-up follows: S.P.S.—Helper, McCracken, Gregg, Bailey, MacKay, Franklin, Ward, Downing, McDonald, Riddle, Graham.

U.C.—Vallet, Goldenberg, Rudkin, Laffer, Robbe, Sobel, Cline, Chekak, Copeland, Gray.

Ushers For Kingston

All ushers intending to go to Kingston will sign the list in the Athletic Office. There will be a large number needed on Saturday so if you are going be sure and let us know so we can rearrange you in your positions. The regular ushers who have not received their sweaters will call at the Athletic Office between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday. All ushers must report at the stadium on Saturday not later than 1.15 p.m.

CROWD OF ROOTERS TO INVADÉ QUEEN'S

Bus Will Bear Contingent To Limestone City For Epic Fray

BATTALION OF CARS

A large contingent of Varsity supporters will make the trip to the Limestone City Saturday via the bus, car and train to see the Varsity-Queen's clash which looks to be one of the decisive fixtures of the season. The S.A.C. and Athletic Offices will be swamped by applicants for tickets to-morrow, the last day to obtain them. Queen's appear to be the team to beat. In view of their victory over McGill and the Blue squad deserves the strong support of the Varsity rooters. A large number of co-eds purpose taking the bus trip under the supervision of Miss Parkes.

Probably a greater proportion of the gridiron fans will travel in separate parties. Already many drivers have their cars filled. Some will make Kingston; some may not. All are optimistic. All types of vehicles will essay the 185 miles. The Mighty Monstros of the Highway should show the way to the ancient relics which are "just a memory" to most of us. Four wheels and a can constitutes the ambition of many a rabid fan. They would not admit the prospect of an enforced camp "by the side of the road where the race of cars go by". Others will resort to the trains. It's Kingston or bust!

BACON AND EGG TONES URGED AS OBJECTION

Early Morning Radio Lectures Would Present Obstacles To Students

"Would they guarantee no static?" was one sarcastic comment on the prospect of lectures by radio taken up by "The Varsity" in questionnaires yesterday. The idea was heartily vetoed and jibing remarks were passed as to nine o'clock snores mingled with the "bacon and egg" tones of a breakfasting professor.

Seriously considered, lectures by radio appeared to be impracticable. "Imagine learning French, or Latin," said one amused co-ed, "how would the prof know when he put it over?" "It would be dreadful, the last word in commercialization and wholesale education," said another victim of "The Varsity's" curiosity. "Anyone could tune in," was a further objection which gave food for thought.

That the arrangement of a program to take in all the diversified courses at the university would be too stupendous an undertaking was the prevailing feeling. After the novelty wore off, the majority felt, few would give even the passive attention so prevalent in large classes, to a radioed lecture. "Personally, I like the faces the profs make," was a revealing opinion of the subject. "I think it's the personality of the lecturers that makes some subjects interesting."

The general trend of criticism of the idea was to point out the disinterest and lethargy that would creep into the university activities and the complete loss of the personal element of education.

DATE IS CHANGED FOR HARRIER MEET

Time for Training Cut Down By Five Days As Result

LAST YEAR'S COURSE

The Interfaculty harrier fixture, the Brotherton Cup race will be held on Monday, October 21 at 10 a.m. instead of on Saturday, October 26 at 9 a.m. The change has been made to avoid a clash with the Intercollegiate Intermediate track meet at London on October 25.

Maps of the course, which is the same as last year from Upper Canada College, are posted.

The change of date cuts down the time for training and men are on the road every night now getting into shape for what promises to be the keenest competition in years.

In order to better training conditions, Dr. J. W. Graham has been appointed harrier coach and regular workouts are being held nightly. All

Wandering Scribe Beholds Kitchen Pets Sacrificed To Importunate Soup Famine

By O. Abramowitz

The other day I had occasion to drop in on the kitchen supervisor at Hart House.

"What is it you hid behind your back when I entered?" I asked sternly. For my unexpected entrance had caused that worthy to thrust his hands behind him.

"It is just something," he said with a flush deeper'n red.

"Let me see it," I demanded.

"Here it is then," he said, and then brought forward for my inspection the thing.

My breath grew short, my eyes dilated, and a horrible sweat ran down my toes.

"So, is this how you make your coffee?" For it was none other than a dish rag sopping wet which the cook was squeezing out into cups.

Suddenly the assistant cook ran into the room, tearing his hair. He shouted: "The canning company went on strike."

"Oh," cried the head cook. "Where will we get our soup for to-day?"

"I know," answered the assistant cook.

Whereupon he got the kitchen cat and dog to grind up some fish bones. These he pulverized and then put two beans into the ensemble to make it look tasty. Then the best glue was poured over the whole. Then he called Oliver Twist in to taste it. Oliver didn't ask for more.

I then asked the supervisor why so many bottles of ketchup were lying around when just inside the Great Hall were so many hundreds of hungry men were starving for a bit of it on their vermicelli.

He said to me: "Can you keep a secret?" I said I could. He then showed me the inside of one of these supposedly full bottles. It was just a coating of red paint in order to create an illusion.

to the baker. Likewise the cream not used is made into cream cheese. There is nothing wasted in Hart House Kitchens.

"The Varsity" was then taken on a tour of the kitchens, receiving rooms, butcher shop, store rooms, and bakery. "Our bakery," continued Mr. Gunn, "is one of the most up-to-date bakeries of its size in Toronto. Here every night 120 loaves of bread are turned out. Of this total 50 loaves are raisin, 40 are white and 30 are whole wheat. I might mention here that to go with this bread we must provide 60 pounds of butter for the noon meal alone.

"Over here is the kitchen where our roasts are cooked and our soup made. Our cooking is done by gas in these two Majestic stoves, while here in these pressure cookers the heat is supplied by steam. There are six of these steam ovens having a working pressure of about 200 pounds. These are our soup pots wherein is made Hart House soup. The fourth pot (on the end) is the stock pot. Into this is put the bones which are used to make the body of our soups. We buy the bones for 1-2c per pound, and after extracting the very best from them, sell them for 3-4c a pound. This mixer here on my right is used for many things from whipping cream to mashing potatoes.

"We use about 35 bushels of potatoes per day which are peeled in this machine here. This disc revolves at about 1,000 R.P.M. and takes about two revolutions to pare a potato.

"I have left one thing for the last, which is as it should be. The pies for Hart House are made by a woman of extraordinary talent for pastry making. Every day she turns out 120 pies, which are making Hart House meals more in demand than ever."

don't know what to do with them," said another member of the faculty. "This must inevitably show a number of unfit, whether it be the artisan, the artist, or the adventurer."

The students themselves when interrogated on the subject, as it were, offered a variety of reasons or excuses for coming to college. "Because, being addicted to College Humour and college movies while in prep school, I took this rah-rah business very seriously," stated a weary looking frosh when cornered by "The Varsity," "but so far—". "Because there was nothing else to do," said countless others, but — "To learn how to run a tea-room," said one competent freshette, rushing away to a test-tube. Several simpering misses confided that they had come to college to enjoy themselves and join a good sorority, but they didn't know which one. However, there were enough laudable ambitions to keep up the standard. The majority seem to agree, as far as they have gone, that a college education is a guarantee of a more advanced position in life than comes to the average man.

WAS SDDN SPOTTED

Goes Through Mill But Escapes Triumphant With Story

Another university tradition has been broken! Another romantic dream is shattered! After weeks of devious planning "The Varsity" finally succeeded in smuggling in an Arts student to view the S.P.S. initiations which took place last night. It is announced with regret that the whole thing is a fake, a colossal humbug!

Joining a procession of sophomores and weirdly garbed freshmen, the reporter slipped into Examination Hall, the scene of the festivities, and for some time enjoyed a birdseye view of the proceedings. Eventually a suspicious sophomore approached him and asked, "Say, where are you from?" The reporter made a half-hearted attempt at deception, in order to disguise his true plan, but he was soon identified as being from the "Church College". At once a howl of rage arose. "Give him the works, the (* *****).

An obliging sophomore hustled the victim over to S.P.S., where he was divested of his clothing, and becomingly garbed in sackcloth. He trembled with anticipation. At last he would undergo the tremendous ordeals, of which he had heard so much, at the hands of these semi-civilized brutes.

He was escorted again to the Hall of Terror. A weak effort to escape at the last minute was firmly frustrated. Entering, the first sight that met his gaze was three of the university police, apparently there to see that none of the infuriated students went too far.

A blindfold was applied, and the ordeal commenced. The first test of courage was a crawl under the examination tables. This struck the reporter as being somewhat tame. A climb up a greased plank was followed by a ride down another of the same. After crawling for some distance on his abdomen, he was persuaded to clamber through several barrels.

By this time, of course, he was in a rather uncomfortable state, due to repeated applications of grease and cold, soapy water, but he was rather disappointed at the lack of excitement. Cries of "Victoria, Victoria, raw raw," were the only attempts made to cow his spirit.

After a prolonged trip curled up in a whirling barrel, and a valiant effort to recite the infamous "Tehak a yak," through mouthfuls of grease, the initiate was forced to scramble through a long tunnel of sacking, while barrel staves were applied to tender sections of his anatomy. One zealot, in fact, stepped on his face. This concluded the ceremony.

The reporter witnessed the painful removal of one novitiate's budding moustache, and observed two prone figures feebly slapping each other with strips of limp sacking, but the whole proceeding was disappointingly tame. It lacked zest and fervor, after the

WELCOME BY PRESIDENT

"There is no statement to be made on the matter of an honorary degree for Ramsay MacDonald," said Miss Patterson, secretary to Sir Robert Falconer, when asked by "The Varsity" for a statement on that subject. It was understood that the Senate of the university were considering the conferring of an honorary degree upon Ramsay MacDonald, who is expected to visit here next week. Mr. MacDonald recently received an honorary degree from George Washington University. A similar honour offered by Princeton University was refused and considerable interest has been aroused as to whether the University of Toronto will offer the British Prime Minister a degree.

"Mr. MacDonald will be welcomed by the President on his arrival here," it was stated by Simcoe Hall officials.

RAILROAD BARON SPEAKS AT LUNCH

Says That National Railways
Run on Co-Operative System

UNIVERSITY MEN WANTED

"I can visualize the day when employees of the Canadian National Railways will go to work with the proprietor's point of view," prophesied Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., yesterday at the Empire Club luncheon in the Royal York. Sir Henry emphasized throughout his address the contribution that the C.N.R. was making to industry in its dealing with the labour problem, pointing out that the railway was a co-operative movement, both because the public were shareholders and because the employees were given an appreciable voice in the management.

Sir Henry began with a jesting reference to there being doubt as to a child's parentage until it showed signs of making good.

He paid tribute to two "godfathers" of the system who were at the head table with him—Sir Thomas White and Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Appreciation on behalf of the Club was tendered by John S. Dafoe, editor of the Montreal Free Press, who expressed his pleasure as a westerner, at being allowed to help Toronto out. The Empire Club is making a special invitation to university students to attend its meetings.

HANDBOOK SHORTAGE CREATES COMMOTION

AT ARTS COLLEGE

Registration Increase Is Not Given Consideration
By Editor

WILL NOT HAPPEN AGAIN

Greatest Lack at Victoria And St. Michael's As Bibles Run Out

"We printed 5,100," said A. G. Burns of the S.A.C. when questioned regarding the shortage in Students' handbooks, "but the big increase in registration this year took us by surprise."

"A second printing of the book is impossible because the complete cost is carried by the advertisers, which only allows for one printing. Then too, the forms have been destroyed, which makes it physically impossible. In former years we have been able to take care of the demand, but this year the handbooks became so popular that our supply was soon exhausted. However, next year we will try and see that everybody gets one."

There was quite a shortage in handbooks at St. Michael's College, according to T. V. Kennedy, in charge of the distribution at that institution. "We have about 325 students," he said, "and we had only 200 handbooks. Most of the male students got one, but there were not enough to distribute among the co-eds. It is too late to agitate, but it should be seen to that the same thing does not happen again next year."

Victoria College, too, suffered from the shortage. Opinion there seems to be that the S.A.C. should have foreseen the increase in registration. The students paid their S.A.C. fees and felt that they were entitled to a handbook. There is no doubt that there will be many angry students if there is a shortage again next year.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY EXPERIENCES ACTIVITY AS CIRCULATION OF BOOKS IS AUGMENTED

CIRCLE OF SCHOLARS DELIVER DULL DATA

"The British Association has not been putting its best foot forward," said Professor J. C. McLennan yesterday in addressing a surprised audience at the physics seminar. Dr. McLennan, who has recently returned from the Capetown conference of British savants, informed his audience that most of the papers read at the convention consisted of data that had already been known to the delegates.

"Toronto," he went on, "was not in the background. The first paper to be read was based on experiments conducted in this very university, and it excited a good deal of interest and applause."

The professor mentioned the interesting fact that an English savant had devised a means of predicting outbreaks of malaria in India by carefully studying the rainfall.

Professor L. Gilchrist, by means of slides, elucidated the latest means of hunting minerals with the aid of electricity. Tea was served.

QUEEN'S HALL GIRLS HOLD INITIATION

AND DO DIRE DEEDS

Frightened Freshettes Are

Upperclassmen

SKILL IN SKITS SHOWN

Disobedient Ones Received Meet Punishment For Wrongdoings

Fifty-three freshettes were initiated into Queen's Hall last night, the ceremony being planned and supervised by the sophomores. Miss Kilpatrick was the guest of honour and she and Dr. Wright, the dean of residence, showed great interest in the various skits presented.

Perhaps the most appropriate presentation was the freshettes' "Idea of Heaven". In this St. Peter opened the gate to many arrayed in white, but refused to admit a sophomore. Thereupon, the Old Nick himself appeared, offering her a nice hot place to spend the summer.

Another original performance making fun of the high and mighty soph was "Bluebeard", presented with the theme song, "Am I Blue?" Barnyard dances, nursery rhymes, a rugby match and a mock circus completed the evening's theatrical attempts.

When the program was finished each freshette was blindfolded and led around by an upper classman upstairs and down, through coal cellar and furnace room. Dizzy and bewildered she was finally forced to walk the plank.

Penalties were imposed for the girls who had refused to wear the red and white stockings or show proper respect to their seniors. These consisted of doses of castor oil and slimy grapes in olive oil.

The Head Girl, Grace Macaulay, pledged each initiate to maintain the traditions of the hall. The evening ended with refreshments and dancing.

Student Slant on Book Building Changed Since Librarian Was Young

TOMES MAILED ANYWHERE

"In my undergraduate days," said Professor W. S. Wallace, Librarian of the university, on being interviewed by "The Varsity", "one acquired a social stigma if seen entering the Library at any time before Christmas." How much the attitude of the students has changed during recent years is evinced in the rapid annual increase in the circulation of books.

"Last year, however," he continued, "the increase was not so marked, which may be imputed to the epidemic of influenza which occurred in December."

Library records show that for the last five years there has been an annual increase in circulation of 30,000 volumes. During the last academic year students used 182,000 books. That the Library and its facilities are more popular than ever with the students is manifested in that there is a larger staff employed now than has ever been the case for the month of October. This staff, nevertheless, is as busy as formerly.

Many volumes are mailed upon request to those students who wish to turn idle moments into purling of good books.

UNDERGRADUATES NOTE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press, and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

GRAD'S CAREER IS TEST

"It depends on the student," stated Professor Gilbert Jackson, when asked by "The Varsity" whether he considered four years spent in business of equal value to a man as the same time spent in the university.

"In the university the student arranges his own work and disposes of his own time. If he is a waster he will waste it, if he has the makings of a man he will use it better than anyone could use it for him. The poor student would probably be better off after four years business than university."

"Within the small section of the university of which I have knowledge, I am quite sure that as a rule the good student benefits more by four years in the university than he would have benefited by spending the same four years in business. The result, after all, is to be seen in the progress made in business by the good graduate, but still more in the wider interests which are his for the rest of his life because he has been here."

1929 EPDCHAL YEAR

The inaugural meeting of the new Choral Society now in process of organization under the direction of a group of enthusiastic undergraduates and destined to display its musical achievements was held under the direction of Mr. Mazzoleni, the new master of music at Upper Canada College.

Mr. Mazzoleni is young, enthusiastic and courageous in the extreme and brings to the new chorus much of the magnificent tradition of the Oxford choral union. Already he talks of giving certain modern works their first performance in Canada, and proposes to place in rehearsal a lengthy ballad of Stanford and what is more interesting, a beautiful choral work of Vaughan-Williams, under whom he has studied for many years.

At the first rehearsal to be held in Trinity College Library next Tuesday evening, it is expected that the already large membership will be doubled.

Varsity Rooters Should See Battle Royal if They Accompany Team

Last night the Blue and White put in their final practice before their set-to with Queen's to-morrow afternoon. The team will leave around noon today, stopping overnight at Belleville, and journeying on to the home of the Tricolour in the morning. No heavy work was indulged in at the practice, Coach Ronnie McPherson preferring to take no chances on having any of his players laid up at this late stage of the game.

The personnel of the team starting against Queen's will likely be very similar to that which represented Varsity against Western last Saturday. Jack Sinclair, stellar booting half, is still troubled with a bad ankle, but will, in all likelihood, start against Battstone's men. Bill Bell will be a sure starter on the rearguard, McFadyen, Hallam and Davey are all likely to take a hand in the affray. Don Wood appears to have the call for quarterback with Thwaites in reserve. George Gooderham will be back at his old position at outside, and the other end will probably be looked after by either Stewart or Fitzpatrick. With such men as Morgan, Little, Bean, White, Keith, Kelly et al the line will be taken care of. Harrison and Jim Sinclair as flying wings will be in the thick of it and Ruddell will be used to relieve them.

In every department with the exception of the outside wing positions Varsity looks stronger than last year. Especially so in the backfield in which department the Blue fell down so badly last season. Bill Bell and Jack Sinclair, if the latter is able to go the route, will hold their own with any combination that Queen's are likely to trot out. Don Wood at quarter seems to be in for a great season and he may be relied upon to get the best efforts out of the Blue and White. Harrison has been going great guns at flying wing and is likely to shake that Queen's line considerably with his torpedo-like plunges. Gooderham's return has added a lot of needed strength to the outside wing department and the other positions on the line will be filled by the same players as last year. And that's saying a lot as Varsity had probably the strongest line in the senior Intercollegiate series last season.

Varsity appear to have an even chance of downing the Tricolour right in their own home town. At any rate the Blue and White supporters who make the trip to the Limestone City to-morrow are assured of a hair-raising battle worth going twice the distance to see.

MCGILL BASTARDS VETERAN OF MONS AND MARNE

Special to "The Varsity"

Montreal, Que.—McGill University boasts a 15 year old veteran of Mons and the Marne. She bears the distinguished name of Renault, and though she has already travelled over 100,000 miles she can still hit it up to sixty m.p.h. on occasion. Her original owner was killed at Neuve Chapelle, and since then she has passed through many hands till now she serves the needs of a McGill student. She is looking eagerly forward to a trip to Kingston to try her mettle. She bears no bumper to shield her from the shocks and blows of life but puts her faith in a fine set of projecting springs. "They have dented many a nudguard," she says.

COME ON, FELLOWS!

To-morrow our football team will assail the warriors of Queen's University down in Kingston. As to the final score, and the hostilities which will precede it, we can say little, not being doctors of such matters. Nor is it for us to say much of encouragement or exhortation beyond pointing out that a victory will undoubtedly gratify a large section of the public. For those who have no id personally, of the anguish of the game, to say more than this, would be by way of tripe, insincerity and platitudes.

Yet some research is surely indicated when the situation now at hand is viewed. There is to be a football game between the deadliest rivals in intercollegiate sport. On one hand is a university, whose alumni are in the myriads, and which is located in a city of close upon a metropolitan million. On the other is a smaller institution, whose loyalty is intense, and which is compact, united, jealous of its prowess. Between the two lies a six-hour journey on paved roads through an agreeable countryside.

Were this scene laid in the United States, one feels, the smaller university would provide fifty thousand seats in its stadium. These seats, while the spectacle was being waged in the arena, would all be sat upon, while, at the same time, in the larger city, sufficient university graduates and supporters could not be laid hands upon to talk about the weather. The constables of intermediate towns upon the main road would have a big time of it, amassing sufficient fines from speeders, snails, road-hogs, and other fauna, to build six new cells in the local coop, with a surplus to send a delegate to an approaching cop convention. And in the smaller university town enthusiasm would be high; there would be parades, silly speeches from public porticoes, glee, whoopee, binges, and so on.

In other words, this gay picture describes what might happen in the gaudiest American circles. But promptly there comes a repercussion. Introduce American ideas into Canadian football? Shame! Our scene is greeted with the sniff and the disdain that is usually expressed whenever any innovation from the south is suggested. Now, we are somewhat inclined to agree with the opinions of the sniffers, though the mental processes which produce the opinions are sad to consider. We are not prepared to support without reservation the super-organizations which confuse exercise with athletics, and which are another medium of distraction for the already confused. This matter may be pursued at length by reading the opinions of Chief Justice Taft of the U.S. Supreme Court in a recent magazine.

But this is beside the point. The fact is that at our Canadian universities we have all the apparatus of the American college; the highly efficient and capable athletic organizations, the stadiums, the football teams with the glory and pride attached, yet we have neither the energy nor the courage to admit that we differ in no physical respect from the jazziest college south of the international boundary.

Moreover, we make prophetic attempts to attain the jamboree and whoopee of the American game. We try to get bands together; we try to root with unanimity; we talk of "spirit"; we try to run excursions; we make social events of the games . . . we do precisely what the American does, and are unwilling to stand up and confess that we are simply borrowing once more from the store that has already produced the majority of the innovations to which we point with national pride.

It must be plain, these days, to the veriest numbskull, that the University of Toronto, along with other Canadian institutions, is rapidly coming to resemble any average American college. We may wait at length concerning essential differences in national characteristics, and deliver speeches on tradition, especially the Oxford. But the unfortunate fact is that national characteristics are caused by certain conditions, which will be found to be identical on both sides of the imaginary line, while American universities, some of them have drunk even more deeply of the Oxonian springs than any Canadian.

But at present the local student is afflicted with a confusion in the soul. He is, perhaps, afraid that he will be caught with a football team, an athletic organization, and a yearning to yell, and to display streamers and to go to games two hundred miles away, just like

Art, Music and Drama

Paul Gardner's production of a one act whimsy, "The Lover", from the Spanish of G. Martinez Sierra, was the initial offering of the U.C. Players' Guild's season, presented at the regular meeting of the Guild Wednesday afternoon.

The cast—composed of Constance Shiel, Margaret Donald, and Paul Gardner—bore evident marks of hasty preparation both of parts and make-up, but no evidence of haste in execution. A slow tempo for a play of this kind may be theoretically sound, but, if one may be permitted to mix one's metaphors, it has the net result of chlorinating the whole fabric as viewed by the audience. There is a tendency on the part of young historians inclined (Continued on page 4)

any vulgar Yank. In fact, a searching analysis might reveal that the Torontonian has precisely the same desires as his American cousin without the energy, or the candour, to carry them into effect. If this is the case, the tepidity of local enthusiasm in all affairs is easily attributed to internal faction in the individual. If we are not mistaken, the genial engineers to the south-east are the only ones of the locals who are not affected with illusions and internal doubts. Whatever their defects, the School men are frank.

We advance as a suggestion that the student public be brought to admit that fundamentally they are not to be distinguished from the lads at Cornell or Dartmouth. We also urge them to lay hands upon the family automobile, summon congenial spirits, amass streamers and pennants, and drive both to Kingston and London where the larynx should be yelled to a state of paralysis. There should also be a common admission that the students of Illinois and Northwestern are probably displaying the same idiosyncrasy in Evanston and Urbana. Where lies the harm of the similarity, as long as there is present the grace to confess . . . ? Deplorable goings-on? To be sure; nevertheless the wise man adapts himself to the march of conditions, instead of deploring them and hence having quite a melancholy time with himself. Essential honesty is perhaps undignified in a public capacity, but certainly the most comfortable privately because it is willing to recognize things as they are. And one of them is that the University of Toronto is going to be an American college in every respect.

BLUE INVADE KINGSTON TO-MORROW FOR CRUCIAL QUEEN'S GAME

AGRICULTURISTS ARRIVE TO MEET VARSITY THIRDS

The intermediate rugby team swings into action again against O.A.C. at the Stadium on Saturday morning. This should be one of the best games of the season as the teams appear to be evenly matched. O.A.C. has a slight edge on the season's record as they defeated McMaster 23-5 while the best Varsity could do against the same team was a 3-1 score. A win for the blue and white will give them a stranglehold on first place in the league.

Varsity realizes that the agriculturists will be a hard team to down, but they are confident of the result. Coach Chaffie has been driving the players at top speed in the practices and they will have no alibis if they lose. The addition of Scott to the wing line has strengthened the team considerably. Among the regulars Smith, Taylor, Johnson and MacCallum are expected to turn in good games. These men have showed up well in the two previous games this season. The team is strong in nearly all departments and can be counted upon to make a real game of it on Saturday.

Knox Falls Before Pharmacy

Pharmacy started the season right by subduing Knox College by the score of 16 to 3 in their first Mulock Cup game of the year. The winners at times tore up the Knox line with great vigour and the final verdict was never in doubt.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow is the day of the Big Game. Intercollegiate football with all its colour should be seen at its best in the Richardson Stadium, Kingston, where the Blue will engage the Tricolour in a mighty battle.

Reports from Queen's indicate a sell-out two days prior to the game. The tickets that were on sale here went well and there will be a goodly number of Blue supporters making the trip Saturday. It is to be hoped that Old Jumper Phlavin will take the day off and go fishing.

The same old, old story has come from Queen's concerning injuries to Harry Batstone's men, but when the band plays the National Anthem the regular line-up will likely be on the field. Varsity will present about the same team that walloped Western so merrily. Jack Sinclair has been suffering from leg injuries, but should get in the game. Doug. McFadyen will likely be used against the Tricolour. The diminutive half was going nicely in practice yesterday and may be the man to dash Queen's hopes of undisputed possession of first place in the Rah Rah League.

Western play McGill in Montreal to-morrow. The loser of this fixture will occupy the cellar in solitary majesty while the winner will tie with the loser of the Varsity-Queen's encounter for second place.

At 1.30 to-morrow afternoon, in the first game of a double-header, Varsity Orphans will entertain Sarnia in a Senior O.R.F.U. hook-up. Sarnia have a much better team than last season and the Blue and White will have to be on their toes to drag down a victory. In the second struggle of the day the mighty Hamilton Tigers, Dominion champions, rated as stronger than last season's smashing aggregation will meet Argonauts for the Big Four leadership. This is a mighty sweet offering for Mr. Football Fan.

Jr. Meds. Take Jr. S.P.S. in Hard Fought Grid Battle

Junior Meds started the season well when they beat Jr. School yesterday afternoon. The score was 3-0. Both teams fought hard but evidently lacked practice. The kicking was the bright spot of the game. Meds kicked two over in the first half making the score 2-0.

In the second half School made a gallant attempt to score a touch when McNichol got away to a 45 yard run. But the doctors held and School's on-side kick failed. Meds booted one more over making a final score of 3-0.

Father shot the parson and He burned his musty manse
They're holding him for arson and Stealing his Sunday pants.

With pa in jail the family pride Was dragged into the dust
And poor old mother wept and cried Until I thought she'd bust.

We took him jolly things to eat For instance tasty grub
But he used it first to bathe his feet Then drank it all—The fool.

We hid a hack saw in his stew But in his absent way
He ate the blades and handle too, Imagine his dismay!

We had to hock the glockenspiel To raise a little bail
But they say it's for the commonweal That father stays in jail.

PARENTLESS SQUAD PERFORM SATURDAY

Orphans Fit and Determined To Redeem Reputation And Win

SARNIA MUCH IMPROVED

The Orphans had a light workout yesterday in preparation for their first home game of the season when they take on the Sarnia Imperials Saturday. The Sarnia squad downed Western "U" Intercollegiates in an exhibition game and are rated better than Windsor who defeated Varsity last Saturday. The Orphans must redeem themselves in their first appearance at the stadium this year. They will be in there fighting to the last ditch.

The Varsity-Windsor game should satisfy the football appetites of the fans who do not take the trip to Kingston. Against the Intercollegiates the Orphans have been providing strenuous opposition and both teams have been tearing into each other with great abandon in the practice scrimmages. Baillie and Richardson will start on the half line and Knowles and Baker at the outside positions. The choices for the flying wing berths will likely go to Levinsky and Traynor. Outside of these changes the line-up will be the same as for last Saturday's game.

Correspondence

The Working Student

The Editor, "The Varsity", University of Toronto.

Dear Sir,—

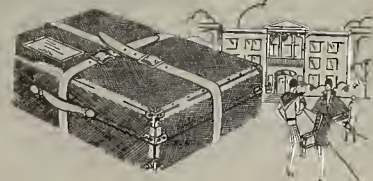

I read with a great deal of interest in your issue of October 3, the article regarding students working their way through college. Might I take the liberty of commenting upon the subject through the columns of your worthy paper?

Appreciating to the fullest the arguments against spare time work in the light of social activities, might I venture to suggest that we get considerably more education in the lecture-room than at social functions?

It is a generally accepted axiom that what is hardest to get is most valued when obtained. So with an education. The student who has had to work for his education appreciates it more than the student to whom education has come as a matter of course. An education is worth any sacrifice we may be in a position to make so the student who is prepared to sacrifice his pleasure for the sake of making possible a college education is a STUDENT in the truest sense of the word. ("STUDENT", from the Latin, "STUDEO", third person, plural, present tense, "they are eager" or "they are zealous.")

The working student finds it hard enough to have to work while studying without having his efforts belittled by those whose financial position lays an education at their feet and says, "Here's your education. Have a good time."

Thanking you for this opportunity, I am, sincerely,
H. C. D.

Wise Old Uncle Ned Gives Advice and Comforts His Nephews and Neices

By G. G. Brooks

Dear Uncle Ned,

I am a newcomer at the university and I would like to take part in some activity or other. I have considered deeply and have come to the conclusion that, owing to my good vocal organs, I ought to be a cheerleader. I didn't answer the advertisement in "The Varsity". I am a person who has to be personally approached. What do you advise.

Hot Stuff,

Dear Hot Stuff,

Judging by your letter you ought to be able to give the required line as a cheerleader. Don't be too self-conscious. I have mentioned your name to the Athletic Directorate.

UNCLE NED.

Dear Uncle Ned,

I am awfully lonesome. What should I do? I am eighteen years old, blonde, blue eyes, good complexion, and I dance divinely. But I am always alone when I go out anywhere. I am dying for romance. Please help me.

Betty.

Dear Betty,

I am only too glad to help you. Get a bottle of Listerine, and send your name, address and telephone number to me at the Varsity office.

UNCLE NED

P.S. Send a photograph too.

All inquiries cheerfully answered by Uncle Ned. Address letters to "The Varsity" office in Hart House.

BRITISH RUGGER

The following have been selected for the Varsity team which plays at Woodstock. The bus will leave Hart House at 9 a.m. sharp Saturday. McKay, Lee, Archbold, McLean, Goldenberg, Rogers, Roome, Knowles, Telford, Nash, Winburn, Philips, Brown, Garner, McPhie.

U.C. WOMEN

All freshmen and seniors are expected to be present at the initiation to be held in the Women's Union at 7:30 to-night (Friday). Freshies will please bring a quarter and students' handbook. Seniors will wear gowns.

VIC BOB

The annual Victoria College Bob will take place this evening in Burwash

Hall. The Bob Committee promises an original entertainment, interesting to all comers. Tickets on sale in the college hall to-day.

S.V.M. MEETING

Mr. Jesse Wilson, Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, will speak at a meeting of students in Wymilwood, on Monday, at 5.15. All students cordially invited, especially members of the Student Christian Association and the Student Volunteer Movement.

The meeting was opened with a period of discussion centering about current productions of the professional stage. The spontaneity and worth of the comments makes this revived feature of the Guild a thoroughly commendable one.

Prime Minister of England Will Bear LL.D. of Toronto

Senate Will Honour Great Man

CEREMONY OCT. 16

Tickets Available To-day

At the meeting of the Senate of the University of Toronto held last Friday evening, it was resolved to offer the honorary degree of LL.D. to Right Honourable James Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, on the occasion of his visit to Toronto on Wednesday next. A communication has been received from Mr. MacDonald stating that he will be pleased to accept the degree, which will be conferred at a special Convocation in Convocation Hall at three o'clock on Wednesday, Oct. 16.

Mr. MacDonald first entered politics in 1894 when he joined the Independent Labor Party. He stood unsuccessfully for Southampton in 1895. In 1900 the present Labor Party was organized, and in 1906 Mr. MacDonald was elected to Parliament. By 1911 he was leader of the Labor Party. Denounced in 1914 for his opposition to the entrance of Britain into the War, he was defeated in the election of 1918 and again in 1921. Re-elected in 1922, he formed a Labor government in 1924 with Liberal support, but was forced to resign due to a suspicion of Communism. After the general election last May he again came into power. He is at present visiting this continent with the chief purpose of furthering (Continued on page 2)

KIDNAPPINGS FEATURE ANNUAL VIC. 'BOB'

Stage Director and First Year President Both Abducted By Rival Parties

KIDNAPPEES WELL TREATED

Amidst a veritable babel of rival shouting between sophomores and freshmen, the fifty-seventh annual "Bob" of Victoria College took place on Friday evening in Burwash Hall. Great activity preceded the "Bob" on the part of both sophomores and freshmen. The stage manager of the Bob was kidnapped and the darling froth, it is reported, inscribed 3T2 on his face, only to have him escape from their hands a little later.

Mr. Frederick Hotson, president of the freshman year was kidnapped by the sophs during the afternoon and kept in close captivity till evening. Promptly after the opening speech by Professor Auger, he was introduced to the audience at large, strangely garbed in tan overalls with one red stocking, plug hat and yellow tie.

"They treated me splendidly," said Mr. Hotson, to "The Varsity," "I did not mind it in the least, and was not in the least humiliated, but rather I took it as a matter of course."

The skits included everything from aesthetic dancing to a wedding scene, which was the climax of a farm youth's college career. All the parts were taken by men students.

It is rumoured that programmes belonging to the freshman year were seized from the printers by ardent sophomores. The freshmen, it is said, promptly threatened to take action against the printers, and in turn the printers threatened the sophomores with legal action. The bills were distributed at the Bob.

Ishbel MacDonald Will Meet Women

Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Ramsay MacDonald, will visit the university. She has consented to meet the women of University College in the Women's Union at a time to be announced later.

ORGAN RECITALS WILL CONTINUE IN CONVOCATION

Dr. Moure Reassures Anxious Undergraduates Desiring Sweet Music

ORGAN GREATLY IMPROVED

Many Undergraduates Express Favorable Opinions of Recitals

The rumour that the fortnightly organ recitals in Convocation Hall were to be discontinued this year was definitely denied by Dr. Moure, the University organizer, when interviewed by "The Varsity."

"My expectation is," said Dr. Moure, "that the work on the new organ will be completed to allow me to begin the series of recitals, Tuesday, Oct. 29th. During the past summer the organ has been remodelled and improved by Casavant Frères of St. Hyacinthe, Que., who were the builders of the instrument in 1911-12. A new Console has been provided and several additional stops installed, notably a 32-foot Reed on the Pedal, a French Horn and Harp on the Solo, and a Trumpet on the Choir; and the original Tuba Mirabilis has been replaced by a new stop on higher pressure. The organ now contains 80 speaking stops and 5,000 pipes."

"The Varsity" approached a number of undergrads all of whom expressed their appreciation of the recitals.

Miss P. M. Ferguson, IV U.C., said, "For those who enjoy music one of Dr. Moure's recitals means the assurance of a most delightful hour and I think the discontinuance of them would be keenly felt by a large number of undergraduates."

M. E. Burch, II Knox, "I have attended the organ recitals irregularly for some years. Besides illuminating in a general way my knowledge of music they have developed in me a strange passion for Bach's work."

Miss F. Stewart, II B & M, "Organ music is beautiful at any time and I always look forward to the hour on Tuesday when I can drop into the recital, after a hard three-hour lab, and be refreshed both mentally and physically."

R. A. McEachern, III U.C., "Dr. Moure is deservedly ranked as one of the foremost organists of this city. It is to be lamented that more do not avail themselves of the opportunity to derive both pleasure and profit from thorough rendition of organ music."

Stan Cole, S.P.S., "To those students who are musically inclined, the Tuesday afternoon recitals are a pleasurable education."

A meeting of night editors and assistants will be held in the News Office, in Hart House, at five o'clock sharp this evening. The attendance of new reporters at this meeting is compulsory.

AMERICAN INFLUENCE IS RAPIDLY INVADING U. OF T. RUGBY SPIRIT

Professor Meek Deplores Type of Game Which Resembles Gladiatorial Bout

CHEERING SPDNTANEDUS

Prof. Robins Claims American Student Body Rather Apathetic

"The University of Toronto is rapidly becoming like the large American universities in the matter of rugby," stated Professor Meek, of the Dept. of Oriental at U.C. to "The Varsity" when questioned regarding statements in the editorial "Come on Fellows."

"Instead of the game being a quiet, friendly contest between two colleges, it is becoming like the gladiatorial spectacles of the Romans except that the gladiators are supplied by the university and the contests financed by the college instead of the state. This is what the American game in most cases is, for their highly paid coaches drive the men under them until they have a machine that will win."

"In the States the game is not played for the game's sake because the alumni and the sporting public demand a winning team and if it is not produced the coach is out of a job because the alumni has considerable control in the athletics of the colleges."

Professor Meek said that Toronto was rapidly approaching this state of affairs due to a number of students and graduates being imbued with American ideas. The putting of sports and physical training on the same basis as any other subject and having it under the control of the board of Governors was thought by Professor Meek to be a solution of the problem.

As for organized rooting he thought that it should be confined to before the game and during the half-time and (Continued on page 4)

Street Demonstration Follows Varsity Invasion of Queen's

By A. C. Cochrane

"COMON VARSITY! FIGHT! FIGHT! FIGHT! FIGHT!" Blue rooters invaded the Richardson Stadium Saturday over 500 strong and taxed their vocal organs to the limit. The score? Why bring that up?

The sun wasn't any shining light at the game. At least, not in a Blue sky. It was decidedly overcast. "The wind she blow and blow some more", especially in the final quarter. "Howie" Carter, hoover extraordinary, had it fixed with South-west Wind Esq. (with apologies to Ruskin.) The latter was to come to Howie's rescue in the final frame and give Queen's a garrison finish.

And then "Red" Gilmore galloped 50 yards through the visitors for a touch to rub it in. And that's the dope!

The Queen's band braced out the National Anthem and "Alfie" Pierce, trainer emeritus of the Tricolour, garbed in the college colors, strutted his stuff before the crowd. And the portly gentleman who booted the oval down the field to open the football season in the Limestone City was James Richardson, newly appointed chancellor of the university, acting in his first official capacity.

Imbued Socialistic Doctrine From Oxford Fabians Claims Haessler

FREE SPEECH DOOMED

Would Have Universities Give "Tools of Culture" To Masses

"The class consciousness of your university is reflected in that editorial," said Mr. Carl Haessler, special correspondent of the Federated Press, who is living at Hart House while "covering" the American Federation of Labour International Convention, in discussing with "The Varsity" the editorial which regretted mass production in education. "Your professors would prefer to educate the few; they forget that a slave economy made possible the culture of ancient Greece."

Mr. Haessler would have the universities give to the masses "the tools of culture" and would expect education to follow as the slow flowering of the years after graduation. "My professors' references to books and their estimates of authors and authorities are the things I value most from my own undergraduate courses."

Mr. Haessler has seen something of mass production in education. He was an instructor in Philosophy at the University of Illinois after his three years at Oxford with the Rhodes Scholarship and before he "got the sack", as he cheerfully puts it, for refusal to serve with the American forces. "At the court-martial they were quite put out when I told them that my socialistic doctrine had been imbued during my years with Oxford dons who were nearly all Fabians. Yes, I am a member of the Fabian Society of London, England," he said in reply to a question.

TRICOLOUR COMES FROM BEHIND TO WIN IN LAST FIVE MINUTES

Cheer Disconcerting To Police and Reds

A rousing "Varsity" yell, issuing from the throats of a group of university students did much to disconcert both police and would-be Communists at the demonstration in Queen's Park on Saturday. A speaker, said to be Jack MacDonald, attempted to address the people near the rear of the Biology Building in Queen's Park, when a group of students standing nearby raised the yell. Police intervened and ordered all to dissemble immediately.

MCGILL TAKES GAME FROM WESTERN TEAM AFTER TOUGH BATTLE

Western Mustangs Give McGill Hard-Fought Battle At Montreal

PENALTIES SLDWED PLAY

London Line Hard to Solve But McGill Backs Are All Stars

Special to "The Varsity"

Molson Stadium, Oct. 12.—McGill have just scored a close 10-6 victory over Western Mustangs who made their first Intercollegiate appearance here to-day.

Western offered unexpected resistance, especially in the last half when they came close to overhauling McGill's early ten point lead.

Savard consistently outbooted Kritzwiser, while the Mustang line proved hard to solve. McGill relied principally on the lateral passing of their three backfield flashes, Achery, Smythe and Kritzwiser, who all turned in stellar games. Savard, Hauch and Horton starred for Western. Western started aggressively, but misjudged kicks by Hauch and Savard soon put McGill within scoring distance. Penalties for no yards and off-sides slowed the play.

Doherty ran in to recover an onside kick to give McGill possession on the Purple 3 yard line. Don Young rushed over on the first down to give his team a 5-0 lead. Soon after Doherty took Smythe's pass to race 75 yards down the left lane for one of the most spectacular touches ever seen at Molson Stadium.

McGill continued to press the play through the second quarter but no score resulted. Half-time score was McGill 10, Western 0.

Western more than held their own through an uninteresting scoreless third quarter. Savard returned Kritzwiser's short kick and Doherty was wounded. Western got a touch in the last quarter which Savard failed to convert.

Final score: McGill 10, Western 6.

Line-ups:—
McGill—Flying wing, Halpenny; halves, Doherty, Kritzwiser, Smythe; quarter, Granger; snap, Swachy; insides, Littlefield (Capt.), Chubch, McTeer, Holleran; outsides, Urquhart, Young; subs, Chard, Munro, Taylor, Jacquays, Russell, Nichols, Thomson.

Western—Flying wing, Kennedy; halves, P. Hauche (Capt.), Fraser, Savard; quarter, G. Hauch; snap, Ward; insides, Stull, O'Connor; middle Kress, Guzino; outsides, McKay, Horton; subs, Jewell, Valeriot, McDermott, Bryant, O'Connor, Paterson.

Two Rouges and Touch De- molish Varsity's One Point Lead

CLOSE, HARD STRUGGLE

Hefty Kicking by Carter Saves Queen's Inferior Line

Staging a garrison finish which netted 8 points in the final five minutes of the game, Queen's defeated Varsity on Saturday at Kingston by 11 to 4, and assumed undisputed leadership in the Intercollegiate Senior series. It was a close, hard-fought struggle, much closer than the score would indicate; in fact the Blue and White were on the long end of a 4 to 3 count when the final period began. But a couple of mammoth punts by Howie Carter, brilliant Tricolour backfielder, whose kicking was one of the deciding factors in the outcome of the contest, and "Red" Gilmore's brilliant 50 yard dash to the Blue touch line soon changed the complexion of matters. The game was not productive of the best brand of football, both teams being guilty of a lot of loose ball-handling, but due to the closeness of the score for the most part of the game, it was an interesting fixture from the spectators' standpoint.

VICTORIA CO-EDS RECEIVE INJURIES

Highway Commission's Laxity Results in Accident After Game

TWO CARS DEMOLISHED

Two Victoria girls, Ethel King, and Marjorie Price, were injured in a motor accident on the Kingston highway last night. Six Vic girls returning from the Queen's game, accepted the assistance of two Varsity men when they were detained near Oshawa by a cracked axle. Their car was being towed to Oshawa when a tragic error on the part of the highway authorities was the cause of a head-on collision between the towed car and a west-bound car driven by a Midland doctor and his wife. A trestle set half-way out in the highway to cover a hole did not carry a warning lantern, at least, not a lighted one. The car towing swerved and missed the barricade, but Miss Price, unable to see ahead, swung into the middle of the road and crashed into the car travelling in the other direction. The two girls and the doctor's wife were rushed to the Oshawa general hospital, where it was found that Marjorie Price was suffering only from superficial cuts. Ethel King and the doctor's wife were more seriously injured, the extent of their injuries at present being withheld by the hospital staff. The two cars were completely demolished. There will be an official investigation into the apparent laxness on the part of the highway commission.

RENDEZVOUS

The traffic problem must inevitably occur to anyone who attempts to proceed through the rotunda of University College between lectures. The casual observer is at once given the feeling that something of interest and importance is occurring rather than the friendly little conferences and tete-a-tetes that actually are held.

The real solution, to be sure, is to institute a women's common room on the first floor, or else, hasten the new women's building. Unfortunately, until the girls lay out enough nickels to extend from here to Moosomin, Saskatchewan, or some Maecenas is found to endow the establishment, the building will be only a dream. The present solution, of course, is for those who make appointments to locate them at the foot or at the top of the women's stairs in U.C., or else entirely apart, in the Women's Union.

OBSERVATIONS

The pow-wow in Queen's Park on Saturday, from a non-partisan standpoint, presents several interesting aspects. For example, the so-called Communist evidently urges reform by force and violence, yet feels hurt when force and violence are used to shut him up. On the other side, the established order thinks it dreadful for the Communist to advocate violence, yet uses that very thing to suppress him.

PARKING

The student with a car is rapidly assuming the proportions of a problem. It is becoming increasingly difficult to drive from the Library to Hart House with the expectation of parking near one's destination. The ultimate solution will doubtless be a university parking station with bicycles for students to move about from place to place.

the interests of international peace.

In view of the great interest shown by the undergraduates and members of the staff in the approaching visit of Mr. Macdonald to the university, and in view of the very limited accommodation of Convocation Hall, the number of seats available to the public is very small. According to information given "The Varsity" by Mr. A. G. Burns, of the S.A.C., there will be 1,200 tickets of admission available to the student body. These tickets represent seats in both galleries, the ground floor being reserved for the Faculty and their guests. Tickets for men students will be distributed in the West Common Room, Hart House, at 1.00 p.m., Monday, October 14th. Any remaining tickets will be given out at the S.A.C. office. The women students may obtain theirs in Room 82, U.C., from 11.00 to 1.30 on Monday. Any remaining tickets at the S.A.C. office, in Hart House. Only one ticket will be given to a student.

The doors of Convocation Hall will be open at 2.15, the ceremony to take place at 3.00 p.m. It is expected that Mr. Macdonald, as "the youngest Graduate of the University," will speak for at least ten or fifteen minutes. Lectures and labs will be suspended from 2.00 to 4.00. Admission to Convocation Hall will be by the southeast door and by ticket only.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY HAS FAMOUS NEW CHANCELLOR

James Armstrong Richardson
Installed at Fall
Convocation

Queen's University formally installed James Armstrong Richardson of Winnipeg at Chancellor, at the fall convocation held Friday, Oct. 11.

The new Chancellor was presented by Rev. R. B. Taylor, principal of the university, who spoke of the wonderful contributions made to Queen's and to Canada by Mr. Richardson. The Richardson family has done much for Queen's, he stated, and he felt it fitting that a member of the family should be honored with the chancellorship of the university.

Chancellor Richardson briefly replied, stating that he followed in the steps of great men in being called to the position. He spoke of the great work which such men as the late Sir Sanford Fleming, Sir R. L. Borden, and others had done as chancellor of Queen's, and felt that he would always retain that love for Queen's which he has had all his life.

Mr. Richardson was born in Kingston, Ont., and received his Arts degree from Queen's.

The yells of the various faculties will be in order at the Convocation, according to Mr. Burns. "Just as the Chancellor takes his place and the rest of the procession is filing in, is the time for a real Varsity yell," said Mr. Burns.

CHAMPUS CAT

By R. E. Noless

It was with a certain amount of awe that I first set foot in Queen's Park, for from one end of its majestic lawn to the other a mighty silence reigned, broken only by the occasional "gosh darn" of a constable. The long line of policemen, ever the courteous servants of the public, stood waiting to direct professors and newspapermen across the paths and hand out proclamations and programs for the afternoon's entertainment. It thrilled me to watch one of these great strong strapping fellows, (who at the same time can be so gentle and so firm,) order a small asthmatic dog away from the vicinity of the band stand to the edge of the park, where he was taken into custody by one of the inspectors. Truly this is one of the greatest organizations of its kind on the continent!

Now the members of the Free Speech Federation began to arrive, with Mr. MacJack at their head. He at once came over to the spot where I was standing and shook hands with me. "It is indeed a pleasure to have you with us this afternoon Mr. Noless," he said, with a sincerity that I knew must come from the bottom of his panacea. We chatted for several minutes until a small crowd had gathered around us. Mr. MacJack seemed, I thought, rather ill at ease in spite of his reassuring words to some excited comrades. "Come, let us begin," he said at last, seating himself on the top of the picket fence. An expression of pained nervousness spread his noble countenance that seemed to reflect the sufferings of his brethren. "Fellow members, rally round me. What about the working man? What about our babe—"

Things began to happen without more ado. Never will I forget the scene. From my strategic position under a pile of leaves I was able to ob-

Everybody Duck!

Editor,
"The Varsity,"

Dear Sir,—

Usually I don't find much of value in your paper, but your issue of October 8, had something about Professor Rogers of the Massachusetts Technical College, where he said that American education had been controlled by women for fifty years and that it had been a bad thing for the country, because people had forgotten how to criticize and analyze affairs. The prof. was right about this, and he should have said Canadian education, too, as there isn't any difference between the two, when you come to think about it. Women have not the straightforward attitude that men ought to have; a woman, as we all know, uses wily means of getting what she wants. How about Eve, Mr. Editor?

Then we go and let them teach our children, boys, who will grow up with (Continued on page 4)

tain an excellent view of the whole proceedings. Police and civilian became mingled in a huge free speaking mass. A newspaper reporter was kicked viciously from behind. "Assassin!" shouted the mob. The journalist has since told me that the blow was administered by one of the constables. "It felt like a policeman's boot," he explained, "although I can't prove it. However I am having the bruise photographed for future reference in case there is an investigation. A dozen different witnesses have submitted a dozen different numbers of the officer who was guilty of the offence. I have required medical attention already."

I was unable to secure an interview with the chief following the fracas due to the fact that his bodyguard threw me down the front steps.

QUEEN'S DEFEAT BLUE AND WHITE IN HARD FOUGHT GAME 11-4

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Queen's are now sitting pretty on top of the Intercollegiate football world by virtue of their win over the Blue on Saturday. Varsity and McGill are tied in second place, each with a win and a loss. Western inhabits the basement. That's how it goes. And McGill come here this Saturday for a game that will make or break both teams. Saturday was certainly no field-day for the Blue and White. The Intercollegiate lost to Queen's, the Orphans were badly beaten by Sarnia Imperials, and the Intermediates lost a close, hard-fought game to the Ontario Agricultural College. The one bright spot was the Juniors' 15-0 win over O.A.C.

The Varsity-Queen's game was a hard struggle right up to the closing minutes of the last period when "Red" Gilmore made his sensational run to put the game on ice for the Tricolour. The Blue are confident of reversing the decision at their next encounter and this reverse will just make them work harder. They'll be a tough team to take from now on.

In spite of several fumbles, Billy Bell turned in a great game against Queen's. His running back of kicks featured. George Morgan, the Blue captain, was also real good and played a snappy all-round game. Wally Bean did some terrific plunging and was responsible for a good percentage of Varsity's gains through the line.

The strong Sarnia Imperials made the Orphans look very mediocre here Saturday. The Blue never got going properly, except for a short time in the last period.

McGill were only able to beat Western 10-6 Saturday. The score seems to indicate that Joe Breen's men are a greatly improved aggregation. We predict that they will take a lot of beating from now on. They have had two, so far.

ST. MIKE'S WIN GAME IN MULOCK CUP RACE

Galloping over the line for a touch in the early moments of the game, and holding their margin till the final whistle, St. Michael's College second team triumphed over Forestry 5-0 in their scheduled Mulock Cup game last Friday afternoon.

After the St. Mike's touchdown there was little to choose between the teams. Probably Forestry had the edge on the territorial play, but efficient tackling held them out. Powerful booting by Leslie and terrific line crashing on the part of McNutt, made them a threat several times, but the Irishers invariably steadied under the shadow of their own goal posts and repelled the invaders.

The single score of the game was well-earned. Starting from back of midfield, St. Mike's made yards on first down three times in succession. A perfectly executed end run was employed in these three advances which took them within ten yards of the line. Three bucks through the line took the ball over, McAlpine carrying the ball on the final smash.

The teams lined up as follows:—
St. Mike's—Snap, McGouie; insides, Pope and Peryma; middles, Ryan and McAlpine; outsides, Shook and Regan; flying wing, Moyer; quarter, Frado; halves, Cerre, Burns and Skelly; subs, Tarrant, Algie, Grant, White and Coll.

Forestry—Snap, Crealock; insides, Miller and Hunt; middles, McNutt and Christie; outsides, Myers and Lossie; flying wing, Elid; quarter, Flatt; halves, Simpson, Leslie and Hodgkins.

ORPHANS LOSE AGAIN IN SARNIA TUSSELE INTERMEDIATES LOSE HARD GAME TO O.A.C.

Chalk Up Second Defeat When Sarnia Imperials Prove Superiority

LACK OLD PEP AND FIGHT

Varsity Orphans chalked up their second consecutive defeat here Saturday when they lost a 21-5 decision to the Sarnia Imperials. The Tunnel Towners were the better team at practically all stages of the game, and look to be the outfit to carry off the group honours.

The Orphans made a most unimpressive showing and gave the Varsity rooters little to enthuse over. The team appears to lack the old pep and fight that characterized it last year. Sarnia were superior in nearly every department, particularly in the kicking, where Sterling, the Imperials' star booter, outkicked Richardson of Varsity by a big margin. The few minutes in the final period when the Blue secured a touch for their points was the only part of the game when Sarnia did not have a considerable advantage.

Sarnia scored early in the first period on a Varsity fumble, followed by a series of plunges which gave them a touch. Then after a good run by N. Perry, Stirling booted a field goal. He followed this up by hoofing a long high one for another point. In the second quarter Sarnia scored a safety when Richardson was downed behind the Blue line. The first half ended with the score, Sarnia 11, Varsity 0. In the third session Sarnia rang up four points without a reply from the Orphans and entered the last period leading 15-0.

In the final stanza the Orphans took a brace and worked the ball down to the Oilers' goal line. The Green and White held for two downs, but on the last Varsity smashed over for a touch which was not converted. Then on a fumble by a Blue half Sarnia secured possession for an easy try to make the score 20-5. Sarnia pressed hard and added a single, winning the game 21-5.

Line-up—
Varsity—Flying wing, Traynor; halves, Baillie, Richardson, Levinsky; snap, McCulloch; quarter, Britnell; insides, A. Stringer, Henderson; middles, Scott, MacMillan; outsides, Knowles, Baker; subs, McLeod, Burke, Bennett, Wright, Dickson, R. Stringer, Graham, Lazenby, Monkhouse, Smith, Perkins.

Varsity Scores Touch in First Minute of Play But Lose Advantage

O.A.C. HAS STRONG LINE

The Intermediate rugbyists lost a close, hard-fought game to O.A.C. on Saturday. The final score was 7-6.

Varsity scored a touch on a blocked kick behind the O.A.C. line in the first minute of play. For the rest of the period play was even, the locals leading 5-2 at half-time. In the next session the Guelph team opened up and had Varsity on the defensive. They blocked one of Johnson's kicks behind the Blue line, and fell on it for a touch, thus taking the lead. From then on Varsity tried desperately to equalize but were held to a single point, and the whistle blew with O.A.C. leading 7-6.

The game was as close as the score indicates. O.A.C. presented a stone-wall defense to Varsity's plunges, but the locals had the edge on the back-field. For Varsity Smith, Taylor and Johnson shone on the attack, while the tackling of Crocker and Scott featured the line play. Phil Sullivan, at quarter, handled the team well.

Varsity line-up:

Flying wing: Scott; halves: Smith, Johnson, MacCallum; quarter: Sullivan; snap: Reid; insides: Connors, Brooks-Hill; middles: O'Flynn, Longstaff; outsides: Murray, Crocker; subs: Taylor, Heintzmann, Schuck, Buchanan, Heakes, Thompson, Jackson.

VARSITY JUNIORS DEFEAT O.A.C. BY HEAVY SCORE

Varsity juniors won their opening game Saturday morning defeating O.A.C. 15-0. For the Blue, Hodgetts, with 10 points, Ellsworth, Shiff and Averling starred.

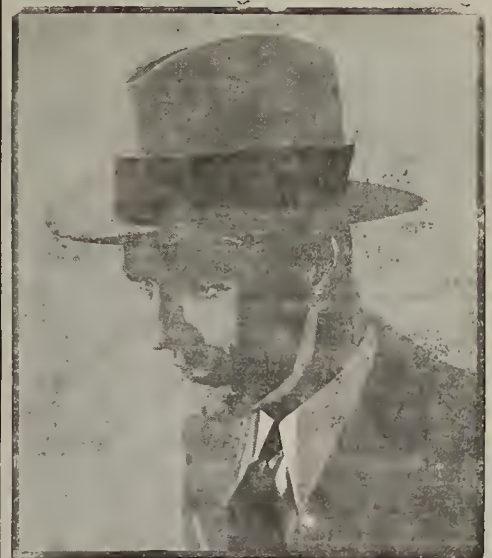

Varsity—Flying wing, Gibson; halves, Hodgetts, Coulter, King; quarter, Magladery; snap, Shiff; insides, Booth and Brown; middles, Rogers and Patterson; outsides, Stubbs and McGibbon; subs, Bryon, Ellsworth, Shapiro, Averling, Hume and Dyer.

TRICOLOUR WINS IN LAST MINUTES

colour. Along the line Queen's were actually outplayed by a good margin all through the game. The absence of How Hamlin from his usual position at middle undoubtedly weakened the Tricolour, but even with his inclusion in the line-up it is unlikely that Batsone's front line could have subdued that powerful front of the Blue team. Led by Captain George Morgan and Wally Bean, both of whom turned in stellar performances, the Varsity line tore through the opposing Queen's front works, gaining yards repeatedly. On the other hand the Tricolour back-field had the edge on the Blue rear-guard chiefly due to the superb punting ability of Howie Carter. But Billy Bell, wiry little Blue and White back-fielder, caught the attention of the fans with his lightning like dashes. Except for a costly muff at mid-field, Bell turned in one of the nicest catching and running performances seen this season. Jack Sinclair started on the backfield, but his injured ankle forced his retirement in the second session, and the Blue and White were considerably weakened in the kicking department when he left.

Varsity registered the first score of the game when Sinclair returned Carter's punt for a rouge. On a blocked kick Queen's started a dribble to the Varsity goal line, but Don Wood saved a major score by beating the Tricolour wings to the ball and kicking it to the dead line. Queen's added another before the first period ended on Carter's punt over Varsity's dead ball line. There was no scoring in the second stanza, but in the third the Blue and White, with the wind in their favour, added three more points via the aerial route. Wood, McFadyen and Bell doing the hoofing in the order named. The fourth period was all Queen's and the final whistle found the Blue and White still trying gallantly to turn defeat into victory.

Sherlock and Watson Re-appear Members of the Freshman Year

By E. R. Toll

For an hour I had lain there—pondering. For I have discovered that for this purpose, there exists no equal to Hart House Library. Eclipse is first—the rest nowhere.

On the chesterfield opposite, another (I shall designate him "Y") also lay and pondered. His snores came in short, uneven spurts. In fact he was hitting on three. Somewhere, I knew not where, but somewhere I had known that snore before.

Then into my soul stole that insidious serpent—envy. For "Y" sported a magnificent tie of red and white origin—while mine displayed decided mongoloid affinities. In short, mine was yellow—and sadly abbreviated.

But ties were not the only reason that I now lay and pondered. Many were my problems. But over all, arose one sinister spectre—a riddle I could not solve. It was this: Who in thunder was I anyway?

This much I knew: My name was . . . . . (I shall designate it "X"); I was a freshman. This I knew and no more. Then suddenly a veil fell from my eyes.

Now I could see it all. I was no other than Dr. Watson himself, reincarnated in person, and my snoring friend was the long lost Sherlock Holmes.

I addressed him by name, "Sherlock."

The snoring sputtered, stopped. The snorer yawned, blinked.

"Sherlock," I repeated.

For a split-second he gazed intently into my eyes.

"Watson," he gasped, "you?"

"The same. Come," I commanded briefly, "we have many things to solve: Why should my Pet Peeve? Do they bottle college spirits? Is there Student Government, and why not? What is a Campus?"

"Hold," demanded Sherlock. "All these may be readily solved by pure deductive reasoning. Here, hand me my cocaine and let's begin."

(Watch for developments in the corner of Sherlock and Watson in later issues.)

SCORE OF KNOX FROSH HAVE PLEASANT RIDE

In Knox gymnasium Friday evening about a score of freshmen were taken for a ride by the superior sophomores. In accordance with the grand old tradition of the college the newcomers in residence were subjected to indignities calculated to make them feel the notorious home-like atmosphere of the place. The trembling frosh were led blindfolded to the medical department, where they were given stimulants consisting of magnesium sulphate and aloes, to enable them to thoroughly enjoy the ceremony.

Each unsuspecting newcomer was then enclosed in a box and given a delightful trip over the Falls and through the Whirlpool, from which he emerged bruised and blinded. One feature of the evening was the novel Whip-ride, the speed of which would put any Coney Island thrill-machine to shame. The staggering frosh was next suspended on a rope and given the gallows-swing.

Those who survived were fed squirming specimens of the nefarious phylum, together with several distasteful doses. Meanwhile the asafetida hair-dresser and the tanglefoot paper-hanger were busy. The frosh then had fun at an electrified apple-bobbing contest, at which they were horribly shocked. After being arraigned before the robed judge of the "Knocks

The new Political Club of the Social Service Department invites students and members of the faculty who are interested in gaining election information and judging both sides of the question, to hear Alex MacGregor, K.C., present the Liberal view in the University Settlement Hall, 28 Grange Road, on Monday, Oct. 14 at 8 o'clock. Last week Mr. Fester represented the Minimum Wage Board, and on Friday, Oct. 18, J. D. Walker will uphold the Conservatives. Here's your opportunity for Free Speech!

U.C. WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

For the junior team consisting of first and second year girls, there will be practice held at U.T.S. on Tuesdays from 6-7 o'clock and Thursdays from 7-8 o'clock. A special freshie team is also being arranged. The first practice to be at Lillian Massey gym, from 5-6 o'clock on Wednesday, October the sixteenth.

AMERICAN INFLUENCE FELT IN TORONTO RUGBY SPIRIT

That all other cheering should be spontaneous rather than forced and unnatural.

Professor J. P. Robins of the English department of Victoria College, who was for a time doing graduate work in Chicago, told "The Varsity" that he had been disappointed in the rooting at Chicago. He felt that there the organization had been carried on by a few enthusiasts and that the rest of the student body were rather apathetic. Prof. Meek, on the other hand, stated that the students and alumni were all very much interested and that the "game" was about the only topic of conversation for days before the contest.

There had been a decline in rugby at Varsity stated Prof. Robins, but he thought that the players were more academically inclined than their predecessors, which was a good sign. Prof. Robins declined to make any general statements about American universities, stating that his experience with them had been rather limited.

OVERCOAT THIEVES BRING GRIEF TO HART HOUSE PICTURE HANGERS

C. J. A. Halliwell and L. Sherwood Lose Clothing Articles To Burglars

WARDEN SUGGESTS REMEDY Cloak Room Location Blamed For Causing Thefts In Halls

Even overcoats are not safe from enterprising thieves nowadays if an experience of two students in Hart House is to be taken as an example. The two young men, C. J. A. Halliwell and L. Sherwood, were engaged in hanging pictures in the sketch room at Hart House Saturday afternoon. While doing so, they had left their overcoats hanging in the hallway.

As the pictures were being put up, the coat burglar got in his work. Both coats disappeared mysteriously from their hooks.

The two victims of the hobbers could not explain the audacity of the thieves, who made off with the articles of clothing. Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, when informed of the theft, spoke of his regret for the entire affair.

Sherwood, discussing the situation, said that a system for the prevention of overcoat stealing, now in vogue in Germany, should be adopted in this country. In Germany, it was learned, students carry padlocks with their coats and when hanging them up the coats are padlocked to the hook.

Halliwell, the second victim, suggested that the cloak room in Hart House be placed in a more central location so that it may be used with greater convenience.

Mr. Bickersteth, in discussing the affair, said the problem was not a new one with which Hart House officials had to combat. Similar thefts were common in the past, he said. Nevertheless, there is a cloakroom service provided from 10 to 7 p.m.

The warden did not consider the idea of having a scrutinizing door-man or detectives.

"These very often offend the undergraduates," he said, "when the latter are asked bluntly if they belong to Hart House."

"I would like to urge the men who come to Hart House to take the service given by the cloak room, however," he added, "up to date the cloak room has never been taxed and until it does become so I see no necessity to look for a different solution. Students should be perfectly aware of the risk they are running by hanging their coats on the racks, as there are notices up in several places. Above all I strongly advise members of Hart House to make use of the privilege by checking their coats."

OLD-NEW STUDENTS COMPARED BY GILSON

Speaker at St. Michael's
Last Night Before
Iconoclasts

RISE OF LEARNING SHOWN

"The good students of the Middle Ages were better than the good students of to-day, and the bad students of the Middle Ages were worse than the bad students of to-day," according to Prof. Etienne Gilson, who spoke before the Iconoclast Club in St. Michael's College last night.

Prof. Gilson, in a very interesting manner, showed the rise of the university as we know it to-day, and gave a very graphic description of the life of the students and professors of the Middle Ages. "The mediaeval university had no libraries, laboratories, museums, endowments, not even buildings of their own," he said. "There was no Board of Trustees, they issued no catalogues; there was no college journalism nor any outside activities to condone inside inactivity."

"The relations of students and professors make a very interesting study. A professor might not be absent from a lecture without leave, if he absented himself without leave he was fined. If he could not make his lectures interesting enough to have five students attend, he was considered absent."

"A professor was obliged to cover so much work in a year, and could not spend the whole year on introduction and bibliography."

Prof. Gilson also gave an amusing account of the social life of the students before closing. The hearty thanks of the club was tendered to Professor Gilson by T. V. Kennedy.

LORETTO PRESENTS PLAY

Loretto College Literary Society opened its series of yearly meetings last night, by the presentation of Shaw's, "Dark Lady of the Sonnets," given by the executive. "The Varsity," was honoured by a major role in the play in the character of ruff on the "Beef-Eater."

Previous to the presentation of the play, the business of the year was discussed and a tentative program outlined.

HART HOUSE THEATRE SPURRED BY ACTION OF UNDERGRADUATES

Mr. Edgar Stone Approves
Of Student Interest
In Institution

STAGE TALENT DRAWN OUT

First Production Played To Be Galsworthy's
"Loyalties"

"We wish to do everything in our power to encourage undergraduate participation in the activities of Hart House Theatre," stated Mr. Edgar Stone, director of the Theatre, when interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding productions and plans for the coming season. Mr. Stone, who, since his recent appointment to the directorship, has pursued a vigorous policy of reform and renovation, was emphatic in voicing his desire that students take a more active interest in Toronto's Little Theatre, and that they be given opportunity to gain experience and develop their talents both backstage and in the glare of the footlights.

The first production at Hart House will be offered to the public on the evening of Monday, November 25, and will continue for one week. The play is to be John Galsworthy's "Loyalties."

The selection of this piece, stated Mr. Stone, is in line with the new policy to give a notable success from the London stage as the fall production and to close the year with a hit from the past Broadway season. Although royalty difficulties prevented Mr. Stone's naming the New York piece, he assured "The Varsity" that, although perhaps more popular in appeal than much that had been done in the past, it would be well up to the Hart House standard. "These plays," he said, "have been box office successes. We should like to try and find out why, and at the same time give Toronto theatre-goers their first opportunity of seeing them."

During the week following Christmas, the boards will be occupied by a fanciful offering for children. "In this production," declared Mr. Stone, "we intend to put on an entirely naive offering, making a direct appeal to children, suitable to the season, and with no pretensions toward sophistication." This bill will include music and will be the work of local people," added Mr. Stone.

The Canadian Bill, an institution at Hart House Theatre, will constitute the third production. Several items are at present being considered for this bill, according to Mr. Stone, but nothing definite has yet been determined.

ETHEL KING AND MARJORY PRICE INJURED IN ACCIDENT, IMPROVING

The condition of the two girls, Ethel King and Marjorie Price, who were injured in an auto crash near Oshawa Saturday night, is not as serious as it was at first expected. Ethel King, whose injuries caused more alarm than those of the other three who were hurt, suffered a deep gash over the left eye and a badly lacerated knee. Marjorie Price received a cut on the forehead and a sprained ankle. They are both in third year at Victoria and are returning home to-day.

After taking the girls to the hospital, the driver of the towing car, G. L. English, and his companion, who represented "The Varsity," drove the other four girls, also from third year, in to Toronto. Their names were,

RED-BLOODED INITIATIONS DIE HARD AT TORONTO DESPITE STRICT BANS

"Initiations are dying hard," said Dean G. H. Mitchell of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering in an interview with "The Varsity" concerning the recent ceremonies held in Examination Hall in which the School frosh were the chief participants. "There is much red blood flowing through the veins of university men, which demands action and often revenge for the sake of the honour of the class. Each year," he continued, "the second-year men are firmly determined that 'something must be done' to take the freshmen down a peg or two, with the result that, following the old custom of initiation, the wrongs suffered by them as freshmen were pyramided on those of former classes, the danger of bodily harm growing apace."

Dean Mitchell stated that there should be no objection to initiations provided that the regulations of the university be considered. In order to prevent the injuries usually attendant upon initiation ceremonies in the past the Caput made three rules which are required to be obeyed in any official ceremony, these rules being that the initiation is to be agreed upon by both parties, that no person shall be subjected to any indecency, and that nothing shall be done to occasion bodily injuries. It was with these regulations in mind that the School initiation was planned and carried out last Thursday night. Two professors and the Dean of the Faculty were invited to attend and enjoyed the good fun as much as anyone else. Linsed oil and soap were utilized in the customary ceremonial ablutions in place of the conventional grease. These commodities were actually beneficial to the skin despite the wholesale and somewhat unpleasant manner in which they were applied.

According to the rules mentioned above, kidnapping is frowned upon in the best social circles of the university. No one has the right to interfere with any student's personal liberty, which applies to university life as well as to civil life. The practice, however, has become more prevalent since more overt activities have been receiving the attention of the S.A.C. and members of the Caput. Students who have at one time or another during the past two years been victims of this gipsy pastime have little of which to complain in the way of ill-treatment at the hands of their captors but the long trudge home. The feeling seems to be among those questioned that kidnapping does little harm except that it may make the initiations be carried too far.

Dean Mitchell was of the opinion that traditional institutions such as the Victoria "Bob" do more toward creating good-will and right relationships

PROF. E. J. PRATT

Who is to give a recital of his latest poem, "The Roosevelt and the Antioch," in Hart House Theatre tomorrow night. It is an epic based on the great rescue of the Antioch, a British freighter, by Captain George Fried of the S.S. Roosevelt, which took place in a hurricane on the Atlantic two years ago. This rescue is regarded by English and American maritime authorities as the most outstanding exploit in the history of steamships.

Dr. Pratt is professor of English at Victoria College. His "Newfoundland Verse," "Witches' Brew," and other poems, have gained him a position among the foremost Canadian poets.

German

"Das Deutsche Volkslied" will be the subject of an address by Dr. Arnold before the German Study Club of the University of Toronto at the first meeting this year. The meeting, which is to take place at Wymilwood, 84 Queens Park, will open the season's activities of this prominent organization.

A vocal program has been arranged and a short comedy will be presented. The first year representative is elected at this meeting. The program will be brought to a close by a social half-hour during which German folk-songs will be sung.

Campus Automobile Ban Discussed by Le Pan

"We have never considered banning cars on the campus," was the statement of Col. A. D. Le Pan, when questioned concerning the parking problem at the university. "I wonder, however," continued the Colonel, "if the undergraduates would suffer much hardship if this were done." He added that exception should be made to those in the graduating year and to those suffering a physical disability.

Colonel Le Pan admitted that there was a parking problem, but that problem, in his estimation, has not reached an acute state, or a condition which demands an immediate solution. He continued, saying, "Even if the students were forced to walk from one building to another, the effect would be beneficial rather than otherwise."

"The university police have the right to summon students for parking in forbidden areas. It seems if parking signs are to be obeyed that one must not park in the vicinity of Baldwin House, in front of Hart House, or in front of the library. Students cannot

QUEER DISAPPEARANCE OF VICTORIA STUDENT ALARMS UNIVERSITY

Howard Robinson Leaves Room
Without Word to Friends
Of Destination

POLICE SCOUR COUNTRY

Brother of Missing Student Unable to Explain
Leave-Taking

Mystery shrouds the disappearance of Howard G. Robinson, Knox College resident, who disappeared from his room last Saturday afternoon without word to his friends. He has not been heard from since.

Police have spread a country-wide network in the search for the youth and are making every effort to locate him. Authorities of the law in all sections of the country have been informed of the mysterious disappearance and are now following up the faint clues that have been obtained thus far in the investigation.

Robinson, who had been rooming with his brother, John Robinson, in one of the residences of Knox College, left his room wearing neither hat nor coat, according to friends after an investigation of his personal effects had been made.

The missing student has been described as being 19 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, and 170 pounds in weight. When last seen, he wore a dark blue suit.

Parents of the two young men were notified immediately of the disappearance by authorities. John Robinson, in giving his version of the disappearance, said he could not discuss the matter further than giving the bare facts, because of not having received any word from the parent's home, concerning the case.

The youth, whose disappearance has been a cause of great alarm in university circles, was in his second year in the university and is enrolled in the course in Political Economy. His home is in New Liskeard, Ontario. He is a student of Victoria College.

The case was checked at a late hour last night by members of "The Varsity" staff, but no further information had been obtained as to the young man's whereabouts.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY IN PLOWING CONTEST

By J. Lorne MacDougall,
Editor Queen's Journal
Kingston, Oct. 14—Queen's University will be represented in the big international plowing match to be held here this week under auspices of the Frontenac Plowmen's Association. A student hailing from Welland will carry the Tricolor into action atop a tractor and plow.

He has carried off plowing prizes in his own county several times and says that "When you have once plowed in a plowing match you cannot keep away from them and get the fever as soon as such an event is to take place. The possibility of intercollegiate plowing matches is now agitating college circles here and a feasible scheme will likely be worked out if only students can be found at Varsity and McGill having the irresistible urge. The co-operation of O.A.C. and Western can be relied upon, it is felt by proponents of the scheme.

My Pet Peeve

"Is people coming to register up till Christmas," Sophie Boyd, Secretary to Miss Kilpatrick, Dean of Women, U.C.

"Is to find that the proverbial 'College Loaf' is an example of perfect hallucination," W. Murray, 1 St. Mike's.

A UNIVERSITY RIDING

We rise this morning to plead a well-nigh hopeless cause, one which even Jack MacDonald and our most vigorous downtown contemporary could hardly win: a university riding for a seat in the House of Commons.

The thing exists. In England, both Oxford and Cambridge have seats, for which any member of the university, undergraduate or graduate, may vote, wherever in the world he lives. Other smaller universities are clubbed together to make ridings. Nor have the results been unsatisfactory; in a House which perhaps, more than any other governing body, is the resort of men illustrious in outside fields, the university members are nearly always outstanding. We are not so rash as to propose exactly the same measure for Canada. The Oxford system allows a graduate who lives in another riding to vote twice, in his own riding and in the university, and the special variety of Canadian democracy would not hear of this. The voting would have to be by members directly connected with the university, and voting in no other riding. By such restriction, too, neither Toronto nor McGill would have the 17,000 odd voters which constitute the minimum for Dominion ridings at present. But, granted the main idea, some arrangement of combining universities could easily be made.

Our subject is this main idea. Why should not university opinion, the opinion of organized learning, of that body whose avowed daily work is to consider ideas, be represented as a unit in the government, not diffused into many ridings dominated by party machines. The members at Ottawa are now almost entirely of three classes, those of the cities whom the machines have nominated, those from country ridings who, though they may ably represent their districts, are not given to economic and political thought, and those who by sheer driving force, have risen out of these two classes and become leaders of the party. Is there not room, then, for one member from the seat of learning, chosen by students and professors? In a house of leaders who are engaged in many things besides the great issues before the nation and of back-benchers, very, very tiresome, is there not room for one clear economic mind, say? And, economic mind or no, would not a man so elected, in all human probability, be one of the cleverest men in the country?

The university is politically minded. There are two vigorous men's political clubs, which, we understand, enjoy close affiliation with and the respect of, their respective parties. Professors are chosen for important embassy posts. Much of the serious discussion in the university is upon vital subjects of national interest. The institution which makes a profession of thinking, thinks long on matters of national policy: let it speak too!

Our case, we have said, is hopeless. The parties would laugh heartily at the idea of tossing away secure seats to the mercy of this fickle Intellectualism; the land is suspicious of us. Business thinks we are children in our inexperience. In a day this subject will be forgotten, hopeless,—not quite. Of the 5,000, 20 years hence, five will be fat, swathed in millions and important. Perhaps they will not forget, and can afford to remember.

With the Theatres

UPTOWN

The plot of "Why Bring That Up?" playing at the Uptown this week, is entirely negligible, even though it is credited to Octavius Roy Cohen. But plot is the least concern of an audience kept in good humour by the antics and dialogue of Moran and Mack. The Two Black Crows of radio and phonograph fame register well on the screen and ought to repeat some day when the "talky" sounds less like somebody muttering into a bread-box. The stage show is a muffled opportunity to do something effective. The dancing, lighting, and set are good, but the thing lacks "it". The Indian Love Lyrics provide the theme, and the singing is terrible. There are some interesting shots of Ramsay MacDonald in the news reel—if the milling mob gives you a chance to see the news reel. The Uptown Orchestra would like to do some music for a change; just in time they remember their audience and only get as far as "The Dance of the Hours". But the whole programme is as good entertainment (Continued on page 4)

Peace!

By The Reviewer

The politicians are beginning to understand that the present generation desires no more war. As a result the party leaders of Great Britain and the party leaders of the United States are chewing the tobacco of peace. But what does it really mean? Is it true that "there can be no more war"? Or is it just a political move by the leaders of two nations to hoodwink the public again? Of the high purpose of Ramsay MacDonald there can be little doubt. Of the honesty of the Republican leader there is room for serious thought. It is peculiar that these two leaders should suddenly begin to spill paens of praise for peace and shout that the two great nations can never go to war. How can the thinking individual believe what is coming out of the mouth of the American when an expanding program of ship building is seriously considered at the same time that words of peace are sending curls of smoke winding about the press readers?

It seems to point at present to only thing. While the generation that has seen war lives, there can be no more carnage. As soon as the people, who have seen corpse rats take their fill of wounded men, pass away there will be war again. The "no more war" cry is as old as bad times after any horrible slaughter. But there will be war again. And that will come when the foreign exporter finds that the public is in a state of mind that can be easily aroused to the passions of hatred.

At present almost every leader of any party anywhere feels that it is his duty to talk of peace. His constituents demand it. There is too much misery fresh in the minds of the broken to talk of war. Yet there will be carnage just as soon as it is economically beneficial to any nation. Personal gain has been the basis of every war. The next one will be fought for the same reason, although the press and the pulpit will defile themselves again if need be and holler in eight column heads of the "war for freedom", and rant of the "war for the sake of God".

The present events show the earmarks of the time after the days of Napoleon when the idealists rallied 'round the banner of the Holy Alliance. New commercial fields were opened. New politicians needed money for campaigns and in that position again submerged themselves to the vested interests of their countries.

Until all nations develop a true feeling against war and a feeling that will stamp on the urgings of the carion of mankind trading under the name of commerce, there will be war. The time may come when there will be "peace on earth, and good will to the children of men", but not before the golden calves worshipped by "our greatest citizens" are torn from their pedestal. Peace cannot be as long as the other man can be hated on the urging of bloated commercialists with a string of newspapers at their beck and call. Peace cannot be until the people tear the power of life and death from the clutches of those who feed in luxury at the expense of human blood.

The cry of "to Hell with the profits" raised by pseudo-patriots during the war is still fresh in our minds. Just as fresh is the result of the investigation that proved that the Victory bond buyers were sending rotted meat to "our glorious defenders". Yes, there will be war. Not soon. The people are still too wise. But, wait shareholders, wait. We must have protection for our oil elds, we must have outlets for our products.

Special to "The Varsity" Lawrence, Kansas—Kansas University has her "fresh" freshmen like all other institutions. Wilma Bump, '33, told a Kansas reporter, "I used to be good in rhetoric. I don't believe people up here appreciate me like they should."

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. This is Joe Stutter announcing from the Dyspeptic room of the Hotel Plomance, where the dinner of the Foreign Aft Club will be broadcast, featured by an address by Premier Ramrod MacDonald. The guests are assembled now and I wish you could see how hungry they all are. It sure is going to be a big feed. Wait a minute, here comes someone late. Just a minute till I see who it is. It looks like Hooper,—no, it's Bud Fisher. He's sitting down now and tying his napkin around his neck, and testing his knife on his boot.

I wish that I could give you an adequate word picture of the whole scene as I can see it from where I am sitting. All the big leaders of the country are here. There's John D. Rockefeller over there by the window, and beside him is Henry Ford, who is throwing lumps of sugar as his friend Thomas Bredison, immediately across from him. And there is Will Rogers, good will ambassador to Ethiopia, telling Aimee Simple McCursin about a salesman from Reno. I can't just catch the words. Ah here we are, action at last. There goes the head waiter with the soup toward the head table. He is still going,—five—ten—fifteen—twenty yards. He's made a touch! he has touched old John D. Rockefeller for a dime!

It is rather hard to hear all that's going on here. They're making so much noise over the soup. Wait a minute, there's a mix up some place. They have brought Mr. Kellogg a dish of corn flakes instead of his consommé. While they are getting sorted out I will turn the microphone over to the other end of the table so that you can hear Senator Boryah chewing his celery.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Orphan-Sarnia encounter on Saturday was a whale of a reversal from last year's. The Orphans have plenty to live up to this year, but as yet have shown little spirit in their two defeats. Except for about ten minutes of sparkling play against the Imperials, they played a listless game. True, the Tunnel Town is being touted as O.R.F.U. champs, yet Varsity appeared weak in almost every department.

However Coach Earl Douglas is not going to ease up, and by Saturday his men should show some of their real stuff. They meet the Tiger Cubs in Hamilton and the honour of holding down the cellar berth is at stake. And the Orphans are out to show the rooters that they can.

McGill last year copped the Intercollegiate title after dropping their first game. By defeating Western they are now tied with Varsity for second place. The Redmen have a habit of fooling the fans and right now they believe they can come back again to turn the trick. Varsity is weakened by the injuries of several players, but expectations are that everybody will be on deck this Saturday. A win for the Blue and a loss for Queen's will change the complexion of the college race.

The Blue and White track team appears in to-day's issue. Varsity is especially strong in the track events with Adams, Fitzpatrick, Finlayson, Jermyn and Smith. They should pile up enough points to walk away with the meet.

FINE AND FAST PLAY IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Keen Competition Enlivens Final Matches Of Day
In the first round of the Women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament, play was very close and competition keen. There were no outstanding upsets except perhaps the defeat of Audrey Purkis by Marjory Winspear, and Sally Ballard by Gwen Patterson.

These games were very closely contested and a good brand of tennis was displayed.

In the second round all the favorites came through. Bee Symons and Jessie Gray played in fine style to win their matches. Lorraine Patterson and Marjory Winspear fought a long battle before Marjory ended it as victor.

Playing for the right to enter the semi-finals, Bee Symons and Lois Reynolds staged a wonderful game, both playing exceptionally fast tennis. Rallyes were long and at times brilliant. Each girl was hitting the ball hard and both were playing at top form.

Jessie Gray also won her way to the semi-finals. She plays the winner of the Bateman-Winspear tilt.

Marion Boulby won the right to play Bee Symons in the semi-finals. The winners of these games will meet in the finals which will be played Tuesday morning. All these games will be well worth watching.

drive around the university in a fast and reckless manner.

An amusing story was told to "The Varsity", concerning a man who habitually parked his car under the memorial tower. One day he returned to his car to find the gas tank empty. The tires were quite flat. He reported to the police. However, an officer had seen a group of students about the car. Considering the indiscretion of the man in parking in such a place he merely stated that it was unfortunate, but nothing could be done.

It was learned further that students cannot drink on the premises. There are the authorities which have the

PHARMACY GAINS IN MULOCK CUP GROUP

Pharmacy continued their winning ways in their Mulock Cup group when they tramped over Forestry last night to the tune of 8-0. Two kicks for single points, and a converted touchdown in the last half represented the total scoring success of the game.

Pharmacy narrowly missed six more points, however, when a perfectly executed dropkick was disallowed because of an offside, and another attempt for three points hit the upper half of the goal post and bounced back onto the field.

Superior work along the line and greater success in running back kicks tell the tale of the Pharmacy victory. Bert Wadland on the Druggists half line stood out particularly with beautiful dodging runs to neutralize the Foresters' punting gains.

Line-ups:—Snap, Theal; insides, Keating and Moffatt; middles, Goldsmith and Brown; ends, Thorburn and Walberg; flying wing, Clegg; quarterback, King; halves, Walsh, Wadland and Beckett.

Forestry—Snap, Crealock; insides, Hunt and McNutt; middles, Miller and Christie; ends, Meyer and Lossee; flying wing (Boulbee); quarterback, Platt; halves, Leslie, Edie and Lowson; spares, Walkom, McEwen and Young.

ST. MIKE'S OVERCOME KNOX

St. Mike's defeated Knox by the score of 6 to 0 in a closely played interfaculty rugby game yesterday afternoon, on their own grounds. Knox seemed to lack condition and team play which proved their downfall.

Cerre and Shook were the stars for St. Mike's, while Walker, Barclay and H. Davidson were the best for the Theologians.

Line-ups:—St. Mike's—Burns, Frado, Skelly, Shook, Cerre, Dell, McAlphine, Pope, Peryma, McEvey, Torrant, Grant.

Subs—Klemaszewski, Lacey, White, Coll, McDonnell.

Knox—McDermid, O'Hara, H. Davidson, I. Davidson, D. Davidson, Stewart, Wismer, Barclay, Glen, Roe, Dewar, Walker. Sub—Ritchie.

power and capacity to deal with such cases. These authorities were not definitely stated, and the punishment was merely left to one's conjecture.

One case was cited in which a certain undergraduate who happened to be slightly intoxicated was advised by the university police to leave the grounds. This action is typical of the sympathetic attitude of the police toward the undergraduates.

HART HOUSE PLAYS START

He had not received any official notification of an organization to be known as the University Players, declared the Director; but he stated that he thought the idea a perfectly sound one if it were put into operation as it had been outlined in various campus publications. An organization representing the leading undergraduate dramatic societies, putting on one ambitious production a year to give the pick of the student thespians a chance to prove their worth, would be an excellent adjunct to the Theatre's regular programme, thought Mr. Stone.

In reply to a question, he stated that the Hart House Touring Players would not be sent on the road again this year, due to several difficulties which had been encountered.

It is understood that an appeal will shortly be made for those desiring to do work in the Theatre, both technical and dramatic.

VARSITY GRIDMEN REST AFTER QUEEN'S STRUGGLE

Mr. McPherson Lets Up On Rigid Training For Brief Rest

Yesterday was a day of rest for Varsity's Intercollegiate footballers, after Saturday's tussle with Queen's. McPherson did not call a practice but to-day will see the resumption of the old grind.

The Blue and White injured list is not large, but may prove serious if certain of the Blue players do not show signs of speedy recovery. Jack Sinclair is probably in the worst condition of the injured players. In the game against Queen's he aggravated the injury to his ankle and he may possibly be unable to compete Saturday against McGill. Herb Little is getting around but is far from top form. Hallam has a trick knee which has been troubling him all year and George Gooderham has been carrying on although handicapped by a badly swollen wrist caused by a chipped bone suffered near the beginning of the present campaign.

Even with these worthies unable to compete Varsity appear to have an excellent chance of taking the Red Team into camp Saturday as Old McGill have been showing rather indifferent form in their games to date.

SHEA'S

Shea's this week is good in some spots, but weak in others. An act called International Rhythm purports to portray the musical moments of the noble red man, red Russian. Tony in his gondola, and of the Young Turks treating their women rough. Then a quick-witted lad does some mental gymnastics with a trick Webster, and Hetty King, male impersonator, shows that her mother rerred in not breeching her. The Newell team were best in their efforts to entertain, and in the Samanoff and Sonia act the dogs were very good. No pun intended. The screen offering, Janet Gaynor in Christina was surprisingly well done, though the theme song was a re-hash of "My Buddy". The comedy and news reel were not up to much.

PANTAGES

"The Sophomore" at the Pantages this week is another one of those "Collich" soundies. You know the type. The hero finds that the girl is clean, he wins the game, and there is a good deal of rah, rah. There is a rather fine take off of Graham McNamee at the "mike". If you want to suffer for good old Laemmle see it. The crowd seemed to like it, so why should we butt in? By the way, the vaudeville is up to the usual standard of the Pantages.

Dust of Dreams

Lonely on the ashen heights
 And bluffs of granite glaring at the sky,
 Crooms the ghost of golden nights
 And star-burned pastures where the moth wings fly

Spirit of a garden glow,
 Washing the inland closer to the moon
 Dusking where the flowers grow
 All night in baths of nectar, and the moon
 Warms the frayed edges of the up-land snow.

Lonely on the ashen heights,
 Crouching in vastness, growing gray and pale,
 Spirit of star-scattered nights
 On shores of crystal lakes and misted vale
 Crouches and crooms and dies in wan-ling lights;

Crumbles like dust of dreams and blows away;
 Dies like the shadows at the end of day.

Correct Answer Unknown

To prevent the Contest Department, the artist or any one from knowing the correct answer to this puzzle, certain figures were erased by the Contest Judge, Messrs. E. A. Williams, Toronto Star Weekly, and H. M. Sandison, Regina Leader-Post. Neither of these gentlemen know what figures the artist erased, but after the Contest closes they will announce what these figures were and when these figures are submitted from the total of the figures used by the artist, they will give the correct answer to the figures in the above puzzle.

There are no tricks to this Contest. It is merely a matter of skill in finding all the numbers shown and then adding correctly. We wish clearly understood that there are no hidden figures. Every number can be plainly seen. The degree of your care and skill will determine the prize which you will win.

THE ONLY requirements for entry to contest are those I have set down. You will note that extreme simplicity and a careful reading now will avoid any possible confusion later.

FIRST PRIZE—BUICK SEDAN

This McLaughlin-Buick 4-door Sedan, of value $2,175.00 with cash bonus noted elsewhere is First Prize in the Goblin's Greatest Contest. The prizes are now awaiting you. Do not miss this advertisement. Enter this most interesting contest at once. Read rules carefully. You will not regret it. It is the best thing to do. Everything is as stated. Begin NOW! In a few weeks this distinguished car may be YOURS. You alone must decide.

GENERAL RULES

(1) Contest is open to everyone except (a) Employees of Goblin Magazine and their immediate family; (b) Persons who have won a prize in a previous contest.

(2) To enter contest it is necessary to enclose at least $2 for an 8-months' subscription to Goblin Magazine. See Prize List found elsewhere in this advertisement and note how the value of your prize is increased by sending in a full year's subscription to Goblin and subscriptions from your friends.

(3) A contestant can select friends for subscriptions and for such subscription he or she will be entitled to submit solutions to the puzzle; also those who solve through a contestant may submit solutions to the puzzle. Get your friends to help you get subscriptions.

(4) All solutions must be accompanied by a cash subscription, otherwise they will not be accepted. All solutions are recorded and cannot be changed once they are received at the contest office.

(5) It is not necessary for a contestant to send in the entire amount of subscription money at one time. Accurate records are kept, and every time a contestant makes a remittance, the amount will be added to the previous amount which a contestant has to his credit.

(6) Contestants can send in a different answer to the puzzle each time they make a remittance, but not more than one prize and bonus will be paid to one family living at one home address.

(7) EXTRA PUZZLE FORMS MAY BE OBTAINED FREE BY WRITING TO THE CONTEST DEPARTMENT, AND WILL ALSO BE FOUND IN THE SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER NUMBERS OF GOBLIN MAGAZINE.

(8) All money orders, cheques, or postal notes must be made payable to Goblin Magazine; acknowledgments will be made immediately upon receipt of solutions.

(9) If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant, the prize will be awarded for the nearest correct solution.

(10) In the event of a tie, a second puzzle will be mailed. This puzzle will be a problem requiring accuracy in addition and subtraction. Only those solving will be entitled to solve the second puzzle.

(11) Solutions to the contest must be in the Goblin office not later than 6 p.m., December 7th, 1929. Solutions mailed and having the postmark of not later than December 7th, 1929, and received by us not later than December 14th, 1929, will be accepted. The correct answer will be announced in the January issue of the Goblin Magazine, published about January 1st. Contestants are advised to send in their answers as soon as possible. Special bonuses, which will be noted elsewhere in this advertisement, are offered for early solutions.

(12) In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Goblin Magazine reserves the right to amend or add to the rules of this contest, if necessary, for the protection of the interests of both the contestants and Goblin Magazine. The right is also reserved to refund subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom the judges, the contestants' representatives, deem undesirable.

SECOND PRIZE—Chevrolet 4-door Sedan, value $945.00, together with cash bonus noted elsewhere

GOBLIN—The People's Choice

The New Goblin is a vigorous, alert monthly appealing to all keen-aided Canadians. Its each issue its pages scintillate with smart, brightly colored and instructive articles ranging widely from sport to international topics. Brilliantly illustrated by prize drawings and news photographs Goblin now truly reflects the life and thought of the Dominion.

Through this Great Contest you will secure this outstanding masterpiece at the regular subscription price, and at the same time, if you are accurate, win one of the major prizes outright without cost. In this, Goblin's Fifth Great Puzzle Contest, the value of the rewards has been increased to over $10,000. This is the greatest Prize List ever offered in Canada. In a few weeks the division of these prizes will be made. So why will you win this luxurious magazine appointed Buick. Will it be you? Your decision NOW will determine whether you will be that fortunate person. Someone who wins it. You alone must decide whether YOU will be that person.

Secure Correct or Nearest Correct Total of Numbers Above to Win Buick Car

The problem is to add together all of the numbers shown above. Each figure is clearly indicated, and they run from two to nine; the sixes have a curved stem; the nines a straight stem; all are single numbers, there are no combinations; add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column. Every figure in the picture is complete. If in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with a figure marked, to the contest department, which will gladly tell you what it is.

ABSENCE OF STUDENT STILL CAUSES ALARM AS NO CLUES APPEAR

Complete Mystery Shrouds The Disappearance of Robinson

DESCRIPTIONS BROADCAST

Temperament Does Not Offer An Explanation For Mystery

Where is Howard Robinson? On every hand students are asking each other this question, yet a lapse of 24 hours has brought this baffling mystery no nearer a solution.

Communication has been made with all relatives and friends in an effort to find a trace of the missing student, yet his sudden and unnoticed departure remains as much of an enigma as before.

So far descriptions of the young man have been broadcast fruitlessly over radio stations here, and the united efforts of the police of the entire country have succeeded in bringing to light no new clues to throw a light upon the case.

Student friends of the missing youth have been working day and night communicating with all possible sources of information.

Jack Robinson, brother of the missing young man was in his room talking with friends when "The Varsity" approached him for an interview. Asked if he had any idea where his brother might be, he replied: "Absolutely none, I haven't the least idea where he might be."

No more enlightening was his answer to the suggestion that his brother might have been taken by force. He was as much in the dark over the case as he might have been had his brother suddenly disappeared into space.

James Wilson and Stanley Cole, friends of the two brothers were next interviewed and from them was learned (Continued on page 4)

BUSINESS MEN RELY ON ECONOMIC THEORY

Mr. MacDougall in Address States University Best Business School

COMMERCE CLUB MEETS

"The university is the best of business schools since the Economic Theory taught here is of more use than those things classed by Americans as the practical subjects of business," said Mr. J. M. MacDougall, statistician of Canadian General Securities in a short address to the Commerce Club in Hart House Lecture Room at 1:15 yesterday.

"Business men are coming to place more reliance on the general reasoning of economic theory than heretofore," continued Mr. MacDougall, stating that whereas heretofore forecasts were formed and ventures launched on the naive judgment of business men, now the tendency is towards the use of statistics and actual research.

"There are great opportunities for trained men in the Canadian financial and business world," stated the speaker.

Mr. MacDougall, who is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and who was for two years connected with the department of Economics at Baldwin House, was introduced to the Club by Mr. G. E. Jackson, with whom he was formerly associated on the university staff.

Pool Gallery Closed At All Coming Events

The gallery of the swimming pool is to be closed to all future social events in Hart House according to rumours reaching "The Varsity" last evening.

The gallery is a popular sitting-out-place at all dances and it has been the practice of the Athletic Directorate to allow its use.

It is understood that on account of the fact that cigarette stubs and refuse have been thrown into the pool, the Directorate have decided to close the gallery at all functions, including the Hart House Masquerade and the University College Literary and Athletic Society Anniversary Dance on Friday evening.

Officials of the Athletic Directorate could not be reached by "The Varsity" last evening.

NEW COURSES GIVEN TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

Several Subjects Added To Curriculum At O. C. E.

Students at O.C.E. this year must take one of five options in preparation for a certificate in public school methods, Physical Training, Commerce, Art, or Music. The first three of these have been offered before, while Commerce and Music are new. There are new phases to the Physical Training and Art courses also. Public School Methods, as formerly, qualifies graduates to teach in Normal schools or serve as inspectors.

The present day realization of the importance of P.T. in modern education is reflected in the completeness of the course offered at O.C.E. Formerly, according to Mr. Halbus, director of men's P.T., only an elementary course was given which would enable the person to teach in public school. To-day the demand for thoroughly equipped teachers in Collegiate is so great that the Department has provided that O.C.E. shall train specialists also. This can now be done in one year without additional summer work. The plan, declared Mr. Halbus, is to begin to develop, the most proficient students into specialists from Christmas on. The college has added to the staff Miss Helen Bryan, characterized by Mr. Halbus, as the best physical training instructor of women in the province to train women specialists.

Similarly in Art at O.C.E. the course, conducted by Miss Marsh, is to train teachers to meet the ever-rising standard of Collegiate. Principals are now demanding specialist art teachers and these will be supplied by the one year's study without additional summer work. Study Art and Architecture also contribute to the teacher. "Der Spielteufel" Presented Mrs. Craigie, Prof. Holt Sing German Songs

A large number were present at the first meeting of the German Study Club. The president, Miss Uhrlich, opened the meeting, and Dr. Needer spoke for a short time. A German comedy, "Der Spielteufel", was presented. Following this Professor Holt sang some German songs. The first selection from Mendelssohn and the second by Beethoven.

The feature of the evening was a lecture by Dr. Arnold on "Der Deutsche Volkslied", accompanied by vocal selections from Mrs. Craigie and Professor Holt. Towards the end Mr. Segon sang some Swiss yodel pieces.

Community singing was led by Professor Holt.

RAMSAY MACDONALD WILL RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREE THIS AFTERNOON

Special Convocation to Confer Honour on Visiting Notable

WILL BROADCAST SPEECH

Miss Ishbel Macdonald Unable To Address University Women

Premier Ramsay Macdonald of England will receive an honorary LL.D. degree from the University of Toronto at a special convocation to be held this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Convocation Hall.

Mr. Macdonald, who was welcomed to Toronto last evening, may visit the university for a short time prior to the ceremony.

Miss Ishbel Macdonald, daughter of the Prime Minister, will be unable to attend the convocation.

"I am very sorry," she said in a statement to Miss Kilpatrick, Dean of women in U.C., "but I find it impossible to attend the gathering on account of lack of time, but I wish to thank everyone for the invitation."

Special loud speakers will be placed outside the north end of Convocation Hall, so that those without tickets, may be permitted to hear the speeches. The speeches will also be broadcast over stations CFRB and CFCA.

"It is hoped that the students will give Varsity yells," said Mr. Fennel, acting registrar of the university last evening. "It is apparently the custom in England to make large buildings vibrate to dignitaries," he said.

1,200 tickets have been issued to students. Bearers of blue tickets will enter by the southeast door while those with white tickets will enter by the northeast door.

NO LOSSES REPORTED IN OTHER COLLEGES

Hart House Thefts Are Not Outbreak of Series Of Thefts

NO LOSSES AT U.C.

"To our knowledge nothing further has been stolen." This report was given to "The Varsity" from the University Police Department.

The theft of two coats in Hart House, Saturday afternoon is not, therefore, to be regarded as the first signs of a busy season for sneak thieves. The enterprising intruder merely took advantage of the gentlemen who were picture-hanging, walked off with their belongings and left them up the ladder.

Enquiry at Warden Bickersteth's office elicited the information that nothing further has been reported stolen. At University College no losses had been reported. "But don't you pull anything just to get a 'ho' story for 'The Varsity'?" the reporter was warned with a smile. "We're on the lookout for these fellows."

It could not be learned whether any particular precautions, in the way of armed guards or otherwise, were to be taken. The onus of prevention rests with the undergraduates, "The Varsity" was told.

Sounds of revelry were heard on Tuesday night when the College of Education students held their "get-together party."

After hilarious games and guessing contests all retired to the cafeteria to indulge in hot dogs, doughnuts and other delicacies. The evening ended with singing, led by their orchestra,

PIANO, VOCAL SOLOS FOR FIRST MEETING

T.I.C.C.U. Plan Reception Of Informal Nature For Freshies

SHORT TALKS BY OFFICERS

The Toronto Intercollegiate Christian Union—more conveniently known as "Ticcu"—is holding in Wymilwood this evening at seven forty-five, its first annual reception for freshmen, freshettes, and, indeed, new students of any year. The purpose of the reception is to introduce to the colleges in general this union, its members and its aims.

A busy and hardworking programme committee are determined to make the evening a success by banishing very early in the proceedings that petrifying "I don't know anyone" feeling that so often characterizes first year social functions, so that the first part of the evening will be even more informal than the last.

The most important items on the programme are some piano selections from Miss Betty Willis, vocal duets from Mr. and Mrs. Noel Palmer, and a short talk by Mr. Palmer. Betty Willis, who, though only fourteen, already has her L.T.C.M. needs little introduction to Toronto audiences. Mr. Palmer, known in England as "Tiny Palmer," owing, perhaps, to his height of six feet eight, took his B.A. at Oxford, where he founded the "O.C.U." and is known throughout the Old Country for his work among students. His talk on "The Adventure of Faith" promises to be both challenging and inspiring. The fact that Mrs. Palmer is a grand-daughter of the late General Booth, and better still, daughter of the famous "Marchale" herself, is sufficient recommendation.

The rest of the programme is to consist of very short talks from the new officers, Mr. Harry Bousall of Knox, President, and Mr. Hart Davies, of Wycliffe, Secretary. There will be also a sing-song led by Mrs. Palmer, and, of course, "cats".

My Pet Peeve

Girls who are so bored by the board at their residences that they order the most expensive foods when you take them out. (I did, but I don't any more.), says Gordon K. Masters, III U.C.

DR. CASSIDY FORMS NON-PARTISAN CLUB FOR LADY ELECTORS

Ladies Wish to Study Parties Not Anxious to Have a "Political" Club

FOR ELECTION ONLY

Mr. Beamish Thinks Men's Club Would Gravelly Consider Admission of Ladies

Dr. Cassidy of the Social Service Dept. has organized a non-partisan political club which is largely composed of women students. At one meeting they are to hear a Liberal speaker, at another, a Conservative. The present intention of the club is to disband after the coming elections, but many of its members have expressed the hope that, with tender care, it may develop into a "man-sized" political club.

"Co-eds are not interested in politics," is the opinion gleaned by "The Varsity" after having discussed the subject with various undergraduates. There is no women's political club on the campus, and there seems to be no indication that one will be organized for some time at least. There are not enough women who are willing to take an active part in it to make it a workable organization.

When asked her opinion why college women are so indifferent to politics, Nora Doran, IV U.C. said, "The majority of women are not sufficiently interested in current events to warrant a movement in that direction. It is not because they lack ability, but (Continued on page 2)

THE WAYS ARE LONG THE CROSSERS BOLD

But Students Must Follow The Narrow and Crooked Way

PARK OFFICIALS SPEAK

"The longest time it takes to cross from Victoria College to Hart House by any circuitous path is 32 seconds," stated Mr. Chambers, Municipal Parks Commissioner to "The Varsity" in regard to the question of making a direct path across Queen's Park between the two institutions. The Commissioner thought that the whole matter was greatly exaggerated and that a straight path was entirely uncalled for. In reply to "The Varsity's" question concerning the attitude of the police towards those who make crosspaths across the Park, Mr. Chambers stated that it was contrary to law to make paths, and it was up to the police to see that this law was maintained.

It has long been the complaint of law-abiding Victorians that it is most annoying to those who want to go from Vic to Hart House in a hurry. The shortest path is by way of the War Memorial, south to the bandstand, and then south-west to the east entrance of the University. Those peace-loving students who are not desirous of falling into the arms of the law have been forced to follow this maze of paths in order to arrive at their seemingly close destination. However, the city fathers, who appear to have had the time taken to negotiate these paths measured by a stop watch that never started, claim that in reality the time it takes to get from Victoria College to Hart House is very meagre and that the whole matter has been given much more consideration than it is really worth.

PHARMACY STUDENTS ENJOY HART HOUSE PRIVILEGES

After Much Persistent Work Success at Last Crowns Their Efforts

This year, for the first time, students in the Ontario College of Pharmacy, which is in affiliation with the University of Toronto, have been admitted to the full privileges of Hart House membership. Since the opening of Hart House, persistent efforts have been made by graduates and undergraduates of the college, to obtain this membership, but until this year they have been unsuccessful. Pharmacy students have in the past, however, been allowed the use of the athletic equipment of the House, and the fact that many of them were in the habit of availing themselves of the other privileges of Hart House, is believed to have been the deciding factor in bringing about the new arrangement.

In addition to the Hart House membership, Pharmacy men and women are now paying the S.A.C. fee and have been given representation on that body.

Important Task Carried On By Social Service Workers

TEA WILL BE GIVEN

"O goody, now I can come to the club every day," joyfully exclaimed a little lad when informed of the Play School for children of pre-school age, which is a new venture at the University Settlement this year, and which will supply an opportunity for twenty volunteer students who can give two or three hours one morning a week, and who are interested in gaining experience with children. In charge of this branch is Miss Muriel Boyle, who has specialized in Kindergarten work and in the Dalcroze System of Eurythmics.

More and more the Settlement is playing an active part in student education. Last year numerous students assisted with the Dramatic Club, Art Group, Music School, Baby Clinic and Library, besides the thirty regular clubs composed of graded ages, from tiny tots to parents. During the summer several volunteer students were given invaluable leaders at Copper Beach Camp, Newcastle, where two hundred and forty settlement members (Continued on page 4)

TORONTO MUSIC CENTRE AS REGARDS STUDENTS

So States Mrs. Atkinson In Women's Union Meeting

"Toronto is a musical centre, but rather in the student sense than from the cultural standpoint," stated Mrs. G. D. Atkinson to the W.U.A. music group, in her address on "The Rise and Development of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra". Mrs. Atkinson went on to explain that only when a city had a Symphony Orchestra of its own, did it attain the desired status as a centre for cultural music. Originally started by an interested group of foreigners who desired to play symphonic music, the Toronto Orchestra rehearsed for a period in the basement of Massey Hall, until certain financial difficulties were solved. Mrs. Atkinson emphasized the untiring devotion of both the players themselves and of a few supporters which has carried the organization for eight (Continued on page 4)

AIR CASTLE—OR REALITY?

Every fall some enterprising people become imbued with a spirit of active reform, and every fall one of those people concentrates particularly on elucidating the critical need for a Women's Building. This fall it is for us to take up the cause, even though we be accused of verbosity on the subject.

There are more than twenty-five hundred women in this University, and there is no building or space in which to house any of their University activities—they have no lecture rooms, to use for meetings or hanging pictures in, no music room in which to enjoy five o'clock recitals, no Great Hall to throw bread balls in, and otherwise enjoy the Milton marathon, no Library to sleep in.

The U.C. Union and Wymilwood are jammed to the doors at lunch hour, and the dietitians are ready to tear their hair at the growing problem of how they are going to expand their facilities to accommodate their clientele.

The gymnasium equipment is pitiful. In this day and age when the need of physical culture and athletic development is recognized and acknowledged, even given prominence over academic training in some instances, the fact that the University of Toronto has not a gymnasium big enough to accommodate classes for its women students in compulsory physical training, is shameful. Teams have to go about the city begging to be allowed to practise in larger gyms. Anyone gazing into the vast depth of the deep end of the Lillian Massey tank would consider it passing strange that more of the coeds who use it do not appear with more than the necessary quota of physiognomous bumps upon their noble brows.

The need for executive offices for University organizations was particularly noticeable this fall, when the Women's Varsity staff had to be ejected from their old quarters, because University College needed the space. Another room in U.C. was finally found.

The women undergraduates go to the trouble of holding inane bridge parties, selling Christmas cards, and hosiery which no one wants to buy, to raise funds so that their successors may have a Heartbreak House. The requisition for the necessary expenditure, however, rests in higher hands, and it is therefore to them, that we appeal.

Editor—

"The Varsity",

Dear Sir:—

I feel called upon to object most seriously and strenuously against the sentiments expressed by "Bachelor Button" and before that by Professor Rogers of the Massachusetts Technical College. I am very glad that "Bachelor Button" spoke of the "straightforward attitude that men ought to have" because I very much doubt if they have it; besides that, admitting for the moment, that some do use "wily means of getting what they want", why do they? Simply because they have to. Men will not admit women on an equal basis and will not respond if a woman uses a man's tactics.

As for the remark that children and especially boys, should not be taught by women, I suppose Mr. Button feels it too bad that it is the mothers who bring up the children until they are of school age at least. I'm afraid most men don't agree with that statement—at any rate, I haven't noticed any husbands who are willing even to help with the youngsters, much less take the whole responsibility.

As far as I can see, Prof. Rogers contradicts himself several times during his article. He states that the women teachers were "competent in detail", but weak on "critical examination". He also says they are "rigidly idealistic", and in the same sentence that they stress "application" and repeats this last idea, two paragraphs down.

Also, the trouble usually is thought to be that the young people of to-day think too much and that all their why's and wherefore's develop a cynical attitude. As for criticism being "constructive", what is the use of tearing down if there is no intention of reconstructing? A man doesn't tear down his old barn unless he intends to build a new one immediately.

In contradiction to the fact that the effeminate thinking of to-day, which I do not think exists, is due to the women teachers, I would like to point out that most of the lecturers in the universities are men, to say nothing of the teachers in the larger collegiate institutes. But, of course, when men try to disparage the women, or blame them for imaginary wrongs, they always contradict themselves and get in so deep they can't even swim out.

Yours feelingly,

Daisy,

Editor—

"The Varsity",

Dear Sir,—

Usually I find quite an amount of importance in your paper, but your issue of October 14, showed that you had made an abrupt departure from what has hitherto been a consistent policy—in printing a rather pathetic letter written over the pseudonym "Bachelor Button".

In his epistle "Bachelor Button" stated that "women have not the straightforward attitude that men ought to have." Sorry, old top, but you don't know your women!

In spite of this fact, he contends, "a woman, as we all know, uses wily means of getting what she wants". And how about Adam, Mr. Editor? If I do not acknowledge that women are wily, but, even if they were, the sin is less despicable and more easily atoned for than pusillanimity. "The woman Thou gavest me!"

We assume from the second paragraph of his letter that Bachelor Button is a married man with family responsibilities (at this we should resign but shall continue). We should judge he is allowing, think of it! actually allowing his "boys" to grow up under the guidance of feeble feminine faculties—that of his wife, undoubtedly! Using the letter as a measure of his intellect I think even he could make a deep apple pie.

Taking it all in all, the question cannot but arise in my mind, "Has Bachelor Button gone through the mill of feminine teachers"? If so—does he consider he has acquired the so-called feminine viewpoint? If not, how does he know such a thing exists? I make no apologies for writing over a pseudonym—an appropriate one.

Thanking you for the loan of your correspondence column, I am,

Yours truly,

U.C. '31.

because they are simply ignorant of the subject."

"Would you advocate the admission of women into the men's political clubs," "The Varsity" inquired.

"No, it wouldn't work out," replied Miss Doran. "We would only spoil the fun for the men."

Miss Katherine Crowe, Hf U.C. was the only co-ed to favour the movement. "I think," she said, "that women ought to be informed on the subject, especially if they live in residence where they are away from the guidance of watchful fathers and brothers."

"There has been no serious thought of ever admitting women to the MacDonald-Carter Club," said B. D. Beamish, one of its most prominent members, when interviewed by "The Varsity" on the subject of political clubs for co-eds. "But," he continued, "if they were remotely suspected that any serious-minded young women of the university desired to have that privilege extended to them, the matter would be given grave consideration."

Mr. Beamish admitted that, at most, only 150 men of the university were sufficiently interested to avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the two undergraduate political clubs, and strongly doubted the possibility of keeping a separate women's club afloat. The MacDonald-Carter Club, he said, is closely affiliated with the Conservative Association which supplies speakers and which, perhaps, might not take the women's club seriously.

WOMEN'S INTERFACULTY TENNIS FINALS PROMISE CLOSE BATTLE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Fast play and keen enthusiasm have marked the Women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament, of which the final play-offs are scheduled for to-day. Sixty-eight entrants started off in the hope of making the Vic team, and freshies have been well to the fore in all colleges. It looks as though tennis is making a strong bid for the favour of co-ed athletes and as though many fine players will have developed for next year's bout. All that could be wished for now is a larger turnout at the games.

Women's track activities have been too few to attract much attention as yet, but this is less for lack of ambition than lack of space. Under Miss Coventry's direction some of the diploma classes have been taking limited work in this field, but the poor facilities have presented set-backs. Until better equipment is arranged the women of U. of T. will have a hard time making headway in track or other athletics.

No relief is yet in sight for the two hundred and fifty U.C. women taking compulsory physical training who continue to exercise in hopelessly inadequate and inconvenient quarters. In the small gym at the Lillian Massey building and a class room at 81 St. George St., are held all the classes in the schedule below and also several special and diploma classes and basketball practices. Classes of fifty are common in the gym which is designed for about twenty. Meanwhile a hard-working staff, harassed students and ambitious teams try to produce winners under these conditions.

COLLEGES COMPETING IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Winner of Gray-Bateman Match Meets Bee Symons In The Finals

BRILLIANT TENNIS SHOWN

Playing for the right to enter the semi-final round of the women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament, Norma Bateman and Marjory Winspear played one of the most thrilling games of the tournament when Norma finally won out, but the score was 6-4, 8-10, 6-4.

The games were very thrilling; both girls were making many remarkable placements, and both were driving hard. Sometimes fifteen or twenty strokes were played before one would drive it out, usually by a matter of inches.

In the semi-final round, Bee Symons defeated Marion Boulby 6-3, 6-1. Bee played a wonderful game; her serves were accurately placed, and her drive steady. Marion played well also, and many of the games were close. Both played backhand shots repeatedly, and were remarkably sure in this respect.

Wednesday morning, Jessie Gray meets Norma Bateman and the winner of this match meets Bee Symons in the final.

The annual autumn tea for the alumnae and undergraduates of St. Joseph's College was held Tuesday afternoon in the reception rooms of the college. All were heartily welcomed by the Dean. The sophomores assisted at the tea hour and the party ended with dancing.

TEN TEAMS ENTERED IN WOMEN'S FACULTY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Household Science and U.C. Freshies Organize Teams For First Time

NO O.C.E. TEAM

Large Turnout in Junior Vic Occasioned By Coach Don Wood?

Women's basketball will be in full swing in three weeks when the interfaculty league will get under way.

There will be ten teams in the league this year, with one group of four teams, and two groups of three teams each. For the first time in years O.C.E. is not entering a team. This is rather a blow, for the budding school teachers have always had good teams and will be greatly missed.

Two new teams are entered this year. U.C. is putting in a freshie squad as well as the juniors and seniors, and Household Science has organized a team for the first time. This is an innovation, as Household Science girls have always played for the college in which they were enrolled.

An interesting feature is that practically all the teams have women coaches this year. However, Junior Vic has secured the services of Don Wood, of rugby fame. It has been rumoured that Junior Vic has an unusually large turnout at practices!

At this early date it is hard to tell just which teams will be strongest, for of course the calibre of the freshies is an unknown quantity, but Junior U.C. looks like the "best bet". This team won the interfaculty title last year and most of the championship players are out again as well as some promising looking freshies.

In Wilma Hazlitt and Louise Crouch Junior U.C. has the best pair of forwards at Varsity, and the defence should be very strong with such players as Betty Thomas, Lorraine Harvey, Jean Allen, Mary Lackie and Mary Ainsley to choose from. Betty Thomas is a brilliant guard and could make a place on any team.

Senior Vic will be right in the running too, and will have a strong forward line with Eleanor Sedgewick, intercollegiate star, Helen Hilliard, Helen Beal and Willa Mahoney. If Vic can get a good defence together, the other teams will certainly have to step to beat them.

It will be remembered that St. Hilda's reached the finals last year. Bea Symons and Sally Ballard will again be at forward, and should be much steadier with an additional year's experience behind them. Fran Crooks, who starred on the intercollegiate hockey team last winter, will probably replace Barbara Bridge at jumping centre. The Saints have been coming right ahead the last two seasons, and this may be their big year.

Litowitz will alternate in the flying wing position, Fear will take a middle berth, while Henry will start at snap. Prior to last Saturday's game "Bernie" Hodggets was elected captain by his team-mates. "Bernie" is the kicking half of the team and Butler teams up well on the half line. Mgr. Geo. Belton will lead his team into the agriculturist metropolis to-day. They leave Hart House at noon. A victory will give them the group title. It developed that their circuit was composed of only two teams when the other squads dropped out of the league.

STILL CAUSES ALARM

ed the exact conditions of Robinson's disappearance. Jack had left his brother Howard in his room while he went to the rugby game, and at his return his brother was not in evidence. At first this excited no concern, but when his absence continued until late in the evening, and it was discovered that he had left unfinished a suit he was pressing in the pressing room, and went out without his hat or overcoat, friends began to feel anxiety for the safety of their departed housemate. There was no way of accounting for this apparently hurried and sudden departure.

The two friends who have hardly slept for three days were unable to throw any more light upon the case than any of the others connected with it. "A complete mystery," "We cannot explain it at all," "All we can do is wait and hope." "We don't know what minute we may go into his room and find him lying in his bed." "We have as much reason for expecting him to return in the next half hour as we have in the next 24." were some of the remarks made by the two.

Describing their friend as temperamentally the very opposite from rash the two young men were shocked at the thought that his mysterious disappearance might be attributed to any abnormal characteristics of temperament. They described him as a jovial sort, and judged him as not at all addicted to worrying or brooding. He was of the athletic type and last year played on the Victoria College soccer and water polo teams.

It was not known whether he had money with him or not. "At least," his friends said, "he couldn't have had a great deal."

Hot Sons of Suffering Gather And Wreak Their Mighty Will

By C. L. Coburn

And upon the Night of Emancipation there gathered in the Hall of Feasting a mighty assembly. First came those who were known as Suffer-Mores, for even as they had suffered, did others suffer more, garbed in black and bearing trumpets; and after them many Ancients, hoary-headed and wise in their knowledge. Lastly came a multitude of Paposes of both sexes, those who were to be chastened, garbed in white and bearing their golden banners.

And the Suffer-Mores and Paposes strove mightily to deafen each other with the volume of their cries, shouting on the one side "Poor Frosh!", and on the other, "Dirty Sophs!" And great was the tumult thereof.

Now there were those of the Suffer-Mores who had lain in ambush to take the Big Chief of the Paposes, and they had taken him and had stripped from him his proper garments and had arrayed him in motley. And now did they produce him and did return him to his mates, that all might gaze and take warning to control the volume of their utterances.

But there were also those of the Paposes who had fallen upon a mighty Suffer-More, even he who was to direct the course of events, and had borne him away and had bedaubed him in jest with the insignia of his kind, and would also have exposed him to great ridicule, but that his comrades hid him to his rescue and did snatch him from the arms of his captors to bear him in secret to a place of safety.

And now did certain of the Suffer-Mores attempt to cast ridicule upon the Paposes, gilding the yellow lily, and did present certain scenes from the life of one Castor Bean, a prominent bearer of the golden banner. And to amuse those who attended, some of the Suffer-Mores did ape women in their dress and manner, and others did likewise ape certain of the Men-tors.

Still others did attire themselves in flowing robes of gaudy hue and did perform various acrobatic evolutions in the manner of bears doing eurythmics, so that the bystanders did laugh themselves into a state of nausea at their curious antics. And yet others did portray themselves as female songsters, which task they did right well, but that their vocal organs were not quite perfectly suited to it. Four men were there also of the Ancients who did with fantastic whimsy sing psalms to the praises of some of the Paposes, detailing the events which had made them great and famous.

Finally were these ceremonies completed, and the Paposes and Suffer-Mores did regale themselves together on fruits and pastries and on intoxicating wines in sign of the emancipation of the Paposes, wherefrom were many confined to their beds for many hours as a result of their excessive dissipations.

MELITA MEN FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

Montreal, October 11th, 1929—Long famous for its prowess on the field of association football the team of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita gathered fresh laurels Wednesday when they were presented with the Seamen's Football Championship Cup donated for annual competition by Walter Brooks, Montreal sportsman.

During the summer the Melita team, an offshoot of the successful Social and Athletic Club of the ship of which Captain A. Stewart, the commander, is Honorary President, played seven cup games, winning them all for an aggregate of 41 goals. One game was defaulted to the victorious Scotsmen. Teams met and defeated included the Duchess of York and Montrose of the Canadian Pacific and the Antonia and Albania.

The Cup has been placed in the Cabin Lounge of the ship replacing a former championship trophy which, won outright last year, will be given to the Captain at the next general meeting of the Club.

All members of the football team, which is captained by Martin Hunt, Third Class Steward, are lower deck ratings from all departments of the ship. They played nearly forty games during the season, of which only two were lost and one drawn.

Although the Melita, which sailed yesterday morning for Glasgow and Belfast, will make one more trip to Montreal this year, its football activities have been brought to an end until next season.

Magrath, Chairman of the Joint Waterways Commission and Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, will be the speaker at the first meeting of the Foreign Affairs Club for this term on Thursday, Oct. 17 at 8 p.m. in Hart House. All undergraduates interested are invited to attend. This will also be an organization meeting.

JR. SCHOOL WATER POLO

in 1st and 2nd forms.

The most extensive, though possibly one of the most useful of the options, "The Varsity" gathered, is the Commercial. This has been introduced into the winter course just this year, and in the 10 months' work will give the students training in a number of commercial subjects such as: typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, filing. The specialist work is not offered this year. Major Bennett stated to "The Varsity" the value of this course for equipping commercial teachers for Collegiates could not be over-emphasized.

On Subject's
"Pet Bug"

"If I were starting all over again, I'd still be in newspaper work," said Mr. John Leary, Jr., addressing the University Press Club's first luncheon meeting in Hart House yesterday. Mr. Leary, an old hand at the newspaper game, and at present the labor expert and special correspondent for the New York World, is visiting Toronto in connection with the convention being held here by the American Federation of Labor.

"I've had forty years' experience in newspaper work," said Mr. Leary, "and in that time I've travelled pretty well all over the world. I've had quite a bit of fun, and I think I've been of a little service in the world; after all, service is the measure of a man's worth."

Mr. Leary stated that a certain amount of academic training is invaluable to a newspaper man. A strong foundation of English and history, especially modern history, he considered vitally important, and after that a working knowledge of economics. He also believed that some knowledge of the rules of evidence would be very helpful, as they consist chiefly of common sense.

COURSE IN DRAMA ADDED BY U. OF T.

Will Be Under Supervision of Department of Extension

PRODUCTION OF PLAYS

An extension course in Modern Drama is the latest addition to the syllabus of the Department of University Extension; and, according to Mr. Edgar Stone of Hart House Theatre, it is hoped that it will prove so successful that it may be ultimately raised to the dignity of a full-time day course in the regular Arts curriculum.

"For some years," states the announcement, "this Department has conducted lecture course in Modern Drama. It is now proposed to elaborate this course by a more extensive lecture programme and practical instruction in the production of plays, particularly the plays prescribed for Pass and Honour Matriculation." The course will be divided into the following parts: History of the Drama; Play Production; Acting and Play Directing. Mr. H. A. Voaden, M.A., is the director of the course, part of which will be held in the East Hall of University College and part in Hart House Theatre.

Vast Throng Honours MacDonald Education Topic of His Speech

Promotes Peace Among English Peoples

USE OF LEISURE

Express Gratitude For Honour

Over 3,000 people saw the Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, receive the degree of Doctor of Laws, in Convocation Hall yesterday afternoon. Long before the ceremony began the hall was filled and both city and University police turned away disappointed hundreds. The dignitaries made a colourful procession as they filed in draped in the robes of their respective Alma Mater. The notes of the organ died away and Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University rose to introduce the Premier. He referred glowingly to the latter's efforts toward world peace. "Nothing is more important to Mr. MacDonald," said the president, "than the promotion of goodwill among the English speaking people of the world."

Then arose Chancellor Sir William Millock, still hale and hearty at eighty. He also referred to Mr. MacDonald's efforts to prevent war and then came the impressive words: "I therefore take great pleasure in obeying the dictum of the Senate of the University of Toronto in conferring on you the degree of Doctor of Laws." The Labour Premier arose, the hood was slipped over his head and he iscribed his name in the golden book. Then Mr. MacDonald, as the youngest graduate of the University of Toronto, accepted the Chancellor's invitation to address the assembly:

"Even though I have received this degree," said Mr. MacDonald, "I fear I could not stand an examination, for I have never had the privilege of a university education." This fact never seemed a handicap in the Premier's speech for his varied references showed him to be much more widely read than many a college graduate. He spoke wistfully of his vanished youth and gave his advice as Autumn telling expectant April what has passed in the heat of summer. He is a natural orator, and his marvelous cadences of voice could be listened to for their own sake, even if his subject was ever dull. "The greatest problem of youth," Mr. MacDonald said, "is how to use its leisure. Keep in touch with age and never lose that intangible sense of the beauties and choice of life. Having delivered by apologies pro mea vita I shall close by expressing my thanks and happiness that you have conferred this degree on me." The organ pealed out "God Save the King", and the building rocked with repeated "Toronto's". The last that was seen of the university's youngest and most distinguished graduate was a top-hatted gentleman being whisked away in a shiny Packard.

Rhodes Scholarships

The attention of the students of the university is drawn to the fact that applications for the two Rhodes Scholarships to be awarded in 1929 should be submitted not later than November 1st to Mr. D. R. Michener, 372 Bay St., Toronto. Application forms may be obtained at the Registrar's Office, Simcoe Hall, or from Mr. Michener.

Information regarding the Rhodes Scholarship may be found on pages 86-89 inclusive of the Arts calendar.

Directory Data

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press, and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

CHANGES COMING IN TORONTONIENSIS

Large Increase in Number of Pictures and Wider Circulation Promised Now

"CAMPUS LIFE" RETURNS

The staff of Torontoniensis will strive to make this year's edition a bigger and better annual. "It is our intention," said R. C. H. Mitchell, B.A., editor-in-chief, "to continue the policy inaugurated during the editorship of W. A. Higgins, that is to brighten the policy of the magazine by the inclusion of numerous pictures, and by broadening its scope. It is to be a year book of the university in general as well as of the graduates. The Campus Life department will be revived, and the art work, to which special attention is being paid, will be of the highest quality. We are going to present a record of university events by means of pictures, but no photo that has appeared in a previous issue will be used again. Two colours will be used in some cases to make the book more attractive. Our biographies will be as long as those of last year's edition."

Mr. Mitchell hinted that A. Gordon Burns, business manager of Torontoniensis, had special plans with regard to the circulation. "An increased circulation will assist our budget," he remarked.

Copies of Torontoniensis will be ready for distribution before the S.P.S. annual exams begin.

ATHLETIC OFFICE BANS USE OF POOL GALLERY

Lack of Consideration Has Made Step Necessary

The gallery of the Hart House swimming pool will be henceforth closed to all university functions, with the exception of the Hart House Masquerade and the Athletic At-Home, according to a statement given to "The Varsity" by Mr. T. A. Reed, Secretary of the University of Toronto Athletic Association. "We have found it necessary to take this action owing to the fact that the gallery has been used for other purposes than sitting-out during affairs in Hart House," said Mr. Reed. Contrary to the rules against smoking, it has been found in the past after functions that cigarette stubs and rubbish had been thrown into the tank. This made it necessary to clean out the tank at considerable expense.

When asked whether any bottles had been found in the tank, Mr. Reed answered in the negative. Mr. Reed also informed "The Varsity" that he had heard nothing about a student diving into the tank at the last Masquerade with all his clothes on.

FAKE TICKETS DO NOT FOOL ALERT USHERS

Amplifiers Resemble The Dawn of the Talkies in

INDIGNATION ENSUES

By J. C. B.

Three attempts were made to enter Convocation Hall by means of fraudulent tickets, at the Convocation held yesterday. The first student, believed to have been from Pharmacy, showed a blue time-table at the door. He was turned away, blushing and chagrined. Another student attempted to bring a girl friend by folding his ticket to make it appear as two tickets. The ticket was taken, the girl admitted, but the escort turned out in the cold.

Only one attempt was successful. A blank piece of blue paper was discovered in the tickets, too late, however, to rectify the mistake.

The crowd came early and filed in. Although twelve hundred seats were available to students, according to official reports eighteen hundred tickets were distributed. When the house became filled the southeast doors were closed, leaving a noisy, disappointed crowd without.

That blue student tickets had been passed on to outsiders was evident. Portly fathers of families and sleek, well groomed business people stood in line with jostling students.

Enraged angry altercations. Indignant women demanded entrance, anxious to catch a glimpse of Britain's Premier. The uniformed guardian of university law and order carried on a heated argument in which all and sundry joined.

The Convocation procession bent its stately steps towards Convocation Hall.

"Atta boy, Mac," one over-familiar onlooker shouted.

The British Prime Minister turned and bowed with courtly dignity before proceeding within.

The two amplifiers, set high on the roof of Convocation Hall had scarcely sufficient volume to convey an adequate impression to the thousand or so listeners of the proceedings within the ceremonial hall. It was somewhat reminiscent of the dawn of the talkie-movies age, except that the stage was (Continued on page 4)

"Varsity" Distribution

Attention of readers is drawn to the fact that it is strictly against the rules to procure "The Varsity" by any other means than the regular channels of distribution. Great inconvenience has been caused by the Press of late by students endeavouring to obtain early copies from the press room. This practice must cease as not being in the best interests of the paper or the student body. Any complaints or advice concerning distribution should be addressed to the Managing Editor at the News Office or Mr. Gordon Burns at the S.A.C. Office. It will be greatly appreciated by the management if this request is observed.

MAGRATH TO DISCUSS WATERWAYS PROBLEM

Foreign Affairs Club Holds Meeting in Music
Room

ALL STUDENTS INVITED

C. A. Magrath, Chairman of the International Joint Waterways Commission and Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, will discuss the problem of the St. Lawrence Waterways development before the Foreign Affairs Club of the University of Toronto to-night, Thursday, at 8 p.m. in the Music Room of Hart House.

Mr. Magrath, both through his knowledge of the questions of government ownership and his past political experience, has acquired an international reputation in the business and diplomatic world. It is believed that he will shortly give up his duties with the Hydro Electric in order to devote his full time to the solution of the St. Lawrence Waterways problem.

The Foreign Affairs Club of the university was established two years ago under the initial guidance of N. A. MacKenzie of the Department of Law. It is not a closed organization but is open to all undergraduates or graduates who are interested in world politics. Meetings are held usually once a month or oftener when the executive is able to secure some prominent figure in national or international affairs to give a short talk.

UNIVERSITY SEAT IMPRACTICAL PLAN SAYS VARSITY DON

Lack of Sufficient Numbers
Makes the Scheme Difficult

CONTRAST WITH OXFORD

Other Universities Would Certainly Demand Similar Privileges

"I do not think that it is a practical plan as far as this university is concerned," said Professor A. Brady, when questioned regarding Tuesday's editorial on university representation in Parliament. The editorial suggested that the university have a representative in Parliament as is the custom at Oxford and Cambridge.

"At Oxford," said Professor Brady, "it is not so much a matter of student representation as it is the continuance of an old custom. Before the days of proportional representation, each borough sent two members to the House of Commons. With regard to Oxford and Cambridge, this practice has been maintained up to the present day, although by their registration they are not entitled to representation. There would be many difficulties, if it were attempted in Canada. We follow the doctrine of representation by population very closely. It would be difficult for the university to get a member to represent its 5,000 students when about 17,000 voters are required to make up a constituency. Then too, if the university of Toronto were to be represented in the House, other universities would feel entitled to a voice in the government also. This would lead to much confusion and disagreement. Aside from that, I do not believe the students would take to the idea."

CO-EDS AROUSED BY OFFICIAL BAN

Osgoode Hall Men Were Ungraciously Mistaken For "Refuse"

RAIO PLANNEO?

"Does the 'other refuse' mean Osgoode Hall men?" queried one co-ed who was present at the Hart House Masquerade last year. "I think the committee are being awfully mean in depriving us of our sitting-out place in the pool gallery," said another co-ed. Then, waxing rather sentimental, she went on to say that "no other place could be quite as romantic over in Hart House as that gallery and particularly when one used imagination as to the murmuring waters below." "Personally, I think it's rather a silly thing to do," stated one U.C. girl. "How would there be much refuse thrown into the pool? Did the committee mean the notorious Hart House laches?"

The passing of the swimming-pool gallery as a sitting-out place is regretted by every co-ed who has been to a Hart House dance and feeling seems to be running high on the subject.

"I think that we should all storm the gallery on Friday night," said two U.C. juniors, when interviewed by "The Varsity". "Perhaps if some valid reason were advanced we might not think so much about it, but to prohibit that gorgeous gallery for any silly reason at all, is too much for us."

THE YEAR BOOK

The Students' Administrative Council each May hands to the departing graduate that album of familiar faces and popular campus agitators known as Torontonensis. It is evident, of course, that there is a place for such a book; there are few colleges that do not produce one. It is also evident that this album should be as novel and as readable as the resources of the student body, and the ingenuity of the editors will permit.

This has not, unfortunately, been the case always in the past. Last year's Torontonensis, for example, was a sad production, from every point of view. True enough, we should be at some loss to go into critical details for there were no glaring errors to point at, beyond the criminal Latin in one of the faculty frontispieces. Nevertheless, on the whole, the volume as an example of typography, was on a par with the work of the average small-town press with limited craftsmen and limited resources.

Now, Toronto can undoubtedly offer the very best in printing; there is no reason why the year book of the university cannot partake of it. Nor is there any reason why the volume should not be of interest not only to the individual whose face appears therein, but to everyone who is interested in our university. This cannot be said to have been the case in the past. Biographies, to be sure, are statistical at the best; the society write-ups, on the other hand, can and should represent English of reasonable facility and accuracy. Take, for example, the following lyrical outburst:

"Lectures and labs were forgotten; cares were cast aside; even the horror of approaching exams was given but slight accommodation in the minds of the undergrads as three hundred couples tripped the light fantastic to the braying of trumpets, the sobbing of saxophones, the tinkling of pianos and the sighing of violins. The ballroom was magically transformed into a crater of human activity . . . ."

This appeared last year in connection with a social outburst in one of the faculties. Of course, we who go to college know about these things; but consider the effect on the outsider who may read this! It is agreed, we hope, that the editors will be expected to attend to faculty representatives who purpose handing in similar prose poems.

We quote elsewhere a statement from this year's editor of Torontonensis; he has had long experience in publishing at this university, and, as his career demonstrates, has had the interests of the students at heart at all times. If good intentions and technical knowledge were the only considerations, we feel sure that the coming volume would be a decoration and a credit to the university. But, as has occurred in the past, circumstances beyond the control of the editors are likely to reduce the standard of Torontonensis again to mediocrity. It will be possible to check the readability of write-ups, and see to general accuracy and novelty of features, but with inferior printing and engraving their efforts will largely be wasted. The editors of Torontonensis will have the support of all who are acquainted with the facts of the case in their efforts to achieve a volume set up as a year book of this university should be.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,—

It was with much surprise that I read in to-day's "Varsity" an unofficial announcement that the pool gallery is to be closed at all future Hart House dances. Such a step is, to say the least, regrettable: without an adequate sitting-out place, Hart House dances will lose much of their charm and moreover in the bigger functions as the masquerade, traffic congestion will be an even more deplorable feature than in past years, unless a smaller number of tickets is issued.

While admitting that the throwing of cigarette butts in the pool has been a regrettable feature of former social functions, yet it is very unfair to take such a drastic measure without decidedly more warning than has been given. To date very little has been done in the way of a public campaign against this nuisance; and now like a bolt from the blue we hear the gallery is to be closed. The majority are to suffer for the sins of a minority who are probably unaware of the seriousness of their offence. Would it not be advisable to permit the use of the gallery for the next few dances while at the same time extending fair

HART HOUSE THEATRE

No one entering the sanctum of sanctums at Hart House Theatre this year can fail to be impressed by the energy and earnestness of the new Director. He has been in close touch with the Theatre from its inception, has been associated with it during all its vicissitudes, and knows the most delicate details of its stormy career. No one realizes better than he does the several and conflicting opinions of the activities of Hart House Theatre held by those on the outside, and the various aspiring and conspiring cliques within.

There are those who claim that Hart House Theatre was conceived as an experimental theatre for the university and that with the passing of the years it has fallen from grace. That undergraduate interest and participation in backstage activities is now practically nil, nobody denies. Successive and varying successful regimes of directorship have gradually piled up a set of factions which have no connection with the university and very little interest in it.

Yet, one would find it difficult to defend the university's rights in the matter. She has been content to stand calmly by and watch the triumphs, the trials, the defeats of Hart House ideals and projects without so much as raising a finger. The fact that there are technical reasons for this attitude does not give anyone carte blanche to criticize the Theatre for keeping secret its method of casting and for creating the impression that it wishes to be regarded as a closed proposition. There are people in Toronto with long experience on the amateur and professional stage, only too glad to tread the Hart House boards. Increasingly the management has used these people, until now they constitute Hart House Theatre and the undergraduate is nowhere.

Now, states the Director, as quoted in yesterday's "Varsity": "We wish to do everything in our power to encourage undergraduate participation in the activities of Hart House Theatre." How is this to be done? The absolute sincerity of the Director is apparent. But what about the deus ex machina—the persistence of the present system and the people who feed on it? Is even a straightforward avowal of a change of policy enough? The people now in on the ground floor are admittedly more experienced and more efficient than any body of students could ever be. As long as university officials remain aloof, the management of the Theatre, as delegated by the Syndics, must be carried on with an eye to the best interests of the Theatre.

An item heralded by many as significant is the new course in Drama fostered by the Department of University Extension. But an extension course does not touch the undergraduates. Even if this course and its Hart House productions prove eminently successful, will the Governors feel disposed to add it to the regular curriculum?

One views the new policies of Toronto's Little Theatre with interest. Economy of operation and definite appeal to the box-office are decided departures. But there are numerous questions that remain to be answered. One has faith in the good intentions and the virility of the new regime. One wishes it the best of luck, but does not envy it its task.

Meanwhile Hart House Theatre presents an interesting programme for the coming season. Will undergraduates show their interest by their presence in the audience? If not, then special pleading in their behalf is become so much sounding of brass and tinkling of cymbals.

—A.E.F.A.

Seated comfortably in front of my typewriter, prepared to put in a good evening's work on my forthcoming monumental work—"Old-Elmism and Its Implications, or the Intelligent Freshette's Guide to Really Smart Society"—I was rudely interrupted by the arrival of the following telegram: GET INTERVIEW WITH GASPARD MCGUFFEY STOP ARRIVES FROM GREENLAND UNION STATION TEN, TEN STOP FOR ASTERISK SAKE MAKE THIS ONE INTERESTING STOP THE CHIEF.

C—C

As the Chief is a man whose command is not to be taken lightly, and as no discomfort is too great for us hardened old newspaper men when we are on the scent of a story, I seized a flare and dashed madly down to the Union Station.

C—C

I arrived just as the famous Ten-Ten Greenlander was belching forth its human cargo. I had no difficulty in recognizing the Great McGuffey, however, by the triangular wart over his left eye and the chunk of orange sticking plaster on his chin. I rushed forward, snatched the venerable Gladstone bag from his unwilling hands, and handed it to a porter.

C—C

"You, I presume, are the famous Penguinist, Gaspard McGuffey," quoth I in my usual impulsive manner. "I am Andre of the . . ."

C—C

"Oh . . ." broke in the Great Man, "so you are Andre! Well, let me tell you, my boy . . ."

C—C

"Have a sandwich," I interrupted, drawing dramatically from my pocket a delicious pork-and-bean sandwich done as only Andre's Pork-and-Bean Sandwich Shoppe can do sandwiches. With the same movement I extricated my note-book from the lining of my topcoat. And there, deep in the bowels of the Union Station, the following interview was held.

C—C

"Mr. McGuffey, you have just returned from your penguin farm, have you not?"

"My penguin farm in Greenland, yes."

"How did you find the penguin crop this year?"

"There has been a decided let-down in the prolificness of penguins this year. I may say, however, that never in the history of Greenland has there been such an increase in the supply of aiks and puffins as there has been this year."

"Oxen puffins, Mr. McGuffey?"

VARSITY JUNIORS CLINCH GROUP DEFEATING O.A.C.

Lou Carroll's Team Shows Smart Line Work And End Runs

SCORE 15-0

Forward Passing Produces One Touchdown For Blue and White

Varsity juniors annexed the group title by defeating O.A.C. yesterday 23-3. By having whitewashed the Aggies here last Saturday 15-0 the Blue and White hung up a 38-3 score on the round.

Lou Carroll's charges tore through the Aggie line in grand style, and their end runs had the opposing ends guessing. The forward pass although not used very much was successfully worked for one touch. Litowitz weaved his way through the Aggies and pulled off a spectacular run of 50 yards for a touch for the feature of the game.

JASPER'S FIRST SETTLERS

James Swift, the first settler of the Jasper valley, now a part of Jasper National Park, is still living within the park limits and his log home is one of the points of interest to visitors to the park.

The photograph shows Mr. and Mrs. Swift, the original pioneers. Towards the close of last century the Swifts built a log home near the base of Mount Pyramid, and year by year the settler brought in his stock from Edmonton over the long 235-mile trail. Beside the mountain he built a mill for grinding flour, planted his potato patch and grain fields and carved his furniture from the forest itself.

Until the coming of the railways, "Swift's place" was a landmark for all travellers. Here they were always sure of hospitality, a helping hand in every difficulty and a share in need of his often limited stores. Both Swift and his wife still live in the park.

Mrs. Swift is a highly intelligent woman from Lac Ste. Anne, a skillful worker in Indian embroidery and buckskin, and both she and her husband can tell exciting tales of early days along the famous trail which preceded the railway through the Yellow Head Pass of the Northern Rocky Mountains. — Canadian National Railways Photograph.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

At last night's practice at the stadium there were several notable absences from the Blue squad's line-up. And what makes it worse they were all backfield men. Jack Sinclair, Doug McFadyen and Bill Bell were the players not in uniform. Bell was ordered to take a much-needed rest, but both Sinclair and McFadyen are on the casualty list. Sinclair's ankle is causing a lot of trouble and it will keep him out of Saturday's game with McGill. McFadyen injured his knee so badly against Queen's that he is likely to be out of the game for two weeks at least. With Sinclair and McFadyen out of the line-up Varsity will be hard hit for backfield material to pit against the Red and White. Bell, Hallam and Davey will be available for backfield duty and it is possible that Johnny Fitzpatrick may be asked to use his speed to help out the stricken Blue reguard.

* * *

This is going to be a big week-end for Varsity in the way of sports attractions. The intercollegiate tennis tournament is being held to-day, Friday and Saturday at the Toronto Tennis Club and the Blue and White team composed of Martin, Noyes, Holmes and Musgrave stand an excellent chance of retaining the title won last year. To-morrow the Senior Intercollegiate Track Meet takes place at the stadium and the Blue and White team, captained by Bill Finlayson, appear considerably more powerful than last year and ought to retrieve the championship which McGill won last year. Then of course, there is the big game with McGill on Saturday afternoon. And this game should be a fitting climax to a full week-end of intercollegiate sport offerings. With Varsity under strength due to injuries the Blue will have to show their best efforts to defeat these battling Redshirts from McGill.

Victoria Trample U.C.

Plenty of Fumbles

Victoria tramped over University College to the tune of 24-0 in their Mubek Cup fixture yesterday, and but for a plethora of fumbled balls, might easily have won by an even larger score. The U.C. lads fought gamely, but displayed a lack of organization which left them at the mercy of Victoria's heavier line, and the Vic men made imposing gains on the majority of their thrusts through the line. U.C. halves kicked well, but were smothered by the aggressive Vic tackling whenever they attempted to run back a punt.

The line-ups:—

University College—Snap, Beaurepierre; insides, Harrington and Holmes; middles, Spence and Ayres; ends, Collingwood and Cook; flying wing, Keith; quarter, Davies; halves, Ward, McGibbon and Bell; alternates, Holton, Wilson, Styner, Fleming, Griffiths, Young.

Victoria — Snap, Doyle; insides, Clarke and Lindsay; middles, Searle and Witzel; ends, Hage and Ferguson; flying wing, Hutton; quarter, Vaughan; halves, Buchanan, Addison and Hunt; alternates, De Mille, Willis, Fletcher, Carson, Dewitte, Wylie, Gregory, Leask.

INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET AT STADIUM FRIDAY

Toronto, With Strong Team, Hopes to Regain Title

On Friday the Intercollegiate Track Meet will be held at the Varsity Stadium. Because this meet is to be held this year in Toronto, a great deal of enthusiasm has been stirred up. Although some of the times at the Inter-faculty meet were a little slow due to the cold weather, much is expected of the Toronto team.

In the sprints, Ralph Adams, a member of Canada's 1928 Olympic Team, has been making some good times in trials. Adams will have as his running mate Bill Finlayson. Finlayson is an experienced track and field man and this year is track captain. The fact that the "100" was won in 10 seconds flat augurs well for Varsity's chances.

COLLEGE TENNIS TOURNAMENT BEGINS HERE TO-DAY

Fine Field of Players Expected At Intercollegiate Meet

MARTIN ON TEAM

McGill Will Have Much Stronger Line-Up On Hand This Year

The Intercollegiate tennis tournament begins on Thursday on the courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, Price Street. This is always one of the big Canadian tournaments, and this year it is expected to have a fine field of players. Last year at Kingston Varsity won the singles and doubles mainly through the efforts of Walter Martin and Don Gunn, and the team won the team championship.

The team which has been selected to represent the Blue and White is Walter Martin, Hartley Holmes, Bill Noyes and Bill Musgrave. Walter Martin is the present holder of the singles title of Varsity and is also intercollegiate champion. In addition he is ranked No. 6 in Canada. Martin will no doubt make a strong bid to retain his title and many critics are already picking him as the man to beat for the title. He is playing very steadily and his strokes are much more accurate than they have been.

The tournament will be played on Thursday, Friday and Saturday on the Toronto Tennis Club courts, and the draw for each day's play will appear in "The Varsity".

JR. MEDS TRIM JR. U.C. GRAHAM'S RUN FEATURE

Jr. Meds defeated Jr. U.C. yesterday 12 to 2. The game was much as the score indicates. Meds being much superior. In the first period Graham of the Meds made a beautiful forty-five yard run for a touchdown. Haas of U.C. did some good kicking, but many of his kicks were blocked, due to the weakness of the line. In the third period Bright made a try on a blocked kick, and his plunging was very outstanding during the whole game.

Line-ups:—

Jr. Meds—Snap, Kermant; insides, Miller and Anderson; middles, Walker and Clark; quarter, Reid; halves, Knight, Freifeld, McAlpine; flying wing, Hoar; subs, Cohen, Hogg, Cross, Dreyer, Engel.

Jr. U.C.—Snap, Nugent; insides, Tate and Cameron; middles, Vaughan Thompson, Barber and Gibbs; halves, Lakner, Murley, Graham, Merritt, Bailey; subs, Mather, Culham, Noble and Bright.

Johnny Fitzpatrick intended to run, but he is needed for football, and will not compete. Connolly and Smith are both good men in the 440. Connolly, who did the quarter in 52, was closely followed by Smith. The half mile will be looked after by Gord Jernum and Carm King. These men are experienced men and should give the McGill and Queen's representatives a stiff fight for the honours. Don Smith of Humber College, showed the way to the rest of the field in the mile at the Interfaculty meet. Wally Graham and Smith will represent the U.C. at this distance.

Jessie Gray Enters Finals Of Women's Tennis Tourney

Jessie Gray and Norma Bateman had a great game Wednesday morning in the semi-final round of the Women's Tennis Tournament. Jessie won in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2, but the play was much closer than the score would indicate. Almost every game went to deuce two or three times, and several times during the match there were long and brilliant rallies. Jessie seemed a trifle surer of her backhand shots than did Norma and she won several points on her remarkable backhand placements.

To-day's Weather

A new feature is presented in to-day's issue of "The Varsity" for the convenience of its readers, in the form of a brief weather forecast, which will appear every day.

The Table Round

Mr. C. F. Andrews writes of Mahatma Gandhi as a disciple of the prophet in the leading article of the current issue of "The Canadian Student", that brave little "Venturer in Opinion", which has done so much to bind together the National Association of the Student Christian Movement.

Miss Lois E. Girvan, Miss Shelda M. Henderson, Mr. Nathaniel Benson and many other staff writers of "The Varsity" have contributed in previous years to the "Student" for the University of Toronto undergraduates write most of the articles.

Commencing its twelfth year as a medium of expression for student ideas, the "Student" has not yet felt "the winds that blow chill and melancholy upon the editors of forward literary reviews and left wing magazines". T.J.K.

The relative value of brains and beauty to those of the fair sex who seek success is discussed in the contribution which we print below. While we do not agree with all the statements of the writer, we do not hesitate to endorse the general attitude.

P.E.U.

"It is my opinion," says a well known writer, "that upon intelligence alone the girl or woman of the immediate future will depend for success."

What then will become of the young flappers who preach that brains is the beauty of age and that their looks will "pull them through"? They will not attain success socially or professionally for everywhere intelligence will mark the outstanding one.

A high mental average is being asked of our young women no matter what their vocation. A pretty face will no longer supply lack of efficiency. How is one to procure this superabundant amount of intelligence? Certainly by education, but many educated people lack it because they have not looked upon study as a refining art, but merely as a means to an end. They do not believe that good looks are like "blossoms in the garden of thought". They scan them, note their important points, but will not trouble to look upon the writer as a being of flesh and blood, a man to be studied through his works.

A few minutes of good reading every day will do more to produce beauty of face and expression than any amount of powder, rouge or lip stick.

Special Convocation and Monkeys Greatly Distress Bunkley Shuter

By N. J. DeWitt

As ye scribe approached Mr. Bunkley Shuter, it was evident that all was not well with our genial representative to the lyric and ambrosial atmosphere of the university. The most popular pan in town, one noticed, was quite bruised. It looked furmistic in its tones of blue and yellow.

"What," we asked genially, "happened?"

"I was in it," said Bunkley, with a merry twinkle.

"In what?" we pursued, "the smash-up?"

"The Convocation," snapped Bunkley, with a revealing flash of that power that marked him as a scion of the times.

"But how," we pestered further, "did you get marked up?"

"It was like this," said Bunkley, "a great man was given a degree. The place where it was done holds 1,800 people. And as there were over 5,000 students in the university, it was necessary to invite 600 people from outside to fill the place up. So that the students who stayed outside might feel at home, just as if they were in lectures, loud speakers were installed. . . . ."

"But your face?" we asked, gently but firmly, in the sad, but cynical style that is evidently to be characteristic of the Borealis.

"Oh," came back Bunkley, "that was a little journalistic venture of mine. There is a tree near the university—"

"What kind of a tree?"

"An old elm. A lot of monkeys play around in it and heave nuts about—"

"Is that what happened to you?"

"No. I tried to climb up among them, but I refused to eat asparagus salad. . . . ."

"But your face . . . ?"

"One of the bunnies hit me with a boot."

"But a boot wouldn't ruin your face."

"This one had a foot in it."

"Oh!"

"Then I had a falling-out, and this is the result . . . But life is like that . . . according to Paul, in his Second Epistle to St. Gilbert . . . ."

BULLETIN BOARD

"The Varsity" cannot be responsible for notices for this column unless they are typewritten and handed in at "The Varsity" Offices before six o'clock. Executives are reminded that Bulletin Board notices can be given only one insertion. These should be planned in order that too long a time may not elapse between insertion of notice and date of event.

U.C. MEN ATTENTION

President—H. Gillin (acclamation)

Vice-Pres.—E. Dowdell (acc.)

Ath. Rep.—J. Caldecane.

II Year—

President—F. R. Anderson

Vice-Pres.—M. Doherty (acc.)

III Year—

Vice-Pres.—G. Gallagher

C. J. Daly was elected as second representative to the S.A.C. This vacancy was created by the award last year to St. Michael's of a second seat on the S.A.C. The choice of a representative was confined to third year.

VARSITY RUGGER SQUAD MEETS BRITONS SATURDAY

The two Varsity rugger teams have been practising new tactics this week and the Blue squad will need all its cunning to defeat the British Public Schools team next Saturday at the Oakwood Stadium. This city team has a first-class backfield who are hard men to stop.

To-day the first game of Interfacial rugger ever seen at Varsity will be played on the Front Campus at 5.15. The Meds who have challenged the combined forces of S.P.S. and Arts, will have a strong three-quarter line. The teams will be:

Meds—Fullback, Campbell; three-quarters, Goldenberg, (captain), McLean, Lee, Archbold; halves, Bagges, Elms; forwards, Brown, Garner, Tel-

BASKETBALL PRACTICE

All those who wish to try out for any of the three university basketball teams, senior, intermediate and junior, are requested to turn out on Monday, Oct. 21, at 5 p.m. in the big gym. Any player who cannot attend this practice is requested to report on Wednesday at 5 o'clock.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE BASKETBALL

PAINTINGS BY COTTON NOW IN SKETCH ROOM

Former Torontonians Returns After Absence of Seventeen Years

After an absence of seventeen years Mr. J. W. K. Cotton, prominent artist and old Torontonian, has returned from California. His paintings are this week displayed in the Hart House Sketch Room.

The exhibit, comprising oils, aquatints and etchings, shows the influence exerted upon him by his Californian surroundings. He combines the vivid colouring of Modernistic art with the serenity of the Conservative School. A feeling of optimism is very prevalent in all his efforts and he has been more than successful in portraying the sunshine beauty and colour so sought for by his school.

denation and fair play to both sides of a question.

After the luncheon, Mr. Leary spent some time answering and discussing questions put to him by those present.

Discussing the technique of interviewing, he advised reporters to play up any "private bug" or personal habit of the subject. He explained that when interviewing an American tobacco magnate in London, he asked him for "a plug of good old American chewing tobacco."

Asked a question concerning the relative political power of the A.F. of L. in the States and the Labor Party in England, Mr. Leary said, "The A. F. of L. is not a political body, we have no political ambitions, and we are in much stronger condition than the British Trade Unions. Here's an illustration that explains why we don't go into politics. Did you ever see a man try to chase two rabbits at once?"

At one point in the discussion Mr. Leary paid a high tribute to Toronto, which has so often been called the "Unfriendly City". "When I come to Canada I'm really a foreigner," he said, "but I feel as much at home in Toronto as I do in New York."

Mr. Leary also presented several interesting and intimate angles on the business built up by Henry Ford, the present situation of the British Trade Unions, and other questions of interest to the members of the Press Club. At the conclusion of his visit, he was taken on a tour through Hart House.

"There will be, I think, a decided change in the supply of penguins. It is up to us to see that the market demand for anks and puffins is increased accordingly. I am of the firm belief that there is nothing which a penguin can do which an ank or a puffin cannot do equally well."

"Do you wish to make any statement Mr. McGuffey, as to the moral standards and the family life of the penguins?"

"There has been a good deal of tommyrot broadcast in the press regarding a supposed lowering of the moral tone among penguins. I should like to state here that I regard this as unmitigated bunk. Your penguin is a citizen who would be a credit to any community. Nor, I may safely say, would he have any cause to dread—as so many of our smug suburbanites do—the scurrilous attacks of that filthy scandal sheet, 'Hash'."

"What is your attitude to the liquor question, Mr. McGuffey?"

"I hope you will pardon me. I have just remembered a most important engagement with a prospective client. Eh—perhaps you know him . . . Mr. Redd McDrapper of the Queen's Park McDrapers?"

LIMITED ENROLMENT MAY BE INSTIGATED ACCORDING TO DEAN

Questionnaire Being Circulated
To All Women Graduates
Of Victoria

RESULTS SENT TO SENATE

Quality of Future Ministers
Now Being Lowered By Overcrowding

Victoria College will limit the number of students registering there, if the suggestion of prominent undergraduate bodies is put into effect.

The women's class of '28 have sent a questionnaire to all women graduates of Victoria College. This questionnaire, which gives the facts of over-registration of Victoria, especially with regard to women students, states the case for limitation of registration.

There are 183 women registered in Victoria College freshman year, according to the figures given, which is a 48 per cent. increase over that of last year. There are in Victoria College 520 women registered and 274 men.

The questionnaire calls attention to the fact that the quality of the men entering the ministry is being lowered, that student activities are being strained by over-crowding, and that residence accommodations are heavily over-taxed.

The results of the questionnaire will be compiled into statistics and sent to the Senate of Victoria College in the form of a recommendation.

A petition is now being circulated amongst the women students of Victoria, requesting that registration of women be limited. Most of the upper classes have signed this and it is expected that the lower classes will follow suit.

A questionnaire has also been sent out to all women of the first year asking why each came to Victoria College. The three predominant reasons, according to results, are that Victoria has the reputation of being the friendliest college, that it is a small college and that it has no sororities.

DR. J. C. McLENNAN SPEAKS AT M. AND P.

Narrow Attitude Towards The French - Canadians
Deplored

"The lack of facilities for teaching conversational French in the schools of Ontario and the narrow attitude towards the French Canadians are to be deplored," said Dr. J. C. McLennan, speaking at the first meeting of the Mathematics and Physics Club held this year. Dr. McLennan was Canada's first representative to the International Commissions on weights and measures, at which there were noted men from the chief countries of the world, and at which French was used as the common language.

In his speech Dr. McLennan gave a very interesting account of the laboratory conducted by the Commission and how all measures were compared with the standard meter. He then outlined the chief features of his trip through Europe and through South Africa.

Around seventy-five members were present and at the conclusion five new officers were elected to complete the executive:

3rd year Rep.—Jack Smyth
2nd year Rep.—Carl Ament
Rec. Sec.—Alice Watson
1st year Rep.—Elsie Owmán, Carmen Naylor

New Wing Mooted

Last night through unofficial channels, "The Varsity" was informed that it had been decided to duplicate the present university library facilities by the addition of a wing to the building now used. The plans are at present being drawn up. The new accommodation has been made necessary by the evident inadequacy of the facilities.

PHONE CALL RESULTS IN NEAR FATALITY

Co-Ed Loses Track of Time
And Finds U.C. Halls
Deserted

Last evening about six o'clock the Hall Porter's phone at Hart House shrilled suddenly and on lifting the receiver from the hook he heard a quavering feminine voice say, "I'm locked in U.C., please do something!" Sam Cheney, who was on duty, rose nobly to the occasion, "I'll do what I can miss, keep a stout heart," he answered.

He immediately tried to get in touch with the university police, but finally established connections with Ned, the night-watchman, who has keys to all the buildings. Ned promised to release the young lady at once, but the Hall Porter found on phoning the Warden's office that Mr. A. B. Fennel, the Acting Registrar, had already heard of the co-ed's cruel plight and rushed to her rescue.

Later "The Varsity" got in touch with Mr. Fennel, who stated that as he was in the Warden's office when the word came through and having a key to U.C. he had immediately let the young lady out. She explained to him that she had been phoning, and had not noticed the passage of time, and on coming out of the phone booth found the halls of U.C. dark and deserted.

DES CHAMPS DEPRECATES YOUTHFUL TENDENCIES

Young People Put Amusement Before Serious Studies
Says Professor

Miss Kathleen Sutton, the president of the French Society of University College, who has lately returned from studying abroad, opened the first meeting held last night, with a short address thanking the members for their choice of her as president, and extended a hearty welcome to the freshmen.

The ice was broken when Monsieur des Champs, gave an amusing account of the old modern languages club to which the present society owes its existence. He deprecated the tendency of the modern youth to place amusement before studies, but hoped that this year the members of the French Society would persist in their conversational efforts if only at the meetings.

The performance of four French fables in pantomime caused much amusement and the animal roles were played with great success by various members of the society.

TICCU HOLDS ITS ANNUAL RECEPTION FOR FRESHMEN

Importance of Living Faith Emphasized By Noel Palmer

"The purpose of the 'Ticcu' (Toronto Intercollegiate Christian Union) is to unite in Christian Fellowship the members of the University of Toronto," said Mr. Harry Bousall, president of Ticcu, as he welcomed the freshmen and others to the first annual reception at Wymilwood Wednesday evening.

This purpose was carried out at the reception. An informal get-together started the proceedings and with the aid of personal "name-plates" the group became well acquainted.

In the more formal part of the meeting Mrs. Palmer led the group in some favourite old hymns and interspersed them with short talks, bringing home in a striking manner the reality of Christianity.

Mr. Hart-Davies, secretary of Ticcu, gave a brief sketch of the union's history since its inception last January and also mentioned the wider "Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship of Canada" of which he is the new secretary.

Miss Betty Willis proved herself an accomplished musician and delighted her audience with her splendid renditions.

Mr. Noel Palmer, was the chief speaker. His talk on "The Adventure of Faith" was striking and convincing, he emphasized the importance of a real, living faith—"not an unthinking acceptance of doctrines but a yielding of heart and nature."

At the close of the reception refreshments were served.

Ticcu meets in Wymilwood every Tuesday at 5 o'clock. All students are welcome.

NO CHANGE BROACHED FOR TORONTONENSIS

Year Book Circulation Will Not Necessarily Increase

FORMAT IS IMPROVED

"There will not necessarily be an increased circulation in the Torontonensis," stated A. Gordon Burns, in an interview with "The Varsity." "There always have been some copies available for students in the other years, but as far as I know the circulation will be practically the same as last year."

"All plans for circulation will be handled by the Business Manager," answered Mr. R. C. H. Mitchell to "The Varsity." "Every year a number of copies are sold to undergraduates other than in the graduating year. I presume such will be the case this year."

"The Torontonensis," continued Mr. Mitchell, "is the year book of the whole university, not only of the graduating year. During the past few years the editors have tried to make the publication of increasing interest to the whole student body. In many universities the year book is sold entirely by subscription and the sale is large amongst all the years. Several years ago a competition was held amongst the various years and colleges at the University of Toronto, and a complimentary dance was given to the year recording the largest sale. This was won by second year Vic. As far as you have been no plans made as yet this year."

RESIDENCE STUDENTS EXERCISE FRANCHISE IF RULING PASSES

Reply Is Awaited From The Attorney - General's Office

AFFIDAVIT REQUIRED

Students Formerly Allowed
To Use Vote At Elections

Whether or not students of the university who are away from home will be allowed to vote in the forthcoming provincial elections, will not be known until next week. A letter has been written to the Attorney-General by Mr. A. Gordon Burns, of the S.A.C., requesting a ruling on the question. "I expect a reply next Tuesday," said Mr. Burns, "and until then nothing definite is known."

Ordinarily citizens must vote in the riding in which they are "domiciled," that is where they are permanent residents. In the case of Varsity students this is almost impossible, unless they wish to return to their homes to vote. This procedure would have doubtful popularity.

The question was taken up by the S.A.C. at the time of the 1926 provincial elections. After much dickering back and forth between election officials and the Students' Administrative Council, the students were finally allowed to exercise their franchise.

BIG BLAZE BATTLED BY FEMALE FIREMAN

St. Clair Annesley Residence
Roused by Sudden Blaze
In Kitchen

FRYING PAN EXTINGUISHER

One of the Annesley residence, 135 St. Clair St. W., was horribly roused by fire Wednesday night about 7.30. A girl entering the kitchenette found the room in flames. After an heroic fight with only a frying pan for a weapon, she had sufficiently extinguished the blaze, saving the building from ominous danger.

Meanwhile the housekeeper found the room in a blackened state and immediately locked the door. But the odour of burning had spread through the house, and the inmates were in a state of apprehension the rest of the evening.

In the morning they found the door still locked and were told that unless the culprit of arson identified herself the door would remain locked. As there seems to be numerous interpretations of the deed, prospects for afternoon teas seem limited.

All damages are covered by insurance.

Varsity Meets McGill To-Morrow For Crucial Game of Series

May Cancel Holiday

The annual half-holiday for the Intercollegiate Track Meet is running the risk of being cancelled, as was that granted for the Interfaculty Track events, because the Captin, in view of the meagre attendance at these events, is not disposed to grant them. The holiday, "The Varsity" is informed, was granted this year only that the undergraduates might, by their turnout, justify the continuance of the holiday in future years.

The track meet holiday is one of the university's oldest traditions. As far back as 1873 there is record of a half-holiday for the "games".

Final Arrangements Made For U.C. Dance

Final arrangements are announced for the University College Literary and Athletic Society dance this evening.

Although programmes were not given out with the tickets, they will be distributed this evening. Dancing will begin at 9.00 o'clock, with two extra dances from 9.00 to 9.15. Gilbert Watson's orchestra will supply the music.

The first five dances will be fox trots. The first supper will be served at 10.30 with a waltz and a fox trot during this time. Second supper will be at 11.15 with a fox trot, lucky number dance and Home waltz included amongst the last dances.

Favors will be distributed and members of the committee state that this will be one of the best dances ever staged by the Literary and Athletic Society.

Shakespearean Player Delights Vic Students

Yesterday afternoon the chapel at Victoria College was crowded with students eager to hear Oliver Crombie, famous member of the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespearean Players, who are playing in Toronto this week. Mr. Crombie was present at the request of Prof. E. J. Pratt, of the English Department of Victoria.

Mr. Crombie, without any preliminary speech, began his recital with Shelley's "Ode to the West Wind" which was well received by the audience. His next selection was a humorous story by O. Henry, "The Hound of Hymen". Mr. Crombie's presentation of this story was exceedingly good and roused the students to paroxysms of mirth. Mr. Crombie's third selection, "The Institution Scene" from Othello, Act II, Scene 3, in which he acted the parts of Othello and Iago, was exceedingly well done and showed conclusively that Mr. Crombie is a very fine actor.

Prof. Edgar proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Crombie which was responded to very heartily by the appreciative audience.

Ralph St. Germain Will Be

Stadium

LINE-UP SAME

Teams Fight For Second Place
And Fighting Chance
To Win

The most colorful football game of the season will be staged at the Stadium to-morrow when Varsity meets "Old John" McGill.

Second place position and a real fighting chance for intercollegiate leadership hinges on the result. The Redmen are known for the surprises they spring and the past week's hard practice has put them on their mettle. The wing line is almost the same make-up as last year's when they won the college group. In addition Ralph St. Germain, that flashy rearguard, will be in the game for at least one quarter. Reports from Montreal have it that McGill's line interference work is the best in the intercollegiate and makes their plunging and runs effective.

Ronnie McPherson has had his troubles since the Queen's game. Both Jack Sinclair and Doug McFadyen are out indefinitely due to leg troubles. But the coupling of Johnny Fitzpatrick and Billy Bell on the half line will form a fast and hard-working pair, and when they get away the deadline is the only stop. Kritzweiser will be kicking for McGill and his hoists should not cause much trouble for Varsity.

Both the Orphans and the Big Blue have been working hard this week. Ronnie has been specializing on per-

KNOX CASE BAFFLING DETECTIVES BAULKED

Detective Black of the City
Working in the Dark
Hopes for Clue

STUDENT LEFT IN HURRY

Not a single clue has been discovered which may lead to the discovery of the whereabouts of Howard Robinson, missing Victoria College student, who disappeared from his room in Knox College on Saturday afternoon last.

"There are no strong clues pointing to any definite conclusion," said Detective Black, of the city police force, who is at present working on the case, in an interview with "The Varsity" last evening.

"The usual routine has been followed as in most missing cases, but so far not a single clue reported. We have made the rounds of the hospitals and employment bureaus, but without success," he stated.

"Of course," said Detective Black, "we are still working more or less in the dark, but we hope to discover something on the case soon."

There is no reason to suspect foul play, according to police officials.

John Robinson, brother of the missing student, could advance no theory of the disappearance.

"It certainly appears as though he left in a great hurry," he said, "but none can say why." Asked if his brother might be financially involved, John Robinson stated that it was rather impossible, since he had no opportunity to become involved. Nor was Howard Robinson particularly interested in those of the other sex, his friends stated.

CHEAP JOURNALISM

We are in receipt of a letter from a member of the staff of University College taking exception to the methods used by this paper in dealing with the special convocation of a few days ago. While appreciating the sympathetic viewpoint of the criticism, the editors of "The Varsity" feel that it is not entirely justifiable. They also regret bitterly that the amateur status of their staff renders impossible any defence of the two misprints and one mistaken meaning in twelve lines.

But in his criticism of the news style of "The Varsity" the professor makes one sad and basic error; he infers that the crowds were attracted by the wisdom and eloquence of the recipient of the degree. They were not; they came to see the show. Had they wished to hear rhetoric, they were afforded ample opportunity on a previous occasion when Ramsay MacDonald was here as a private citizen. Even recently, if words were their only desire, it would have been infinitely more comfortable and satisfactory to stay at home and listen to the radio.

Surely even the most unversed in printing matters can understand that to publish the speech verbatim would require more space than this paper can afford, cramped as it is by the necessity of giving space to advertisers. Moreover, it would be unduly optimistic to expect that the reader would be prepared to plough into six columns of dead space.

We wonder that a professor of classics can argue that the public is interested in wisdom and significance and beauty. Were this the case, lectures in classics would be held in halls and not around small tables.

The professor also implies that the machinery of convocation is common-place. It may be, to him, but it is certainly not to the average individual. It was with this fact in mind that "The Varsity" described the ceremony, with references to salient points in the visitor's address. In so doing the editors feel that they have fulfilled their duty to their public, and rest content.

POOL AND SMOKING

The announcement that the Athletic Directorate has found it necessary to close the gallery of the natatorium to all functions, save the Athletic At-Home and the Masquerade, is unpleasant to those who have been wont to enjoy its balmy atmosphere during dances. The measure, though not openly announced, is evidently punitive. In spite of warnings, junk of various degrees has been heaved into the pool, evidently in pursuance of the primaevial urge to heave things into pools. As in all such thoughtlessness, including the removal of books from the library of Hart House, the negligence of a few recoils upon the general. Hence it behooves the few to exercise a small degree of thought. That any such exercise is likely to come about is improbable, but it is none the less necessary. There has been, up to the present, a sort of an informal agreement; that the pool gallery was to be used for sitting-out if not used for a smoking room. The bargain was broken. Whose fault?

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

The Editor,
"The Varsity",
Dear Sir:

In to-day's "Varsity" considerable space is devoted, partly in serious, partly in humorous vein, to the fact that a large proportion of the student body was not able to hear Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's great speech yesterday in Convocation Hall. You very properly express regret for this, and everyone who heard the speech will share your regret. But I am sure you will agree that, in the circumstances, the duty of "The Varsity", and the best service it could render, was to arrange to secure a short-hand record of the speech when it was delivered, and then print the complete text in the morning. But instead of doing this, your reporters confined themselves almost entirely to a description of the formalities, which are quite familiar to everybody in the university, and to trivial incidents and aspects of the proceedings. Nobody needs to be told that the Chancellor rose and conferred the degree, and that the hood was slipped over Mr. MacDonald's head. The Chancellor, or his representative, always rises and confers degrees, and hoods rarely catch on the ears and roses of recipients. No doubt the dignitaries made a colourful procession and no doubt people tried to get into the hall without tickets. But surely the Varsity, in reporting a great occasion, should not concern itself mainly with the formalities or the trivialities attendant on it. The duty of "The Varsity" was to give prominence to the important thing, viz., what Mr. MacDonald said, and to print in full a speech of real significance and beauty. In this way the loss and disappointment of those who did not hear the speech would have been lessened, and those who did hear it could have refreshed their memories of it. But apart from a short tribute to Mr. MacDonald's qualities as an orator, and half a dozen lines of summary, you devote only twelve lines to quotation from different parts of the speech. In these twelve lines there are two misprints and a mistake in the word which Mr. MacDonald used, which reveals failure to grasp his meaning. I am sure, Sir, that you will agree that "The Varsity" should stand for something better than such imitations of cheap journalism, and that its policy should be to report fully and in an intelligent way important events in the life of the university. May I suggest that if a record of the text of Mr. MacDonald's speech is available, you secure it, and print it at the earliest opportunity?

Thanking you, I am,
Yours, etc.,
MARCUS TAIT.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET AT VARSITY STADIUM TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet which takes place to-day at the Varsity stadium should be one of the banner events of the season. The Blue and White have a very strong team and are expected to outclass the opposition in the sprints. In the other events competition will be keen, but Varsity should close the day with the major number of points.

* * *

The Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament which is being played at the Toronto Tennis Club, has shown some fine performances. Martin of Varsity, Leslie of McGill and Lalonde of Montreal, are the outstanding net artists. Martin is favoured to win the singles championship.

* * *

The McGill-Varsity game to-morrow afternoon gives every indication of being a real battle. The Blue, although suffering heavily from injuries, should take the Montrealers into camp. One of the features of the game will be the reappearance of Ralph St. Germain, the Redmen's "Galloping Ghost". It is doubtful, however, if the stellar McGill halt will be able to go the whole distance. Two seasons ago St. Germain was the greatest scoring threat in Intercollegiate football.

* * *

The Orphans play the Tiger Cubs in Hamilton to-morrow. A defeat for Earl Douglas' men will practically mean elimination. As things look now the O.R.F.U. entry will have to show an even greater reversal of form than their predecessors did to get anywhere in the group.

* * *

Varsity Intermediates get the call in their game with McMaster to-morrow morning. The Blue are making their best showing of years in this group.

* * *

The Intermediate Water Polo League in which Varsity is an entrant, has caused a great deal of widespread interest. The Detroit Yacht Club has written the local executive for information and the possibilities of entering a team.

INTERMEDIATE RUGBYISTS TACKLE McMASTER

Minor Ailments Suffered By Several Varsity Players

The intermediate rugbyists tackle McMaster on Saturday morning for the second time. At the last encounter the Blue team were victorious and they are confident of repeating. It is doubtful if the team will be at full strength, however. It is rumoured that Doug Smith, star halfback, will be moved up to the O.R.F.U. team. This would be a serious loss to the intermediates as Smith has been the mainstay of the team all season. Also, Johnson, MacCallum, Arnold, Murray and Sullivan have been suffering from minor ailments all week and though they are expected to start on Saturday they will be travelling under handicaps. Despite these misfortunes the Varsity boys are favoured on the dope to win on Saturday.

FINE PLAY MARKS TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Walter Martin Advances To Semi-Finals In Yesterday's Play

WEATHER QUITE COLD

The Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament began yesterday on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club although it was a very cold day with a high wind the calibre of play was very good and many fine matches were played.

Charlie Leslie of McGill, ranked No. 7 in Canada, and Walter Martin of Varsity, present holder of the title and ranked No. 6 in Canada, advanced to the semi-finals. Leslie defeated Best of R.M.C. and McIntosh of Queen's in straight sets. He is playing very well and is a strong favorite to take the title. Martin defeated McCutcheon of Queen's and Bombray of University of Montreal quite handsly.

Quite a surprise occurred when Leo Hilt, one of the fancied semi-finalists, fell before the steady play of Lalonde of Montreal. Hilt was not as good as usual and his errors paved the way for his defeat. Lalonde meets Hartley Holmes of Varsity this morning in a quarter-final match. Holmes advanced to the eighth by brilliant tennis. He defeated Sabourin of McGill and Foster of Osgoode in very decisive fashion.

Noyes, Varsity's second man, meets Perry of McGill in the other quarter final. Noyes defeated Leblanc of Montreal in the first round, but had a hard battle with Girard of the same city before he defeated him. Noyes' determination finally pulled him through in a hard fought match. Perry defeated Mitchell of R.M.C. and Shepherd of Queen's.

The draw for to-day is as follows:
10.30—Noyes vs. Perry; Holmes vs. Lalonde.

11.00—First round of doubles to be played.

2.30—Leslie vs. winner Noyes-Perry; Martin vs. winner Holmes-Lalonde.

BATTLE FOR TRACK TITLE AT THE STADIUM TO-DAY

When the curtain rises to-day at 1.30 p.m. on the intercollegiate track meet there will be seen in action the best athletes of the participating universities, McGill, Queen's, and Toronto. In the 100 yard dash Finlayson and Adams will take part. Adams will also be seen in the 220 when he runs with Fitzpatrick.

Varsity has a good chance in the mile with Smith and Graham running. Hurdle honors will most likely go to McGill, as its man Drew has broken the record. A new record should be made in the javelin throw as Peaker of Toronto has bettered the record in practice. The discus and shot put events will be contested by Peaker of Toronto, McKacher of Queen's, and Amaron and Rahman of McGill. Amaron should do well in the discus. McGill has entered Blemer in the pole vault. He should find no difficulty in defeating Thorpe and Denny. Entered in the broad jump are: Drew (Mc-

VARSITY ORPHANS INVAD HAMILTON

Blue Squad Shows Up Well In Practice Scrimmages With Seniors

ORPHANS HAVE CHANCE

To-morrow Coach Earl Douglas and his satellites, the Orphans, journey to the Ambitious City to attack the "Tiger Cubs" in their own den. However, the Blue squad will have to be more lion-hearted than they were against the Sarnia Imperials if they hope to break into the winning column via a victory over the Hamilton O.R.F.U. team. There doesn't appear to be the same spirit in this year's squad that animated the Orphans of last year who reached the Ontario finals. In fact, several of the regulars have been missing far too many practices. As yet, the Blue squad has not won a game in its two starts, and a win to-morrow would be appropriate.

The Orphans have consistently shown up well in practice scrimmages with the seniors, and on paper look to have a formidable aggregation. It is admitted that the Sarnia team presented very strong opposition and are certainly championship contenders of the first calibre. Nevertheless we look for a "T" win on Saturday against the Hamilton Tiger Cubs.

HARRIES RACE ON MONDAY FOR BROTHERTON CUP

Donor of Trophy Starts Race From U.C.C. Gates At 10 a.m.

On Monday, Oct. 21, at 10 a.m., the Interfaculty Harrier Race for the Brotherton Cup will be held. Maps of the course have been posted. The start will be made from the gates of Upper Canada College at 10 a.m. sharp. Entrants may change at U.C.C.

Medals are awarded to the first ten men placing in this event. The first five men (exclusive of O.A.C.) will form the Intercollegiate team competing in Montreal on Nov. 2. The next ten men will form the thirty-mile relay team competing in the International Silver Relay Race at C.N.E. Park on Nov. 2.

Over 100 entries are expected (entry list at Hart House Athletic Office closing Sat. Oct. 19, 12 a.m.), and competition both faculty and individual will be very keen. O.A.C., who so completely led the way home last year is again sending a formidable team, while Trinity and Meds, both stronger than last year, seem to be the choice of Toronto faculties. Whether Wally Graham will show his old form among the Lee-Smith-Walters-Seaborn quartette remains to be seen. And with Williams, Vila, Harding, Howey, King, Wilson and Moore also contending no one is picking favorites for the trip to Montreal.

Gill) and Hymmen.

The prospects are that all events will be closely contested and well worth watching. As this is the last track meet of the season each fan should make it a point to be out and cheer for their favorites.

Crackling Mirth Beneath the Elm With Little Omar at the Helm

By A. E. F. Allan

Before the phantom of False morning died,
Methought a Voice within the Tavern cried . . . . .

Thy Omar, O Sakil! is become of those Choice Spirits who in their battered Caravanserai held Solemn Court and offer up from virgin Lips blue Smoke unsullied. Here 'neath the spreading Elm-tree's gentle Shade wait We upon the sweet Pink Goddess, steaming Nectar from the Orange Leaves of distant Indus and Cathay our strongest Wine.

A little Book of Verses have I writ for Thee, O Sakil! and if you ask me I think they're dam' good. Nor Rime nor Reason intrudes itself upon these tiny Verslets: free as the Air are they, untrammelled by the musty Rules of long dead Ages. For a Score or Less of loose and crag-like Lines they wander in the dimish Ether . . . . . then I stick in a Wise Crack in the last couple of Lines, that packs quite a Wallop. In fact, they're done in the Best Modern Manner and I hope you like them.

The melancholy Winds blow cold and chill about our Smugness, but nought can reach us. The Bird of Time doth flutter at our Windows, but we heed it not. Secure are we in Youth, warm in the reflected Glow of the Smartest Authors. Wait we but for Adulation.

When all the Temple is prepared within,

Why nods the drowsy Worshipper outside?

Discuss we of the Two Sexes, wisely from the Lore of Ripened Years. It's hot stuff, but we treat it casually. The sodden Greens before us on the Platter find no Answer in the eager Eyes. The Revelations of Devout and Learn'd are but Stuff for our Crackling Mirth. We must be Modern at all Costs. To damn as Obvious is to damn indeed.

Dazzle-covered Books bear we . . . title-slide out. Some little Talk awhile of Pirate Craft, but carefully pitched in nicely blasé Tones. Enthusiasm is a Babbit Thing. For us there are Bohemia's pretty Trifles: Batiks, Abstractions, Mauves, Perfumes, and Gossip . . . . .

What the Asterisk kind of a Way is This for a Man to act?

Drew of McGill Secures Three Firsts Taking Individual Championship

ADAMS TAKES SPRINTS

Relay Race Won by Varsity in Fast Time Thrilling Finish

Varsity successfully wrested the track honours from McGill in the Intercollegiate Track Meet held on Friday at the University Stadium. All events were closely contested and the decision was only reached after the last race had been run off. The final score was: Varsity 65; McGill 60; Queen's 10.

The individual champion was Drew, of McGill, who placed first in both broad and high jumps and also the 120 yard hurdles. Adams of Varsity, was prominent, winning the 100 yard and 220 yard sprints. He equalled the intercollegiate record for the century dash by running it in ten flat.

Only one record was broken, that being the javelin throw, Cummings of McGill raising the distance to 159 feet 2 1/2 inches. Rahmaonop (McGill) beat his previous record of 153 feet, 4 1/2 inches in an effort to reach Cummings, but was unsuccessful.

Perhaps the best race of the afternoon was the mile, in which Graham and Smith of Varsity finished first and second respectively. Smith trailed Graham from the start and started a

SEGREGATION URGED OF ORIENTAL RACES

Sir Robert Again Discusses African Situation on Charter Day

SCHOLARSHIPS ANNOUNCED

"I believe that Australia and British Columbia are right in segregating their Oriental population," said Sir Robert Falconer at the Charter Day Convocation of Victoria College Friday evening.

"Some people will say that it's not Christian," he continued, "but we are not Christian; not Christian enough to make any experiments. Our aim should be to send our best men to those people, to study them and their problems where they are, unemotionally and calmly."

Sir Robert based his address on what he stated to be the fundamental problem of Africa—the race problem. "The problem of the commingling of races has been and will be the greatest problem the world has to face, even greater than that of Capital and Labor," he said. "In South Africa, the native problem is the root problem underlying all others."

"The problem now is," he said, "what will the future of the Bantu be? The Union of South Africa contains about a million and a half whites and five million Bantus. Half of the natives are in overcrowded reserves, and the other half are wanderers, squatters, forbidden to purchase land from white men. They drift to the cities as unskilled labourers, causing

VARSITY CRITICIZED FOR USING STANDARD OF DAILY NEWSPAPER

President McCorkell Believes Paper Should not Deal With General Public

STUDENT VIEWS DIFFER

Handling of Convocation For Premier Causes Many Controversies

Reverend E. J. McCorkell, President of St. Michael's College, criticizes the standards by which "The Varsity" judges the news that is used in its columns, and asserts that catering as it does to an academic world, the undergraduate newspaper is not in a position analogous to that of the daily papers sold to the general public.

"It seems to me," says President McCorkell, "that the news printed in 'The Varsity' is put to the same tests as that used in the daily newspapers and with this practice I disagree. 'The Varsity' is dealing with an academic world and not that of the general public. University undergraduates should be interested in a higher type of news than that published for the general public."

These statements were made by the president in an interview regarding the way in which "The Varsity" recently handled the special convocation for Premier Ramsay MacDonald, which was criticized by Prof. Marcus Tait of University College in a letter published in Friday's "Varsity". Father McCorkell stated that he was disappointed in the report of the speech as it was handled in this paper, saying that he had looked for it, wishing to go over some particular points, and had expected to find it verbatim. "The premier's speech was an historical event, and should have been of great interest to the student body. If 'The Varsity' were a record of things like the recent convocation it would be a more valuable paper," concluded President McCorkell.

Undergraduate opinion differs on the matter. Some were satisfied with the way the event was handled in Thursday's issue, while others were

U.C. Dances

On Friday night University College Literary and Athletic Society celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary with a dance in the big gym of Hart House. Gilbert Watson and his orchestra dispensed music and contributed considerably to the evening's success. The east common room dimly-lighted, made an excellent sitting-out place. The decorations were in keeping with the rest of the pleasant features. Supper was served in the Great Hall.

DID HOWE ROBINSON INTEND TO LEAVE?

Detectives Now Convinced That Robinson Intended To Leave

HAD CASHED CHECKS

That Howe Robinson left his room in Knox College and voluntarily disappeared is the belief of police and detective forces working on the case of the missing Victoria College student.

"It appears that Howe Robinson left of his own accord," said Detective Black of the city police force, who has been working on the case.

It has been learned, Detective Black stated, that Robinson had from forty to seventy dollars in his possession when he disappeared.

"It would appear that Howard left after getting cheques from home," said John Robinson to "The Varsity" last evening. The cheques were cashed on Saturday morning of the disappearance.

While police have been working on the case, no new clues have been discovered. Two clues, one leading to Oshawa, and another to Burlington, have been proven groundless.

Parents of John Robinson are circulating the entire Dominion and northern United States, "The Varsity" was informed last evening. Friends and relatives are of the opinion that Howard Robinson left voluntarily, but what possible motive could have led him to do so, no one can suggest.

Varsity ..... 0 7 2 6 15
McGill ..... 0 1 0 0 1

Varsity smashed any hopes McGill had of retaining the Intercollegiate football championship by defeating the Redmen here Saturday, 15-1. The Blue had by far the greater margin of the play, being superior to the Montrealers in every department.

Varsity played the entire game minus the services of Jack Sinclair, their star kicking half, but Billy Bell, who took over the punting duties delivered the neatest exhibition of scientific hoofing that the stadium has seen in a long while. Besides featuring in the overhead attack Bell turned in a beautiful game on the backfield where he teamed up with Johnny Fitzpatrick of sprint fame.

This pair look to be about the best backfield combination that Varsity has fielded in years. Both were lightning fast, caught faultlessly and made life miserable for the opposing tacklers. Elson, who relieved at outside wing, starred, securing both of Varsity's touchdowns. Don Wood at quarter, played a heady game. Wally Bean, at inside wing, was the Blue's best

Smart Dance

The main banquet hall of the Royal York was the scene of the Delta Gamma subscription dance on Saturday evening last. This function served as a social rendezvous to the after-game crowds, which were considerably enhanced by the influx of visitors from outside points. Music by Harry Cully's orchestra contributed to the success of the evening.

CAR RIDING HARMLESS TO STUDENT ACTIVITY

Student Realizes Necessity for Control of This Practice

SD STATES DEAN

"It is entirely unlikely that this university will follow the example of the University of Oregon," said Professor Cochrane, Dean of U.C., to "The Varsity", when commenting on the action taken by the University of Oregon in forbidding its students to operate or ride in automobiles during the college year on the ground that automobiles have a deleterious effect on the health of students of both sexes as they are an inducement for the student to keep late hours and neglect his work. "I have faith in the student and believe that he realizes his responsibility both to his university and his family, and is sufficiently interested in his work to control car-riding so as not to interfere with his health or studies. There seems to be a general principle in the United States that anything which a controlling body may not approve of, should be prohibited. It will be interesting to note how the University of Oregon will enforce this regulation and keep tab on the cars belonging to its students. Many students undoubtedly suffer from over-eating and some from over-work. Perhaps these will also soon be forbidden!"

SPEAKS AT CLUB LUNCHEON

"Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald are doing a great work," said His Imperial Highness, the Grand Duke Alexander at the Empire Club luncheon held in the King Edward Hotel Friday, "but war cannot be prevented by disarmament alone, the causes of war must be removed first." The Grand Duke, a tall, spare, grey-bearded man, with a striking resemblance to the former ruling family of Russia, had the undivided attention of his hearers for nearly an hour. In very good English, with a slight hissing accent, he related the story of his life from his birth in Tiflis in the Caucasus to the present day. He is a grandson of the Emperor Nicholas I and during the late war held a high position in the Russian navy and air-force. His first experience of the horrors of war was in 1877 when at the age of eleven he witnessed the Turkish War, in which the Russians were prevented from taking Constantinople by Bismarck's selfish policy. He saw Alexander II, the most liberal of all the Emperors murdered in '81, and disliking Petersburg after his home on the steppes he joined the navy to see the world. He saw in the United States and Canada what he wanted

ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiasm at the Stadium on Saturday ran higher than has been evident for some time. The more optimistic may now be persuaded to comment that rooting depends more upon the team than upon the cheer-leaders.

SUSPICIOUS

It occurred to the editors on Saturday that policemen are suspicious gentry. The editor-in-chief, in company with an associate editor of the "McGill Daily", and a former editor of "The Varsity", were eyed meanly in the Park on Saturday, and were even approached by Inspector Marshall, the officer who twisted Jack MacDonald's arm last week. There must be something about newspapers . . . . .

NOSING

We are, from time to time, criticised for not minding our own business. Well! If everyone minded their own business there would be a sudden quiet; conversation would cease to exist; pulp and paper mills would shut down; in fact, there would be nothing to say . . . .

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Again we have witnessed the spectacle, unique in the world, of a battalion of armed men defending a bandstand. A magnificent waste! The bandstand contains no precious documents indispensable to the continuance of Capitalism, no piles of bullion, not even a valuable band. It is a poor empty thing of wood, not even beautiful as bandstands go; useful only to raise a man up so that he may gesticulate. Then why not, may we suggest, rather than defend the thing, take it away, push it over, burn it down, chuck it into the lake? For we are certain that neither of Toronto's Communists could make himself heard from the ground. A Communist without a bandstand is as useless as a golfer without plus fours.

No Reception Given To The Communists

Chief Draper's determination to further suppress communism, was the cause of his blue-coats invading the university grounds Saturday. During the summer a prospectus issued to American delegates to a convention gave them to understand that the campus was not under the jurisdiction of city police. On Saturday, however, when the Communists found themselves barred from Queen's Park they attempted to hold their meeting in front of Hart House.

Just as soon as the speaker opened his mouth to speak the mounted policemen drove in. Arrests followed and the crowd scattered across the campus. University grounds, hitherto prohibited to Draper's squadrons, were encroached upon.

Some tried to escape the chief's jurisdiction by attempting to enter Hart House, but were refused admission. The gathering moved toward the library and here attempted to continue their meeting. Some college men who were in there toiling away at their studies came out. Filling their lungs, they gave a lusty and hearty Varsity yell. Maddened horses carried their riders into the crowd. Several arrests followed and the mass of humans were jostled out of the university grounds. Within an hour all was quiet and after a few motorevels whirled about the vicinity of Hart House to check up on any stragglers, everyone retired.

disappointed in not having been able to read a full account of the speech. J. C. Smith, III St. Michael's, who stated that he had been so impressed with Mr. MacDonald's speech at the Canadian Club in the morning that he went back to hear him in the afternoon, said: "I would like to have been able to have read afterwards the outstanding points of the speech verbatim. The account of the ceremony should have been short and the speech should have been featured more as the daily papers wrote it up. I wouldn't have attended the convocation at all had it not been for a speaker like Ramsay MacDonald."

Malcolm G. Ranney, III yr. Meds, criticizing Prof. Tai's letter, says: "He is judging others by himself. 'The Varsity' is read in the short time between lectures and people don't have time to read long speeches."

J. C. Edwards, IV S.P.S., agrees with Prof. Tai's letter, saying: "The speech should be featured rather than a description of the ceremony. The account should be a combination. No one wants a word for word account, neither do they want a mere description." "The Varsity" is not without its supporters in J. F. Swayze, IV yr. Vic, who says: "The short interesting account of the speech of Ramsay MacDonald as given in 'The Varsity' was better than any long verbatim report would have been, though I do think it unfair that the editor should criticize in his column the letter of a correspondent."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

"All bulls should be allowed to take Saturday afternoons off," stated Mr. Chump, at the annual meeting of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Club last night. "At the present time they are herded into the parks, and left to the mercy of the squirrels. The last report shows that we have collected enough nickels to reach from where the women's building is going to be, to where the police station ought to be. We are prevented from selling home-made candy in our drive by the poison clause in our constitution."

GRAND DUKE SPEAKS

Russia to be and greatly admired the British Empire organization. On his return he married the daughter of Nicholas II and had seven children, one being a girl. The late Czar came to the throne in 1894, young, unwilling and not prepared for his work.

"I do not blame him," said His Imperial Highness, "he did his best, but his government was at fault. The Japanese War came in 1904, opposed by Grand Duke Alexander and by the Czar. Russia last being too far from her base of supplies. In 1905 there was a revolution, but it failed, the propaganda had not gone deep enough. Their first Duma or Parliament was granted the people but Alexander left the government having no confidence in it. The Czar could not yield his powers to the Duma, having taken oath never to do so. The Grand Duke became interested in aviation and founded the first flying school, but was so bitterly opposed that Russia's air forces were deficient when war broke out. Then in 1917 came the Revolution. The Czar could have crushed it the army being loyal, but he mistakenly resigned, as he wanted to prevent civil war, was loyal to the allies and trusted the revolutionists. As a prisoner of the provisional government the Grand Duke and his family were sent to the Crimea where it was touch and go for a while till they escaped on a British destroyer. Hastening to Paris, he endeavoured to impress on the diplomats the dangers of Bolshevism. He is now happy, having found a new peace in his religion of love which he is endeavouring to spread through the world." "The Varsity" obtained an exclusive interview and His Imperial Highness sent this message to the students. "I would like the young people of the university to understand the development of the soul. Established religion is falling down, practise the law of love and be one with nature." He had seen Hart House and thought it a lovely club, but was sorry the women were not admitted. "Our experience of life is not complete without them," said he. About the silencing of Communists, he was quite vehement. "Their propaganda will inflame ignorant minds," he said. "Your country is young and unspoiled, don't let doctrines of violence be preached." He assured "The Varsity" that the girl claiming to be Princess Anastasia, daughter of the late Czar was an impostor. "If she were really my niece would she not be with me?" he asked. At this juncture Mr. Roumanoff, the secretary, came in and began to hover around, so accepting one of the Duke's monogrammed cigarettes "The Varsity" departed.

TRICOLOUR WINS AN EASY BATTLE BY LARGE SCORE

Very Weak Western Line Allows Queen's to Make Gain

HAUCH STARS FOR WESTERN

Western Makes Yards on Only
Two Occasions in Game

Special to "The Varsity"

London, Oct. 19.—Queen's opposed Western in a game which marked the opening of senior intercollegiate rugby here, and the dedication of the Little Memorial Stadium.

The Tricolour strengthened their hold on first place by vanquishing the Mustangs 25-2. The Western line was pretty weak and Savard's kicks were blocked often. Gilmore made two placement kicks and Carter hoisted the pignion on numerous occasions for rouses. Paul Hauch broke away for a 40 yard gain for the best run of the game.

In the first quarter Queen's fell on a fumble and an attempted placement kick by Gilmore went for a rouse. Munro broke through Western's line to take the ball, and on a plunge went through for a touch which was not converted. An exchange of kicks put Gilmore in position for a placement kick which went through the bars. Savard's kick on Western's one-yard line was blocked and a safety touch gave Queen's two more points. Munro broke through again to block Savard's punt and Gilmore negotiated another placement kick, ending the first quarter with the score 15-0.

Queen's chalked up a rouse. Gourlay took a pass from Carter and raced 25 yards for a touch. Kennedy brought cheer to the Mustangs when he ran through a broken field for 30 yards, from where Savard kicked for Western's first point. Half time score: 21-1.

In the second half Western's line tightened up and gave the backfield more protection. On an exchange of kicks Carter hoisted to the deadline for a rouse, and followed up a little later with another point. A delayed pass, Stuart to Britton to Gilmore, resulted in a 40 yard gain. Western was forced to rouse twice. Third quarter: 25-1.

Paul Hauch made a spectacular 40 yard run for the greatest gain of the game. Western made yards on two downs, and Savard kicked for a rouse and the game ended, Queen's 25; Western, 2.

ORPHANS DEFEATED BY NARROW MARGIN IN OVERTIME GAME

Tigers Win From Tied Score
During Overtime Period

LUCK AGAINST VARSITY

Richardson's Broken Field Running Accounts
Gains

The Orphans were outluckied in their game with Tiger Cubs at Hamilton on Saturday. They lost the decision 8-6 in 10 minutes overtime. The blue and white had a clear edge on the play, but Tigers got the breaks at the critical moments.

Varsity had the Hamilton men on the defensive for most of the first quarter, but only registered one point, while Tigers scored three on Hayward's field goal. In the second session the Orphans had a golden opportunity to score when Ralph Adams sprinted 50 yards, and Richardson gained 20 more on the next down. A fumble gave Hamilton the ball, however, and they ran it out of danger. Varsity gained on a blocked Hamilton kick for a touch. Play see-sawed up and down the field then, and Hamilton succeeded in tying the score with two singles. The Orphans had several chances to get the winning point, but the breaks were against them. In the overtime both teams were over-anxious and fumbled repeatedly. The Orphans misplays came at the right time for Hamilton and they booted over the Blue and White's line twice for singles to win the game.

Richardson on the Varsity half-line played a stellar game from start to finish. His great broken-field running was responsible for most of the team's gains, and he did all the kicking. Ralph Adams showed up well and got away twice for long runs. The tackling of Traynor, Baker, McCulloch and Dickson featured the defensive play. Levinsky, Bennett and Scott also turned in good games.

It was a tough game to lose and with any luck at all would have been a victory.

Varsity line-up:—

Flying wing, Traynor; halves, Richardson, Levinsky, Adams; quarter, Britwell; snap, McCulloch; insides, Henderson, A. Stringer; middles, Scott, Robinson; outsides, Dickson, Baker; subs, MacMillan, R. Stringer, Graham, Burke, Wright, Bennett, Smith, Monkhouse.

Water-Polo Teams

Managers and captains of water polo teams are reminded that players must sign the certificates of eligibility and be medically examined before taking part in the games.

Three games will be played this afternoon, Monday, as follows:—4:30—Victoria vs. Trinity. 5:00—Jr. S.P.S. vs. Jr. Meds. 5:30—Sr. U.C. vs. Sr. S.P.S. Games must start on time. A team not ready to start within fifteen minutes of the appointed time shall be liable to disqualification. Extract from Athletic Handbook.

plunger, hitting the Red line for big gains and breaking up McGill's plays with smashing tackling. Earl Davey's sensational run was the outstanding feature of the game.

For McGill, Swabey, Don Young and Charlie Littlefield. Red captain, bore the brunt of the work. Swabey and Young did most of McGill's tackling, while Young also took a hand at hitting the line.

Varsity suffered heavily in the matter of penalties for off-sides, etc., taking no less than fifteen to McGill's six, making a total of over two hundred yards lost by both teams. This was the one drawback to the otherwise snappy and interesting game.

In the first quarter McGill's end of the field was the scene of all the action. On a fast-moving extension play, Wood passed to Bell, gaining 45 yards. Bell was kicking low into the wind and the ball was bounding in the right direction for gains. McGill blocked an attempted drop, and secured the pignion on their own ten yard line. Kritzweiser kicked out of danger, and the quarter was scoreless.

Varsity drew first blood when Bell forced Kritzweiser to rouse. The Redmen fell on a loose ball and the Blue were put on the defensive. Doherty tried a placement kick which went wide, and Fitzpatrick was forced to rouse. The Varsity line was holding McGill, who lost the ball on failure to make yards. A series of off-side penalties resulted in Varsity losing chances to score. Just before the half time whistle blew, Elson fell on Kritzweiser's muff and scrambled over for a touch which was converted by Bell. Half-time score: 7-1.

Varsity tore through for yards but two successive off-side penalties reversed the advantage. Bell kicked a long punt which went for a point. Harrison fell on Doherty's fumble on McGill's 25 yard line and Bell's kick went for another rouse. Varsity were now playing with only ten men on the field, and McGill made yards for the first time. The Redmen tried a couple of cross-field extension runs, which Varsity broke up for small losses.

Davey took Kritzweiser's hoist on his 30 yard line, and ran through a broken field for 40 yards, passed to Keith, who ran 10 yards and then passed to Elson who travelled 30 yards for the most spectacular piece of play in the game. Bell converted. The McGill tackles were outwitted by Bell, who made a corkscrew run through their line for 15 yards. McTeer crashed through the Blue line for 15 yards to cheer the Redmen. McGill tried an inside kick, but Davey returned for a

INTERMEDIATES LOSE TO THE LUCKY MACS

McMaster Came From Behind to Beat Varsity's Lead
by a Score of 11-10

Varsity Intermediates took another hard luck reverse on Saturday morning at the Stadium when McMaster University nosed out the Blue and White by 11 to 10. Varsity were leading at one stage by 7 to 0, but the Macs came from behind, scoring eight points in the third quarter.

Varsity registered two points in the first session on rouses off Johnston's kicking. The Blue intermediates secured a try in the second stanza when, after making yards on plunges, three times in a row, Farwell finally carried the ball over from four yards out. Reynolds kicked a placement for McMaster's first score. In the third period the Macs registered their first points on a successful drop-kick by Reynolds, and when the latter tried another one later, his kick hit the McMaster line and he picked up the ball and galloped for a touch. The Blue team put on a desperate rally in the final session, scoring three points on a rouse and a safety touch.

Whidden and Reynolds played well for McMaster while Johnston and Farwell were the pick of the Blue and White.

Varsity line-up—Flying wing, McCallum; halves, Scott, Johnston, Taylor; quarter, Heintzman; snap, Buchanan; insides, Jackson, O'Connor; middles, Farwell, Algie; outsides, Crocker, Langstaff; subs, Arnold, Thompson.

Tennis Tourney Won By Bee Symons

Thursday morning at Toronto Tennis Club, Bee Symons won the cup emblematic of the Women's Tennis Championship of the university. She succeeds to the position held by Peggy Groot for four years, and is a worthy champion. In beating Jessie Gray in the finals, 6-4, 6-3, she had to extend herself, for many of Jessie's shots were bad by inches. However Bee plays a splendid all-round game and appears to have no weakness. Her backhand shot is as powerful as her forehand, and her placing ability is uncanny. Both Bee and Jessie are deserving of great credit for both had to play many hard rounds in the preliminaries. Besides the individual championship, St. Hilda's also won the team championship.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP SECURED BY MCGILL

University of Montreal Wins
Third Place in Recent Tourney

McGill won the Intercollegiate Tennis Championship on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club on Saturday by amassing a total of 12 points to Varsity's 11. The University of Montreal placed third with 8.

In the match for the singles championship played Saturday morning, Walter Martin (Varsity) retained his title by defeating Charlie Leslie (McGill), after three hours of gruelling play, 6-2, 4-6, 1-6, 11-9, 6-4. Martin made a gallant uphill fight, Leslie having him once at match point. This battle took a lot out of Martin and weakened him for the doubles.

In the afternoon in the doubles Leslie and Hiltz (McGill), defeated Martin and Noyes (Varsity) in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5. This victory gave the title to the Red and White.

The final matches of the tournament were refereed by Mr. G. H. Meldrum, President of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

sprint on the home stretch, but was forced to finish second. Luck was against Hutchings of McGill in the 220 low hurdles. He was second, but fell at the last hurdle, and gave way to Sparrow of Varsity, Sparrow finishing second, and Mason of Varsity, third.

In the three mile run Varsity placed first and second. Siright of Queen's, surprised the crowd by sprinting the last 50 yards. In this race Williams led for almost three-quarters of the distance, but stumbled and fell. This gave Walters the lead, who kept it to the finish. Williams finished second.

LIQUOR NOT CAUSE
FOR AUTO MISHAPSWomen Have no Political Club
But Should be Admitted to Join the Men

"That the increase of automobile accidents in Ontario is due to the liquor control policy, is a ridiculous statement without any foundation of fact," said D. J. Walker, past president of the MacDonald-Cartier Club, in outlining the views of the Conservative party to the Political Club of the University Social Service Department on Friday evening. Mr. Walker ridiculed the attitude of the Liberal leader on the question of liquor control and pictured Mr. Sinclair as "trying to ride two horses".

The speaker briefly outlined the history of the political parties in Ontario during the last quarter of a century, and pointed out that the Ferguson administration has not only overcome the huge deficit left by the preceding government, but has put the finances of Ontario on a thoroughly sound basis. He stated that, in pursuance of the government policy of benefiting the farmers, Mr. Ferguson planned, if returned to power, to make further reductions in the cost of the hydro in rural communities, and to continue the work of "digging the farmers out of the mud" by extending the highway improvements to the county roads.

When approached by "The Varsity" on the question of women in politics, Mr. Walker expressed the opinion that there were not enough college women interested in politics to maintain a political club, but that those who were, should be admitted to the men's clubs.

Being used to native labour, they are ashamed to work with their hands, and are unskilled labourers for the most part. As a result we have the commingling of the lower elements of both races under the worst conditions, which causes mutual degradation, and forms one of the most serious questions in a problem which the people of South Africa will have to solve for themselves. No Canadian has the right to try to solve their problem for them.

Mouthsome Rouses Irate Lady
To Desperate Deed of Wrath

By H. D. Price

"Mr. Feesh, Mr. Feesh."

"Place your hand on the Bible, d'ya sunslyr tattell the truthwhol trith ntimbruth swelpyagawd?"

"Mr. Feesh, you go to many rugby games, and you are a competent judge of aggravated irritation by nuisances at same?"

"You made the statement that this young lady was justified in strangling Mr. Mouthsome with a Privateer after the touchdown in the third quarter at the McGill Varsity game last Saturday?"

"Well, yah see, it was this way. This Mouthsome gent an' the lady comes in sorta late and he says 'I'm sorry I was held up a bit, but nothing exciting ever happens the first quarter.' The lady she smiles and says,

"Of course not. It's all right. Boy, lookit them hit that line. Block 'em, block 'em you fools."

Then the guy, he asks her if she's comfortable an' starts leafing through the programme for the line up.

"Common Bell," she yelps. "What's this Privateer thing they have around here," he says, "I'm sure I never saw it before."

"You wouldn't," the gal says, then she smiles and says it looks like a great game and the teams seem to be holding each other pretty well. Just then Varsity gets offside and she moans. Mouthsome guy asks her how college is going this year. The lady turns and gives him a cold stare and says, "I guess so, why don't you watch the game, Billie?"

The gent takes hold her hand and says, "It's great to be here with yah, Elsie." But the gal shes standing up yellin', "Let's go, Varsity, Let's go." Lookit the hole in that line, close 'em up there."

McGill makes a fumble and she's right up and shrieking, "Getit, getit, Varsity." McGill recovers and she sinks back and the bird says,

"It's great that it is warm, I thought it was gonna rain for a while."

"Oh hush," says the gal, "Who is number 18, don't hold the programme so selfish, who's 18?"

"Why dear, it doesn't matter who 18 is."

"It does," she hisses tearing the line-ticker giggling. That's all yer honor.

up outa his hand. "Hurrah McGill man out, look Bill, oh hurray."

"I wish you wouldn't yell, Elsie," the mouthsome man says.

The gal sits back sorta hurt and is quiet. Some goes behind them starts jabbering.

"Well, what did yah say then, oh wasn't that great of him, ha ha ha, say what happened then, oh the Varsity man recovered himself . . . ."

Elsie is restive and when Varsity get the first touch she sits all quiet. Then at half time the relay starts, the gent says, What was it for, and she says the intercollegiate tract meet and jumps up quick and yells.

"Keep them elbows up, Varsity, come on, COME ON, COME ON." Just then the Mouthsome person drops the programme and Elsie misses the finish because he makes such a fuss looking for it.

She sits down sudden and looks hard at the sky and sorta murmurs to herself, "Oh lordy, oh dear, oh." Then she turns fierce and says, "Your act bores me, Billie, I like to yell, so shut up cause I'm gonna, an' if yah don't like it you can sue me."

Then she blushes and he laffs and says, "You little devil, you do get excited, now tell me all about the college and this student that disappeared."

"Oh bother with it, the teams are coming out, and what do you care anyway. Hurrah, nice kick off."

"Why I care a lot, seeing your're here" he says, "It's a great to come down . . . . say you aren't listening."

"No and I'm not going to. Get loose there Varsity, they are pepped up this half, that's socking them."

Just about then Varsity gets loose and romps down the field, makes a pretty swerve, passes, and the guy beats it to the line and makes a swell dive over.

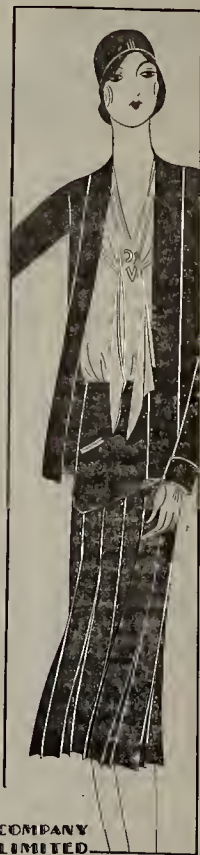

The guy touches her arm and says, "Shish, Elsie, You've dropped your handkerchief."

"AHCK," she gasps, and then she turns blindly and wraps the program around his neck and mutters, "You pest, you pest." The guy gasps and chokes and gets purple and slumps, and then the lady goes clean off her

Montreal, Que., Oct. 17—His Excellency the Governor-General has graciously consented to open the English Music Festival at the Royal York, Toronto, on November 13th, and be accompanied by Lady Willingdon. The festival will commence with a concert in which the chief artists will be the celebrated sextette, known as the English Folk-Dance Society, under the leadership of Douglas Kennedy. The festival will last six days, and has been organized by the Canadian Pacific Railway to promote a better understanding in Canada of the great traditions of English music. Dr. Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, assisted by Alfred Heather, is producing "Hugh, the Drover", the outstanding English opera of the century, and notable English and Canadian singers and instrumentalists will interpret the masterpieces of English music, ancient and modern. Instructive talk on the history of this music will be given free to the public during the festival by J. Campbell McInnes, one of the pioneers in the revival of interest in folk-music.

VOL. XLVIII. UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22nd, 1929 Weather—Fair with occasional rain. No. 18

NEW YORK EXPERT EXPOUNDS SINGLE TAXATION THEORY

"Society Steals a House From Average Citizen Each
Thirty Years"

TAX IN RATIO TO BENEFIT Commerce Club Hear Opinions Opposing Pro Rata Tax Levy

"What is taxation?" asked Mr. James Roger Brown, president of the Manhattan Single Tax Club of New York City, speaking before the Commerce Club yesterday in the Lecture Room of Hart House. "There are two theories. The first is that it is a collection, as in church. We pass the hat and say 'Inasmuch as the Lord's been good to you, come across'. Hence this fool theory of ability to pay."

Mr. Brown then proceeded to enlarge on this aspect of taxation, and had much to say concerning the injustice of the established system of taxation. "Society," he said, "is the greatest violator of the rights of private property that has ever been known in history. We steal private property for public use. The system of tax-collection in force violates every principle of ethics, of science, and of economics. You are taxed, not according to what you get for your taxes, but according to what you get for yourself."

The speaker's own theory was that "taxation is a payment by the citizen to the city for services received. It is not a collection, it is a payment, and it ought to be based on the value of the services rendered to the individual by the city."

Mr. Brown drew several amusing parallels in presenting his case for the single tax. "You paint your house," he said, "and the next day the butcher sends you a bill for twenty pounds of meat. You go and remonstrate with him. You say you never got the meat. He tells you you never will. Then you ask why you should pay for it and he replies that he has decided to do business the same way as the tax department, that you have painted your house (not he, or the city, but you) and so you have to pay for twenty pounds of extra meat."

Mr. Brown went on to point out that the best way to get rid of anything is to tax it. If you want to get rid of the dogs in the city you don't shoot them, you tax them. "The higher the fever," he added, "people don't realize that the same thing happens in the case of houses. That is why there are so many old shacks on your most valuable street, Yonge Street."

Concluding, the speaker said, "We lay great stress on big muscles and big backs—Jackasses have that. We should stress brains. Under the present system society steals a house from the average citizen every thirty years. Why this magnificent display of assiniety? Because we are dumb! Because we know nothing of economics!"

My Pet Peeve

"—is men who blow smoke in my face at rugby games," says Belle Ness, 373.

"—is professors who think they can lecture on after twelve o'clock because lunch is unimportant,"—F. W. Burton, 11, U.C.

INDISCREET CONTROVERSY RESULTS IN EXPULSION

Editor of Grinnell Paper is Rusticated for Words
Attacking Faculty

Grinnell, Ia. Oct. 21—Editor Thorndell Barnes of the Grinnell College paper, whose editorials denounced the erection of the high iron fences around the dormitories of the co-eds at the college, has been expelled.

Shortly after Barnes had written his editorial in which he declared that the co-eds were being housed in a potential firetrap because the faculty feared the co-eds would use the fire escapes after hours as a trysting-place, he was summoned before the dean of men and President J. H. T. Main. The outcome of the conference was dismissal from school.

Although the faculty said that the fences were erected to keep out "peeping Toms", co-eds of the college avowed there were no such characters on the campus. But even if the faculty had the end in view of preventing the girls from keeping late dates with their boy friends, as Barnes and some of the students maintained, others held that it was working in the interests of the students themselves. Certainly the most effective means were taken of putting the plan into execution. Any warnings or notices would have been ridiculous.

LECTURES NEEDED THINK STUDENTS

Few Undergraduates Favour Change in System of Tuition

"PRACTICALLY HOPELESS"

"How would you like to abolish lectures and weekly quizzes and depend on yourself?" was the question put to various students yesterday by "The Varsity". But it appears that Toronto University students do lean on their professors, and the general feeling was against attempting a change in system.

Members of first year were strongly in favour of all possible assistance and more advanced students do not advocate a change.

"Absolute bunk," said Bill Castell, when approached by "The Varsity". "Try it and see! No, I think it would be practically hopeless."

"I do not think it would be feasible for the average student," was the opinion of Dorothy Porter.

Still a few ambitious spirits decided that it would be an interesting experiment to work out one's own destiny.

"I imagine it would be quite popular," said one young lady, twinkling, and Isabella Jordan, hurrying to a lecture, announced that she certainly approved of such a system.

However, a recent graduate in Arts may be quoted as follows: "I do not see how this system could be worked out satisfactorily, for I think that students need some guidance by lectures and weekly groups, and I fear that their absence would be detrimental to the average student."

It is to be concluded, therefore, that we will continue to attend lectures, scribble notes and doze occasionally.

MILLION VOLUME SHELF CAPACITY WITH EXTENSION

Existing 300,000 Limit Will Be Tripled by Library Addition

MORE READING ROOM SPACE

Several Smaller Rooms Serve
Specialized Reading
Purposes

The freshman will find his way to learning less obstructed by crowded reading rooms at the university library, if the tentative plans for the proposed new wing pass the Board of Governors. The plans have been presented by the Superintendent and call for the addition of a large wing to the north of the present building, which was built originally in 1892.

"The present capacity of the library has reached its limits and there is no room in the stacks for new volumes," Professor W. S. Wallace, head librarian, told "The Varsity". "The suggested new wing will relieve these difficulties and give us room for over one million volumes instead of our present capacity of about three hundred thousand. Besides this there will be more adequate space for students to study, and instead of the two general reading rooms, there will be several smaller rooms, each of which will serve a special purpose."

The plans for the new addition are so fully developed that it should be only a short time before they are put into effect. However, even with this new wing it is said that our library will still be small as compared with some in universities in the United States.

Editorial Comment is Provoked By Mocking Comment in Weekly

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Oct. 21—The following editorial appeared in the McGill Daily: Commenting upon the fact that the Daily made a profit of seven hundred and fifty dollars last year, and associating it with the fact that student societies were made to pay for their advertising, the Privater, an independent Toronto weekly magazine edited by a disappointed editor who featured in "The Varsity" uproar last year and failed to pick a plum, says that:

"If the seven hundred and fifty dollars operating profit which the McGill Daily showed, could have been divided among the organizations which paid for advertising in it, the Daily would not have suffered, but an easier task would have confronted the university executives."

Previously in defense of his own paper the editor has stated that twelve hundred of his first issue sold in three days and that in one day last week over two hundred dollars worth of advertising was obtained. Mr. Gilbert Murrell-Wright speaks as one who has not and wishes he has. The wish is father of the thought. If business continues as well as have been the signs up to the present Mr. G. M.-W. will find himself in a position where he will not be able to throw stones. Personally we prefer to be associated with the non-professional type of newspaper work.

Mr. G. M.-W. is evidently unacquainted with the system of affairs as they exist at McGill. Those students' societies who are not under the control of the McGill Students' Society and who paid for their advertising con-

DISLIKES PLATOON SYSTEM

Experiment in Faster Service Explains Mr. Little,
Senior Tutor

"To me the dining-hall is becoming a filling-station," said Charles Leslie, President of Victoria College Student Parliament, to "The Varsity" last night in discussing the new "platoon system" of seating in Burwash Hall.

"My chief objection," he continued, "is that in a small residence one of the chief advantages is social intercourse, and the present system deprives us of that at meals. We are jostled into the first empty seat."

Mr. Little, the Senior Tutor, was interviewed, and said, "The new system was adopted to try and facilitate and speed up the service, and to economize in service. It was only started a few days ago, and was tried as an experiment. I have received a petition from some of the men, but it will not be considered till the Residence Committee meets. The Committee will talk things over and decide what is to be done. It won't meet for a few days, as I am very busy."

J. W. Binning, another resident, explained the new system. "Under the old system, certain tables were allotted to each year, and we always sat at the same table. This is still done at dinner, but for lunch and breakfast we are seated as we come in, filling up (Continued on page 4)

HOWE MARTYN, VICTORIA, IS CODY SCHOLARSHIP WINNER

First Scholarship, Valued at $300, Was Not Awarded
This Year

The awarding of the Mairice Cody Scholarships, which are open to all undergraduates with the exception of those in their first year, was announced yesterday. Of the two Scholarships, the first, valued at $300.00, was not awarded. Mr. Howe Martyn, IV Victoria, received the second, of a value of $200.00. The three examinations which constitute the basis of eligibility for these Scholarships were, this year, on Economic and Constitutional History of Canada, and Public Finance, and were written immediately prior to the opening of the academic year.

These valuable scholarships are of a very practical and interesting nature and since this is the first time they have been awarded it is expected that the number of applicants will be greatly increased during the next few years.

"I am very pleased to hear of Mr. Martyn's success," said the Rev. Canon Cody, one of the donors of the Scholarship and member of the Board of Governors. "And I believe that it is a most fitting manner in which to perpetuate the memory of my son Mairice."

CANADIAN ROADS CONSTRUCT 1,200 MILES EXTENSION

Dean C. H. Mitchell Reveals in Course of Dominion Survey

FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

Speaks From First Hand Of St. Lawrence Canal
Preliminaries

"I can confidently say that the oil-electric locomotive opens a new era in traction," stated Dean C. H. Mitchell, in the course of his address on "Recent Engineering Developments in Canada", delivered at the inaugural meeting of the Engineering Society yesterday afternoon.

The above is only one of the many impressive statements made by the speaker as he covered the dozens of engineering projects throughout the country, all of which he saw during his trip this summer. His descriptions ranged from the great steel rails, the largest and heaviest in the world, made by a Sydney, N.S. firm, to the Esquimault dry dock at Victoria, B.C., the largest on the entire Pacific Coast of America, and included two such different subjects as the new "6100" locomotive, capable of hauling the longest string of freight cars at 70 miles per hour, and a new nitrogen fixation plant in British Columbia.

After this detailed study the speaker turned to subjects of more general interest to the country at large, dwelling especially on the effect of the increased use of "combines" and "swathers" for harvesting in the west. He mentioned, too, the rapid progress of television, and its prospects, and discussed the widespread researches into low grade iron and coal, which may in time give Northern Ontario a dominating industrial position, as well as work on western gas, which is now going to waste at the rate of millions of cubic feet a day, simply for lack of a market.

Turning to the chemical industry he stressed the synthetic processes requiring high pressures, such as the production of nitrogen and ammonia. He also touched on the artificial silk industry, and gasoline refining. A discussion of the progress of aviation followed, with a brief review of advances in aeroplane design, ground organization, airports and so on.

A few words on railway extension brought out the significant fact that the two great Canadian systems have at present under way, mainly in the west, 1,200 miles of extensions. The speaker closed with a few words on the preliminaries of the St. Lawrence Development Scheme, a subject with which he is quite familiar, as he is a member of the Canadian section of the international commission appointed to investigate the problem.

ST. JOSEPH'S DRAMATIC CLUB OFFICERS CHOSEN

At a recent meeting, the officers of St. Joseph's College Dramatic Society were elected: Pres., Mary Gardiner; Sec'y-Treas., L. Patterson; Mistress of Wardrobe, W. A. Luckett; Prop. Directress, P. Bondy; Advertising Manager, E. McBride.

The society's initial venture will be the presentation of Goldsmith's "The Stoops to Conquer", to take place the latter part of November. The dates will be announced in this paper.

ACROPOLIS

It is a source of great happiness to us that, as the new Wycliffe library takes form, that form is altogether graceful and pleasing and in happy accord with Hart House. The roof is higher in proportion, and the trefoils above the windows larger and more marked, but these differences, to our unprofessional eye, add to the charm. The same subject appears without the undue dominance of one creator.

The whole vista now, west and north of the north campus, is quite the best in the university. Hart House, the new library, and Trinity College show the Gothic in the hands of three capable architects, a theme in three movements. Most fortunately, too, all three escape the two usual crimes of the modern Gothic; the squat, heaviness as exemplified in Knox or, better, in Columbia University, and that Gothic exuberance, often seen in the United States, which would certainly give a Goth delirium tremens. Even Wycliffe College proper and the residence do not spoil the effect, they are at least honest, sincere buildings, not pretending to a magnificence which cannot be theirs.

Most unfortunately we cannot say the same for many buildings on the campus. We are not doctors of architecture, we hold no brief for Gothic, Classical, Byzantine or any other specified form. But as laymen of common sense, we do earnestly loathe buildings which, in an effort to avoid being just plain buildings, attempt distinctive style and succeed in distinctive ugliness. Here in our Seat of Ideas, our Academy of Wisdom, are buildings which even the most gushing sentiment could not beautify. Consider, for example, the front campus. U.C. tower is noble, but the rest of the facade has a sort of smirking Victorianism mixed with the Norman which makes it uninspiring as a bread pudding. And the back, in the quadrangle—pure Bronx apartment! There is no more ridiculous sight on earth than that of the Norman tower over yellow brick. The library has a certain charm, but O what manevolent spirit, in the guise of architectural form, inspired the Medical Building? Not centuries will mellow it. The School has a weary look, but it has sanity—it is content to be a school without the sneaking desire to be a Mosque. But then comes the crowning catastrophe, Convocation Hall. It was a stroke of Reactionary genius to place such a thing in the centre of a university; who could look on it day by day and not feel stodgier, more convinced of the uselessness of life, less inclined to break out into new thought. Let us hope that the Communists will realize this and blow it up.

Need we go farther? It is, perhaps, bad taste so far, to have taken away from our physical Alma Mater the sentiment and superiority which cloaks it, but delight in the new library led us on by contrast. The truth of the matter is, the same unquenchable spirit which could and did produce the Metropolitan Building and the new ex-crescence on Avenue Road and Bloor, was not asleep when the university was building. Perhaps it is the soul of good, old Toronto. Who knows? But is there not here excuse for the long-discussed lack of young culture?

But there is hope, as we are trying to point out. We turn again with satisfaction to the looked-for new library and to Hart House, that rare gem set in basalt, of whom someone said, "What need of initiation for the provincial freshman, when he daily sees this." Perhaps even the Acropolis was not built in a day.

CRITICISM AGAIN

Editor, "The Varsity",

Dear Sir,—

After reading your editorial of today with care, I cannot believe you mean what you say. The public, according to you, are "not interested in wisdom and significance (sic) and beauty", and therefore you have no intention of giving them any of these things. There is a very engaging frankness about your words, for even the ordinary journalist pretends he is only prevented from giving his readers better things because they would not buy his paper. You, it seems, do not wish to cater for any but the "average man". Do you really mean that, Mr. Editor? And if so, why? Incidentally, I don't believe the average man is such a fool as you think him.

Yours cordially,
G. M. A. Grube.

Art, Music and Drama

Roth Quartet

The first of the season's chamber music concerts was given in Hart House Theatre on Saturday evening under the auspices of the Hart House String Quartet. The Guest artists were the Roth Quartet of Budapest.

The delicately balanced tone of the four instruments of the Quartet, added to their definiteness of accentuation, which gave remarkable clarity to phrasing, made the Mozart G Major the most delightful of three quartets. A modern quartet of Register proved quite ordinary except for occasional passages of harmonic beauty; periodically a varied rhythm given to the cello in pizzicato gave the allegro movements a certain gaiety and lightness. The programme as a whole tended towards gaiety—even the Schumann was free from heavy sentimentality in all movements but the adagio.

The Hart House Quartet, which will give the second of the concerts, is now touring in England, and according to all reports is receiving great ovations both in London and throughout the country. The visit of the Roth Quartet is a further indication of the international prestige which our own quartet is gaining for itself and Hart House.

CHAMPUS CAT

"The longest time it takes to cross from Victoria College to Hart House by any circuitous path is 32 seconds," a Municipal Parks official told "The Varsity" recently.

C—C

Crowds cheered, bands played, flags waved. The day of the great Municipal Marathon had arrived! The course ran from Victoria College to Hart House, via Richmond Hill. The runners were all lined up, waiting for the signal. The race was to be run in two relays. The first was composed of Professor Milde, Donald MacJack, Parks Commissioner Boatworth, R. E. Noless and Joey Slickerbeth. Two minutes after the first contingent left, they were to be followed by Chief Dripper, with his pet squirrel, Maire McCride, Andre riding a penguin, Duke Junlop and Little Omar, the sophisticated pirate.

The pistol cracked! From the crowd a cry arose, "They're off. Away off." The first contingent sauntered off. After the first came the second.

At the City Limits a delay occurred when Chief Dripper insisted on time off to feed his pet squirrel. During the interval Little Omar seized the opportunity of jotting down a few lines under a convenient elm for his next book of verse. "I made them up while I was running," he explained, "but I don't really think they're good. The metre will creep in on me whatever I do. Fortunately it never makes sense anyway but after I've read the proofs, I do that in the bathtub."

Joey Slickerbeth wanted to quit, but was persuaded to come along with the crowd in order to keep the peace between MacJack and Boatworth, who were quarrelling over who was to propose a toast to the winners from the bandstand.

"I command you to do it," said Boatworth. "It's your duty as a citizen to make a speech. I'll write it for you."

"I refuse," said MacJack. "As a charter member of the Macdonald-Cartier Club and the Toronto Conservative Association, I deny your right to force any citizen to make a speech. I stand for the principle of free silence. I've never yet made a speech from the bandstand, and I never will. Now shut up."

Finally, after many difficulties, the

SHEA'S

You won't write home about the show at Shea's this week, but if you're uncritical and disposed to allow yourself to be entertained, you'll probably spend a couple of agreeable hours. Four of the five acts are all right. Ray Huling has a trained seal, if you dote on trained seals. John Barton wriggles around with ingratiating humour for ten or twelve minutes. Randall and Watson is a really refreshing dance team. Medley and Duprey succeed in being—mirabile dictum!—funny and clean. "The Drake Case" is a feature set in a court-room and employing the usual dish-pan diction. It's not a bad mystery. But we warn you—there's somebody hiding in the Closet!

UPTOWN

Philo Vance is back with us once again in one of S. S. VanDine's best sellers—the Greene Murder Case—and a very satisfying piece of entertainment has been made out of it. William Powell, as the suave and unperturbed detective, and Jean Arthur as Aida Greene, carry off their difficult roles with credit, while the comedy relief is supplied by Eugene Pallett as Sergeant Heath. The tense and well-knit story, in spite of some little departure from the book, works up to an unexpected and dramatic conclusion. While similar in tempo to the "Canary Murder Case", the "Greene Case" contains more thrills and shudders and Vance's psychological development of the solution is to our mind of much greater

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Sure was some week-end for Intercollegiate sports, and Varsity took almost all the events. The Blue and White eliminated McGill from the football race in grand style. And if they continue to improve within the next two weeks as they have in the past week, the college title will be settled in Toronto on November 2, with Varsity as favourites.

The Blue regained the track honours by taking practically every cinder event. The Rutan Cup, emblematic of the golf championship, was retained by Varsity. And McGill was extended to win the tennis tournament. However, Walter Martin remains the individual champion.

Elson went into the game on Saturday as sub end; by his brilliant performance he earned a regular berth. And he wasn't so much the "child of fortune", as a smart football player. The first touch came as a result of going right down under every one of Bill's kicks. His second try showed that he knew where an end ought to be, as also when he pulled down one of McGill's outside kicks. Elson certainly is welcome strength to Varsity's weakest department.

The game was certainly productive of new finds. Bell and Fitzpatrick as a backfield pair should develop before the end of the season as one of the smartest in Canada. Fitz's speed, combined with Bell's headiness sure are yard gainers. With Jack Sinclair and Hallam out because of injuries, Bell had to do the kicking, and his long low punts against the wind were much more effective than Kritzwiser's hoists.

A noticeable feature of the game was the 200 odd yards lost on offside penalties. Varsity were penalized 17 times and McGill 6. Coach McPherson will have plenty to do to eliminate this looseness of play before the Tricolour come down here.

The first basketball practice was called to-day. Coach McCutcheon had his hands full with the mob that showed up, and he started right off by dropping some men who displayed little knowledge of the cage game. With the wealth of material at his disposal McCutcheon should produce Intercollegiate cage champions.

ENGINEERS TRIUMPH OVER MEDS IN WATER POLO TILT

School whitewashed Meds yesterday afternoon in a junior water polo game by the score of 6 to 1. School looks like the team to beat for the cup. They played good combination at all times and their shooting was very accurate. Sutton and Powell were the best for S.P.S. while Davey starred for Meds. ## VARSITY RUGGERITES WIN SECOND MATCH OF SEASON

Score Three Touches Against British Public Schools Aggregation

Playing on cruelly hard ground at the U.C.C. Oval, last Saturday, the Varsity 'rugger team won their second encounter this season, defeating the British Public Schools Club 11-6. The condition of the field should have made for fast open play, but the Varsity forward line seemed to lack ambition, and were dead on their feet. Plenty of scrummages was the order of the day, and the backs were not given much opportunity to show their wares. However, playing a hard game, Gold- enburg made several gains and got Varsity's first try. Archbold and McLean combined well together; Arch- bold scoring the second touchdown after a pretty run by McLean. In the second half the forwards came to life, and backed up Rogers well when he went over for Varsity's last try, which was converted by McKay.

Bob Battye, an ex-captain of Varsity, now playing with the Schools, showed a consistently threatening game scoring both of the School's tries. Varsity—McKay, Archbold, McLean, Wood, Goldenburg, Rogers, Roome, Wynburne, Garner, Nash, Knowles, Allin, Brown, Telford, Phillips.

According to Trainer Bert Minhall, Carnegie Tech will have one pound less than a ton of backfield material this year.

O.A.C. TAKE TEAM TROPHY

The interfaculty race for the Brotherton Cup was won by J. W. Graham, Meds., doing the 5.6 mile course in 31 minutes and 48 seconds. Banks of O.A.C. was a close second and Hal Williams, Meds., made his debut in Harrier circles by finishing a strong third.

The trophy was won by O. A. C., while the Meds nosed out University College for second place.

Seventy-five men finished the race and the results of the first twenty-five places are:

Graham, Meds.; Banks, O.A.C.; H. G. Williams, Meds.; S. S. Lee, S.P.S.; Thompson, O.A.C.; Griffiths, O.A.C.; D. J. Smith, U.C.; E. B. Howey, Vic; Kendall, O.A.C.; Malkin, O.A.C.; Dempsey, O.A.C.; N. ## GLASS STAR FOR VICTORIA

Victoria defeated Trinity yesterday afternoon in a closely played water polo game, by the score of 1 to 0. Victoria showed that they have the material but they need lots of practice if they intend to get anywhere. Glass was the outstanding player for Vic, his shooting was the best on both teams.

Vic.—McLean, Perkins, Barrett, Ed- mison, Wood, Glass (Capt.), King, Gould, Cowie. Trinity—MacDonald, Hunt, Lund, Chambers, Ray, Cattle (Capt.), Mer- syme, Chapple.

Heidelberg College students drove out of town three men suspected of being scouts for Ohio State University, seeking to induce Merle Hutson, an all-Ohio tackle, to come to State. The three suspects were escorted from town in a truck.

SCHOOL FOOTBALLERS TRIM DENTS IN MULOCK SERIES

With fourteen points secured by Zieman and Grosvenor in tries and by Hancock's kicking for rouges, School defeated Dents last night on the back campus fourteen to two. Dents' only points came from kicks to the dead-line by Sinclair, who did excellent work. Despite the advances made by Muchmore, the hardest working man on the field, Dents were unable to overcome the weakness of their line. Sinclair and Mitchell were also good for Dents.

Grosvenor's running for School was stellar, and was supported well by Hancock. Zieman's bucking tore large holes in the Dent line for gains. New life seemed to come to School's line in the second quarter, with Tyson perhaps the best.

School—Carruthers, Grosvenor, Arm- strong, Hancock, Davidson, Cregar, Anderson, Zieman, Tyson, Rupsay, Joyner, Hardy, Subs—Wilson, Blair, Meyer, Cowie, Bremmerman, Shedden, Butterill.

Dents—Cominsky, Muchmore, Sin- clair, Kusch, Jolosky, Beesley, Brown, Merritt, Mitchell, Kahu, Conn, Wylie, Gibson. Subs—Cook, Milne.

Senior Arts Fail to Score With Pickup Team Against Well Coached Opponents

TRIN. INTERFERENCE WEAK

Trinity defeated Sr. Arts 24-0 in a Mulock Cup game played yesterday at Trinity field. Trinity greatly outclass- ed U.C., being much superior in every department, and the result was never in doubt. The "Awrey" coached ag- gregation showed some smart plays, but will have to perfect their inter- ference to secure the championship cup. For Trinity Clough, S. Martin, Stone and Summerhayes turned in a good performance. The Trinity points were chalked up on four touches, two converts and two rouges.

U.C. presented another last minute collection, who made a good showing, considering the short time available to be introduced to each other. The teams:

KNOX EMERGE AS GROUP CHAMPIONS

Beeton, Macdonald and John- son Score in 3-0 Victory Over Medicals

HOBBS STARS IN MED GOAL

Knox won their group when they defeated Meds 3-0 in soccer yesterday afternoon. This puts them in the semi-final. The game was hotly con- tested and it was only Knox's good combination playing that brought home the bacon. Johnson, Beeton, and Macdonald starred for Knox. The game started fast and furious, and in the first five minutes Beeton had scored with Johnson's able assistance. Just before half time Macdonald sent another home. Score 2-0.

In the last half Johnson scored again for Knox. On the Meds team Hobbs, goal, and Vitta, centre half, were outstanding. The final score was 3-0. The line-up was—

Knox—Goal, Irwin; backs, B. Jack, H. Davidson; halves, McCullough, Rowland, D. Jack; forwards, Macdon- ald, Beeton, D. Davidson, Johnson and Goforth.

Meds.—Goal, Hobbs, backs, King, Haugh; halves, Vitta, McKinnay, Steen; forwards, Lee, Wilford, Mickle- john, Ayres, and Dixon.

SR. S.P.S. DEFEAT U.C.

Sr. S.P.S. defeated Sr. U.C. yester- day afternoon in a scheduled water polo game by 2 to 0.

School were much the better and only the stellar playing of Ayers in goal for U.C. kept the score down to small proportions. Grant and Alex- ander were best for School.

Sr. U.C.—Ayers (Capt.), Beaura- garde, Richmond, Brown, Davies, Cook, Gibson, Dennis.

Sr. S.P.S.—Ward, Alexander, Pier- dar (Capt.), Grant, Little, Murby, Gibbs, Hicks, Boughton.

Trinity—S. Martin, Yates, Hovey, Sinclair, Gray, Wotherspoon, Kerr, H. Martin, Clough, Stewart, Stone, Sum- merhayes; subs: Strathy, Berwick, McLaren, Coleman, Fair, Parmenter, H. Martin, Dickson, Welch, Edwards. U.C.—Keith, Wilson, French, Col- lingswood, Ward, Harris, Steiner, Hol- ton, Finlayson, Davies, Fleming, Fin- ningley, Holmes, Bell, McGibbon.

DRUGGISTS TRIM TRINITY

Pharmacy Soccerites Edge Out One Goal Victory on Penalty Kick

Pharmacy defeated Trinity 1 to 0. The game was keenly contested as the score indicates. There was some very fine passing done by both teams, mak- ing the game very interesting. In the first half Donaldson of Pharmacy made a beautiful penalty kick. In this half Pharmacy was much the superior. However, in the second half Trinity more than made up for their weak playing of the first half. Up to the very last minute they were threaten- ing Pharmacy's goal. Hadley and Wong of Trinity played very well.

Line-ups:— Pharmacy — Goal, Wilcox; I. back, Donaldson; r. back, Cowling; centre half, Smith; right half, Herme; left half, Copeland; forwards, Louttit, Co- male, Walton, Norse, Ivey.

Trinity—Goal, Brown; I. back, Had- ley; r. back, Wootres; centre half, Douglas; left half, Chattle; forwards, Coy, Bell, Chattle, Brown, Wong and Sinfield.

"SCIENCE AND RELIGION" SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION

Dr. Line Opens Study Group Sessions at Wymilwood With Summary

The general organization meeting of Dr. Line's "Science and Religion" Group was held at Wymilwood on Monday afternoon from five to six. Dr. Line emphasized the need of absolute frankness in the discussions, especially as the subject was broad and inclusive. Some of the topics to be discussed are, "Evolution", "Psychology and Religion", "Is Psychology different from Religion?", Also on "Science and Religion". Is Science essentially contrary to Religion in its tendency? He said it was unnecessary to go to texts for study on the topic, for people receive Religion in their upbringing and as students in high schools and colleges they get a fair knowledge of Science, all which accumulated, provide enough knowledge for discussions.

The meeting was well attended and mental activities were stimulated by refreshments.

The group will meet from five to six every Monday.

INITIAL MEETING VIC VOLUNTEERS

Discussion Groups Will Meet On Alternate Monday Evenings

STUDY MODERN MISSIONARY

Last evening in the Blue Room at Wymilwood the Victoria College unit of the Student Volunteer Movement held its first meeting of the year which was very well attended. Following an opening prayer by Geo. Falconer, Bob Clark, president of the unit, outlined the plans of the organization for the year. In order that the members may become better acquainted, a hike is being planned for Saturday afternoon, November 2nd, which will be followed by a supper in Danforth United Church, for which occasion an eminent speaker is being procured.

On alternate Monday evenings, discussion groups under the leadership of different members, will examine in detail an interesting book written by Stanley High, "The Awakening World", which presents the task of the Modern Missionary as a challenge to Student Volunteers.

Godfrey Phillips' new book, "The Missionary's Job", was reviewed, by way of introduction to the course of study, by Miss Ward of the Deaconess Training School. This publication tells what Missionaries have to do, why they do it, and how they feel about it, the treatment being rather pointed and enlightening without. Realizing that Humanity consists of more than the population of Europe and America and a fringe of people outside; that the experience of Christ is valuable to us not because we are white, British, etc., but because we are human; that Missionary enterprise is not born of Imperialism or superiority, are some of the reasons students volunteer for work abroad. The Missionary is the scaffolding about the building of the Christian Church in foreign lands, which, on being removed, permits the native organization to discover itself and continue the noble work nobly begun.

Dumb Desmond Doffs Deadly Duds Acts Apollo After Acrid Argument

By V. Geller

It's the funniest thing that happened since the time a communist tried to assassinate the king of spades.

The S.P.S. freshman walked into the office, his tie, as green as last year's collar button, radiating its friendly light like an automatic traffic signal. "I want an examination," he modestly warbled to the young man at the desk.

The young man at the desk looked up and read the frank, noble features of the honest face accosting him. "Well," he drawled softly, "it's too bad," and returned to his work.

"Don't try to be so smart," growled the boy with the tie which some people claim was designed by the Group of Seven. "I want a medical examination. You know; it's for P.T. How I hate P.T. I've got lumbago in my left ear, and last year I had my tonsils taken out."

"Well, my dear man, if you want a medical examination, I guess you'll have to see the doctor," spoke the unsympathetic young man at the desk.

"Well, that's what I've been trying to make you understand," chirped the budding scientist as joyfully as an American prohibition agent who has just killed his forty-fifth bootlegger. And he removed his fierce cravat. By the time our young man at the desk looked up once more, his visitor had but one final article of clothing to remove to look like a Grecian statue.

"Hey," screamed the young man at the desk, "what the asterisk are you doing?"

"Just getting ready for the doctor," replied Yonh. "This is the doctor's office, isn't it?"

"Like my grandmother's bobbed hair it is! This is the office of 'The Varsity', and we don't allow nature dancing in the nude here."

All of which would be twice as funny if it had really happened. But we'll go Bernard McFadden one better by saying that a certain individual did actually apply at the aforementioned journalistic centre for corporal inspection. Had not a kind heart been stronger than Satan's counsel, he would have been a sick man by the time he left the office.

first five reached Richmond Hill and turned back to the Big City, waiting for the second lot on the way. The ten stalwarts marched into Queen's Park together, and were met by a band headed by Billious Chaxon Bittle, the Chief Tooter. Andre was lagging somewhat behind, as the penguin found him a rather heavy burden, till he spied Gaspard McGuffey.

"Stop!" cried Gaspard. "That's my penguin." Andre immediately began to run. Down to the handstand he dashed, and then across to Hart House. Just as he reached his goal, McCride, who had cut across the grass, cut in ahead of him.

"Hurrah," cried sonic, "McCride wins."

"Foul, foul," cried others, "he cheated, and besides he hasn't paid his taxes."

Eventually seventeen hundred policemen, stationed in the Park to see that everyone made a speech before entering, carried him off to penal servitude, singing, a little out of tune, their martial chorus, "The Law Must Be Maintained."

A little difficulty was encountered in measuring the time of the Marathon, as the hands of the stop-watch had gone right around and started all over again, and were now registering 32 seconds. Everybody disagreed on how many hours to add on, till one of the City Fathers said, "Don't add on any. I declare the official time to be 32 seconds, and that means by any circuitous route."

All of which makes it very difficult for me to explain why I'm so late for lectures when I go by way of the Tuck Shop.

DISOBEDIENT FROSH LEAD HARD LIFE IN SASK.

One Must Ride Hobby Horse to Lectures; Another Fishes on Campus

Special to "The Varsity"
Saskatoon, Sask.—Novel penalties were imposed on freshmen at the University of Saskatchewan who refused to obey the rulings of the Initiation Committee. One man, who had failed to appear for the initiation, was adequately dealt with when he appeared the next night. Two others had refused to wear the full freshman regalia, which consists of a eard bearing the bearer's name and college, a ribbon of green and white and one of red and white, a green and white cap and a check suit audible on a clear day for miles. Another frosh had refused to obey the regulation that any frosh found breaking a regulation by a non-frosh must shine the detector's shoes (for which purpose he must carry a shoe-shine kit at all times' or brush off his clothes).

All the scofflaws were obliged to wear a yellow ribbon over the left shoulder and down the back for the rest of the initiation period. Of two convicted of major offences, one was sentenced to ride hobby horse on a broom between lectures for one day, and the other to erect an aquarium in the middle of the campus and fish out of it from 11.30 till the dinner-bell.

one table after another. The chief objections to this are, first, that it does not lend itself to conversation with men of your own year at meal time, the only time we all have to discuss things together. Chaps in residence discuss things most seriously and most humorously around the table. We do come in contact with more men from other years, but isn't what we need.

We can get that at parties.

"The second chief defect of the 'platoon system' is that it is slower. Formerly we had one waitress for some time at a table and she got to know our individual likes and dislikes. This saved a lot of time, especially at breakfast, time which is now lost."

Howe Martyn told "The Varsity", "Personally, I have no serious objections to the present system. I usually get enough to keep me alive, which is the chief purpose of dining-halls. One objection which I have heard is that the service is slower. I was intending to take a stop-watch in to-morrow and time the service, but not having done it yet I'm not in a position to judge.

Discussing the lack of conversation complained of, he said, "There is certainly a great deal to be said for that argument. On the other hand, the new system should theoretically lead to greater social intercourse among the members of the various years. I doubt if it will, as the men usually sit in groups of two or three from each year, and conversation is limited to smaller groups.

"I imagine the adoption of the new system is a result of the large increase in registration, which means that the capacities of the Hall are taxed, and more efficient service is necessary. The question is, is the service more efficient, and if so, does it make up for the loss in social intercourse."

"The old way was what distinguished us from Hart House," said G. F. Perkin, "and now we are as incoherent as it is."

J. Hart told "The Varsity" that a petition had been put up in each house for the men of the second, third and fourth years to sign, and that about five-sixths of them had signed it. He said that the petition had been handed to Mr. Little, and would probably be dealt with at the next meeting of the Residence Committee.

TARIFFS VALUABLE IN MAKING CANADA BIGGER AND BETTER

Says Tory Chieftain in Address
Before Macdonald-Cartier Club

WORK FOR CANADIANS

Hon. R. B. Bennett Appeals to Students to Put Party
Beneath Country

Declaring that he was not a high tariff man, "for as far as I am concerned all tariffs, bounties, bonuses and premiums served only the one purpose, that of building up our country, of making Canada something better for our being resident here," R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition at Ottawa, outlined his views of what the youth should look for when on the threshold of public life. He told the members of the Macdonald-Cartier Club, under whose auspices the luncheon at the King Edward Hotel was held yesterday noon, that party means only one thing and has only one purpose, that of building up the magnificent natural resources of a country.

The Hon. Mr. Bennett forcibly asked the assembled youths to look ahead and no matter what their walk of life may be, attempt to do something towards making Canada greater of giving work to Canadians of helping Canada first.

The Conservative leader pointed out that according to trade statistics which were available to everybody, Canada was importing ten times as much finished material as she manufactured. Raw material was coming out of the Canadian mines and going to the United States to be manufactured and then sold back to Canada. (Continued on page 4)

EDUCATION COURSE NOT LENGTHENED

Dean Pakenham Sees no Necessity for Such a Step

CO-EDS UNFAVOURABLE

"There is absolutely no foundation for the statement that the course at the Ontario College of Education is to be extended to two years," stated Dean Pakenham yesterday. Where this rumour originated is not known but the Dean expressed hearty disapproval of the whole matter.

This would prove unwelcome news to many an undergraduate who is looking forward to a life's career with some anxiety. A year after graduation would mean delay and expense. But if this was extended to two years it would be prohibitive for many it was thought.

"We feel that we have had just about enough education when we graduate," said one girl. "Two years at O.C.E. would be the blow that kills school teaching for me."

The one year course, on the other hand, seemed very satisfactory. If increase in numbers was any indication of success, the College of Education was certainly heading in the right direction. Expansion into new lines of work such as the commercial and music options showed its ability to meet the growing demands of education. While these needs were met with a one year course, a change to a longer period would be of little advantage.

POLICE REPORT NO DEVELOPMENTS IN ROBINSON CASE

Lack of Motive Makes Case Difficult, States Detective
Black

SEAPORT BEING WATCHED

Last night, the whereabouts of Howard G. Robinson, the Victoria College student, who disappeared a week ago last Saturday, was still a mystery. The police are working on the problem, but there is nothing definite to report. When asked by "The Varsity" whether there were any new developments, Detective Black of Police Headquarters, was only able to reply that they were still working on the case. "We received a letter from Montreal headquarters this morning," he said, "and they report nothing new. They are watching all out-going ships, in the hope that he might try to leave by that port."

Detective Black said that the case was an unusually difficult one, because of the lack of a motive. "We have absolutely nothing to work on," he said, "which leaves us completely baffled. Usually we are furnished with clues, which finally lead to a solution. In this case the lack of a clue leaves us in almost the same place as we started. All that we can do is keep in touch with the case and hope that something will turn up that will clear the way to a solution."

At Knox College, where Robinson was residing with his brother before his disappearance, there was no news. His brother John was still completely at a loss as to where his brother might be. "The Varsity" was informed. Howard Robinson disappeared about a week and a half ago. He left his room in Knox College without saying a word to his friends, and did not take with him any of his personal effects. No motive has been suggested for his disappearance.

REV. WALLACE APPOINTED CHANCELLOR BY BOARD OF REGENTS OF VICTORIA

New Chancellor is at Present at the Pacific Relations
Conference

SUCCEEDS DR. BOWLES

Possesses Long Training and Wide Experience in Educational Matters

The Board of Regents of Victoria University at a meeting held on Tuesday afternoon, appointed the Rev. E. W. Wallace, M.A., D.D., to the office of Chancellor and President, succeeding Chancellor Bowles, whose resignation was accepted at the last meeting of the Board of Regents. The Chancellor elect is at present in the Orient but is expected back in Toronto early in January and will likely assume his new office on January 20th, 1930. In the meantime Dr. Bowles continues as Chancellor, which office he has held since 1913. When his successor assumes the duties Dr. Bowles will become Chancellor and President Emeritus of Victoria University.

Edward Wilson Wallace, the elder son of Rev. F. W. Wallace, former Dean of the Faculty of Theology of Victoria College, was born in 1880 in New Jersey. He attended Harbord Street Collegiate and the University of Toronto, graduating in classics from Victoria College and receiving the degree of B.D. in 1906. In 1920, while on furlough from China he completed his postgraduate work at Columbia University, and in the following year his Alma Mater honored him with the honorary degree of D.D. Dr. Wallace is one of the youngest men to be honored thus by Victoria University.

For many years in missionary work in China, Dr. Wallace achieved a marked success in this line of work and was for eight years secretary of the China Christian Educational Association. (Continued on page 4)

FAIR COEDS PLACE TRUST IN FIREMEN

Precaution of Fire Drills is Deemed Necessary For Safety

DECISION OF MASS MEETING

At a mass meeting held in Queen's Hall last night, arrangements were made for a fire-drill. Such a precaution seems necessary because, as one senior expressed it, "the building is a regular fire-trap." In fact, one of the chief objections to smoking in the residence is the danger of fire in an old building.

No one seems to know whether the alarm will come in the middle of the night or not, but everyone must be prepared to hurry downstairs and outside. A warning gong will sound, whereupon each co-ed must close her window and turn on her light, so that the firemen can see in. The protectors on each floor deserve sympathy for they must remain until the last and in case of a real fire they might find their job not only unpleasant but uncomfortable.

"Be prepared" is a very good motto, but many seem to agree with one pessimist who, is afraid the Hall will never burn down. A stroke of luck like that might result in a new residence for University College women.

Rev. E. W. Wallace

Who, yesterday, was appointed Chancellor and President of Victoria University.

REST FROM CARES BUT NOT FROM WORK

Retiring Chancellor Intends to Cultivate His Farm as a Hobby

MODERN GENERATION O.K.

"Dr. Wallace is a cultured, educated, unselfish gentleman," said Dr. Bowles, the retiring Chancellor to "The Varsity" last night. "I think the college is very fortunate in finding one of its own graduates and a young Canadian to fill the position. When he was at the college he was one of the leaders in scholarship and in the life of the college."

Asked what he intended to do after retiring, Dr. Bowles replied, "I shall rest from official care, but not from work. I hope to do a little writing, and I hope to enjoy myself at times in doing nothing. I have a little farm in the country as a hobby, and I get a kick out of it."

HOLDS 7½ MILLIONS

"Grain Elevator Construction," was the subject of a paper delivered by Mr. H. V. Cranfield at the second regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club which was held in Thinity House on Tuesday night.

The speaker traced the building of Pool No. 7 elevator from the driving of the first sheet pile to the installation of the grain handling machinery. This Port Arthur elevator is unique in several features. Built in 1928 it still remains the largest unit to be constructed at one time; its dimension being roughly one quarter mile long, 250 feet high and 100 feet wide.

To the uninitiated this type of reinforced concrete work would appear relatively easy. The technique of handling grain has, however, become very complex and necessitates carefully planned and accurately made equipment.

The fascinating details of co-ordinating the construction of the individual sections were explained by the speaker from personal experience. Although this elevator holds 7½ million bushels of grain it is so efficiently organized that it can be completely emptied of its contents in 36 hours. Finally the progress of the grain was followed through the various departments from train to freighter.

After some lively discussion the meeting was closed. A vote of thanks was passed to the speaker and the hosts who kindly supplied the refreshments for the evening.

CZECHS PLAY HUNGARY

Special to "The Varsity"
Prague, Czechoslovakia — (IP)—If American college students are the objects of criticism because they place too much apparent importance on football games, they may point their critics to Central Europe, where the winning of international football contests has become second in the importance to the honor of the various countries only to that of winning military scraps. According to the outlook of the Czechoslovakian press, if this nation loses its football game with Hungary, the future of the nation is lost.

Similar interest in an international football game was experienced last year when Austria beat Italy in a game at Vienna, and the Italian press was so outraged at the loss, that it almost seriously asked for a military invasion of the opponent's territory.

FORCES CO-OPERATE

Normally City Police do not Patrol the University
Grounds

"The city police, of course, have power to enter the university grounds in such cases," said Sir Robert Falconer, when interviewed by "The Varsity" concerning the invasion of university property by city police last Saturday, when the attempted meeting in Queen's Park was foiled.

"The university would not want to interfere with the work of the police in such a case," he continued, "and it would certainly be very hard to distinguish between students and Communists."

Ordinarily the city police do not patrol university grounds, as there is a special corps of university police for the purpose. The city police and university police, of course, work in co-operation, Sir Robert stated. At special functions as at the recent convocation, city police assist in the direction of the crowds.

U.C. MAGAZINE TO FLOURISH AGAIN

C. R. Tracy, New Editor, Proposes to Improve Appearance and Contents

STAFF IS OPTIMISTIC

Under the active supervision of the Literary Director of University College, L. M. Gelber, '30, an editorial staff has been formed for the U. C. Magazine. Clarence Tracy, '30, is editor, and the following have been appointed associate editors: Anne Adler, '31, Lou Golden, '30, and Pat Usher, a graduate student.

The appearance and contents of the magazine are to be improved, according to the editor. There will be no restrictions on subject matter, and C. R. Tracy is anxious to receive articles on any subject, although college sport and college dramatics will be given prominent space. The staff are confident of overcoming the usual handicap of lack of material.

Contributions may be left with any of the editors, or at the offices of the Literary Society. The magazine goes to press next week.

COLLITCH!

Microscopic examination reveals that even our pet shaving cream does not penetrate to the root of the trouble—enlarged photographs show that the vacuum cleaner we have been using for years has been relentlessly tearing the nap from our Persian prayer rugs—and glaring white spotlights are continuously trained upon "college students" revealing only to the gobbling public, their infantile grotesqueries of their younger generation.

As a result of this segregation of university students as a special specie under the genus of "homo sapiens," they are becoming a separate class with definite and studied characteristics. The movie-going public regard them as a carousing bunch of young wheedlers, given to the chronic ailments of puppy love, and artistically decorated tomato cans on wheels. The word "freshman" conveys an individual without even the saving grace of faked intelligence; the "sophomore" is the sophisticated epitome of all savoir faire; the "junior" is usually the fellow who gives up everything for the dear old Alma Mater, and then, having run the gamut of uncertain tribulations, comes romping home with a parchment role in one hand and a new Schaeffer pen set in the other.

Men of the business world say that it takes a college graduate two months to climb down the rungs of theoretical thought to which his education has raised him, and two more months to get started on the first rung of practical application, but none of them have mentioned the fact that after starting with practicality, a man goes ahead faster with the odd theory to mix with it.

Only last year a prominent business woman of this city, addressing a gathering of university women, made the statement—"I am perfectly content not to be a college graduate—I am intolerant enough as it is." A few months later the president of a technical school across the line advised the graduating class to be individual and complete snobs, if they would attain any prominence in the world. With such divergence of advice being hurled promiscuously in the direction of our seats of learning, and spread with the celerity of press propaganda through the public channels, it is no wonder that outside opinions of college life are decidedly distorted from the actual reality.

From the political platforms of the province, glowing pictures are painted of reeling young degenerates who are a disgrace to their country, and examples of what the Minister of Education as Premier of Ontario has done for the growing youths of to-day.

It is our opinion that if the movies, the press, and the general public would stop the pseudo-psycho-analysis of the collegian, whose one aim in life is to break a window in the first snow fight, and regard him as a normal human being not yet beyond the enthusiasm of living; the collegian himself would be freed from the inducement to play up to his public; and ordinary everyday people would accept him as they accept the same old brand of shaving cream, and the same old vacuum cleaner.

A Paper Ruined

(Contributed)

A weak and ignorant editorial policy never went well with an active news department in any newspaper, and the Mail and Empire is no exception to that rule. Toronto has some weak editorial pages, but that of the Mail is the prize of all. Published under a cloak of intelligence the opinions expressed by the editors are weak beyond words. Their policy is vacillating in the extreme and they have as yet failed to say anything that is worth perusal by any sane man. Even those wild and woolly blusterings of the Evening Telegram are better. At least the Telegram editor wants to say something and says it even though the language and ideas may not be desirable. But the Mail! Not an editorial appears that is not long winded and empty. Not an editorial appears that does not show the grossest ignorance. If it were any other city than Toronto The Ignorant, these editorial writers would not last a few days. Is the editorial policy so weak that it is afraid to say anything better than what is discussed at the bridge tables of the social nothings?

In questions of foreign affairs the ravings of the Mail writers show the grossest imbecility and in questions of home policy it is satisfied to wander wherever the winds of the bosses seem to chase it. If there be anything in our experience worse than the Mail's editorials it is their comments. What bunk! Sheer unadulterated bunk. Nobody is asking the commentator to be wise. At least a sign of human wit is advisable. A half column of comment! Who wants that much bilge. Yes, we know it is difficult to write a good deal every day. But why not write only two comments, but make them readable. We always thought that John Scott was a fine newspaper man. How then does he permit the editorial page to fall so low? Or is it because Isaac Walton Killam, of Royal Security fame, has said this must be done, this must not?

Turn from that abominable editorial page to the news columns and what a refreshing change you find. There is no other newspaper in Canada that has as fine a news department as that of the Mail. Keen, vigorous men are at the head. No blundering, no overlapping, no fear to print a good newspaper story, no fear to be fair in their head writing. Take the prominent case of the Queen's Park Fizzle. A magnificent news story appeared in the Mail's columns, with fair and decent heads written on them. Altogether a marvel of reporting. Then two weeks later the Mail editorial page commented upon the event. Waiting for public opinion to blow this way or that? Not a story of any worth appears in the news columns but it is adequately played up by whom is without doubt the best man in the city. In Vernon Knowles they have a News Editor that takes a back seat to no one and his staff seems to become efficient under his handling. Pick up the Mail any morning and there confronts you the best stories from a news viewpoint in the city and yet that same paper will contain the most ineffectual editorials. How long can this anomaly con-

In our last visit to the Greenland farm, we came on one Delphinium, novelist of the Greenland 'Icy Mountains', a local weekly for the promotion of vers libre, and independent Eskimo opinion. This gent consented to write for us a serial, a good honest Canadian yarn, of our own country called "The Rhyme of the Morning Dew". The first instalment appears hereunder and others will follow twice a week.

"The Rhyme of the Morning Dew"

i
I sing of days that are no more,
Of northern fastnesses of yore,
Before the chugging aeroplane
And outboard motor, loud, profane,
Had scored the silence of the north;
When men were men and fared them forth
Alone in copper-bound canoes
Or, if not lone, at least in twos.
I sing, in short, of bad men bold,
Who paddled north in search of gold.
ii
Of these the boldest and the worst,
Of massive beard and quenchless thirst,
Who could toss off two quarts of rye
And plug a squirrel in the eye,
Whose paddle bent with every stroke,
(A mighty guy! A hefty bloke!)
Who neither man nor louse did fear,
Who wore his shirt at least a year,
Yet bore himself a Scot, and proud,
Was fighting, tough, "Foghorn" McLeod!
"Foghorn," they dubbed him from his youth,
For, when he opened his bearded mouth
There issued from his depths profound

time? Surely there should be an awakening on someone's part. The newspaper is as strong as its weakest department and the editorial is far weaker than anything produced even in "your morning smile" column. A change in writers or what may seem more likely a removal of the muffler is due. And John Scott, or no John Scott, good news columns or not, the Mail will follow downwards in the footsteps of the World if there is not a shakeup.

Sketch Class

The Sketch Class at Hart House, which is now forming for this season, is rapidly becoming in the nature of an institution. Its popularity has been well attested by the registration and attendance it has had in past years, and this popularity shows no sign of dying out. The class affords an opportunity for both graduate and undergraduate members of Hart House to indulge their artistic tendencies by placing before them the means of enjoying hours of sketching under expert supervision.

The Sketch Committee has been most fortunate again this year in securing the services of Mr. F. S.

Haines to conduct the classes. Mr. Haines, a well known Toronto artist, and at present Director of the Toronto Art Gallery, has assisted the Committee in this respect for several years past, to the utmost satisfaction of all with whom he has come in contact.

The Sketch Class meets once a week for two hours, during which time Mr. Haines personally supervises and criticizes the work of the members. An announcement of the date and hour of the first meeting appears elsewhere in this issue. It must be understood that prospective members should have some elementary knowledge of drawing. Particulars may be obtained at the Warden's Office, Hart House.

VARSITY INTERMEDIATES PLAY THE AGGIES AT GUELPH TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The various senior football groups are gradually reaching the point where the group winner is declared. The Intercollegiate remains the Gordian Knot which will likely not be cut until the Queen's game here on Nov. 9. And at that when the smoke of battle has blown away the well known entanglement is likely to be worse than ever. In fact we are looking for a tie, with the Blue and the Tricolour sharing the top rung.

This year the Intercollegiate winner has a bye to the Eastern finals. But it appears that Varsity and Queen's may be settling their issue while the winners of the Big Four and the O.R.F.U. are tearing into each other. We are not likely to cause any commotion by picking Hamilton Tigers as Big Four winners, but some may wish to challenge our selection of Sarnia as O.R.F.U. champions. The latter have still to win their section, but we are confident that they will come through and go on to smear Balm Beach who should represent the other Ontario Union division. Make no mistake about it either. The Tunnel Town outfit look like a real team.

Out west where men are men and—never mind—Calgary Tigers look like the team to come east to participate in the annual massacre. But certain "experts" figure that the west might spring a great surprise by running up a good score with the forward pass. Maybe so, but when we look at several of the teams performing hereabouts, it looks like the westerners will have a tough time getting possession of the ball long enough to hurl any forward passes. In former years about the only time west had the pigskin was when they got it on a kick-off.

The intermediates play O.A.C. in Guelph to-day. The Blue still have a chance for honours in this section. If they beat the "Aggies" this afternoon, and the latter lose their next game the Blue can tie matters by beating Western on Saturday.

LACROSSE REPORTS SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Many Close Games Played
Throughout Tour of United States

WILL TRAVEL AGAIN

The following is the official report of the tour made by the U. of T. Lacrosse Club during the late spring: "The team made an early start at practice and the turnout of men for positions was much larger than had been expected. A strong team was rounded out and two games were played against the senior O.A.L.A. team of the Toronto Lacrosse Club; one was a victory of 5-4, the other a defeat of 2-1, both proving the calibre of our team.

"Leaving Toronto on May 24th, we met the Montclair team of Montclair, N.J., and, tired from an all night trip on the train we were defeated on a wet field by the score of 8-5. The following Tuesday we again met the Montclair team this time strengthened by two of their stars who had been absent for the preceding game, and on a dry field we defeated them by 11-2.

ST. MICHAEL'S GIRLS TRAIN AMBITIOUS BASKET TEAM

After three weeks of constant practice, St. Michael's College girl basketball enthusiasts have trained a team which should make a real showing in the league. The girls are heart and soul behind Miss Marjorie Walsh, and are willing to give her every support in anything she attempts. The team needs practice in games, so Wednesday night Miss Walsh is bringing her Weston Collegiate team to try their luck against St. Mike's. The result should be an interesting game, and will give coach and players an opportunity to discover the weaknesses.

"On Thursday, May 31st, we met the famous Crescents of Brooklyn, N.Y. This team, famous throughout the United States for its high standard, we found much stronger than the last year, in fact the preceding week they had defeated the United States Olympic team which in 1928 defeated Canada's team.

"The Crescents in a close game defeated us 3-2, and on the following Saturday by 3-0. We had the satisfaction, however, of being cheered as the team to give Crescents the closest, most exciting and fastest games of their season.

"The team then returned home and the Lacrosse Club feels that it has again upheld and added to the honour and renown of the Blue and White and in such a spirit submit their report."

This coming year it is hoped that games will be played with Mount Washington, Navy, Cornell, L'Hirondelle, Army, John Hopkins, in addition.

INTERMEDIATES PLAY O.A.C. AT GUELPH

To-day's Game is to Decide the Position of the Blues in League

MAY PROTEST LAST GAME

The intermediate rugby squad goes up to Guelph to-day for their second game with O.A.C. It is do or die for the blue and white team as a loss will put them out of the running. Should they win they will still have a chance to cop the first intermediate group championship to come to Varsity for some time. O.A.C. won the previous encounter this season 7-6, but one of their points was allowed on a kick-off which went to the deadline. There is a rumour that this point may be disallowed and the game declared a tie. As yet no protest has been entered by the locals, but it is claimed that Fred Bartlett, who refereed the game, has notified the Intercollegiate officials of the error. This could not be confirmed. In the event of the game being called a tie the locals will be right back in the running and can tie the agriculturists with a victory to-day.

The team has been weakened by the loss of Smith, who is now playing with the Orphans, and has several injured men on the list. However, Manager Sam Hunter is confident of taking a strong team up to Guelph and registering a victory.

MEDETTE INITIATION HILARIOUS AFFAIR

Emancipated Freshies May Now Remove Flashy
Crimson Socks

SIX IN ALL

Amid howls and moans six bewildered young freshettes were initiated into the gruesome Faculty of Medicine last night at the Women's Union. Overwhelmed by sophomores twice their size—both in numbers and stature—the timid sextet trembling on the path which leads to a heap of skulls and cross bones, were branded with the sign of 3T5. The freshies may now remove their flashy crimson socks—thirty cents in Eaton's basement—which they have worn so religiously since the beginning of the college year, and henceforth be recognized about the campus as full fledged Medettes.

After various nerve wracking tests peculiar to initiations the freshies were cast out onto the platform and instructed to entertain the assembled throng. Brilliantly and well they did it. It was a seance wherein the great spirit of Epistaxis, cruelly cut to bits by female students, spoke from the great beyond to which he has departed and revealed the future occupations of various present day sophomores. The scene ended by passionately begging all and sundry to henceforth resolve to never die, but call in the tender mercies of 3T5.

Eats and yells brought the evening to a close.

U.C. WEAKENED

In a Mulock Cup game played yesterday on the back campus, Jr. School defeated Jr. U.C. 15-0. The field was in bad shape owing to the heavy rain and a strong wind blowing did not help matters any. The winners deserved the verdict on the play although U.C. were weakened by the absence of several of their best men.

VICTORIA INCREASE PRESENTS PROBLEM

Accommodation Facilities Are Rapidly Nearing Saturation Point

LIMITATION DIFFICULT

"If registration increases as it has done this year, some action will have to be taken to meet the situation," said Prof. C. E. Auger, registrar of Victoria College, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday. A committee has been studying the problem for the last two years, but no definite plan has been formulated. A conjectural plan is to expand and have another college, one for the women and one for the men. If no other way is found the only course left is to limit registration. The problem of limitation is, however, said Prof. Auger, a very difficult one. The number entering Victoria is greater than the total enrolment twenty years ago. The most serious problem is that of residence, the present residence being taxed to their capacity. Nothing definite, though, has been done on the matter.

STUDENT OPINION OPPOSES EDITORIAL

University College Students Resent
Statement U.C. Resembles Pudding

BUILDING INCOMPLETE

Very few people are inclined to agree with the criticism of University College found in the editorial of Tuesday's "Varsity". Opinion about the college is somewhat divided. Margaret McKay, IVth year Modern History, expresses the view that "U.C. does not resemble bread pudding, but lach. Even at that, however, it is much superior to Victoria College, which has all the ear-marks of a fall-on cake, that is just as heavy as lead."

Norah Tudhope, 1st year Pass, thinks, "U.C. is a beautiful building and has an added accommodation in the post box at the main entrance." A well known architect in the city says, "that U.C. is one of the best examples in the world of modern Norman work. The building is not yet completed owing to a deficit in funds, and thus the reason for the yellow brick being in evidence."

Smack!

Toronto, October 22nd, 1929.

Editor of "The Varsity",

Dear Sir,

Your editorial on architecture shows both bad judgment and very poor taste. As a dear old aunt once said, "It is worse than wicked. It is vulgar."

To characterize "the squat heaviness" of Knox as one of "the crimes of the modern Gothic", shows the sort of judgment that fails to recognize one of the ranking pieces of architecture on the continent let alone the Toronto Campus. Even to us, who know nothing of architecture, there is a quiet beauty about the Knox quadrangle that is to be found nowhere else on the campus. The tower, as seen from the front campus with the low entrance in front and the wings of the building rising on either side, has an impressive dignity "as such things should be."

The University College facade needs no poor pen of mine to defend its architectural laurels. However, inexcusably poor taste is shown in attacking as "a sort of smirking Victorianism . . . as uninspiring as a bread pudding", the beauty of a building which lies so near the hearts of the many members of University College. One second year student, who, coming from the West had made few friends in her first year, maintains that only the beauty of University College brought her back to continue her studies.

The "unprofessional eye" of your editorial writer may be excused, but the poor taste never.

Not U.C. or Knox.

sociation, which necessitated extensive travel in China and on this continent and Europe. In 1928 Dr. Wallace was a delegate to the great Missionary Conference in Jerusalem, and at present is one of the Canadian representatives at the Pacific Relations Conference being held in Kyoto.

In 1912 Dr. Wallace married Miss Rose Gullen, B.A., a graduate of Victoria College of the class of 1903. They had one son, Edward Wilson Wallace Junior, who is now a student of Pickering College, Newmarket. Mrs. Wallace died in Shanghai in November, 1924. In February, 1929, Dr. Wallace was married in New York to Miss Velma Mary Hamill, B.A., a graduate of Victoria College in 1907.

It is a remarkable fact that during the last seventy-nine years only three men have occupied the important position of Chancellor and President of Victoria University. The first head of Victoria College, as it was known in 1841, was Egerton Ryerson, who later became Superintendent of Education for the Province of Ontario.

Following his worthy beginning Dr. S. S. Nellis, Dr. N. Burwash and Dr. R. P. Bowles maintained the tradition and brought to an ever increasing degree of importance and ability to render service to Church and State, Victoria University, which was the largest institution of higher education in the Methodist church, and which now with its two colleges, Victoria, Arts, and Emmanuel, Theology, maintains the same prominent position in the United Church of Canada. Dr. Wallace brings to this exalted position a long training and wide experience in educational matters, together with high scholarship, executive ability and a deep sense of consecration as a Christian Minister.

Runaway Rodent Finds Favor In Hart House Food Factory

By Oscar Abramovitz

Last time I related some of my experiences in the Hart House kitchen. I continue:

Just then a scullery rat ran across the floor. With cries of "We do not waste anything," the head cook managed to trap the runaway rodent with his foot. He took it up in his arms, and, seeing that the sad, bewhiskered creature was looking reproachfully at him, he said tenderly:

"Oh, poor mousey-wowsey, do not cry.

For I will sing you a lullaby." He softly crooned the immortal poem "To a Mouse":

This quite melted the little heart of Oswald the rat.

"Quick," cried the head cook to the assistant cook, with a sidelong glance at me which meant nothing-is-wasted-in-the-Hart-House-kitchen, "catch his tears in the macaroni tureen. Ha. That will save the useless expense of salt."

At that moment I happened to look about me. At the other end of the hall I noticed something apparently growing out of the floor. I traced my steps down there. What I saw was a huge wheatear. Yellow stalks of the Canadian best towered above the earthen floor.

The farmer in charge of Hart House agriculture explained to me that, when anyone wanted more bread, he would set about growing, gathering and grinding the wheat. Then it was turned into flour in the mill, then baked as bread.

"So, is that why one has to wait so long for a bit of bread?" I cried. The kitchen door opened. A waitress entered.

"Pots-and-Pans, you're fired," shouted the head cook.

I asked the reason. He said that she had brought a cup of tea to the right man in the Great Hall.

Just then the assistant cook ran in, wringing his hands.

"The mustard company grew yellow and has not sent up the mustard."

"Oh," cried the head cook, "where will we get our mustard for to-day?"

"I know," cried the assistant cook. "I'll get the napha soap off the wash-tub."

This was reduced to a pulp by kitchen wenches and then pulverized and then poured into containers.

"Taste it," said the head cook.

The assistant cook did so and made a vociferous yell.

"Gee, it tastes better than the time we used boiled yellow crayons, mixed with fine mud," he chorled with a satisfied smile.

A practise of the Varsity soccer team will be held on Thurs. Oct. 24, at 4 p.m. sharp, on the front campus. It is necessary that all members of the team attend as arrangements will be made for the R.M.C. game at Kingston on Saturday.

KANSAS UNIVERSITY AGAIN IN CONFLICT WITH STATE AGGIES

Abduction of Students and Wildcat Result of Recurrence of Feud

AGGIES SHORN OF LOCKS

Special to "The Varsity"
Lawrence, Kansas—Hostilities between students of the University of Kansas, in Lawrence, and Kansas State Agricultural College, situated in Manhattan, have resulted in the abduction of three students and a wildcat from K.S.A.C., and 20 students and a stuffed bird from K.U., while five university students are being held by the sheriff.

Some days ago a group of university students journeyed to Manhattan, painted the place up with large green K.U.s, and abducted "Touchdown", the wildcat mascot of K.S.A.C. The K. Aggies, as the embryo farmers are locally called, retaliated by painting up the statue of one Uncle Jim Green, a university celebrity.

The boys from K.U. came right back. Invading hostile "Aggieville" they kidnapped one of the enemy from under his companions' noses. He was later returned home, attired in riding boots, and a gingham dress, and decorated with appropriate K.U. emblems.

Not content with this, the university students invaded Aggieville that night en masse armed with brushes and buckets of paint.

Forewarned, the Aggie army met the K.U. scouts at the entrance of the town, escorted the enemy to breakfast and then administered justice by clipping their heads, painting their foreheads with the Aggie insignia, and forcing them to entertain the entire school at a pep rally.

The next day, flushed with victory, a whole caravan of Aggies, in a masterly stroke, descended on the university campus, gave Uncle Jimmy Green another whitewash, painted up the place, and carried off two captives to Manhattan.

At Topeka, several Kansas men cornered two Aggies in a filling station and bore them off to Lawrence before their companions could come to the rescue. Next morning they were shorn of their locks at the 12.30 hour in a spectacle before "Uncle Jimmy's" sanctum.

The next development was a truce, patched up by representatives of the two institutions. Unfortunately, the armistice didn't last long. The following night the alarm was spread at K.U. that 15 carloads of Aggies were on their way to invade the university. From 11 p.m. till dawn a truculent horde of men and women, armed with paddles, waited on the K.U. campus to receive their unwelcome guests in proper style, only to discover that it was a false alarm. The Aggies entirely failed to turn up. The next move was with K.U.

Not content, it seems, with kidnapping and shaving the heads of rival students, five university men who failed to appreciate just how valuable exhibition Shorthorn and Black Angus cows are, sneaked into the Aggie barns and clipped K.U. initials on the groomed sides of two prize winning bosses.

Their appearance—sleeked and fattened to thrill thousands of farm observers at the American Royal Livedians when they could themselves do the manufacturing as well.

R. B. Bennett felt that it was his duty above all other things to see that Canadians got work; that the exodus of 30,000 French-Canadians last year for employment, would cease; that Canada took its rightful place amongst the nations, with Canada first and the Empire second.

Mr. Bennett declared that the British Empire as an economic unit was something to which the young men and women of Canada ought to look forward, for it would have a tremendous effect in making the dominion something bigger and something nobler a better place to live in.

The leader of the Opposition made an earnest appeal to the young men and the few young women who were present, to work for their country and to put party always beneath the consideration of what was best for the nation as a whole.

After the speech Mr. Bennett stood at the door and shook hands with all those present, at least one of whom he stated would some day be a leader in the affairs of Canada and an important moulder of Canadian policy.

REST FROM CARES

Contrasting the college as it is to-day and as it was when he entered it, the Chancellor said, "When I first knew Victoria in 1881 there were about 90 students at the college and about 6 professors; there are now, I suppose, 850 students and about 30 professors. That's the most noticeable contrast. Then, too, we were all men; now more than half of the students are women."

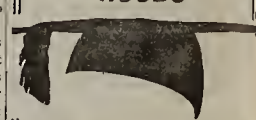

"In those days there was no college residence, and we all boarded in little boarding-houses in the town of Cobourg; the present residence has accommodation for 400 students or so. It makes a difference, too, that at that time the college was situated in a small, quiet town, and now it is in a busy city."

"The present resources of Victoria in capital and endowments amount to about four million dollars, and then they were fifty or one hundred thousand. Of course, the professors were paid about a thousand dollars a year. When I went through it cost one hundred or two hundred dollars a year, including board, incidental expenses, and everything; now I suppose it costs six or eight hundred."

"We hadn't the great number of options in those days that there are now. Everybody was required to take a pass course, and the honour men specialized in other subjects. Then, too, most of the students came from the farms; now students from the farm are very few, almost an exception. They all come from the cities and towns. College life in those days was very inspiring and stimulating, and I believe it's the same now. I think the students to-day are just as fine intellectually and morally as they were then, and from the standpoint of culture perhaps a little finer."

PRESS AND STUDENTS TO BE MADE WELCOME AT S.A.C. MEETING

To-Morrow's Open Session Test of Undergraduate Interest

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

Secret Conclave Charges Are Definitely Spiked by Action

An open meeting of the Students' Administrative Council will be held on Friday at 4.30 in the Lecture Hall. It is especially desired that undergraduates avail themselves of this opportunity to learn what is being accomplished by their representatives.

"This meeting will indicate the amount of interest the students have in their council. Trial meetings have been held in the past, but the support has been so poor that we decided to hold our sessions in private," said President Allan Ferry. "Students who desire to present complaints are requested to communicate with their faculty representatives or with Mr. Burns at the S.A.C. Office."

Asked if the press would be admitted, he replied in the affirmative.

"It is not often that the Lecture Hall is available for our meetings and that is why we want as many as possible to attend and see what transpires," said A. Gordon Burns. "Students have always been welcome at our meetings, but they have never shown any enthusiasm about coming to them. After all, they provide the financial backing and it is in their interests to learn what is being done with their money. We expect to issue a financial report on Friday and we hope that the undergraduates will show their interest by their presence." Mr. Burns added that the press has never been excluded from council meetings. "We did not refuse admittance to anyone until it became clear that we were not cared to attend."

Dissatisfaction is being expressed in certain quarters with the practice of holding secret conclaves, and the alleged exclusion of students or reporters who may be interested in the council's activities.

TORONTO'S ART TASTE OCCASIONS SURPRISE

Arthur Lismer Tells Medettes Their Work and His Similar

The Alumnae of the Women's Medical Association entertained the medical undergraduates at an afternoon tea given in honour of the freshettes in Medicine, yesterday afternoon at the Art Gallery. After tea, Mr. Arthur Lismer gave a short talk dealing with the exhibit which is hanging in the gallery at present. "Medical people," said Mr. Lismer, "deal with anaesthetics and artists deal with aesthetics, the one deadens sensation, the other quickens it." The exhibit displayed in the gallery just now is a collection of pictures from Toronto homes. "This shows us the type of pictures that Toronto people buy to form the background for their daily life in their homes, and we are agreeably surprised at Toronto's taste," said Mr. Lismer. The speaker drew attention to the different types of pictures chosen, some to soothe jangled nerves and others to stimulate the mind. The first type tells the whole story and only de-

PURPOSE OF COLLEGE TO INCULCATE IDEALS

"Students Come For Culture—Not to Learn to Earn Money"

"REFINED ATMOSPHERE"

"I think that the inculcating of idealism into a student is the purpose of a university," said Doctor Gerald Phelan of the Institute of Medieval Philosophy at St. Michael's College, when asked by "The Varsity" whether he considered idealism in the student a good thing or whether he should be taught something practical, as mooted in yesterday's "Varsity" editorial.

"A man comes to university not to learn how to earn his living, but to attain a culture and refinement which will enable him to live his life in greater sympathy with his fellow-man. If he desires to learn the practical details of a trade he should attend a technical school where such things are taught. University atmosphere is refined rather than practical."

"I think that idealism and practical knowledge are inseparable," said Professor C. E. Anger of the Department of English at Victoria College.

"Some knowledge of philosophy is necessary for a complete understanding of engineering and some practical knowledge would be of great value in the study of philosophy," he declared.

COURSE IN DIVINITY TERMED TOO LONG

Student Declares University Makes One Less Positive of Knowledge

CHANCELLOR CONTRADICTS

"After seven years of university training for the ministry, the divinity man is lost in an infinity of ignorance, whereas, when entering the university, the student was positive of the knowledge he had."

On these grounds, C. W. Leslie de-claimed last night at the second annual dinner of the Emmanuel College Students' Society in Burwash Hall, the necessity of a seven-year course for divinity.

Chancellor Bowes, speaking from personal experience, assured those present that he would that he had had the opportunity of seven years' preparation for the ministry. The chancellor intimated further that some students were natural philosophers, but that others were philosophers only according to their own opinion.

Others who assisted to make the second annual meeting of the society interesting were: F. M. Cryderman, M. A. J. Walters, Principal Gaither, Dr. Pidgeon, Harry Berry, and M. Rogers.

VARSITY IS POPULAR IS GENERAL PLAINT OF THE DISAPPOINTED

Victoria and U.C. Want Earlier Delivery of Their Copies

ALLOTMENTS TOO SMALL

"If You Displeased, You'd Hear From Us," Says S. P. S.

"It's a regular bargain sale with no excuse for a bargain," exploded Marjory Bur, 371 Vic, when questioned concerning "The Varsity" supply and demand situation at that college. "You dash down two flights of stairs promptly at 10.10 to see the last copy disappear in the mob."

"One would think we were still the Vic of '25 by the size of our allotment of 'Varsity's. It's hectic," agreed Blanche Hiltz, also 371 Vic. "Strangely calm was the reply of an S.P.S. adherent. "We have been pretty well pleased with 'The Varsity' this year so far. Otherwise you would have heard about it. But why must we wait until 10.30?"

U.C. also is indignant about the delay in distribution. Sometimes there are plenty of copies but, "Why must we wait for them until 10.30 or 11.00? Meds get their supply at 9.00. You just can't 'Read it in the morning while it is news.'"

Baldwin House seems to be served best. Trinity and Annesley Hall are both quite happy, but U.C. Women's Union reports an annoying scarcity at the 10 o'clock line-up.

U.C. Registration Rises a Hundred

The following letter has been received from Professor W. J. McAndrew, Registrar of University College:

My attention has been drawn to a slight error in an article in "The Varsity" of October 9th. The Registration Statistics of University College under the heading 1929-1930 should have appeared under the heading 1928-1929.

Would it be too much trouble to print the following summary of this year's registration—the largest in the history of the college.

First Year	550
Second Year	373
Third Year	257
Fourth Year	232
Occasionals	55

The statistics for last year were as follows:

Second Year	345
Third Year	251
Fourth Year	242
Occasionals	61

WOMEN NOT WANTED BY POLITICAL CLUBS

President Believes Politics Foreign to Nature of Weaker Sex

IDEA NOT PRACTICAL

"The admission of women to university political clubs is not a question which is being seriously considered at the moment by the men," said Mr. Dave Walker, '28, President of the Conservative Club at Osgoode Hall and a Past-President of the Macdonald-Cartier Club. "I have found the opinion of men in general to be that women do not show sufficient interest in politics to make the idea practical. Politics seem to be foreign to women's nature. They are more interested in life than in theories and abstractions."

"As the situation stands, therefore," said Mr. Walker, "I think that the men on the whole prefer that their political clubs remain a sort of stag-party, where they do not feel any sense of restraint."

When questioned about the presence of women at the luncheon on Tuesday in honour of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Walker replied that they invited the women students at Osgoode Hall, and the Macdonald-Cartier club, but there was no thought of including the women undergraduates as their numbers were too large and they had no means of knowing which were political-minded.

NO ELECTION INTEREST AMONG U. OF T. STUDENTS

No Preparations Made at Hart House for Broadcasting Returns

"No special provision will be made to keep the students posted on the results of the coming provincial election," said Mr. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, to "The Varsity."

"The students do not seem to be particularly interested in the coming election, in fact, less so than the election of three years ago. In any event, most students would prefer to go down town where the crowds gather and see the election returns flashed on the screen than to hear the results at Hart House. It is likely that if interest ran high, as it probably would in a federal election, and a demand for the service was made, we would do our best to provide election service for students."

"Some five years ago a receiving set was installed in Hart House so that the students might listen in on a (Continued on page 4)

Hart House Bears Comparison With Any Is Experts' Assertion

RESIDENCES CRITICIZED

Forced Economy Responsible for Many Glaring Discrepancies

All factors taken into consideration, the grounds, buildings, and general setting of the University of Toronto compare favourably with those of any university on the continent. This was the general opinion stated by several authorities when questioned by "The Varsity" on the standard of architecture and general arrangement of buildings in the university.

Individual criticism, according to one authority, was difficult, due to the changing conditions in each instance. The university was not built in a day, but is the result of many years labor, during which many factors have influenced buildings. Many were built with the idea of maximum accommodation at minimum cost and a corresponding sacrifice in material and beauty was necessary. The general opinion is that good use was made of the money spent. The placing of the buildings was done in accordance with available space, which was formerly less than at present.

The university residences were exposed to criticism, one authority declaring them out of keeping with the rest of the university and another stating that they were too dark and sombre for the purpose. The opinion was expressed that the new residences will be of a quite different nature.

Hart House was considered by all the architectural masterpiece of the group while the Hygiene and Forestry Bldgs. of a modern style, were also commended. It is interesting to note that the Hygiene Building is the work of U. of T. graduates. The S. P. S. building, on the other hand, was held up as the architectural black sheep of the lot.

University College, which was recently criticized editorially in "The Varsity", was declared by one authority to fill very satisfactorily its position as head of the campus and chief university building.

The use of ivy on buildings was deprecated by one authority and declared justifiable by another. One side claims it only a means of hiding poor architecture, while others declare that it has a certain charm which makes its use in moderation quite permissible.

Mr. Le Pan, Superintendent of University Buildings, gave "The Varsity" an interesting statement on the question, which we quote verbatim:

"The buildings built for the University of Toronto within the last few years have been good buildings, well suited to their purpose. Sometimes, due to a lack of funds, the quality of material and the architectural treatment has had to be sacrificed."

"The university is justly proud of such buildings as University College, Hart House, Knox College, Trinity College and the Forestry and Hygiene buildings."

"I see no disadvantage in having the building built of different materials and in different styles of architecture providing the architecture is good. I would prefer it to having all the buildings poured out of one mould."

Prof. Arthur of the Department of Architecture, agreed, in the main, with Mr. Le Pan. He declared the general standard as high as that of any Canadian university and that of Hart House to be the equal of anything on the continent.

PIPE OFTEN DE-FOGS AND NOT BEFOGS MIND BELIEVES PROFESSOR

Other Don Says He Would Not Lecture Where Students Smoked

DRIBBLING FAGS

Medical Student Suggests Prescription of Everything But Pipe

"Smoking helps enormously in creating a friendly atmosphere," exclaimed one co-ed when asked about the question of smoking in groups and lectures, "and I'm all for the profs who allow it in discussion groups."

"It makes one appear nonchalant when one is trying to concoct something in French," was the opinion voiced by Ruth Haldenby, II U.C.

"I want everyone to feel at home when they come for French conversation," said Monsieur de Champ, "and a cigarette seems to help get over embarrassment." "But don't you think smoking befofs the brain?" suggested "The Varsity"? "That may be," Monsieur de Champ answered, "but I know some professors whose minds don't get de-fogged until they have a pipe in their mouths."

Professor Fay would not lecture at all in a room where students were smoking, but would not object at all if a student smoked when he came to him for a private talk.

Many believed that cigarettes were conducive to concentration, yet someone exclaimed: "It might be hard on your wind if you wanted to do much discussion."

One medical student said: "Limit smoking to pipes. They would not interfere with work, and would save the difficulty of ash-trays. Cigarettes are too messy—they dribble ash all over the place." His companion was in favour of cigarettes, and suggested having ash-trays fixed on to the writing boards in lecture rooms, and lighters on the backs of the seats.

But when asked about having the above privileges extended to lectures, practically everyone exclaimed: "No! Positively no! The air is bad enough now!"

ANCIENT POETS' STYLES DISCUSSED BY SOCIETY

Difficulties Later Surmounted Are Explained to Classical Association

"The full enjoyed by Aeneas and his party before the Italian Wars may be compared to a visit to a 'hot-dog' booth. Aeneas partakes of a final snack before proceeding to his depressing and bloody task," was the comparison drawn by B. R. English in his address on Aeneas at the first meeting of the University College Classical Association last night at the home of Professor E. A. Dale.

Outlining the development of the character of Aeneas, Mr. English, in referring to the parting of Aeneas and Dido, said, "Virgil placed Aeneas in a difficult position for the sake of art; then he had to free him to instruct his countrymen along the path of patriotism and virtue."

Miss Gertrude O'Malley, speaking of Achilles, pointed out that the style of Homer is freer from restraint than that of Virgil, declaring that "the fact that Achilles' name is known even to non-classical students is a magnificent tribute to the glorious workmanship of his creator, Homer."

Animated discussions of both papers were made following the addresses.

THE SLEEPERS

A letter published recently in these columns from Professor G. M. A. Grube, implies, among other criticisms, that we consider the average man to be a fool. It is unfortunate that our editorial, to which exception was taken, should have created this impression of undue pessimism with respect to the laity. We do not consider the average man to be a fool; on occasion the general public displays exemplary intelligence. Yet it must be evident that the public intelligence is too often dormant; time and again we have examples of public lethargy permitting abuses to continue beyond toleration.

Must it not occur to a student of Aristotle that the reasoning and philosophic faculties are of little use if the owner sleeps? Similarly, if the populace sleeps, the net result in intellectual departments will be on a par with that of the city of swine of Plato's illustration.

In other words, what advantage has the sleeping thinker over the active fool?

LIBEL?

We trust that our insertion of italics in this excerpt from a statement by Sir Robert Falconer will not constitute disloyalty:

"The university would not want to interfere with the work of the police in such a case, and it would certainly be very hard to distinguish between students and communists."

THROW AWAY YOUR TOGA

The following editorial from the Minnesota Daily of the University of Minnesota offers serious occasion for consideration:

"Throw away your toga, Minnesota. Get yourself one of these two button business suits. Clean up the cubby holes; bring the painters in. Brush the cobwebs away—we're going ahead. Bigger, bigger, bigger. That's our slogan now.

Get the latest figures; figures never lie. This is Minnesota's year. What! Summer session slip a bit? Well, we'll boom night classes more. Everybody working, that's the modern spirit. Progressiveness. Sell Minnesota, folks, tell the neighbours what we've got here. Tell 'em Minnesota's biggest, newest, Maybe Charlie'd like to learn telegraphy by mail. How's Susie on her short-hand? There's room for everybody here.

Look out, Yale and Oxford; we're leaving slowpokes in our dust.

Don't forget the radio. Minnesota's voice reaches Eskimos on Hudson Bay and stevedores in New Orleans. We've got courses in enfolding and hog-feeding; well-digging and basketry. Tell us what you want. Don't be a round peg in a square hole. Come to Minnesota.

Who was Homer? Who was Livy? Minnesota's modern; Minnesota's progressive. We've left those guys behind.

Throw away your toga. This is 1929.

Excess of Authority

Editor of "The Varsity",
 Dear Sir,—

I emphatically disagree with the announced intention of Sir Robert Falconer of allowing the police of the City of Toronto to have jurisdiction in the grounds of the University of Toronto.

In my opinion, President Falconer's practice is in direct contradiction to the principle of civics. General acceptance of it would place the government of a municipality superior to that of a province.

Sir Robert mentioned in the interview printed in "The Varsity" of today that city police assisted in maintaining order at convocation exercises. It is my opinion that the city police should not be called upon in such cases, for if the university police are unable to maintain order, the aid of the Ontario police, representatives of the owners of the university, should be requested.

When the Provincial Government intends to construct a building on provincial property, it does not submit the blue prints of its building to the architectural department of a city for approval; similarly, representatives of a provincial institution should not call upon a municipal police department to approve conduct on the institution's grounds.

Brigadier-General D. C. Draper should have no jurisdiction over U. of T. Grounds—President Falconer to the contrary. General A. S. V. Williams of the Provincial Police should not bow on provincial government property to the authority of a municipal department head.

How Sir Robert can satisfactorily explain his attitude puzzles me.

Yours, etc.,

Non-Communist Student.

U.C. Players' Guild

The Second Pastoral Play of the Townsley Cycle, the offering of J. J. Knights at the U.C. Players' Guild yesterday afternoon, is one of those pieces impossible to criticize unless one is willing to take a very definite point of view. As an experimental piece offered by and for the members of such an organization as the Guild, it was well worth doing. As theatre it simply doesn't exist for a modern audience, unless it is put on as an elaborate atmospheric production like "The Miracle" of Max Reinhardt. Played realistically in the chance or on the steps of a church, the miracle play may retain something of its medieval appeal. As an experiment before a little theatre group, it runs the danger of sending the audience away saying, "How quaint!" If it is to avoid producing this reaction, it must be played and staged with extreme care.

Yesterday afternoon's production would have been more successful if there had been less gaucherie and a more careful reading of lines on the part of the players. Mr. Knight's version of the play fitted nicely into the limited time at his disposal without losing any of the essential spirit of the piece. But a certain flatness and hesitancy in rendition minimized the effect.

If the poetic quality was obscured, the comedy was effective enough—thanks mainly to the efforts of Nancy Blanchard and Howard Lindsay as the shieving couple. The shepherds were played by Paul Gardner, Earl Fauman, and Beamish. Beatrice Gage did the angel; and Marion Lawson, the Virgin Mary.

Quoth Tuesday's "Varsity": "Former Attorney General Edward L. Katzenbach of New Jersey has joined of the Princeton University faculty."

Katzenbach! O! Katzenbach! O! wherefore art thou Katzenbach? Sometime I'd like to take a crack At being Eddie Katzenbach.

I'd joint the stiffened facultees And limber up pedantic knees, Expose dull muscles to the breeze In an aesthetic Greek chemizee.

The paunchy don in dusty sack Would tremble—were I Katzenbach!

At a recent meeting of the Greenland Society for the Advancement of Interest in Penguins, an extremely crude paper was presented by Mr. Gaspard McGuffey, introduced by the President as "one of the foremost exponents of penguinism in the world to-day". The President, Dr. Fuller Naughton Crosses of Mimico, further declared: "It is my contention that Mr. McGuffey with his Penguin Farm has done more for the penguin during the short time of his activity than many of us have been able to do in a lifetime of penguinizing."

In the course of his paper, Mr. McGuffey stated: "I cannot be too emphatic in decrying the devastating influence of the present insidious influx of Pink Propaganda on the penguins of Greenland. I view with alarm its possible effect on the younger generation and next year's penguin crop."

"Something," insisted Mr. McGuffey, "must be done about these Pinks. Mark you, I am in favour of free speech. Freedom of speech is a thing which has been dearly bought with the blood of generations of penguins. It is not a thing to be thus lightly cast aside. Freedom of speech must be maintained . . . but not for the Pinks. In my opinion we must lose no time in throwing a cordon around Greenland and putting a stop to the whole business."

Following the address, Andre—proprietor of Ye Olde Hotte Dogge Standde soon to be erected on the Back Campus—arose to point out the difficulty of obtaining a suitable cordon. "In these days of Modernism and Fundamentalism and the Decline of the Drama, nothing is more difficult to secure than a good cordon," he declared.

The President closed the discussion by remarking on the difficulty of distinguishing between Penguins and Pinks.

Mr. Del Phiniun, correspondent for the Greenland "Icy Mountains", moved that the meeting resolve itself into a committee of the whole to wait on Chief Dripper for advice regarding the proper procedure in the matter. The motion was seconded and carried, the only dissenting voice being that of Miss Elma Pirate clamouring for the Right to Freedom of Verse.

Mr. Chaz, authority on the topography of Queen's Park, moved an eloquent vote of thanks to the speaker, but, as no second could be found, the meeting broke up in disorder.

"Fair Co-eds Place Trust in Firemen!" shouts "Varsity" headline . . . Pshaw! pshaw!

AGGIES DEFEAT VARSITY 22-9, CLINCHING INTERMEDIATE GROUP

SOGGY FIELD, RAIN CAUSE LOOSE PLAYING

Both Teams Resort to Kicking Although Three Touches Are Made

MANY FUMBLES

Special to "The Varsity"
Guelph, Oct. 23.—O.A.C. defeated Varsity intermediates 22-9 yesterday afternoon, thereby clinching the group title. The field was soggy after a two-day rain, and during the game a slight drizzle fell. As a result both teams resorted to a kicking game and with a slippery ball a lot of loose playing was mixed in.

In the first quarter, Hewer kicked for a total of 5 rouges, two of which were a result of Varsity fumbles and one an attempted drop kick. In the second period Johnson booted a field goal, and followed a little later with a rouge. On a Blue fumble Henry went over for a touch. The Aggies gained yards and went over for another try which was not converted. Half time score: O.A.C. 12, Varsity 4.

The second half saw the play slowed up by the rain, and kicking was always resorted to. On a blocked kick, the Aggies went over for a touch. In the last quarter both teams secured tries. Final score: O.A.C. 22, Varsity 9.

Sid Henry scored all three touchdowns for the Aggies, and Hewer added the others by his booting. For Varsity, Smith and Johnson were both good on the backfield, while Scott shone at tackling. The line-up:

O.A.C.—Snap, Gollchou; quarter, Hull; insides, Hales and Watt; middles, Henry and Dempsey; outsides, Keith and Sheldon; flying wing, Hudson; halves, Griffiths, Hewer and Eckert; subs, Slater, Becker, Reid, Karry, Chepesiuk, Ross and McNeill. U. of T.—Snap, Buchanan; quarter, Heintzman; insides, Brooks, Hill and Connor; middles, Farwell and Algie; outsides, Crocker and Bailey; flying wing, Scott; halves, McCallum, Smith and Johnson; subs, Arnold, J. Reid, Heakes, O'Flynn, Longstaff, Jackson, Taylor and Thompson.

Officials—Tommy Henderson and Sweeney Davis.

The Oberlin player who makes the first touchdown in each home game will have a suit cleaned and pressed free by a local tailor.—University of Washington Daily.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Two Varsity football teams are now out of the running for group honours. The Orphans lost all three starts, and yesterday the Aggies eliminated the Blue intermediates. The intermediates have always been a pretty weak aggregation, but this year Coach Chaffe almost assembled a winning line-up. This is McMaster's first year in intermediate ranks, and their showing is pretty impressive. Their chance of tying up the group contingent upon a Varsity win yesterday is gone and the Aggies have clinched the group.

The Intermediate Intercollegiate Track Meet is being contested by Western, Varsity, McMaster, and O.A.C. at London to-morrow. Varsity won the meet last year in Guelph, but reports have it that Western are out for the honours with a strong entry. The trials for the Blue team were held early this week and by the records hung up we shouldn't be a bit surprised to see the title remain on the campus.

Things seem to be in a rotten state at U.C. It's pretty common talk that anybody can make the football team by just putting in an appearance, and judging by their games conditions are worse than that. In their last game with Trinity a last-minute team was made up by pick-ups. What a paradox! The biggest college in the university, with a dignity and pride that can't take criticism from faculties with real spirit, with an athletic society three-quarters of a century old . . . . . Forestry, with an enrolment that falls short of enough for the different interfaculty sports, is out with a Mudock Cup team that certainly is not any old get-together. We might suggest that the Athletic Director of the U.C. let out and fulfil some of his election promises, and tackle the problem as it should be.

This Saturday's game at London should prove a valuable workout for the Big Blue squad, and give the injuries another week to recuperate. Jack Sinclair and Jim Kelly were out for practice and Varsity's chances against Queen's are getting stronger. Judging from their last encounter, the Blue line has it over the Tricolour, and with a strengthened backfield, a victory is called for.

RUGGER TITLE TILT BRINGS M'GILL HERE

Back Campus to be Scene of Intercollegiate Game Saturday

SUDDEN SCHEDULE CHANGE

A change in the schedule brings McGill down to Toronto this Saturday to defend their claim to the intercollegiate rugby title. Great interest will attach to the two Varsity-McGill games this year as McGill snatched the title two seasons ago from Varsity, who had held it for seven years before that.

Both teams have reached a higher standard of play and both have been successful in their contests with city teams. McGill recently defeated M.A.A.A. one of Montreal's best sides. The Blue and White should field a better all round team than has been seen for the past ten years. They have two victories to their credit this

LONG RUNS FEATURE KNOX-FORESTRY GAME

Woodmen Win 8-6 on Sloppy Rugby Field During Drizzle

Forestry defeated Knox 8 to 6 in a rather close game. There were very few fumbles in spite of the sloppy field and steady drizzle. Due to the weakness of both lines there were a great many spectacular long runs. The kicking of Leslie of Forestry and D. Davidson of Knox, was very outstanding. Christie of Forestry used his great weight to advantage in his plunging.

In the first period Forestry opened the score by a long kick. A few minutes after that they again kicked for a point. In the second period Knox kicked for a point. In the third period Stuart of Knox made a heavy plunge for a touch. It was not converted. Christie of Forestry came right back to make a similar plunge for a try. This was also not converted. In the fourth period Forestry made another long kick for a point.

Forestry—Wing, Eldt; halves, Leslie, Boulby, Hodgins; quarter, Flat; snap, Crestock; middles, Christie, Miller; insides, Hunt, McEivie; outsides, Walkom, Meyer; subs, Lossy, Young, Townshend.

Knox—Wing, Glen; halves, D. Davidson, Barty, Stuart; snap, McDiarmid; quarter, S. Davidson; insides, D. Jack, H. Davidson; middles, Wisner, O'Hara; outsides, Rowe, Anderson; subs, Milligan, Ricky, Graham.

season, and are all out for a third this Saturday. They have a strong line-up and their three-quarter line has developed in great style and shows up well in attack. McLean and Lee, the inside men, are sure tacklers. The forwards have plenty of weight for the scrums and are speedy in breaking away and following up.

The game will be played on the Back Campus on Saturday at 1.30 p.m. owing to the change in the schedule.

BIG BLUE MACHINE GETS GOOD WORKOUT

Intercollegiates Down Orphans Despite Drizzle and Absentees

AT WESTERN SATURDAY

Last night the Varsity intercollegiate football machine put in another useful practice at the Stadium. There was a steady drizzle falling and the field was in no condition for football, but nevertheless the Blue and White had a good workout. In the scrimmage drill the Orfuns supplied stern opposition and were leading the seniors by 1 to 0 until within a few moments before the close, when Wally Bean slid over the Orfun's line for a try. The personnel of the blue team was similar to that which stacked up against McGill last Saturday. Sinclair, Hallam and McFadyen were still absent from the blue line-up. Jim Sinclair was unable to take part in the practice due to a swollen jaw caused by an infected tooth. Johnny Stewart took his place at flying wing. Bell and Fitzpatrick teamed up on the rear-guard and the former in particular displayed fine form. Bell was kicking and running in his usual brilliant style in spite of the fact that the ball was heavy and as slippery as a greased eel.

Although the game with Western at London next Saturday looks like a walkaway for the intercollegiates, Coach Ronnie McPherson is not letting up on his practices and the team will be in excellent condition to show the Purple and White their best brand of football.

DRUGGISTS LOSE 7 TO 1 IN RUGBY WITH ST. MIKE'S

A greasy field prevented a display of open rugby last night on St. Mike's campus in a game between St. Mike's and Pharmacy, the former emerging on the better side of the score, 7-1. Beckett, Goldsmith and Wadland played good rugby for Pharmacy, while Cerre and Dell displayed excellent kicking and plunging for St. Mike's. St. Mike's—F. W. Dell, Cerre, Barnes, McGoey, Shook, Duggan, Pope, Grant, Klemazonski, Pyrenica, Regan, O'Toole.

NO RADICAL IDEAS ON CHILD FEEDING

Diets of Nursery School Children Prepared by Department

NOT HAPHAZARD

"Absolutely no truth in it! It is a gross misrepresentation," said Dr. W. E. Blatz, Director of the St. George's School for Child Study, when questioned about the current story concerning his radical ideas on child feeding. Dr. Blatz explained that experiments conducted at a Chicago conference which he attended were wrongly attributed to him. "Of course no one can afford to be dogmatic," he added. "In another fifty years we may think nothing of feeding young children a few pounds of raw beefsteak and eight bananas for a meal; but just at present no such proceeding is contemplated here. The diet of the children at the school is carefully prescribed by the department and the child is not 'experimented with' as many people think."

Dr. Blatz went on to explain that children between the ages of two and five years are brought to the school every day and a study of their physical growth is made under the Department of Anatomy. The children work and play under ideal conditions and expert supervision, and, at the same time, an excellent opportunity is provided for the study of the child as a developing organism.

The Nursery School is somewhat loosely connected with the university, under the Department of Psychology. It does only graduate work with students and, at the present time, Miss Cassells and Miss MacNamara, as well as several other graduates, are at the school on fellowships.

The Table Round

Ever since George Jean Nathan characterized "Journey's End" as effeminate because of the "Jolly Well's" and the "Oh, I Say's" of the Englishmen—a comment dubbed by Alexander Woolcott the most flagrant example of hick criticism he had ever seen—I have been more or less busy collecting my own little list of hick criticisms. Here is one from Photoplay, a magazine which has long styled itself "The National Guide to Motion Pictures" and "The World's Leading Motion Picture Publication".

Listing "The Taming of the Shrew" as one of the month's best pictures, this sapient journal declares: "Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks had scarcely arrived at the majestic Pickfair after a preview of 'Taming of the Shrew' when they heard chains rattling in the halls. A bearded, wrathful ghost charged upon the king and queen of the cinema. It was Bill Shakespeare, late resident of Stratford-on-Avon. 'That you have wronged me doth appear in this,' he proclaimed. 'Mebbe so,' chuckled Doug. 'But it's box office.'"

"Poor Bill trailed dejectedly back to the tomb. He never did understand box office."

You blocks, you stoncs, you worse than senseless things! . . . Knew you not Shakespeare? Our celluloid critics have wandered far indeed from the pure streams when they can jabber like this about the most popular playwright of his day. One doesn't have to be a bardolater to recognize that no one knew better than Shakespeare how to use the ingredients to please his audience.

But, Be clever at all costs seems to be the critical axiom of the day. Even our illustrious young contemporary across the back campus is moved to unnecessary and extraneous wise cracks at the expense of the Avonian. The fashion is to follow the George Jean Nathans of our beautifully paved New Grub Street. George Jean Nathan writes cleverly and entertainingly to the glorification of the quite phenomenal wit of George Jean Nathan, but as a critic his value is, to say the least, doubtful.

WHEN DAFFODILS ARE DEAD
When daffodils are dead
And through the garden walks the sunlight falls,
Across a hedge of cedar long and low,
And bathes the world in red,
Intangible as moon-shafts in the halls
Of winter's lone abodes in silent snow.

Dead with the faded bloom
Of younger times when first warm winds breathed low
Over the rolling plains of summers far,
And gave the barques sea-room
In dim sea mists where wild things scud and blow,
Abandoned on the furrows 'cross the bar.

When daffodils are dead
And love recalls the never-again-to-be,
The fragrance of an old-time golden day
Before the soul-thing bled
Upon the sites of castles by the sea
Where hopes and memories were cast away.

ONE GOAL FOR WYCLIFFE, AND FIVE FOR McMASTER

With the able assistance of a pack of rabid rooters, McMaster trimmed Wycliffe to the tune of 5-1, in an inter-faculty soccer match on the front campus yesterday. Linton left outside was the scoring star of the game, registering two goals in the first half and another just before the final whistle.

McMaster—Goal, Augustine; full-backs, Ivson and Giffort; halfbacks, Riggs, Linton, Cortate; forwards, Clark, Baldson, Waltho, Giffort, Linton.

Wycliffe — Goal, Cannon; backs, Pryor and Cush; halfbacks, James, Rhodes, Perkins; forwards, Wood, Geary, Webb, Worrall, Crowsaw.

Ugly Pile, and Husband-Hunting Co-ed
Are Eruditely Squelched by Uncle Ned

By G. G. Brooks

Dear Uncle Ned,
I am in First Year Pass. Since I have come to the university I have heard men say that girls only go into First Year Pass because they are "Husband Hunters". That isn't true, is it?

Freshette.

Dear Freshette,
Why of course it isn't true. That is just the colossal ego of the male of the species. Everyone knows that all the pretty girls go into First Year Pass because they are so intelligent and want a broad and general education that they can't get in any Honour Course. The fact that they have so many more dates than Honour co-eds is easily explained by the fact that men like the girls they take out to be intelligent, even if they aren't themselves. Most girls in Pass wouldn't think of marrying for they know men are simply crude things who are useful to provide candy and dancing, but are no further use to humanity at all.

Uncle Ned.

Dear Uncle Ned,
The awful ugliness of that building north of the flag pole known as Hart House has been impressed upon me many times. Can you tell me why the university authorities allowed such an atrocity to be built? Why wasn't something built on the quiet classical lines of S.P.S.?

Vox Populi.

Dear Vox,

I fully appreciate your criticism. It seems that a building was planned to resemble Victoria College, particularly as to its front door. The plans were approved, but by mistake a set of plans that were the work of a junior draughtsman was sent to the builders, and the thing was built before anyone noticed the difference. Many people have held that the present building is really beautiful, but of course those are individuals of barbaric and undeveloped taste.

Uncle Ned.

Dear Uncle Ned,

What is the function of this University Directory that I have been hearing so much about lately, and when does it come out?

Mystified.

Dear Mystified,

The Directory will be out soon. If you look closely at it you will see that it gives the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all students, male and female, and also their home town. The use is obvious. Aren't the university authorities nice to do it?

Uncle Ned.

If in doubt, ask Uncle Ned. Address "The Varsity" office, Hart House.

The manufacturer of invisible hair-ribs seems to have gone into the hairy business.—American Lumberman.

BLACKWELL ADVISES ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR THE UNIVERSITY

Athletics Being a Business
Should Have a Manager
Says Coach

IN FULL CHARGE

Two of Toronto Newspapers
Have Directed Attention to Its Desirability

On the first page of the Stadium Magazine in the edition for the McGill-Varsity game last Saturday, was an article by Leslie E. Blackwell, the coach for the intercollegiate team. In this Mr. Blackwell suggested that it would be highly advisable for athletics in general at the University of Toronto to have a person to look after all the various university teams. He, of course, would have to be paid. His duty would be, as Director of Athletics, to see that all the individual coaches of teams were doing their duty and in this way there would be a closer contact established among university athletic officials.

Another duty would be to see that students did not participate in too many major sports in order that their academic standing would not suffer.

In his article Coach Blackwell says that athletics is a business. Through the revenue of rugby games, other sports are financed.

The financial end of athletics was not successfully run until a man was engaged to look after it, and devoted his time to it. The same applies to managing. If there were a director to assume all responsibility and to devote his time to this field, there is no doubt but that there would be an improved system.

Mr. Blackwell thinks it would be cheaper in the long run for all concerned.

For the parent, who spends money to put his boy through college, it would be cheaper because this boy would necessarily be supervised and restricted.

MYSTERIOUS CONCLAVE IS NOT LOCATED IN U.C.

Prying Reporter Finds Strange Happenings Beneath Roof of Common Room

Yesterday the BULLETIN BOARD bore the following legend: "Comrades! Meeting place No. 2, U.C.L. 12 p.m. Urgent."

The mysterious conclave was urgent enough to compel a "Varsity" reporter to obey that impulse and sally forth in quest of a scoop. Acting on the hunch that U.C.L. meant University College lobby or lavatory, he silently glided through nooks and corridors carefully observing the antics of any suspicious characters who caught his eye. Perhaps he would discover Howard Robinson! Perhaps he would wander into a communist arsenal! Perhaps he would shuffle into a secret session of the S.A.C. Perhaps . . . perhaps . . .

Thus musing, the embryo Sherlock drifted into the Junior Common Room and absent-mindedly ascended the stairway. He heard a noise! It was the familiar sound of two bones when they strike the floor. Slowly raising his head he saw with his own dark-brown eyes some three or four enthusiasts of African golf merrily engaging in their favourite pastime. With a moan of disappointment the reporter quietly departed, and hurried back to inform the chief that he had failed, alas, in his duty.

Women's Union

The W.U.A. wishes to point out to the executives of University College undergraduate organizations that several difficult situations have arisen this year when two societies each expected to hold their meeting in the same room at the Women's Union. This can easily be obviated by "booking in advance", which will simplify matters both for the officials at the Union and the members of the clubs.

FABIANS AND LABOUR JOIN IN DISCUSSION

Independent Labour Party
Representative Relates History of Struggle

INEFFICIENT CAPITALISM

Bright the lamps shone o'er fair Fabians and brave Economists. "Workers were Labour-Conscious in 1832 when a printers' meeting was held in the Allan Gardens to establish a ten hour day," said Mr. Connor, representing the Independent Labour party of Toronto, before a group of students at Wymilwood last night.

In those days to demonstrate their opposition to the progress of industry, workers cast the first sewing machine into Toronto Bay. Because it was illegal to ask an increase in wages or a reduction in hours according to an Elizabethan statute, some 25 working men were arrested for conspiracy.

It was not until 1872 that John Carter called a meeting in Queen's Park to form a Trade's Council. In the same year, George Brown, editor of the "Globe", opposed the idea of a half holiday on Saturdays.

Mr. Morrow, secretary of the labour party, spoke next. Dealing with the question of unemployment, he offered as solution the reduction of hours and a minimum for wages. Referring to the manifesto of the O.L.P., he said his party stood for a less biased and a more rational interpretation of history and a referendum on the liquor question.

In the discussion that followed as to the efficiency of public ownership of property as opposed to private ownership, someone remarked that the inefficiency of capitalism was the underlying cause of economic depression in England. This trend of thought was substantiated by reference to Mr. Shaw's "Intelligent Guide". Certain youthful economists from Baldwin House formed the opposition.

Canada being a new country with flourishing industries naturally a capitalist system would prevail, and the workers were not yet conscious that they belonged to a labour movement. The ideal of the I.L.P. is evolutionary, social and political adjustment. The movement in Canada must not be identified with the one in England. With the agreement that universities on the whole might take a keener interest in politics, the meeting came to a close.

VARIETY OF OPINIONS EXPRESSED BY STAFF ON CURRENT TOPIC

Universities Have Limited
Control Over Matriculation Examinations

GOOD CHARACTER NEEDED

Educational Attainments Are Not Sole Necessity
in Business

The universities of Ontario have control of the matriculation examinations," stated Dean C. H. Mitchell, of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering in opposition to the views of the Rev. Dr. MacDonald of St. Andrew's College, appearing in the "Globe" this morning. Dean Mitchell pointed out to "The Varsity" that representatives of the three universities in Ontario meet about three times a year with the representatives of the Department of Education to discuss the papers and therefore had a large measure of control. He disagreed with Dr. MacDonald's statement that the matriculation examinations were a threat to the real education of the youth of the province.

It was felt by Dean Mitchell that the examinations were a very fair test of the student's abilities. Regarding the demands of employers Mr. Mitchell thought that they laid just as much stress on the honesty and character of their employees as on their educational attainments.

Professor M. W. Wallace, principal of University College, agreed with Dr. MacDonald's statement that universities were lacking in control of the matriculation examinations. He further defended the present system of examinations by pointing out that although mechanization tended to weaken the standard of large and strong schools, it undoubtedly raised the standards of the weaker schools.

In regard to the stress laid on academic standards, Principal Wallace stated that this was the only possible thing to do for one cannot measure or fix standards for a person's character.

WOMEN IN POLITICS MATTER OF OPINION

Woman Claims They Have All the Brains so Why Worry?

"Men are justified in thinking women should not be in political clubs because large percentages of women have not availed themselves of their right to vote," said Connie Nelson, III Vice, when questioned about men not wanting women in their political clubs.

Another co-ed said: "We don't want to be in their political clubs. We can form our own."

"Women should not be in the same political clubs as men, for they have not the same point of view," thought Alliston Shiell, II U.C.

But the general opinion is that women ought to be able to do what they want.

"We've been down-trodden long enough now, and women represent the nation as well as men."

As for men not wanting women in the university at all, one strong feminist protested violently: "Women have all the brains and they pay their tuition and get high standing so why not? Anyway men themselves should be in the business world, not sticking around in Arts."

Another was of the opinion that "Men who think women should not be allowed in college, don't really. They wouldn't be able to get along without us."

TORONTO'S OWN TOGA NOT TO BE REJECTED

Queer Courses Have no Part in Curriculum of This University

WIDE VARIETY HOWEVER

"There are no such courses at the University of Toronto as those mentioned in the editorial of the University of Minnesota journal," stated W. J. Dunlop, Director of University Extension regarding part of yesterday's editorial in "The Varsity", quoting that paper.

"The course in embalming is looked after by an institution backed by undertakers, which is in no way connected with the University of Toronto. Hog-feeding is taught at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. A little basketry is taught for different purposes in Occupational Therapy. I have no knowledge of any courses in well-digging or telegraphy."

However, there is a wide variety of subjects taught at the University of Toronto. Among them are courses in Accounting, Advertising, Conversational French, Economics, German, Journalism, Philosophy, Psychology, Public Speaking, and Spanish.

In regard to a statement in the same article that moderns were disregarding the traditions of past ages and striking out for themselves, Professor A. T. DeLury, Dean of the Faculty of Arts, said:

"The modern trend is to place less emphasis on the older branches of study and more on the modern ones, the traditions of the past are naturally given less attention than they formerly were when they occupied practically the whole field of study."

"That which people call progress tends to push aside old institutions and studies and to place more stress on modern ones. Whether this is a good move or not is hard to say."

French Evening

Reminiscences of the days when Varsity undergraduates had not the conveniences given to those of to-day by Hart House and the Women's Union were given in French last night by Professor de Champ before a hundred women undergraduates of University College who gathered in the Women's Union for a "French Evening", dinner and informal talk.

POLICE GIVE INTERVIEW

Chief Inspector Avers Hyde Park Situation Totally Different

"Certainly" city police have no authority on university grounds without permission," said Sir Robert Falconer, in discussing the co-operation of the city police with university police.

"But I really do not want the question to be raised of police authority on university grounds," he continued.

"The city police have helped us out many times. We are delighted that they should, as we do not want to keep the great body of police that would be necessary at times. They have been very good. They helped us with the crowds at Convocation and up at the games every Saturday," stated the president.

Sir Robert was much amused at the words he had been reported to have said regarding the similarity of students and communists and laughingly denied having mentioned the communists in the interview. "In fact I thought I was careful not to mention the word as I do not want to be mixed in that trouble with the communists. That's just the trouble with being questioned over the telephone. You cannot tell what the reporter has in his head back of the question."

"The Varsity" was given a cordial reception at Police Headquarters yesterday when seeking information regarding the encroachment of City Police on university grounds last Saturday, in their drive to break the communist meeting which had started in Queen's Park. In fact so anxious were the Chief Inspector and his lieutenants to talk of the matter that "The Varsity" had no chance of speaking with Chief Draper himself.

"Were you the 'Varsity' reporter I told to keep moving last Saturday?" (Continued on page 3)

MEDICAL SOPH-FROSH DINNER LAST EVENING

Red Cravat of Frosh Medicales
Invokes Brotherly Spirit
In Don

The lengthened gown was much in evidence at the Annual Medical Soph-Frosh Banquet and Dance which was held at the Parkdale Canoe Club last evening.

Dick Douglas, president of the freshman year, was the chairman for the evening. Dr. W. H. Martin, of the Department of Chemistry, gave a witty speech, in which he said that he liked the red ties which the first year men sported, because he could recognize a new medical student when he saw one on the campus. He felt there was a brother spirit between them. He concluded with saying that he would continue his speech at the 9 o'clock lecture the next morning.

Hugh Bright, Al Noble and Jack Sinclair, president of the second year, also spoke briefly. Dr. D. L. Bailey, of the Biology Department, and Donald Davidson gave short addresses.

A dance programme concluded the evening's festivities, with sophomore and freshman linked arm in arm.

GIRL ACQUAINTANCE IS NOT RESPONSIBLE BELIEVES DETECTIVE

Robinson's Disappearance Is Causing no Alarm to Relatives

AT LUMBER CAMP?

Lack of Clues Still Prevents Police From Clearing up the Case

Whether or not a woman is involved in the mysterious disappearance of Howard G. Robinson, is not certain, according to a statement given to "The Varsity" last night by Detective Black, who is in charge of the case. "When I first investigated, stated Detective Black, 'I thought that a woman might be at the bottom of it. Robinson left in a hurry. He did not wait to see his brother, nor did he take any of his personal effects with him. If a woman was involved, he wanted to get away as quickly as possible. His parents and his brother, however, do not agree. They claim no knowledge of Howard being intimately acquainted with any girl.'"

"His parents informed me that he is an expert wood-cutter. It is possible that he is in one of the Northern Ontario lumber camps. Why should he go there, or anywhere else? That is the question that has been bothering us since he disappeared, because there seems to be no motive to account for his going away so suddenly."

"I received a message yesterday, that a man named Robinson and answering to the description of the missing youth had taken an apartment on Avenue Rd. On investigation the man was able to establish his identity."

Robinson's parents returned to New Liskeard, Wednesday, believing that their son would turn up as suddenly as he disappeared. "All that we can do, is wait and hope that he will," said Detective Black.

NARROW NATIONALISM ATTACKED AT EMPIRE CLUB

Canon Gower-Rees States Need of Patriots With True Foresight

The narrow nationalism that always leads to catastrophe was flayed yesterday at the Empire Club luncheon at the Royal York when the Rev. Canon A. P. Gower-Rees of the Montreal Cathedral addressed the members on the subject of "Nationalism".

The Rev. A. P. Gower-Rees pointed out that when Germany became an entity in 1870 she became overwhelmed with the desire to surpass all other states and that spirit when not curbed with the finer feeling that Nationalism can have, inevitably leads to trouble. True nationalism develops a spirit that urges each member of the community to do his all for that home of his, the Canon stated, but it should include other factors. The most important other factors, according to the speaker, are the ability to freely confess when your country is wrong, and the desire for a fine type of internationalism that does away with the arrogance of parochial nationalism.

Canada to-day needs, the speaker pointed out, a fine type of patriotism that will enable it to look at its past in the light of understanding and look ahead with the foremost thinkers on subjects that will lead to world good and world progress.

MR. EDITOR

The tendencies of the modern press have of recent afforded much fodder for controversy, and the general conclusion achieved seems to link the press with the spirit of the times. Out of the argument, however, comes the idea that the editorial, the "leading article", has become one with the dodo, the bustle and the melodrama. A review of the general situation will reveal the truth of this, undoubtedly.

The average reader turns to the editorial page for one of two reasons. In the first instance, he wishes to discover opinions with which he agrees, and when he reads, he expects to experience a warm and glowing satisfaction. Otherwise, he anticipates indignation and disagreement, which waxes stronger and more pleasant as he reads on. Hence the actual opinions expressed have little or no influence on the reader.

Where more influence is exerted is in the news columns, which every subscriber necessarily reads. As he reads, bias and opinion subtly in-written, can shape opinions without anyone knowing it. As one observer said, "Let me write the headlines and I care not who writes the editorials."

Hence the sapient reflection, "The editorial page of to-day is a sort of vermiform appendix."

OPEN MEETING

The Student Council of the men students meets this afternoon. The meeting is to be free to public attendance. The President and Secretary have sought to impress upon the students the necessity of attendance, not only on the part of representatives, but also the student body which is urged to view the Council in action.

If the appeal goes unheeded, it simply means that a charge made by the more pessimistic is true—that the students do not give a hoot for their own affairs.

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

For the past seven years recitals have been given in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. on Friday afternoons. From the first they have proved one of the most popular features of the musical life of the university and have always attracted a considerable attendance of real music-lovers.

The Music Committee has arranged a similar series of recitals this winter and the first recital takes place this afternoon.

Members of Hart House are much indebted for these recitals, as also for the Sunday Evening Concerts, to the musicians of Toronto who generously give their services as friends of Hart House.

Mr. Gordon Hallett, pianist, will be the artist at this week's Recital in the Music Room at 5 p.m.

The programme follows:—

II	Chopin
Two Etudes	Chopin
Waltz	Chopin
III	Debussy
Danse	Debussy
Clair de Lune	Debussy

I was standing at my igloo door admiring the aurora borealis the other evening when the figure of a man appeared over the nearby mountain top, slid half a mile down the intervening glacier and picked himself up at my feet, the seat of his pants sizzling from the friction.

"Howdy Stranger," said he, holding out his hand. To my surprise, I saw that he was a white man. "Come in and gnzzle some blubber," I replied, in the jargon of the north, leading the way into my den where the fire was blazing.

"I understand that you have come to Greenland to go into the penguin raising industry," he began, seating himself tenderly on a block of ice.

"That is my intention," I answered. "But, my dear fellow, don't you realize that there is not a single penguin in the whole Arctic circle?"

"Great Heavens," I cried, "that explains why I haven't seen any since I arrived here two weeks ago. Why didn't I read my geography! What-ever shall I do?"

"You had better pack up and go home," he advised.

"Impossible, I have imported ten cases of arrowroot biscuits, a carton of caraway seeds, and twenty gallons of marmalade as a special eighteen day diet for bloated penguins, not to mention a number of other types of food."

I replied, "No, I must carry on, penguins or no penguins. Wait a minute, though, I clean forgot Emily and Clarence, the two penguins that were presented to me by Commander Boid! They seem to be happily mated and if they should have any young ones—By jove, I think that they will prove the solution to our problem."

At this moment there was a great commotion at the rear of the igloo and we both rushed to see what the trouble was. To our intense astonishment we found Emily gazing stupidly at the remains of an egg shell, from the interior of which a newly hatched puffin duckling had issued. Clarence was pacing up and down in front of the nest, his noble features contorted with grief, rage and despair. He was

Softly retracing our steps, the stranger and I left the tragic scene. I have left the Arctic, I hope, for good. I will raise no more penguins, for moral turpitude is a thing I will not brook, even in the great open spaces. Let Andre continue to penguinate if he will; I am through.

Editor, "The Varsity",—
Dear Sir,—

I was highly amused at a comment in "The Varsity" to-day by one of the female students approached regarding her views on smoking in lectures. She stated that smoking made one "appear nonchalant when one is trying to connect something in French". Now, Mr. Editor, can you possibly conceive of any girl looking nonchalant with a cigarette in her mouth, during a French lecture?

How utterly absurd! What utter pitiful! Surely this woman was not taking herself seriously? The whole idea of women smoking is in order that they might look superior to the common herd! And how can one possibly look superior and nonchalant at the same time, especially if one happens to be a woman? Please, Mr. Editor, if you are going to print students' opinions, let them be serious ones.

Yours, etc.,
Oudcis.

Editor "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,—

In "The Varsity" one day last week we were informed that Mr. A. Gordon

Burns of the S.A.C. had taken steps to inquire of the attorney-general whether Varsity students away from home would be allowed to vote here in the coming election. The result was to be announced on Tuesday of this week. That result has not as yet appeared. May I take the liberty, through your columns, of reminding Mr. Burns of the matter in case he has forgotten it, and of expressing the hope that some announcement will be forthcoming soon?

I am, etc., that strange phenomenon,
Politically Interested Co-ed.

MONTREAL PARTY CAUSES BRIEF REIGN OF TERROR

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Que.—Laughs, cheers, and University of Montreal yells resounded in an otherwise respectable Montreal theatre for fifteen riotous minutes during a performance recently. Bored students, many carrying red lanterns, swarmed in the pit, on the stage, and behind the scenes. Comedians and chorus beauties, terrified by the onrush of amateur talent, fled in haste from the sight of the spectators.

The cause of this sudden chaos was a raid by University of Montreal students, bent on a glorious rag. Scores of them streamed in through the entrance, passed the thunderstruck attendants and raced down the centre aisles. Taking the other entertainers by surprise, the mob forced them to leave the boards, and themselves took charge of the performance.

BLUE INTERCOLLEGIATES FACE WESTERN AT LONDON TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity should take Western quite easily in London to-morrow. The Blue and White will be facing a fighting team on the latter's home grounds, but all the dope calls Toronto to win by a good margin.

McGill plays Queen's at Kingston and it is a case of do or die with the Montrealers. A loss to the Tricolour will eliminate McGill absolutely, but a victory for the Red would give them a fighting chance for the title and would also place Varsity and Queen's in a tie for first place, as the Blue-Mustangs hook-up appears a cinch for Captain George Morgan's men.

At the opening of the present football season it looked as if the Blue would have trouble at outside wing. With Gooderham on the injured list not one of last year's ends was available for duty. It remained for Johnny Stuart of the '27 Orphans to step in and help fill the breach. Last fall Johnny was out the entire season with an injured foot. This year Stuart has been playing smart football, getting down fast on the kicks and crashing them hard. George Gooderham is now working at the other end of the line and with Stuart is making it tough for the opposition. Elson, last year with Bloor Collegiate, made good with a bang against McGill here last Saturday. He and Mueller, former Hamilton Tech player make another smart pair of ends.

With Johnny Fitzpatrick on the intercollegiate squad and Ralph Adams with the O.R.F.U., Varsity is not lacking in fast backfield men. Too bad that Percy Williams is not registered here. Put them together on the backfield provide a little interference and there would be plenty of the fast extensions that the crowd seems to like.

The intermediates are already in the discard. If the Orphans lose to-morrow or if Sarnia defeats Windsor the Ontario Union entry join the intermediates.

The Orphans entertain Tiger Cubs here to-morrow in the second half of a doubleheader opened by Argos and Ottawa in a Big Four engagement.

Varsity intermediates play Western Seconds at London to-morrow morning. Both teams are out of the running. This game offers all the attraction of a dish of last year's pancakes. They should have an agreement with the league to use the forward pass in this contest.

With the Intermediate Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet at Western to-day the official lid is clamped on the einder, grass and sand sports for this season. The Blue are entering a good team and a win would nicely follow last week's senior victory.

Two Toronto daily papers have published articles similar to this. They think that it is a thing which demands serious attention on the part of university officials and they think such a step would be very successful.

FRIDAY, OCT. 25—

1st Race: School II vs. Victoria

2nd Race: Trinity vs. Meds.

SATURDAY, OCT. 26—

3rd Race: School I vs. U.C.

4th Race: Winner of 2nd race vs. winner of 3rd race.

5th Race: Winner of 1st race vs. winner of 4th race.

Statistics show that the number of men enrolled at Indiana University is increasing, while the number of women students is decreasing.

SOCCER AT KINGSTON VARSITY TEAM READY FOR GOOD FAST GAME

Unusual Number of New Men Makes the Choice of Team Difficult

TORONTO'S OPENING GAME

At 10.30 this evening the Varsity intercollegiate soccer team entrain for Kingston, where they will hook up with R.M.C. to-morrow morning in Varsity's opening game of the season. The boys are full of fight, and confident of returning with a half-nelson on the 1929 championship.

Art Hallowell of Toronto Scottish has been coaching the squad for the past two weeks, and at the final work-out last night expressed himself as well satisfied with the team's condition and ability. The season has been marked by unprecedented interest in the Association game, and the unusual number of new aspirants to places on the intercollegiate team has made selection of the regulars difficult. Manager Downing is well satisfied with the final line-up, however, and is more than optimistic about the Varsity chances.

If Toronto wins the title, they will break a string of five successive championships won by McGill. R. M. C. defeated McGill 3-0 last Saturday, and a win for Varsity to-morrow will give them a decided edge.

Varsity line-up—Goal, Cox; backs, Rowland and Gregg; halfbacks, Gold-berg, King, Jackson; forwards, Carbert, Ward, Davidson, Whitlaw, Downing; alternates, Helper and West.

Players are requested to meet at the Union Station at ten o'clock this evening.

FIRST ENGLISH RUGGER GAME HERE SATURDAY

To be Followed by a Return Game at Montreal Next Saturday

The first match of the home and home rugger series will be played this Saturday at 1.30 p.m. on the Bask Campus. The following week, Varsity will give McGill a return game in Montreal.

Even if the weather clears, the field promises to make it a forwards' game. This should suit the Blue and White, but the scoring would be higher if the ground could give the fast Varsity back division a chance to get going. In either case a very exciting game is anticipated. The line-up—Fullback, McKay; threequarters, Archbold, Lee, McLean, Goldenberg (Capt.); halves, Roome, Rogers; forwards, Knowles, Garner, Brown, Nash, Allen, Telford, Winburn, Salter, McPhie. Reserve, Phillips.

JR. U.C. INUNDATED BY VIC IN WATER POLO

Victoria Fire Five Fast Ones to Rally From U.C.'s Half-Time Lead

Victoria defeated Jr. U.C. by a score of 5 to 3, yesterday in the best played game of water polo this season. U.C. were leading by 2 to 0 at half-time, but Vic came to life in the final period and applied the whitewash brush by putting in 5 goals in quick succession.

For Vic Barrett, Edminson, Perkins, and Glass were the best, while Seccombe was the star for U.C. Line-up: Victoria—McLean, Perkins, Gould, Barrett, Cowle, O'Neill, Edminson, Smith, Glass (Capt.).

Big Blues at Top Strength Will Play Western To-morrow

NEW PLAYS INTRODUCED

Varsity invade London to-morrow to play Western for the second time this season. So far the Mustangs have lost all three starts, and they are fighting hard to break into the win column.

The Purple and White always tighten up in the second half of the game. Coach Breen has had them out and put them through some real work to tighten up their looseness. If the Mustangs get over their nervousness they may succeed in pulling out with the game.

Coach McPherson has had the Big Blue working out at top speed this past week. A few new plays have been introduced that should prove yard gainers. Ronnie has had his eye on the yardage lost on off-sides. The team's interference work is steadily improving and to-morrow's game should provide plenty of practice for Ronnie's interference coaching. Varsity is at present almost at top strength. Both Jack Sinclair and Jim Kelly have turned out in uniform. Yesterday Sinclair was doing the booting and his injury doesn't appear to have impaired his ability to any great extent. Bell and Fitzpatrick will start off on the backfield. The line will probably present the same make-up as last Saturday.

In the other intercollegiate fixture Queen's meet McGill. The Redmen are weakened by the injuries suffered in the game here and there is little hope of their beating the Tricolour.

SENIOR SCHOOL DEFEATS SENIOR MEDS. IN RUGBY

Last Quarter Played in Semi-Darkness Provides Plenty of Excitement

In a hard fought fight yesterday afternoon Sr. School defeated Sr. Meds 1-0. The weather was almost as bad as possible. There was plenty of excitement especially in the last quarter played in semi-darkness. The play moved rapidly from one end of the field to the other. It was only School's hard fighting that won the game.

In the first half there was no score. Neither team got many yards. There was a good deal of fumbling on both sides due to a slippery ball. Toward the end of the third quarter Grosvenor of School kicked over for one. From then on it was anybody's game. The play moved rapidly from one end of the field to the other. Meds kicked over the line but S.P.S. ran it out and saved the game. Final score 1-0. Davidson and Zieman of School and Johnson of Meds played outstanding games. The line-up—School—Flying wing, Rapsey; halves, Grosvenor, Armstrong, Handcock; quarter, Davidson; snap, Wilson; middles, Anderson, Zieman; insides, Tyson, Little; outsides, Crerar and Hardy. Subs: Blair, Brennenman, Buttrill, Sheddin, Meyer and Cowie.

Med's—Flying wing, Bull; halves, Knott, McLean, Ebbs; quarter, Johnson; snap, F. Kergin; middles, W. Kergin, Beath; insides, Bartlett, Robinson; outsides, Gunn and McKennie. Subs: Parsons, McMillan, Montemirro, Gundy, and Gibbons.

Inane Chatter of The Worldly Wise Drives Omar to Den of Dire Degradation

By A. E. F. Allan

Indeed the Idols I have loved so long Have done my credit in this World much wrong;
 Have drown'd my Glory in a shallow Cup.

And sold my Reputation for a Song.
 The Time of howling Tempests is with us once more, O Sakil and the Elm Tree's gentle Shade is but a Shadow of its former Self. On a Day when dripped the sagging Eaves and creaked the aged Timbers, betook I myself from the Circle of Pekoe-Sippers and hid me once more to the Tents of the World, to the Market Place, and to the pleasant Cases of Orthodoxy. For thy Omar hath discovered that there is That in the Chatter of the Youthful Wise and the insane and hopeful Clatter of frustrate Blue Stockings that leaves a bad Taste in the Mouth, like unto the Morning after a Binge.

Across the Street of Brotherhood and the Northern Wilderness wandered I like one forlorn. And hard against the Great Grey Gargoyled Pile went I, and in at the Door; up Steps space; along a weary Corridor, past Lairs where Creatures flipp'd the Insane Pasteboards, plucked the Lyre, and fed the Face. At length came I to a Den where Vice and Iniquity lurked in sinister Wise.

Bravely did I stride within, while hard-cast Faces leered at me from lofty Shelves and Tables strewn with Garbage. Last Year's Leaves were all about and Vessels bearing Last Night's Dregs. Noisome Monsters rattled like Hailstones on a Tin Roof.
 vomiting Reams of close-write Script.
 "Holla!" cried one again. "Hail,
 Wanderer! We would hold Privy Council with thee!"

"What!" said another, "is this little Elmer returned?"
 "Not Elmer," cried a third, "—but Omar. Little O.K. Omar from the Woods beyond Baghdad."

"We heard thou wert a Pirate,
 Omar," quoth a fourth.
 Said I, at length: "Behold in me one but late come from the Potter's House where hotly waxing Sufi Piggins peer and Pots do prate of That they know not."

"Mayhap," said one, "thou hast been thumped like the poor Wet Clay that thou art—but nothing like what thou wilt be thumped anon."

"Gently, Brother, gently, pray!"
 cried I. "Much Lore and Wisdom have I learnt beneath the Elm. For this did I tarry."

Quoth he: "That's a helluva poor excuse . . . ."

POLICE REQUIRE PERMISSION

 was the cheerful greeting of the police sergeant on duty in the outer office.
 "I told him to do all the reporting he wanted so long as he kept on moving,
 'keep movin' and keep reportin' was what I told him." "Say, how many 'Varsity' reporters were there?" questioned another as the door was opened to the Chief Inspector's office.

"The university police solicited our aid to clear the grounds; just as a private person might call in the police to keep order in his own house," explained the Chief Inspector, who did not give his name.

"Words have started many fires—
 look at Winnipeg. You are a student.
 You know what great conflagrations words have caused," was the Chief Inspector's reply to the suggestion that many students thought the communists should be allowed to talk. "There would have been disorder. Why, I know that some of your own men were ready to rotten-egg the communists' meeting. The soldiers came to ask headquarters to leave the park alone and let them take care of the communist; but that would certainly have meant loss of life." Groans of dis-swimming are asked to report to the gust greeted the suggestion that it was the duty of the police, in such case, to protect Mr. Jack Macdonald.

"The atmosphere is different over there," said the Chief Inspector to the mention of "Hyde Park-Queen's Park." "Here we have the same conditions that they have in the States.
 Why, eighteen communists were indicted in Cook County the other day for preaching against the government."

To prove the case of sedition, a pamphlet of the "immediate program" of the communists was brought out, of which Sec. 11 was marked, which read: "Elimination of all imperialistic, militarist and religious teaching from school books and curriculum. Abolition of cadet and other practices in the school." The Inspector's hand trembled with the earnestness of the man as he handed over this final proof of the seditious character of the communist; and he reiterated again and again that he was a thorough Canadian and proud to be defending his country thus against the sedition, the blasphemy and the immorality of the communistic party. "I want you to get these three things right, and don't warp my words in your story to mean anything I haven't said," he warned in conclusion.

Canadian Athletes Dependent On Well-to-do Parents States Report

Opinions of athletic officials confirm the results—as far as this university is concerned—of a recent investigation of the condition of amateur sports in 130 American and Canadian universities made public in a report naming the widespread practice of recruiting and subsidizing athletics as "The deepest shadow that darkens American college and school athletics."

Of the entire number of institutions studied, there were only 28 in which no evidence was found that athletics were subsidized. Of this 28, seven were Canadian institutions—Dalhousie, Laval, McGill, Ottawa, Queen's, Saskatchewan and Toronto Universities.

In explanation of the comparatively favorable situation as found in this country, the report reads as follows: "In Canada a far larger proportion of university athletes come from the more prosperous classes and are maintained entirely by their families. The needy athlete is comparatively rare, and even when he exists he does not seem to expect special consideration. In addition Canadian university sportsmanship is sufficiently strong to prevent recruiting."

"We are pleased with this report," stated T. A. Reed, financial secretary of U. of T. Athletic Association, in an interview with "The Varsity," seeking his opinion regarding the position. (Continued on page 3)

QUEEN'S DEFEAT MCGILL WITH FINAL SCORE 25-0

Tricolour Are Much Superior Throughout the Entire Game

Special to "The Varsity" Queen's overwhelmed McGill here to-day 25-0 to strengthen their hold on first place in the college series. The Tricolour were much superior throughout the entire game and it was a question of the Redmen keeping down the score. "Red" Gilmore and Howard Carter were the stars of the game. The former made three goals from placement and converted two touches for a total of eleven points. Carter did some great booting, having a big margin on Kritzweiser of McGill.

In the first quarter Gilmore got a placement and Stuart's touch was converted by the red-head. In the second period there was no score, making it 9-0 at the half way mark.

In the third session, Queen's secured four singles running their total to 13.

In the fourth quarter Gilmore kicked two placements and Lackey got a touch which Gilmore converted.

Final score, Queen's 25, McGill 0. The teams:—

Queen's—Flying wing, Britton; halves, Carter, Gilmore, Munro; quarter, Sutton; snap, Abbot; insides, Nichol, Gaetz; middles, Klignon, Stuart; outsides, Gourelay, Dickey; subs, Caldwell, Elliott, Lackey, Hastings, Basserman, Ralph, De Diana, Gorman. McGill—Flying wing, Halpeny; halves, Smythe, Kritzweiser, Nichol; quarter, Granger; snap, Swabey; insides, Littlefield, Church; middles, McTeer, Munroe; outsides, Young Urquhart; subs, Chard, Russell, Matheson, Jacquays, McGillivray, Taylor.

CONDEMN BACHELORS UNWORTHY OF SEX

Many Bright Remarks Pour Forth at Co-Ed Debate On Friday

"Resolved that this House deplors the wicked waste of lavishing cultural education upon men," was the topic of a debate among the members of Trinity College Literary Institute and St. Hilda's Literary Society on Friday night.

In speaking for the opposition, Miss Winspear confessed that she was not very clear about the meaning of the term "waste". Was it that of the voluptuous woman? "For years the world has been deploring the lack of a 'waist' in the feminine silhouette," she added. Her question, in answer to the call to men to enter only practical courses, "How would you like Hart House Pool to be discoloured with rouge and powder and the Dining Room used as a Baby's Clinic?" evoked much laughter.

Among some of the bright remarks from the floor were—

"Divinity is a technical treatise for devil dodgers."

"Any man who will not marry is unworthy of the sex, except Indian braves, but has anyone ever seen an Indian squaw?"

Australian Resident Succumbs On Way to Hospital After Accident

HIT BY LAW MOTORIST

Stepping from the curb, at the West crescent of Queen's Park, on his way to attend a lecture, Harry L. Courtney, a resident Australian, was struck by an automobile, and fatally injured. Arthur Boddy, a young law student, who drove the car, was arrested at the scene and held on a charge of manslaughter. Mr. Boddy, when interviewed by "The Varsity," refused to give any statement.

Courtney was about a foot from the curb when the south bound auto struck him and ran over his body. His skull was crushed, and he died on the way to the hospital. Mr. Boddy stated that he did not see the pedestrian. He felt a bump, leaped out, picked up the injured man, and rushed him to the General Hospital.

MAY RETURN TO $3.00 FEE

Just Two Lone Visitors Make Their Appearance at Open Meeting

"It is our duty to follow up the investigations being made into Student Government which were started last year," stated A. H. Ferry the new president of the men's S.A.C. at the open meeting of that body held in the Lecture Room in Hart House on Friday. "A committee has been appointed to look thoroughly into the matter and we must see that something comes out of it." "This year we know where we are in relation to other student bodies. We have a better idea of Student Government and as a result we expect a pleasant year." Mr. Ferry struck an optimistic note when he said: "Perhaps—I said perhaps—the time may be ripe this year for a return to the former $3.00 S.A.C. fee."

Mr. A. Gordon Burns, secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., said that he had interviewed Dean DeLury in regard to the investigations into student government and had learned that the committee appointed last year, consisting of Dean DeLury, Provost Cosgrave of Trinity, and J. P. McMurrich, Dean of School of Graduate Studies, is to meet on Monday next and a report of its findings will be sent to the S.A.C. as soon as possible. In the discussion which followed this information it was decided that the Council would await the committee's report and that if something was not done within a reasonable length of time action of a more direct sort would have to be taken.

The College of Pharmacy now being an affiliated college in the university it was deemed necessary it should send representatives to the S.A.C. Hence it was moved and seconded that the College of Pharmacy be welcomed to the S.A.C. and that two representatives be sent, one of whom is to be elected for two years.

Mr. Burns received a letter from Queen's which stated that a Queen's man had been attacked in Kingston, after the Varsity-Queen's game, by two presumably Varsity men and relieved of his tam which is valued at $275. As it is an offense at Queen's for a freshman to be tamless, the S.A.C. was asked to look into the matter. Assuming no responsibility for the loss of the tam, the S.A.C. decided to leave the matter in the hands of Mr. Burns.

Government Tells Burns Too Late to Arrange For Student Vote

NO DISCRIMINATION

Attorney General's Decision Caused by Suddenness Of Election

"Students will not be able to vote at the university at the coming elections," stated Mr. A. G. Burns, to "The Varsity" to-day. "I wrote to the attorney general's office about the matter and they replied that due to the short notice no arrangements could be made."

It was pointed out that if one desired to vote in a riding other than that in which he resided, application had to be made one month before the date of the election. No discrimination is made against students as no arrangements have been made for travelling salesmen, etc., to vote. Two years ago arrangements were made, but due to the election coming on so suddenly this was impossible this year.

Mr. Burns estimated that there were about 1,500 students who would be deprived of their franchise by the attorney-general's decision. How many of these were really interested in the election Mr. Burns would not attempt to say.

On the night of the election, it has been arranged to have a radio installed in either the west common room or in the reading room. This has been done for those not desiring to go downtown and in case of rain. The radio is being installed through the courtesy of the Wentworth Radio Co.

SPEAKS ON FLIGHT TO WILD REGIONS

Mr. Walter Cain Describes His Experiences With Redskins

A highly successful tea-dance was held at Newman Club on Saturday, at which there was a large turnout of members. The dance this week was put on by Meads, and was voted "the best yet".

Again on Sunday afternoon a large number were entertained at Newman Club when Mr. Walter Cain, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, spoke on the subject of "The Treaty Flight". In a very interesting address Mr. Cain gave an account of the flight from Toronto to Trout Lake. He related several very interesting anecdotes concerning the Indians that he met.

He found the Indians in that section of the country more honest than any others that he ever met.

The object of the flight was to establish a treaty between the Indians and the government concerning the territory that was awarded to Ontario.

Mr. Cain spoke of the amazement of the Indians at their mode of travel. He related an incident that occurred on the trip. He was explaining to an Indian about the speed at which they travelled. He had crossed a certain piece of territory in one hour that usually takes the Indians eight days to travel. On relating this incident he was met with the question: "What is the hurry?" Tea was served after the address.

"I was arrested on a warrant sworn out by university police," said R. E. Knowles, Jr., who was arrested on university property by city police forces on Saturday, October 19th. Mr. Knowles was interviewed by "The Varsity" last evening.

"It seems rather hard that my Alma Mater should swear out a warrant for my arrest because I was on university property," Mr. Knowles stated to "The Varsity".

Mr. Knowles described his arrest, and the incidents preceding it. When city police barred the way into Queen's Park, university police ordered him to leave the grounds.

"We could not get into Queen's Park," said Mr. Knowles, "of course we might have gone out by way of Hoskins Avenue or the southern exit across the campus. But the police arrested me before I had time to do much of anything."

Mr. Knowles is running as Independent Labour candidate in St. Patrick's riding for the coming election, and is holding, he stated, an open air meeting at the corner of College and Huron Street at 7:15 this evening which all faculty and students are invited to attend.

In the event of Mr. Knowles being sentenced to imprisonment on a charge of trespass which will be heard this morning in police court, the meeting will necessarily be withdrawn.

"I hope, however, that justice will be shown and that I will be freed," said Mr. Knowles.

6-2 Win Over Mustangs Gives Firmer Footing to Blue and White

HALLAM'S KICKING FEATURE John Harrison, Fitzpatrick, and Bell Star for Winners

Varsity ..... 0 2 0 4-6
Western ..... 1 0 1 0-2

Varsity made another step toward the intercollegiate championship by defeating Western 6-2 at London on Saturday. The game was a tough, hard-fought battle, almost entirely devoid of sensational play with straight football being the order of the day.

The Mustangs threw an awful scare into the Varsity rooters by scoring the opening point of the game and then holding the blue to a 2-2 tie until the fourth quarter had got under way. Neither team was successful in plays from scrimmage until the last period when Varsity made yards four times and aided by Hallam's good booting ran up four points to win the game.

With the defence too strong for the attack the game developed into kicking duels between Bell of Varsity and Savard and Paterson of Western. Hallam, who relieved Fitz in the last quarter, turned the tide with his superior booting. Both teams tackled well, with the blue and white more effective on the punts. Bell timed his kicks nicely and four or five blunts were down waiting to crash the Western halves. Savard at times outkicked his wings, who were unable to get down as fast as the Torontonians with the result that Bell and Fitz frequently ran the ball back for good gains.

Bell, Fitzpatrick and John Harrison were the pick of the winners. For Western Kennedy and Savard stood out. The former did more work than any player on either team, and was about the best man on the field. Savard kicked well and took care of a lot of the backfield play.

After some sloppy work by both backfields at the beginning of the first quarter, Western got the ball on Varsity's 40 yard line when the blue wings pulled a no yards on Hauch. Then Bell fumbled a towering punt on his own goal line, but recovered for a rouge. Play was even for a while with Savard kicking them far and high. Bell was being forced to hurry his kicks. The quarter ended with Western leading Varsity 1-0.

In the second quarter Varsity got a nice break. Following Bell's long, bounding kick, Kress fumbled on a plunge on Western's 10 yard line and Varsity recovered. Two bucks made 5 yards and on the third down Morgan failed to go over by inches. After an exchange of kicks Bell hoofed one over to Savard who was downed by Gooderham and Keith to tie the score. Following a Western no yards on a kick Varsity got the pigskin on the London 35 yard line. Bean made yards and Bell dropped back for a field goal after a high snap Bell was forced to boot to the deadline for a single, making the score Varsity 2, Western 1, at half-time.

In the third session Savard gained on several long punts and then booted over the line to Fitzpatrick, who was downed for a rouge by Ward, tying the score at 2 all. Then came the turning point of the game. Bell fumbled Savard's kick and Western secured on Varsity's 10 yard line. The Mustangs made no gain on the first down and got 5 yards on the second. Paterson was sent out to kick a field goal. On the last down the ball was snapped badly, Paterson had to hurry his kick and booted the ball into his own line. Varsity recovered and Western (Continued on page 3)

WE REVOLT

One discovers, by diligent pursuit and enquiry among the elders, a certain indefinite, yet forceful, conviction that youth is in revolt. There is, to be sure, the consolation that Adam undoubtedly suspected his progeny of a willingness to start something, and similarly with parents and off-spring down through the civilizations. Always, it seems, the grey-hairs have felt that the children were going to the devil, while the latter hoped that when the old boys were pushing daisies, the millenium would have been achieved. Yes, as some wise observer pointed out, the young arrive at middle age, themselves, before reaching either the devil or the millenium.

And in particular, many good people have the impression that our universities are swarming with students who yearn to cast off yokes and fling away restraint; that secret societies are formed in occult places where plans are laid to paste paper wads at professors whose doctrines are 1926 B.A., Oxon., and not 1929; that there are clubs where meetings are opened with the Internationale; that Bernard Shaw (or is it Bernard McPadden?) is an accepted authority . . . . . and so forth.

And, as a matter of fact, students do, from time to time, discover matters that pain their sense of equity and propriety, and proceed to discuss the matter vociferously. The fact that the more experienced at once use the term "revolt", thus aligning the established order with the cause of the outcry, is a cause for unpleasant reflection. Unfortunately, however, disturbances at universities create swell copy for the press fellows, and bold-face headlines are apt to result. From this the public is given to credit that the undergraduates are about to march on the city hall and tap the mayor.

But, passing over that rare bird, the disillusioned undergraduate, the potter amounts to nothing. The young are no more likely to revolt than the Sunday-School classes of Brampton, Tobermory, and Moosomin, Saskatchewan. What most people view as a symptom of revolt is the desire of the college persons to sneak silverware, pull trolley poles, parade after football victories, fight after football losses, hector freshmen, steal real estate signs, lift red lanterns from dumps, relate droll yarns, and raise mischief.

In thirty years we intimate, the lad who threw buns in the dining hall will reach the governing board of his institution, and, as a wholesale grocer, have expert advice to offer on educational matters; the lad who crowned a constable will be a magistrate; the lass who could see no sense in residence rules will be a dean of women, and have a light installed in the front vestibule of the residence; the irritable editor of the college paper will be a slot man handling copy on rocking chair marathons, flag-pole sitting contests and Hart House Debates.

The intelligence of youth is rather over-estimated. Youth is no more in revolt than the speaker of the Trinity Lit.

Rooting

Editor "The Varsity",

Dear Sir,—

I would like to urge that bleachers be abolished. When I first came here in 1921, I was told that organized cheering was necessary in order that the teams might hear the signals. But the "huddle" dispensed with this; and when, in addition to being unnecessary, they became troublesome, they should, like the appendix, be cut out—of course with some compensation to the two gentlemen in white flannels who dance on the touch line.

On Saturday the Orphans, after securing a substantial lead, faltered; and as you know, finally lost. The bleachers at the critical point lost interest in the game and became absorbed in their own scrapping. They found it hard to forgive the un-sportsman who returned the ball to the field of play. Milling, is very desirable, but, as in the Grasmere sports in the English Lake District, it should be done privately behind the stands. Sand could be procured. I bought a load for my own children, which was placed behind the bicycle tread; and the cost was trifling.

This is a plea for liberty. Left to itself the crowd will catch the spirit of the game; and at a crucial moment will lift the team into victory. I have often seen this at Queen's Club, London, in the days of long ago.

I am, sir,

Yours sincerely,

C. R. FAY.

Sunday Evening Concert

The Sunday evening concert season opened at Hart House last night with a two-piano recital given by Mr. Reginald Golden and Mr. Scott Malcolm. In a programme ranging from Bach to Saint Saens and Rachmaninoff, these two artists most capably entertained their large audience.

Although the arrangement of the Bach organ prelude was not altogether a happy one, the fugue which followed was without a doubt the feature of the evening. The prelude is not sufficiently impressive as a two-piano work, but the fugue lends itself admirably to interpretation in that form. Both pianists in effortless style accentuated the beautifully intricate movement of the fugue and reproduced the design of the work with charming clarity and precision.

Such numbers as the Anitra's Dance, the German Dances, were played with attractive facility and lightness, but one wonders why so much effort should have been devoted to the re-arrangement of such popular works for rendering at a Hart House programme. The Danse Macabre of Saint-Saens possesses a fascinating rhythm and is captivating in its weirdness even in a piano arrangement and it must be said that technically speaking the rendering of this Danse ranked second only to the Bach. The two-piano arrangement of the Campanella of Paganini perhaps lacks some of the brilliance of the Liszt arrangement for solo piano but it was so capably played—

BLUE AND WHITE DEFEAT WESTERN IN HARD FOUGHT GAME 6-2

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Varsity-Western game was certainly one hard fought battle. Until halfway through the fourth quarter it looked to be anybody's game. But Varsity had the necessary reserve power to come on and win.

* * *

Western have improved marvelously since their appearance here. The Mustang line looked like the best that the Blue have faced in the intercollegiate campaign. And the Purple and White tackled like fiends.

* * *

The Bell-Fitzpatrick combination went well again. Neither was as steady as in the McGill game, but made up for any errors with smart ball-carrying. Bell's running back of punts was one of the bright features of the game. Hallam, who relieved Fitz in the last quarter, settled the issue with his long high spirals, chalking up a 4 point margin for the Blue. Harrison did some great tackling and was about the best of the Blue plingers.

* * *

In contrast to the McGill game Varsity lost very few yards through penalties. On the other hand until about 50 minutes of the game had passed into history the Blue had succeeded in moving the yard-sticks but three times. In the last stanza they made the necessary yardage four times. The Mustangs made yards from scrimmage only one during the game, this being in the last quarter.

* * *

McGill took the count down in Kingston and are now absolutely out of the running. While Western are coming fast it is too much to expect that the Londoners will beat Queen's this week. Varsity should take McGill in Montreal this Saturday. The Queen's-Varsity game here Nov. 9 is looking more and more like a wow.

* * *

The Orphans' loss to Hamilton here and Sarnia's victory over Windsor eliminated the Blue most thoroughly. This makes the second consecutive overtime loss for the Ontario Union squad. The Orphans have two more games to play, Windsor here this Saturday and at Sarnia the following week.

* * *

Varsity intermediates closed their league season in proper style by trouncing Western 22-1. There is a rumour that the intermediates have challenged the Orphans to a battle some time this week. Keep an eye open for further developments. This ought to be good.

VIC LICKS TRINITY ON GREASY FIELD

Willis, Gregory, Buchanan Stone and Summerhayes Are Stars

On an exceedingly greasy field Victoria whitewashed Trinity to the tune of 13-0. Though both backfields were sure and speedy, Victoria's line did a first degree murder act to Trinity's.

In the first quarter Willis of Victoria booted for two rouges. In the second he added another while Gregory hoisted a drop kick. Gregory again flashed forth in the third quarter for a touch and convert while Hillis added another rouge. The last quarter went scoreless featured by the snake-like sprints of Buchanan of Victoria and Stone of Trinity.

Victoria's outstanding players were Willis, Gregory and Buchanan, and Trinity's, Stone and Summerhayes.

Victoria — Flying wing, Hatton; halves, Addison, Willis, Buchanan; quarter, Hart; snap, Doyle; middles, Clarke, Searle; insides, Gregory, Lindsay; outsides, Haeger, Ferguson; subs, Vaughan, DeMille, Leask, Snell, Davidson, Devitte, Wylie.

Trinity—Flying wing, Clough; halves Stone, Stuart, Morton; quarter, Summerhayes; snap, S. Morton; middles, Sinclair, Gray; insides, Yates, Hovey; outsides, Kerr, Wotherspoon; subs, Coleman, Wilson, Dixon, McLaren, Parmer, Fox, Strathly.

CRAWSHAW AND JONES TIE IN WYCLIFFE MEET

With fifteen points each, Jack Crawshaw and Trevor Jones tied for first place in the annual track and field meet of Wycliffe College which was held at the Varsity stadium last Friday afternoon. Ronald Morrissey placed third with a total of thirteen points.

MAKE NEW RECORDS AT FIELD GAMES

Western Leads in Meet With Varsity Second, and O.A.C. Third

TORONTO BREAKS TWO

The annual intermediate intercollegiate track and field meet was held on Friday at Western. Western took first place, O.A.C. second, Varsity third and McMaster fourth. A strong wind swept the field, making the time slow, in the sprints and runs. Don Wright, of Western won the individual championship, and Don Rivers, also of Western, won the sprints. The 440 was the feature race of the meet, Standish of Toronto establishing a record. The race looked like a tie until the last foot when Standish's sprint carried him to the tape to defeat Fraser of Western by a few inches. The time was very fast considering the weather.

Fraser, who was with Hamilton Central's undefeated relay team last year, established a record in the half-mile, leading the field from the start and winning handily. Banks of the O.A.C. was good at the distance runs, and Thompson of Toronto did well with the javelin.

Eleven new records were established. Six were broken by Western, three by the O.A.C., and two by Toronto.

The medley relay, consisting of two 220's, one 440 and one half-mile, was run on Saturday at half-time at the Varsity-Western game. Western took the lead from the start and held it to the finish. Vila ran well for Toronto, who took second place, and O.A.C. ran third. The teams were:

Western—Wright, Rivers, Ritchie, Fraser.

Toronto—Standish, Engel, Davidson, Vila.

ORPHANS GO DOWN BEFORE JUNGLE CATS

Richardson's Work Excellent But Injuries Prevent Him From Continuing

WIN ON ROUGE

Duplicating their disheartening effort of last week, Varsity Orfuns took another overtime reverse from the Hamilton Tiger Cubs. As in the game at Hamilton, the blue seconds piled up a good lead early in the game only to have the Cubs come from behind to tie it up at full time and push on the winning score in the overtime period. At one time the Orfuns were in the lead by a 9 to 1 count, and at half-time led by 9 to 2.

But the yellow and black secured two rouges and a try in the last half to tie the score. There was no score in the first ten minute overtime period, but on the kick-off to start the second session the ball got away from Smith, the blue and white backfielder, and he was forced to rouge, giving Hamilton the game, 10 to 9.

Varsity got a point in the first period when Dickson booted one over. In the second stanza the blue finished their scoring by adding eight points on a drop by Dickson and McCulloch's recovery of a Hamilton fumble behind the Tigers' line.

Hal Richardson was the Orfuns' best bet until he was injured. His catching, running and hoofing were high class and about the only bright spot in the Orfuns' play.

Varsity O.R.F.U. line-up—Flying wing, Traynor; halves, Richardson, Bennett, McLeod; quarter, Twatles, snap, McCulloch; insides, Henderson, A. Stringer; middles, R. Stringer, Scott; outsides, Dickson, Baker; subs, Mueller, Smith, Monkhouse, Britnell, Adams, Wright, Levinsky, McMillan.

More Laurels Over Week-End In Kicking Match At Kingston

Varsity secured a stranglehold on the intercollegiate soccer title when their representatives tramped on Royal Military College to the tune of 5-3 at Kingston on Saturday. R.M.C. had previously beaten McGill, five-time champions, in the first game of the season. Varsity have now only to defeat McGill in their game here to break McGill's long string of championships.

Varsity secured their victory when they outscored the homesters 3-1 in the first half. Lowland, Downing and Talbot respectively, accounted for the tallies. In the second half the scoring was divided, R.M.C. eluding Cox twice while Davidson scored two for Art Halliwell, goalkeeper for Toronto Scottish, who has coached the Torontonians for the past two weeks, made the trip with them.

Varsity line-up—Goal, Cox; backs, Rowland and Gregg; halfbacks, Gold-emburg, King and Jackson; forwards, Carbert, Ward, Davidson, Whitlaw, Downing; alternates, Helper and West.

LONDON INTERMEDIATES BOW TO U. OF T.

Bailey Makes Two Touchdowns in Cinch Game of 22 to 1

Varsity intermediate intercollegiate rugby squad defeated the University of Western Ontario 22 to 1 in London last Saturday. Bailey stood out for the blue squad with two touchdowns to his credit while Crocker and Taylor garnered a touchdown each. The latter made a brilliant run for 75 yards after taking McPherson's on-side kick in the third quarter. Johnston kicked for a rouge and also secured a counter with a convert.

Armstrong registered Western's single tally. Line-up—

Varsity—McCallum, flying wing; Johnston, Smith, Scott, half backs; Hointzman, quarter; Buchanan, snap; Connor, Brookshell, insides; Farrell, Elgie, middles; Crocker, Bailey, outsides; O'Flynn, Arnold, Farwell, Taylor, Schaefer, Reid, subs.

terri's chance for glory was shattered. Following a Varsity gain from scrimmage, Western fumbled at centre and Little recovered to place the Mustangs on the defensive just as the quarter ended.

At the start of the last stanza Hallam replaced Fitz on the backfield. Paterson got away a short kick for a good blue gain and Hallam booted a high one to Svard who was thrown back for a safety touch, giving Varsity a 2 point lead. Hallam fumbled, but no great damage was done. Varsity made yards twice in a row and then Hallam hoisted one to the dead-line to make it 5-2. Hallam then kicked another neat one to Hauch who was downed for a rouge. Final score, Varsity 6, Western 2.

Varsity line-up—Flying wings, Harrison and Ruddell; halves, Bell and Fitzpatrick; quarter, Wood; snap, Keith; insides, Bean and Galloway; middles, Morgan and Little; outsides, Gooderham and Stuart; subs, Hallam, Jim Sinclair, Long, Dewar, White, Elson, Davey, Subosits.

JOHN MCGILL WINS FIRST RUGGER GAME

Blue and White Buck Fiercely But Unsuccessfully On Saturday

On Saturday at Varsity, McGill won the first game of this year's intercollegiate rugby series. With a terrific onslaught McGill piled up a score of 16 points in the first half, a lead which Varsity was not able to lessen. This was due to the excellent teamwork of the red and white's fast three quarter line which in spite of hard tackling the Varsity backs were not able probably be in shape for the Queen's Varsity game," stated Mr. Burns.

"This will be decided finally on Monday when the organizers meet again."

A sum of money, not exceeding $35.00 was voted to cover the expenses of cleaning and pressing the band uniforms providing the band is organized.

As a result of correspondence asking that a radio be installed in Hart House for the reception of the election returns, Mr. Burns said he had visited the Wentworth Radio Co. This firm will loan and install a radio for our use on the evening of the election provided we pay only the cartage charges. Mr. Burns told the Council. The S.A.C. accepted the offer.

On receiving correspondence asking if students could vote in the Ontario election as members of the university, Mr. Burns wrote to the Attorney-General. Students will have to go home if they wish to vote in the coming election. Mr. Burns was told by the Attorney-General over the phone.

"It is a peculiar thing," remarked Mr. Ferry, "but one can never get a written reply to any question sent to the government."

Although the meeting was advertised as an open meeting, only two non-members were present. Shortly after the meeting began these two admirers of student government slipped unnoticed from the hall. Later, when questioned by "The Varsity," Mr. Ferry said, "It is not finally decided whether the S.A.C. meetings will remain open or not."

SUBSIDIZING ABSENT

sibility of professionalism existing or creeping into the amateur sports of this university. "I do not see how it can grow," he said, "and as far as the University of Toronto is concerned at present, I know nothing about it—and I am in a position to know if anyone is."

"The trend on the other side is even against it," he added, and produced an editorial clipped from the New York Times of Sept. 29th, discussing a statement of President Angell of Yale, who says, "There is a wide and well grounded sentiment that the control of our games should be put back more fully into the hands of the players."

President Angell is depreciating the present ownership of the games by the professional coaches.

Regarding alleged activities of alumni organizations in college sports, Secretary Reed stated: "I know of no case in the University of Toronto where the Alumni have ever taken any part in, or had any influence on our athletic policies. I hope that we can continue in the future to stick to the high standards of amateur sport for which Canadian athletics have been noted."

Mr. Reed mentioned that the representative of the Carnegie Foundation who visited here about two years ago was very much impressed with our system of interfaculty athletic competition and the manner in which it brought great numbers into active participation in sport.

Prof. M. A. MacKenzie, president of the Athletic Association, was as emphatic in his denial of the least evidence of professionalism in university of Toronto athletics as was Secretary Reed. "There is not so far as I know, anyone in this university taking part in sports who is being subsidized—and I think I know. In respect to alumni activities there is absolutely nothing. Danger?—Yes, there is always danger, but we do our best to stop it."

Regarding the first year rule used in some American universities to insure bona fide academic intentions on the part of the player, Prof. MacKenzie said: "In the United States they have been forced to adopt it, but as yet we have not."

Jack Sinelair, starring backfield man of the Varsity intercollegiate rugby team, was the only player with whom "The Varsity" was able to get into communication regarding the question. He evinced no experience with the activities of professional athlete recruiters and stated that he had never had any opportunity of accepting favors for his services from sources connected with this university or any other. "Everything is above board as far as I know."

Non-Resident Students at Victoria Object to Lack of Accommodation

Mass Meeting to be Held Tomorrow to Obtain Greater Co-Operation

POLICY OF V.C.S.P. OPPOSED

Wish is Expressed That Matter May be Entirely Adjusted by Christmas

A concerted move on the part of city residents attending Victoria College to share to a greater extent in the activities of the local students' parliament, is seen by observers in the action of certain undergraduate officials.

"The Varsity", on one of its daily beats, hunting for news about the campus, came upon a notice in the "Milk Pool" of Victoria College, which gave evidence of momentous and interesting import. The notice, calling for a mass meeting of non-resident men of the college on Wednesday, bears the signatures of J. W. Binning, B. Alan, R. Dignan, and Arthur G. Reynolds.

"The Varsity" decided to interview these men in order to get all particulars. Mr. Binning, in reply to the question: "What is the meaning of this notice?", said: "To be brief, it simply means that the out-of-residence men are anxious to get a more united spirit in Victoria College, and that in order to do so, they find it necessary to oppose the policy of the government of the Victoria College Students' Parliament. The non-resident men, therefore, are going to have a mass meeting at 1.15 to-morrow to discuss plans for concerted action, so that the matter may be definitely cleared up by Christmas."

Mr. Dignan emphasized the fact that the mass meeting is intended merely to get co-operation. "We cannot do this thing single-handed. We must get the non-resident, and resident men as well, working unitedly in the interests of the whole student body."

"Mr. Reynolds, are you in favour of this united move to get a common room for the college?" asked "The Varsity". "Yes, very much so. Not only is the room a disgrace to the college, but the spirit between resident and non-resident men is highly detrimental. A respectable common room, where all may meet and chat together, is the only solution to the difficulty, and the least that could be done by the Parliament to provide the non-resident students with a meeting place. But since the policy of the Government does not allow for this respectability, the only thing to do is to give whole-hearted support to the Opposition."

Mr. Little, Accountant of Victoria College, had already expressed his entire approval of the project, as also had Dr. F. L. Barber, Chairman of the Property Committee of the College. Dr. Barber, when interviewed by a special delegation from the non-resident men, had intimated that the college would do a great deal toward fitting up the common room, on the conditions suggested and to be introduced into the Parliament by the Opposition party.

Professor C. B. Sissons, secretary of the Victoria College Council, when interviewed, stated that there was great need for more united action among the resident and non-resident men, and that the whole of the staff and executive would enthusiastically support any proposal which would further such interests.

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM OF CANADA APPROVED

Students and Staff Favour One Severe Examination to Many Tests

SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY

Condemning the educational system, which fosters weekly examinations in studies, and makes for a simple closing examination at the end of the term, the theories of a professor in an American college have aroused considerable controversy both in the United States and Canada.

Whether the system of easy term exams every week or that of one stiff final exam at the conclusion of the school year is the better course, was the question a "Varsity" reporter sought to prove yesterday in a series of interviews with professors and students alike.

The opinion of a greater number of students seemed to be for the Canadian system of education, in which the stiff final examination is on the bill of fare. However, some, with the twinkling eyes of those who know how to dodge work, heartily backed the American system of more and better examinations, with a let up at the conclusion of the year.

The Rev. Edmund J. McCorkell, president of St. Michael's College, when approached on the subject, brought an interesting fact to light.

"Considering the exam question," he said, "it strikes me that the sudden transition for freshmen from high school methods to those of a large university, is rather difficult on the new students. Particularly, the exam system is apt to catch them unawares."

"However, I rather approve of the final exams at the term's end in preference to those spread throughout the year, for the reason that they fix a sense of responsibility on the shoulders of the student, convincing him that he is determining his own fate."

Correspondingly, Prof. J. D. Robbins of Victoria College, was also

CHARGE OF TRESPASS HAS BEEN PREFERRED AGAINST R. KNOWLES

President of University States That He is Powerless to Interfere

FORMER S.P.S. STUDENT

Mr. Knowles Jr. States Emphatically That He is Not a Communist

To a heterogeneous group, composed mostly of "Comrades", students, children and reporters, R. E. Knowles, Jr., former undergraduate of the University of Toronto, expressed yesterday at a corner meeting, his great indignation and regret that his former "Alma Mater" was having him prosecuted for trespassing on its grounds. Mr. Knowles interviewed Sir Robert Falconer, who stated that he had no power to interfere.

Mr. Knowles, who is the Free Speech candidate in St. Patrick's riding, in the present provincial campaign, told "The Varsity" that he was not a communist. He took to task those local newspapers which had termed him as such. The former "School Man" was quite emphatic in his denunciation of "the exploitation of the working class by the capitalistic bosses."

Mr. Knowles described quite vividly the manner in which he was thrust through gates at the East entrance of the campus by the university police, guarding the sanctuary of the Park. The bandstand looked with disfavour on the arrival of this "parlor Bolshevik" and pushed him back into the university grounds. Taking advantage of the melee which ensued owing to the lack of neutral territory, Mr. Knowles attempted to speak. However, he was immediately arrested for trespassing on university grounds.

Mr. Knowles stood out in contrast to the other speakers. He defended the platform of the "Second Internationale" as opposed to the Communist doctrine of violent revolution. Mr. Knowles pointed out that if the police continue to muzzle reform agitators such a violent revolution was, however, inevitable. The speaker described conditions of free speech in England and advocated the erection of what might be called "a glorified soap-box", like Marble Arch in England.

Mr. Knowles is a graduate of Oxford University, having attended U. of T. for four years. He speaks with great vigour and enthusiasm, but does not sacrifice his steady flow of choice English in his excitement.

DO YOU READ THE EDITORIALS?

Do the undergraduates read the editorial of "The Varsity"? The general opinion is that they do, especially when there is something of outstanding interest in it.

"When I have read all the news I turn to the editorial," said one U.C. student, and this seemed to be the attitude of not a few.

Questioned as to whether they ever found their opinions influenced by it, undergraduates from several colleges stated emphatically that they did not. Others, however, were not so sure. Some frankly admitted that in their opinion the editorial did the thinking for most of its readers on current questions.

Men's Sport Staff

There will be a meeting of the men's sport staff in the "Varsity" office, Wednesday, Oct. 30, at 8 p.m. Everybody must be on hand.

PROFESSOR DELURY REPORTS GREAT PROGRESS

Investigation of Student Self Government is Now Well Under Way

"All I can say is that we have made considerable progress," said Dean De Lury last night to "The Varsity" regarding the finding of the committee investigating student self government in the university.

"We have got the investigation pretty well under way," he continued. "We are meeting next Monday and hope to have it completed in one or two weeks' time. Of course we are a committee of the Caput, reporting to it, and cannot issue a statement of our findings till our report is read and confirmed by the Caput. Then a statement will be given to the Secretary of the S. A.C., and to 'The Varsity'."

CHRISTABEL PANKHURST TO ADDRESS T.I.C.C.U.

Local Organization Obtains World Renowned Suffragist for Next Meeting

Miss Christabel Pankhurst, famous for her work in the women's suffrage movement in England, has consented to be the speaker for the regular weekly meeting of the T.I.C.C.U. this evening at five o'clock in Wymilwood.

Miss Pankhurst is a speaker who always brings her audience fresh food for thought and new angles of vision; and as a writer she has to her credit two such notable books as "The World Unrest: Visions of the Dawn", and "Seeing the Future". What is the explanation of the restlessness everywhere apparent to-day? Are the signs of upheaval in the social, political, economic and religious worlds merely a phase in an evolutionary process or is a more significant answer necessary, is a question concerning all thinking people to-day.

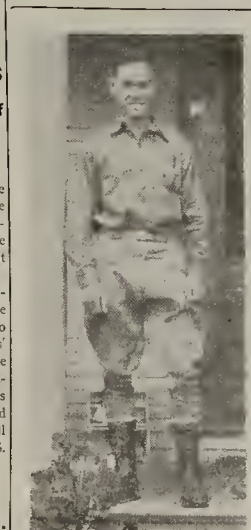

Miss Pankhurst's answer is one that will challenge the attention of many, both inside the church and out. She gives a thoughtful and comprehensive analysis of world conditions and shows how these conditions have been foretold in prophecy concerning the second coming of Christ.

VARIETY OF OPINION EXPRESSED ON RUGBY

Subject of Rule Revision is a Live One at Present Amongst Rugby Fans

AVOID AMERICAN RULES

Down at the School, that holed of rugby players and Mulock Cup winners there is considerable difference of opinion as to the necessity of revising the present Canadian football rules. The forward pass, interference, and the Americanization of the game all come under the microscope. While differing on various points all those interviewed agreed that the Americanization of the game was to be avoided and that beyond the adoption of a few of the outstanding ideas of the U.S. code the Canadian game should preserve its individuality.

Jerry Wood, well-known rugby mentor at the School, was strongly in favour of the forward pass as it is being tried out this year in certain sections of Canadian rugby. He stated that the play merely added another threat to the game and would give it added interest and pep. He was, however, against the introduction of the American forward pass and further Americanization of our game. In regard to interference, Mr. Wood thought that, with due caution, the range might be extended from three to five yards. Universal interference, he declared, would be detrimental to the game in that it would keep it closed up and lessen the broken-field running which gives the game much of its colour.

J. R. White, another School rugby man, did not see the need for revising (Continued on page 3)

EARLY RETURN EXPECTED

Was to Have Resumed Study on Monday but as Yet Not Arrived

George Howard Robinson, a second year student at Victoria, who disappeared from his residence in Knox College, October 12, spent the week-end in Rochester, N.Y. according to information given "The Varsity" by Detective Black of the city police force. "According to information received by us," said Mr. Black, "Robinson's attention was called to the fact that he was being searched for by a girl friend, at the home of whose parents he was visiting in Rochester. He then wired his parents in New Liskeard (that was Wednesday last) that he was well and would return to school Monday—that is to say, yesterday. Beyond these facts and the fact that he has not yet returned to his studies I have no further information to give you."

The Toronto police are satisfied that Robinson left school for reasons best known to himself and are satisfied that he will return home when he makes up his own mind.

Jack Robinson, brother of Howard, when interviewed by "The Varsity", could add no further details. "All that I can tell you is that Howard is OK, and was to have been back yesterday. The fact that he is alive scuttles all the theories of foul play and relieves us of a great strain. I feel sure that he will be back in a day or so."

Up until press time last night Howard Robinson had not put in his appearance at Knox College. It is thought that he might have returned to his home in New Liskeard before coming to resume his studies at Victoria.

GIRLS WOULD NOT FAVOR BEARD GROWING CONTEST

Women are Inclined to Think That Beards Are Not Even Manly

Although most people are under the impression that the type of manly beauty sponsored by the Smith Brothers is definitely passe, it seems that the men of this university are planning a beard growing contest.

The women are inclined to treat the idea as ridiculous—and none of the ones approached thought a beard even manly.

"Beards are fine for professors, but undergraduates will never know how to take care of them," said one young lady.

"Every old reprobate in the Ward will take them for kindred spirits," said another. "However, they probably think if they flunk, that they will be eligible for the House of David."

A third co-ed was a little more lenient. "If wish them more luck with their beards than the majority have with their moustaches."

"I only hope," declared another, that they will go into seclusion until the first greasome stages are over."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT AGAIN

On Friday, at the meeting of the Men Students' Administrative Council, Mr. A. H. Ferry, the newly elected president, made a speech in which optimistic references were made concerning the coming season in student government. But of the speech one sentence rang out, smote alike both ear and mind, seemed, in one short text, to sum up the whole matter and to cast a gloom on the brightest future: "We shall not hold meetings more often than is absolutely necessary." Volumes could say less. Meetings there have been in past years when it was necessary to wait half an hour for the quorum of twelve out of thirty-five; open meetings when the only spectator was the weary, omnipresent press, and meetings when the Council had been in committee of the whole for so long that everyone had forgotten about it. But now, in this futile Parliament, whose gallies hold only ghosts; the bulk of whose members are found neither in house nor lobby; whose mace is indeed a bauble; the very Prime Minister, a man who has thought deeply and striven hard in the cause of student government, in a speech devoted to the happiest prospects of its future, faced the necessity of having to announce the shortest possible sessions. An unhappy Parliament, which bores even its own elected representatives!

To draw this picture is not original. It has been the custom for many years back to speak in these terms, then to shake the head wisely and to bemoan the utter lack of interest of the body politic of the university. But this latter we will not do. We face the other way. We maintain that the said body politic is interested in anything really interesting. The sorry state of the Council is not the fault of any lack of interest, but of its own constitution. It has failed to sell itself. We further maintain, with all due respect to those people who have worked sincerely in its cause, that the meetings as at present constituted, save for the necessary quorum to pass business, are not worth the time of any intelligent man. Furthermore, certain colleges are at present right in feeling that the position of "S.A.C. Rep." is the least of year executive positions, proper for the also-rans and stumbling ponies of college politics. Who among you, for example, genuinely and sincerely gives a hoot about the forms of crests and blazers? Again we bow to Mr. Ferry and his sincere associates, but again we declare that this Democracy of Elected Representatives, this Constitution which descended ready-made from Solon, is a shabby thing. Every important issue is left to the non-responsible joint executive. This solemn Council which may set its sail and say "Thus spake the undergraduates of the University of Toronto", has not an agenda one tenth as interesting or, really, as important as a single Hart House Committee. Its greatest move is to change by one dollar the combined university fees—the price of four packages of cigarettes!

We are by no means presumptuous enough to make suggestions to that vast collective mind, which, since April, has been rousing itself to ponder student government. We do not end with an impassioned eulogy on the virtues of executive responsibility and the Parliamentary system, in which, by the way, we believe. We have not even said, nor do we say, anything original. We merely wish to drive forcibly home this point, that the evident lack of interest in the Students' Administrative Council is by no means all to be laid on undergraduate lethargy. When a government cannot command the interest of the governed, it is the government and its constitution that is on trial, not the governed and, if a government be so lacking in topics to decide that it can only draw its own quorum with pain, then conceivably it is no government at all, but a select debating club.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

It is indeed regrettable that, in a community so politically minded as this, fifteen hundred people should be denied provincial votes simply because the statute governing voters away from home ridings was apparently drawn up without a thought for them. We hear a lot about our generation not paying enough respect to that of its fathers; behold now the fathers, who care so little for us that they do not bother to grant us the franchise.

The Mostellaria

A wily slave, a roguish money-lender, and an intemperate son form the elements of an entertaining plot in Plautus "Mostellaria". In the absence of Theopropides, an Athenian merchant, Philolaches, his son, instigated by the subtle slave, Tranio, falls in love with a slave girl, Philematium, and to free her borrows one hundred pounds from a grasping money-lender, Misargyrides.

The action revolves about the endeavours of Tranio to cover up their "goings-on", when Theopropides unexpectedly returns. He is first disarmed by a cock-and-bull story to the effect that his house is haunted, and has been deserted for seven months, and then persuaded to believe that his son has purchased the adjacent dwelling, owned by Simo, which boasts the longest colonnade on the street.

The necessary boisterous atmosphere was created last night in the performance staged by the U.C. Classical Association at the Women's Union. F. W. Burton ably depicted the credulous Theopropides, and B. R. English diverted the audience as the scheming Tranio. Mention should also be made of the acting of Lou Golden as Simo, owner of the adjacent house, and George Brooks as the money-lender, Dorothea Greening and Bernita Miller gave satisfactory performances in the feminine roles. The play was directed by Professor E. A. Dale and the sets done by Raymond Card.

The cast was as follows:

Theopropides ..... F. W. Burton
Simo ..... Lou Golden
Misargyrides ..... G. G. Brooks
Philolaches ..... C. Delafeld
Calidamates ..... Louis MacKay
Tranio ..... B. R. English
Philematium ..... Dorothea Greening
Scapha ..... Bernita Miller

CHAMPUS CAT

ALL RIOT ON PESTERN FRONT

I am lying on my face in the mud. I dig my fingers into it and bury my nose into its sticky mass, thankful for its poor protection from the enemy shells that shriek over head through the night. A shell has blown off my pants: I am cold.

Suddenly I smell meat and I remember that I have not eaten for three days. It is not good meat that I smell. No. It is bad meat. But guided by my nose my emaciated, claw-like fingers grope into the blackness before me. I grasp the precious morsel and bite greedily into it. I have not noticed what it is. Now I know it is a dead corpse rat. A few months ago it would have made me say "Ugh!" I take another bite.

A rat! It eats whatever it can find in the trenches and no man's land. Perhaps it has been gnawing the whiskers of some Scotchman. Perhaps it has been nibbling Corporal Ginstel's toe. I spit it out, and fling it far from me into the blackness. The blast of a shell blows it to pieces and fragments come flying back into my opened mouth. It is fate. I can do naught but accept it. I munch it thoughtfully.

This morning we were relieved and now we are sitting sunning ourselves on a pile of broken bottles near the dressing station, where we watch the wounded come in, one by one, to get patched up. One poor fellow staggers in with his tonsils in his hand. Another has gone mad and imagines that he is an alligator, and goes creeping around on his stomach trying to bite people. He has already bitten an orderly on the puttees. The orderly has told him that alligators are harmless. He weeps and calls for his grandmother.

We sit and smoke and try not to think. We are content for the moment. Soon we will receive a ration of spinach from the cook house. It is rotten but it has a good grade of sand in it. That is better than mud.

Gaspard McGuffey.

With the Theatres

SHEA'S

The current seven days sees a budget of vaudeville at Shea's without a lemon in the lot. You'll probably like all five acts, but the two spontaneous coloured boys who head the bill will probably please you most. They seem to be "there" with almost everything. Burns and Allen comprise a likeable comedy team, and the Lee Twins are not only a personable pair but know how to dance. The film, "Glad Rag Doll", is one of the worst you will ever see anywhere. Dolores Costello may be good in the role of Mrs. John Barrymore, but anyone seeing her in this attempt will conclude either that she is frightfully miscast or that she ought to learn how to act.

LOEW'S

There's a film at Loew's this week for the benefit of those who like to say that, cinematographically speaking, no good thing can come out of the British Isles. "Piccadilly" has good acting, direction, editing, and really excellent photography. Frank melodrama, it is—thank God!—silent, except for a prologue, and moves along at a fast pace. Gilda Grey and Anna May Wong are American importations, but James Thomas takes the honours in spite of them. There are some fine small character bits of the sort that—depending as they do on (Continued on page 4)

One of the most unusual honors ever accorded a dance group in this country was bestowed upon the Isadora Duncan Dancers during their tour last season. For the first time in its history, the renowned Boston Symphony Orchestra engaged dancers as soloists, selecting the Isadora Duncan Dancers to open the famous "Pop" season for a full week's engagement from May 6th to 11th.

The success scored by these young and beautiful Russian dancers in Boston was so instantaneous and marked that the management immediately sought them for a second week's engagement in June. Owing to previous European bookings for the same date, the offer had to be declined.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers return this season after a brilliant summer abroad where they repeated their success won in this country.

They will appear at two performances on Saturday afternoon and evening, Nov. 2nd. Seats are now on sale at the Massey Hall box office.

BLUE JUNIORS MEET TRICOLOUR HERE TO-MORROW IN PLAY-OFFS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity juniors, winners of the Western Intercollegiate football group, are pitted against Queen's for the junior title. They are scheduled to meet here at the Stadium to-morrow, and the Tricolour will entertain on Saturday in Kingston. Coach Lou Carroll has a bunch of freshmen that take the game seriously and there has been little let-up in the past couple of weeks' work. They won the group in impressive style, piling up high scores against the Aggies. The forward pass has been used with success, and the game to-morrow will give the rooters a chance to see how it is worked. Queen's won the title last year, but the honours should come home to roost at Varsity.

That Western encounter upset a lot of dope. The scoreboard at the Stadium has made plenty of mistakes this year, and the London score was thought by the rooters to be just another. Joe Breen has Mustangs that are determined to take a fall out of the older teams and they almost did the trick on Saturday. The dopsters have it that McGill should be the victims, but let's wait and see what happens this Saturday p.m. in London.

The Red and White have fallen into hard luck this year. Their injuries have almost wrecked the team. Now Kritzwiser is laid up with leg trouble. The cellar position in the Union should have two occupants this year.

The rooters' section in the Stadium went wild during the Orphan-Cub game. While it is encouraging to have the students behind the team (thanks to the season tickets) they "out-collected dear old Calford" itself. Some of the stuff pulled off was ungentlemanly to say the least; the wisecrackers hid from the co-eds in the mob and thought they got away like Don Trent, or is it Eddie Benson? The worst feature was the silly faculty of yelling during the game, detracting the interest of all as much as possible from the game itself. If anything it was a decided insult to a fighting team by irresponsible show-offs.

Junior Rugby Games

The first game of the Junior Rugby semi-finals between Queen's and Varsity will be played at Varsity Stadium on Wednesday at 2 o'clock and the return game at Kingston on Saturday. For the game to-morrow admission will be charged, but students holding Student Season Ticket Books will be admitted on presenting coupon number 7.

S.P.S. ROWING TEAM WINS INTERFACULTY CUP

Trinity Surprises All by Overcoming Meds., to be in Turn Defeated

The first School of Practical Science rowing team won the interfaculty trophy on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the S.P.S. second team by a big margin. The meet was a close one, with the best weather conditions prevailing for the past three years. The course which was off the University of Toronto Club Boathouse, was of one half-mile length extending from the Western Gap to the clubhouse. There was a big crowd out for interfaculty rowing that provided a good deal of "atmosphere". The final race was the easiest race of the lot with the events between School firsts and University College being a particularly close one.

Another feature of the day was the Trinity unexpected victory over the Medicals. School firsts then defeated Trinity by a good margin. The U.C. team was about the equal of the School first crew with the others in varying order behind them.

U. OF T. RIFLE ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MATCH

School Retains Interfaculty Trophy by Beating Dents by Narrow Margin

The prayers of the members of the U. of T. Rifle Association were answered on Friday when the rain held off for the firing of the annual intercollegiate rifle match. A strong wind blowing in gusts from the northwest, and alternating high and low lights made conditions difficult enough, but in spite of this some fine scores were turned in. Casey of S.P.S. pulled off some masterly shooting to lead the team for the third successive year, while Leggett, of Denis, finished a close second, only two points behind. The team average was 91.5.

School upheld its position as interfaculty team champions by retaining the DeLury Shield. The best five men were, Cooley, 99, Jacobi, 90, Smith 85, Reid 82, and Macnab 78, turned in an aggregate of 434, and each will receive a bronze medal. Dents, with a total of 443, and Trinity with 416, fought hard for second place. Dents finally emerged with a two-point lead.

BASKETBALL PLAYERS VICTORIA IS BEATEN BID FAIR FOR TITLE AFTER BIG STRUGGLE

University of Toronto Seniors Are Being Licked Into Fine Shape

MANY NEW MEN

The University of Toronto senior intercollegiate basketball champions, will again be strong contenders for the title. Although it is too early to state the exact personnel of the team, there is plenty of outstanding material with which to build up a championship aggregation. Six of last year's squad will likely sign up with the Blue and White. Don Wood, Earl Davey and George O'Leary, set-shot artist, all playing senior rugby, have signified their intention to turn out for Varsity. Roy Currie, stalwart defenceman, is back taking post graduate work. His long experience in intercollegiate basketball is expected to count for much. Sakler and Hurwitz, who have done relief work for Varsity teams for the past two years will again be associated with the squad. Two spectacular members of last year's champion intermediate intercollegiate, namely, Riggs and Brady, will likely move up to senior ranks.

The freshman year again yields its stars. Collins, a flashy performer for the St. Kitt's intermediates, appears to be a real find. But "Buff" Horton, who starred with the Riverdale Grads looks to be the best prospect of the season and is sure to make a big place for himself. Then there is a young giant who hails from U.T.S., Douglas by name, who is six foot seven inches in his stocking feet. This is the lad whom West End 'Y' used when they engaged a New York quintette which carried a centre man of similar stature. Douglas needs experience, but in time should develop into a real star. For is a freshman from London who is showing up well in practices and much is expected from him.

The basketballers are in their second week of practice and already fifteen have been dropped. There has been a turnout of 79 but Coach McCutcheon purposes reducing this large number considerably within the next week or two.

JUNIOR RUGBY TEAM PLAY QUEEN'S TO-MORROW

Juniors Win Their Group and Now Come Against Queen's in Semi-Final

At two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, October 30th, the Varsity juniors rugby team will meet Queen's in Toronto. The juniors have won their group and are now in the semi-final. Everything looks rosy for another victory. There is every reason for confidence in the Toronto boys. The team is in excellent condition and is ready for anything. Only one member is out, namely, Hendry, with water on the knee. Probably the junior's greatest asset is their strong line, coupled with outstanding outside. Litowitz, the flying wing, is one of the best and Chutler, halfback, is also to be reckoned with. Queen's will undoubtedly provide strong opposition, but the margin seems to be on Varsity's side.

On Saturday, Nov. 2nd, the juniors meet the Queen's machine on its home ground. If they emerge victors the final will be played the following week with McGill.

Basketball Manager

Applications for position of manager of the junior basketball team are now being taken at the Athletic Office. Anyone wishing to apply should do so in writing and leave it at the Athletic Office before Wednesday at noon.

Interfaculty Water Polo Series Provides Both Thrills and Surprises

THREE GAMES PLAYED

In the biggest upset of the interfaculty water polo series Victoria defeated Jr. School last night 3-2. The Schoolmen scored twice in the first two minutes of the game, but Vic fought back hard to tally twice and then score the winning goal in the last two minutes.

Junior School—Powell, Fisher, Towers, Hayhoe, Bryce, Withrow, Sutton, Craig, Adair.

Victoria—McLean, Gould, Cowle, Edmonson, Perkin, Barret, Glass, Smith, O'Neill.

In the second game Junior U. C. and Jr. Meds. played a 1-1 tie. The teams were very evenly matched. U.C. had a goal disallowed, referee Grant reversing his decision after becoming assured by members of both teams that the entire ball had not passed between the posts. If this game affects the final standing it will be replayed at the end of the schedule.

Jr. U.C.—Wilson, Smith, Learie, Parker, Clute, Beatty, Ross, Chisholm, Cowan.

Jr. Meds.—Benmet, Allen, Culiner, Rogers, Sutherland, Limbert, Davis, Williams.

In the third game Sr. Meds. defeated Sr. U.C. 6-1. The medical men had a good edge in the play.

Sr. Meds.—Dyble, Shortt, Jackson, Breunen, Blackwell, Peacock, Irving. Sr. U.C.—Ayers, Richmond, Dennis, Davies, Brown, Gibson, Cook, Beauregard, Brebner.

ST. MIKE'S EASILY WINS RUGBY AGAINST KNOX

Despite Hard Fighting Knox Gives Way to St. Mike's in Mulock Cup Game

In a well played Mulock Cup rugby fixture, yesterday afternoon, St. Mike's decisively defeated Knox College, 12-0. Two touchdowns, a rouge, and a kick to the deadline, constituted St. Mike's score.

The verdict was never in doubt, St. Mike's showing their superiority early in the first quarter with a touchdown, the result of a nice end run.

The first half score was 6-0, St. Mike's in the lead. In the second half although Knox battled fiercely, they were again forced to surrender six points. The game ended 12-0.

The end runs of St. Mike's featured the game.

The play of Knox was featured in the work of Davidson and Hinds. Klemeski and Byrnes were outstanding for the St. Michael's aggregation.

St. Mike's—Duggan, Pope, Grant, Klemeski, Pyrcane, Regan, Terant, Shook, McCoy, Byrnes, Serrey, Ryan, Macy, McAlpine, White.

Knox—Anderson, Dewar, Jack, Dermott, Davidson, Wismer, Roe, Ritchie, I. Davidson, Hinds, Bartley, Stewart, Glenn, Bush, and Lowery.

SENIOR MEDS. OVERCOME U.C. IN WATER POLO

In an interfaculty water polo match in the Hart House pool last night, Sr. Meds. emerged the victors over Sr. U.C. by the score of 6-1. Shortt for Meds. starred by procuring six goals, while Peacock was a steady influence on defence. Line-up:

U.C.—Ayers, Gibson, Dennis, Davies, Richmond, Cook, Beauregard; sub, Brebner.

Meds.—Irving, Peacock, Breunen, Shortt, Blackwell, Jackson, Dyble.

the present rules. He declined to pass comment on the forward pass, but advised football followers to watch the high school and junior teams who were trying it out, and to draw their own conclusions. While admitting certain good points in the American game, Mr. White stated that he was quite satisfied that the Canadian game was the equal of any.

When asked his opinion, Melbourne (Red) Elson, of intercollegiate fame, thought the forward pass might open up the game a little. He emphasized, however, that kicking and broken-field running were the high-lights of the game and should be kept to the fore. Like the others Mr. Elson was against the Americanization of the game.

Karl Mueller, of the "Orions" did not think the present code could be greatly improved on. Asked if he considered it necessary to speed up the Canadian game by the introduction of the forward pass, Mueller declared the game to contain plenty of interest without further meddling.

CANADA'S EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM UPHELD

averse to frequent term examinations. "Instructors must be considered in the question," was his contribution to the problem, "and it is very difficult for professors to continually prepare weekly exams for classes, particularly large groups."

"The fear arises," he added, "that the continual term exams may in time prove to be a farce and lose their effectiveness in the long run. The final stiff exams are a much more reliable method."

The controversy, rising from the expression of the American professor's theories was given new impetus by the statement that American students were leaning somewhat to Canadian methods of education.

In fact, the general belief of students in the University of Toronto is towards the opinion that the system of weekly exams as followed in the States, is rather detrimental and essentially wrong and many advocate the abolition of the system.

There can be no question of the demoralizing effect of the weekly exam method. The student, going at a rapid pace in the field of study prior to each examination, succeeds in cramming into his brain only sufficient facts essential to passing the test at hand, only to have them slip his memory as quickly as they are learned.

UTAH FROSH TRIM SOPHS

Special to "The Varsity"

Salt Lake City, Utah.—A flag rush without a flag featured the annual soph-frosh contest at the University of Utah recently. Seizing the coveted green rag, the sophomores passed it to their fastest sprinter, who immediately beat a hasty retreat, bearing with him the emblem of victory. The freshmen retaliated by subduing the remaining sophomores, and in short order had them all hog-tied and helpless on the ground. A luckless student who was seen with his shirt-tail out, was believed to be hiding the flag, and suffered the grievous loss of said shirt.

Melancholy and Morose Mood Leads Lonely Lad To Lovely Library

By R. M. Laplante

Of all the heroes who have stalked across this back page, Art is the most noticeably uncrowned. He is from the island of L'il Theeayer (south of the Equator this side of Mandalay; population 200; mayor-Gobblinup Jr.) where his father is a missionary. His importance is obvious but unappreciated.

"Rotten world," he summed it up gloomily, last Wednesday. Here he was—out of everything. He wasn't athletic, he couldn't sing, they didn't want him in a frat. Lectures weren't bad, but he couldn't stand the draughts and the pristine gleam of the desks had been so hacked and marred that there wasn't room for him to scratch his name with the scarf-pin that Aunt Nellie gave him. "Rotten world!"

He hung it all, he'd go to the Library and find the home-island on the map. "L'il Theeayer . . ." he was murmuring brokenly, over the familiar latitude and longitude, when the vicious scratching of a Parker made him dry his tears hastily. He turned to see who might be the manipulator. Was it—no, it couldn't be—yes, it was Bernard Baw himself, his hunting cap pulled low over his eyes, writing a play.

"Want to buy the manuscript?" asked Baw, deftly dotting the i's of the second scene.

"No," gulped our hero, "but I can act—I'm Art of L'il Theeayer and . . ." Bernard rose and opened his arms.

"Lad, I know your father. He is the original of Admiral Turnover in my latest play, 'The Eppletart'. You can act, you say? Laddy, I'll write you a part!"

Art put an ink-blot on the pink circle that was L'il Theeayer on the map, shook off his melancholia and hastened to fill the great man's pen.

He had found himself! He'd appear at Hart House—he'd—he'd—As a final noble gesture he put a dime in the ink-collection-box!

S.A.C. UPHELD AS A VALUED INSTITUTION FOR THE UNIVERSITY

Secretary-Treasurer Avers That Waning Interest is Students' Fault

COUNCIL CLEAR OF BLAME

Advisory Board Head Describes Council as Essential to Students

That the Students' Administrative Council is not only a worthwhile but a necessary institution in the university was the unanimous opinion of all those who were approached by "The Varsity" in regard to the subject. Mr. Gordon Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the S.A.C. thought that the lack of general student interest in the business of the Council, was not due to any fault in that organization.

"The Varsity" asked Mr. Burns if he did not think that all important business of the Council was left to the Joint Student Executive. "The joint executive," explained Mr. Burns, "deals with only those problems which are of direct interest to the entire student body. Things like 'The Varsity' and rosters sections at games, which concern all students, are looked after by the joint executive."

T. V. Kennedy, Chairman of the Advisory Board of Students' Publications was quite emphatic when he told "The Varsity" that "the type of person elected by the students to represent them on the Students' Administrative Council was the reason for the lack of interest on the part of both the students and the representatives in the meetings of the Council." He thought that the council has dealt in the past with important matters and was essential to the management of student business. He pointed to the admittance of Pharmacy to the Council and the lowering of dues one dollar, as examples of this.

D. Buchanan, fourth year Modern History, Victoria, pointed out to "The Varsity" that neither the S.A.C. nor the general student body was at fault because of the light attendance at the S.A.C. meeting.

"The university is too large for local interests," stated Mr. Buchanan. "The business of the council is purely routine work." However if a question concerning the whole university should arise he thought that the interest of the entire student body would be evinced.

Household hint says table scraps can be converted into many things. "Including divorcees," says the Arkansas Gazette.

Antics Afield

The following news item appeared in a recent issue of a Toronto downtown daily: In an endeavour to defeat Dr. G. H. Campbell, Conservative candidate in Dufferin County, the W.C. T.U. of that town staged a meeting in the Opera House, Orangeville, and imported a boy orator by the name of Fred Holson from Toronto. In his remarks the youth is reported to have said:

"Conservative members in Toronto on the night of the last election were smoking, drinking, gambling and jeering at the women of Ontario, on whom they had pulled one over."

After the meeting the boy spent a bad half-hour trying to explain his startling statement to a group of Conservatives, who denounced upon whose authority he made it.

SENATE OF UNIVERSITY ANNOUNCES FELLOWSHIP

William E. Wilder Fellowship Is Gift of J. H. Gundy For Longer Study

The Senate of the university announces the establishment of the William E. Wilder Fellowship, the gift of J. H. Gundy, Esq., of the annual value of fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500), to enable men graduates of the University of Toronto to continue their studies in Great Britain.

The Fellowship, which will be ordinarily tenable for one year, may for special reasons be renewed for a second year, and the Committee of Award will select the candidate who is, in their opinion, most likely on his return to make some contribution of value to the national life of Canada; a speaking knowledge of French and experience in Public Speaking shall be deemed desirable to the candidate.

Each candidate must be a male undergraduate enrolled in the final year of his course in the University of Toronto, and on or before November 1st of his final year he must submit to the Registrar of the university an application according to a printed form to be obtained from the Registrar.

'BE A LADY' ADVISES WASHINGTON Y.W.C.A.

Commandments of Popularity Stressed in Hints to Women

STUDENTS SCORN THEORY

"Always be a lady," stated the "Ten Commandments of Popularity," compiled by the Y.W.C.A. of the University of Washington daily. "Dress in taste, and then don't let your actions spoil the effect. Be a sport always, without yielding your ideals. Keep up on current events. Light chatter is sometimes unwanted. There is always a time for serious topics. Do not 'neck' or kiss promiscuously. A girl whose personality is attractive enough can get by without it. Above all other things—be feminine!"

University students when interviewed on the subject, expressed different views. "One must have one's moments, but they shouldn't be prolonged unduly," stated one co-ed when questioned on the subject of the "Ten Commandments of Popularity." "Theoretically it's all right, but practically I think it's all wet, it sounds just like some Y.W.C.A. affair," said a popular young man, referring to the ninth clause—"do not neck or kiss promiscuously." ### SOCIALIST BELGIUM MR. E. KNOWLES DENIES IS BUSINESS-LIKE IN COMMUNIST VIEWS IN ITS LABOR ACTIONS KNOX COLLEGE TALK

Professor Ernest Mahaim In Talk to U.C. Women Describes Position

CITES LABOR MEET FACTS

Responds to Questions On The Political Situation In Homeland

"The Socialists in Belgium are business-like and practical. We have no more communism," declared Professor Ernest Mahaim, of Liege University, former minister of labour and reconstruction in the Belgian government, yesterday afternoon in speaking to the women of U.C. at the Women's Union. "Our workmen's party is strong and well supported by the workmen."

He dealt, for a few minutes, with the history of the International Labour Conference, which now assembles annually in Geneva. "It consists of delegates not only of the government but representing the employers and the employees of each of the fifty countries now represented." An interesting description of the first International Labour Conference which met in Washington amid the stormy surroundings of strikes and political strain in October 1919 followed, and then the meeting was thrown open to questions.

"How did Belgium solve the problem of reparations?" "By making the state responsible for all reparations. We are very proud that we have achieved material reconstruction. Ypres is rebuilt except for the town hall."

"What is Belgium's attitude towards disarmament?" "Before the war many statesmen thought that we were protected by treaty and needed no army. Belgium's bitterness towards Germany was caused by 'the scrap of paper.' Now more men are disposed to say—'We shall disarm when others have disarmed.'" "What is Belgium's foreign policy?" "Balance. She is the conciliator between other powers. It is not international law, it is politics."

"Will Europe withstand American financial control?" "I cannot say. America has more money than Europe. That was London's monopoly before the war. I don't think it is a menace. The great thing is not money, but work."

Every woman on the "Varsity staff including sports writers, is requested to be present at a meeting in Room 3, U.C. on Thursday at 4 p.m.

Special to "The Varsity" Four college freshmen are in the Marietta, Ga., jail charged with arson, after they burned the dormitory of their college "just for fun." ### T.I.C.C.U. HEARS NEW SUFFRAGETTE LEADER

Miss Christabel Pankhurst Describes Work She Has Undertaken

RELIGION'S POWER TOLD

"If we are not a fallen we are at least a falling race," said Miss Christabel Pankhurst at the T.I.C.C.U. meeting held at Wymilwood yesterday afternoon.

Miss Pankhurst, who has become famous for her work in the women's suffrage movement in England, went on to tell the group of her convictions and of the work she is trying to accomplish.

"We are called upon to preserve our civilization from decline and death. New results proceed only after the introduction of new factors. After the war, we women were in the majority. This means more votes and consequently more power. Can we better conditions in our time?"

What is needed to set the world right is the power of religion. To-day people are trying to link science and religion together. It is absolutely impossible to make science the testing stone of our faith. We should rather review Christianity in the light of history. We should read and study prophecy and we will find that the anticipation of trouble has been realized. We must fight to overcome this trouble before we can hope for the second coming of Christ."

YOUNG ENGLISH POET OBJECT OF CRITICISM BEFORE U.C. WOMEN

Miss Eleanor Fearnman Gives Opinion of Humbert's Poetic Works

HUMBERT LIKENED TO POPE

Interesting Discussion After Address of Odd Critical Statements

The genuine lyrical quality is the redeeming characteristic of Humbert Wolfe's poetry," declared Miss Eleanor Fearnman at the U.C. Women's Literary Society last night.

"Humbert Wolfe," she continued, "is a popular and promising young English poet of the present day." Miss Fearnman claimed that he was not and never would be a great poet, because his works seem to embody the faults of great poets, but few of their virtues; for example his poetry contains a great deal of poor rhyme, which is occasionally found in William Blake, and again is extremely reminiscent of Pope."

"He follows too consciously his ideas of poetry," said Miss Fearnman, "which are that poetry is sound, an exquisitely baffling image and the overtaking of time by beauty." She found his characters unconvincing; his work gave the impression of being artificial. However, he has a magnificent variety, writing poetry, lyrical, satirical and imaginative, the best of which is "The Return of the Fairy", in which he seems to have forgotten to be conscious of himself.

A very animated discussion followed the address.

HALLOWE'EN PRANKS TO TEST STUDES' INGENUITY

Fear of Weird Tricks Comes As Feast Date Approaches And All Make Ready

Rumour has it that Hallowe'en pranks at the U. of T. this year may exceed our wildest expectations. History reveals stories of midnight raids when butchers suspected medical students for the gory array of headless bodies and bodiless heads found hanging on their meat hooks in the morning.

Certain architects annually wonder if this year will find a grinning pumpkin face tete-a-tete with the lonely tower surmounting U.C. Some consider Queen's Park an excellent burying ground for men alive, especially when draped in white surplices. No Sampson has as yet attempted to tear down the buxom pillars of Convocation Hall, nor as yet have certain editorial suggestions been executed thereupon.

There are always the sheep who emulate "When I was a boy," but it may be true that University of Toronto students have decided for once at least to be unique. If the plan concocted is carried out to the letter; if every one of the 5,000 students fits in with the scheme, not a drop of midnight oil will be burned; not a fastidious toe will be tripped; not an ash can in the district will be even dusted. "Alas," the citizens will cry, "Where, O Where, are our school children gone?" And in the early morning when rows of shining faces (polished with ten hours sleep), appear before them, then and then only may mystified professors translate the tale. O Rumour—if thou speakest true.

Hart House Members Amazed By Invasion Of Sanctum Yesterday By Curious Co-eds

By F. J. M.

Yesterday afternoon about 3.30 p.m. the loiterers inside the main door of Hart House were surprised to see two pretty co-eds enter confidently and turn to the left down the stairs as if they were going to the squash courts. Anxious heads peered around the corner and sighs of relief were heard when the girls turned again to the left. "They must be going to the sketch room," they said. "The Varsity" rushed after them, however, and discovered them in altercation with Mr. Wilson of the barber shop. On his way the reporter had seen a scantily clad man hastily disappearing around a corner. "We want a shoe-shine," said one of the girls. "But you can't stay in here," said Mr. Wilson, "the locker-rooms and showers are too adjacent." "They shouldn't be there then," said the spokeswoman, and settling herself on the elevated seat she declared she wouldn't leave without a shoe-shine, so she got one. "We were just desperate for a shoe-shine," they told "The Varsity", "there is no place around the university where we could get one."

They left triumphantly, herded out by a moustached attendant who warned them not to come again. "They must have been freshettes or were doing an initiation stunt," said Mr. Wilson. Downright rudeness would have been necessary to get rid of them so I let one have her shoe-shine so they go."

THEDA ISABEL WINTER, SORORITY LEADER, DEAD

Funeral Services Conducted at Eaton Memorial Church

The untimely death on Saturday night of Theda Isabel Winter, familiarly known to her friends as "Ted", leaves a gap in the ranks of outstanding university students.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert N. Winter, 39 Chaplain Crescent. She was in the fourth year of her course at University College, and a prominent member of Alpha Phi Sorority. She was president of the class graduating from Moulton College in 1923, and last year was president of third year women.

Dr. Trevor Davies conducted the funeral service from Eaton Memorial Church on Monday.

SUGGESTION

The subject of initiation has been renewed again, by the action which has been taken by the Women Students' Administrative Council in its meeting yesterday afternoon. The motion was recorded that the Secretary of the Council send a communication to each of the Women's Undergraduate Societies suggesting that if their faculty intended to adopt some form of freshman insignia, that it be a standardized one, applying to all faculties.

This suggestion has been instigated by the idiotic garb which some of the freshettes appeared in this fall.

The adornment ranged all the way from the entire lack of it, to the conspicuous obtrusion of an unsightly red and white stocking that was both undignified and ugly. Trinity's regulations prohibit any display whatever of primitive adornment. The Victoria women dangled coy little glass animals from green ribbons attached to their wrists, which they were warned not to dangle before any plenipotentiary's nose. The Household Science faculty dressed all their first year, in hats which they well knew would be too small for the first year heads. Public Health freshettes appeared in sunflowers so huge that they would give even the most anaemic a bad dose of sunburn. St. Joseph's College carried a heterogeneous collection of parasols, umbrella sunshades and what not. University College alone of the more radical, adopted a fairly sensible badge—the red and white berets were not particularly obnoxious to the aesthetically inclined nor were they reminiscent of a gay gambol in a second rate fairy story book.

The plan suggested by the Council is that any faculty or college wishing to impose some insignia upon the members of its first year, should adopt the uniform beret as such, with the ensemble of head-gear completed by a color combination in the faculty colors, and that no other form of apparel or adornment be used to proclaim to the gullible public the traditional freshness of the freshettes.

We heartily commend this action of the Women's Administrative Council, and we look forward to a day when the fruit of our University tree will have its beginning in berets.

THE SPIRIT OF SPORTS

(From the Montreal Gazette)

There can be no doubt of the steady growth of interest in sport throughout the country. It has, in a large sense, come to be one of the phenomena of our time, and it may easily have an important effect, for good or ill, on the social structure as a whole. The outstanding factor in the situation is the part which public playgrounds are taking in the matter and the physical and moral results which may develop in the lives of boys and girls. The emphasis might, at the moment, be placed on the girls; but a broader survey scarcely justifies the drawing of the sex line. The element of novelty which arises immediately in the facts as to girls and young women is, in the final reckoning, submerged in the significance of the movement in all its bearings and implications. Primarily, wholesome and well-ordered athletics in the open air, or even indoors under proper conditions, give the promise of sound and vigorous bodies; and that is something well worth aiming at as a goal. But the moral effect, and all that it connotes, quite obviously rises above the physical; and in that connection some recent observations by the New York Times are perhaps fairly indicative of what is happening across the line in this very matter of the underlying spirit of sport, and on which the ultimate outcome will assuredly turn.

The text of what the Times has to say is the recent effort of President Angell, of Yale, to eliminate the despotism of the professional coach from football and to give the players themselves freedom of judgment in the strategies of the game. "There is," he says, "a wide and well-grounded sentiment that the control of our games should be put back more fully into the hands of the players. There is no practical difficulty, nothing but prejudice and habit, to prevent a change in the established procedure." In a spirit of critical hostility to this suggestion the Times points out that the undergraduate body and the alumni in this country want the game played to win more than played for the game's sake. As for the coaches, it quotes from a representative of that vocation as follows: "Who gets the more credit and salary, Packy Jones, who turns out winners, or John Brown, who turns out gentlemen who lose or win gracefully and teach their players to make their own decisions?" And then the Times goes on to say: "The answer is plain. So long as it is plain, President Angell will not make himself heard above the cheering in the bowl." But who, looking ahead to the larger and immensely more vital outcome, would dare say that President Angell ought not to be heard? Canadian colleges, Canadian athletic organizations of all types and Canadian playgrounds in particular, must be on their guard against the commercial spirit in sports if they are to serve the spiritual as well as the physical interests of youth. We had better have ladies and gentlemen emerge from our playgrounds, with a fine sense of decency, than mere winners.

against the Queen's and Western teams.

If space was so very valuable that day perhaps it might have been listed in the "Coming Events".

I am, sir,

Yours sincerely,

E. M. C.

DISAGREES

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,

Regarding the account of the Hart House Sunday evening concert, which appeared in "The Varsity" on Monday, I should like to make one or two observations. The reviewer considered that the programme contained too many "popular" numbers such as Anitra's Dance, by Greig, and the Henry VIII dances by Edward German. Surely, he says, a Hart House audience is capable of appreciating higher things than these.

THE RHYME OF THE MORNING DEW

Instalment III

Arise, arise, I conjure thee,
O Whoozits, muse of History,
And sing in numbers sweet and loud
How Glengarry "Foghorn" McLeod
Turned north the prow, with Jamie Snar,

From Sturgeon, on the C.P.R.,
Into the vast and trackless wild
Silent as five a.m. at Childs.
How can I tell how, day by day
Paddles like steamboat-beams did sway,

How, when McLeod was feeling sour,
The bus did fifteen miles an hour.
And of the wondrous food they ate
How shall my feeble tongue relate!
But you must see, aside from guff,
This baby "Foghorn" sure was tough,
When first they landed for a meal
A large muskrat was heard to squeal.
There was no time to aim a gun,
The little beast was on the run,
But "Fog" grabbed a slungulion pot,
Aimed with an eye (this lad was hot),
Put the rat inside, nailed him fast!—
Boiled neat in water—a repast.

While as for bass, a paddle tip
Swung with a wristy backhand flip,
Would fetch the brutes behind the ears
And "Foghorn's" beard, uncombed in years,
When thoughtfully and well explored,
Produced a never-failing horde.
Ah but, alas, this is enough
Of day-by-day and travel stuff.
But one scene I cannot forget:
Each evening, when the sun was set,
And stars glowed in the velvet sky
The boys got out their case of rye.
No sip was drunk, no bottle opened
Here was a treasure, so they hoped

With the Theatres

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

One feels as one reads Bernard Shaw's comedy, "The Philanderers", that it ought to be relegated to the limbo of those plays ground out when the entire population of London felt it could write a better Wilde play than Oscar himself, and half the population tried. The genius of the Shaw who did "St. Joan" is still slightly tinted with mauve in this piece. But if you go to Maurice Colbourne's production expecting it to ereak, you will soon forget it and settle down to as enjoyable an evening in the theatre as you have spent in a long while. The work of the entire company is excellent, but the performance of Mr. Barry Jones in the title role and that of Miss Margaret Rawlings as the emotional Julie Craven, are as thoroughly splendid examples of modern light comedy as we have seen during the past brace of seasons. The comedy sense of these two people is all the more marked because of their utterly different vehicles of expressing it in this offering. Mr. Colbourne himself does a nice piece of work as the anaemic medico on whom the Shavian wit sharpens itself to no small advantage.

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,

It used to be customary—still is, in some parts, to endeavour to prove to the unbelieving by public debate that man is descended from the animals. For the future, such procedure is unnecessary, merely let the fundamentalists see the behavior in the bleachers of the University of Toronto during a football game. Further argument would be unnecessary.

Is there any reasonable explanation why the Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament was not mentioned in Monday's "Varsity"? Many tennis enthusiasts were keenly disappointed that they heard no word of it until it was all over. It scarcely seemed fair—not to mention polite—to ignore so completely Varsity's four best co-eds in the tennis world for victory on which they battled for victory

ITALIAN CLUB HOLDS ITS BIRTHDAY PARTY

The "Trattallanza", the university organization for students of Italian descent celebrated its third year of existence by an enthusiastic and colorful birthday convale followed by the election of officers for the coming year:

President—M. Cosentino, Dentist.
 Vice-Pres.—N. Scandiffo, B.A., Osgoode Hall.
 Sec.—Treas.—M. Scandiffo, Meds.
 Advisory Board—Dr. A. Vince, M. A. Sansone.
 The retiring officer: Dr. F. Massiello F. Cosentino and Dr. A. Gardi, received the thanks and good wishes of all the "fratelles".

A compact, and fine program, both social and literary, was drawn up to be climaxed with the annual dinner at Hart House in January.

This unique club welcomes all students of Italian origin. The above-mentioned officers will be pleased to introduce members of their respective faculties, including P. Lococo, and R. Foldo, St. Michael's College.

"Bosh! you're only young once, so why bother about theories like that: only theories after all," replied another co-ed and one third year man stated that "personality is all that a girl needs, but there are lots of girls who seem to think that it's the only way to get by and I've never known a girl of that type to be unpopular." "Of course, no girl wants to be known as a promiscuous necker," answered an attractive girl, "and naturally everyone believes that it isn't necessary to popularity."

"How I hate determinedly clever women at a party," said another man in connection with the clause, "keep up on current events; light chatter is sometimes unwanted", and another co-ed supported his statement with: "It's all right to bring on the heavy intellect when talking to professors and such, but what terrible technique to burst into a dissertation on European politics when a baby-stare and "Oh, how wonderful you are I mean you really are" is required".

Letter Writing in Free Verse

By W. F. Payton

My dear Bennie
 I am going to write to you
 In free Verse today because
 That is a very popular thing
 Around the university just now.
 Indeed magazines are devoting whole Pages to it and so it must be quite
 The berries. I used to think that One had to be very clever and had
 To have lots of brains to be
 A poet but I am quite surprised
 To find it is so easy. Things
 Are much the same with me just now
 I am not doing any work. I Went to the rugby game on Sat-
 Urdy and saw a lot of men chase
 Each other around a field. It was Just great you would have enjoyed
 It. How is Bennie I hope you
 Don't get married until I get back
 As you know what a bear I am
 At weddings. There is a nice tea
 Room here. It is considered
 Quite Bohemian to go there and play
 Cards. There are some awfully
 Nice people there who are authors
 Who spend a lot of their time
 Talking over the great problems of Life. As a matter of fact there is One author there who writes
 Free verse and I got my idea from Him. He always appeared so dumb

To me that when I found
 He wrote it I said to myself,
 "Jerry, you poor prune, you Can write free verse if he can."
 His name is Richard Steele I
 Was told and he goes around with A fellow called Addison. His Girl friend is nice she has promised to go to the masquerade
 With me if her friend doesn't get a Ticket. My course is awfully inter-Esting this year I am learning all
 About curves from a nice profes-Sor who is Irish and has a bald
 Head. I do hope that I get some Money from home soon as the Girls here drag it from you
 Very easily. I took somebody else's Girl out the other night and
 He found out and threatened to SAGARATIZE me next time I
 Do it. I don't know what it means
 But it must be terrible
 Don't you think? Well I have Exhausted all my ink now so I Cannot write any more. I shall Have to wait to fill my pen until
 The Library opens in the morn-Ing as it is too late to go now.
 Write and tell me if you don't Think I am awfully sophisti-Cated now. More anon, Jerry.

But the musical classics were well represented by the Bach Organ Prelude and Fugue, and the splendid Beethoven—Saint-Saens Variations. Surely, Mr. Editor, the critic would not suggest a whole programme composed of such numbers? I fear that even a Hart House audience would lose interest before the recital was over. This audience did indeed appreciate and enjoy the classic numbers, but the rest of the programme, notably the Staccato Etude by Rubinstein, and even the lighter and more familiar pieces, was delightful. In my opinion the artists are to be congratulated on their selection of such well-balanced numbers.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,
 Sincerely yours,
 Angus M. Ross.

Vic. Parliamentarians Defeat
Want of Confidence Motion

COMMON ROOM MOOTED

Solace of Tobacco Necessary

of "The Varsity"

Despite the hurling of a chair by the Leader of the Opposition and eruptions of unparliamentary objections from all sides of the House, which were only quelled by repeated demands for order, the greatest and most hectic sitting of Victoria College Student Parliament held in the last five years terminated last night in the defeat of a motion of want of confidence in the Government.

The meeting opened with the vice-president in the chair in the absence of the president, and the Minister of Debates the only Cabinet Minister present. The minutes were not read.

A Government motion to institute a Royal Commission to investigate the constitutions and relations to the Parliament of various undergraduate organizations was passed after spirited discussion. A Bill was brought in by the Opposition to abolish a Vic slate at future Hart House elections, and after keen argument was passed by a large majority.

Other matters of business were also discussed. At one point the Speaker made a particularly atrocious pun, which moved the Leader of the Opposition to hurl a chair at him. It missed its mark.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Howe Martyn, the Premier, entered. The Premier, in a masterful speech, introduced a Government Bill authorizing the spending of fifty dollars for decorating the common room in the basement to serve as a comfortable college common room, and especially to accommodate out-of-residence students. At present the room is poorly furnished and used as a lunch-room. He claimed that Dr. Barber, Bursar of Victoria College, had told him that there was a possibility that a sumptuous common room would be provided in a new building in two or three years, in which case only temporary measures would be advisable at present. Mentioning the fact that students would be asked not to smoke when they dropped

Crashing of Hart House Hold of Offenders

BARBER SHOCKED

"Sure thing! There have to be pioneers in everything—even in feminine occupation of Hart House!" was the comment of one bright co-ed, regarding her daring sisters who crashed their way into that male stronghold yesterday.

"Well, I wouldn't have done it," said another girl, "but I do admire their pluck. The women certainly need a club like Hart House." "Wouldn't the Tuck Shop be a blessing!" breathed a third. "Why there's nothing to eat between her and Yonge Street, except a trayful of chocolate bars at the Union." "They (the men) use the Union when they want to, and call it co-education, but when we want to use Hart House—oh my!"

When "The Varsity" approached Mr. Wilson, the barber in question, he said he was still speechless with surprise, disgust, and indignation—but then women always has been a puzzle to the other sex.

ALUMNI GET JOBS FOR STUDENT WORKERS

Chautauqua Uses Women But Men Tutor and Drive
Automobiles

During the past summer the University of Toronto Alumni Association has referred 912 men students to various employers throughout the Province and City. 113 were referred for part time work.

It was more difficult to secure position for women owing to smaller range of work. However, 148 were referred for work during the summer and 136 for part time work.

Many of the women were engaged by the Canadian Chautauqua Association, a branch of the original Chautauqua movement which originated in New York State. When the summer work was finished several of the women retained permanent positions with the society.

Many requests were made by former employers for girls to act as governesses. Others were engaged by summer hotels and in clerical work. Besides these, several, who understood shorthand and typing, were engaged in business offices.

The choice of the positions for men seemed to be that of chauffeur, but the majority of the students took positions canvassing and selling. During

POST-WAR MOVEMENTS

"The politics of Belgium are composed of three strong factions," said Prof. Ernest Mahaim in an address before the Foreign Affairs Club yesterday afternoon. "Included are the powerful Catholic party, the Socialists or Labour party and the Liberals. The distinction between the Flemish or non-Catholics and the leading party is the fact that the Flemish regard their religion so much in the light of a nationalistic issue that they would be willing to split the country into two divisions. In fact, German influence, attempting to foster this movement, founded a Flemish University in Belgium. This school, however," added the Professor, "attracted a maximum attendance of only 17 students, mostly paid."

The Belgian professor spoke on the general and particular situations which have arisen in that country since the war. Unemployment, he stated, is at present practically unknown there, 22,000 people being engaged in the industry of diamond cutting alone, mostly in the district of Antwerp. Old age pensions, which have been established there for some time. There is a peculiar problem in domestic service, an example being given of a millionaire who was unable to secure a single servant. This is the result, he explained, of the higher status of importance to which the peasants were raised by the part they took in the war.

"All the terrible devastation of the German occupation," continued the professor, "has been repaired very quickly—even more rapidly than in France. The ruins of many fine buildings in Belgian cities have been reconstructed to a great extent."

CITY POLICE BUSY

Man Takes Sums of Money
But Leaves Odour
of Tobacco

Visited by an unknown thief on Tuesday evening last, residents of Wymilwood were robbed of money and valuable, the total loss estimated to be $45.

Shortly before 7 p.m. the thefts are alleged to have been committed, when all but one room were ransacked, including the Dean of Wymilwood. Small sums were taken in each case and all that was left in the way of clues was the odour of tobacco smoke pervading the atmosphere.

City detectives are investigating the case at present, but according to latest information the culprit has not been discovered. Whether the thief was male or female likewise remains a mystery.

This depredation has aroused a strong feeling amongst the women students and every effort is being made by the university officials and police authorities to bring the guilty parties to justice.

Barred From Own Country,
Russian Settles in Toronto

The Women's Union had a distinguished guest last evening in the person of Mademoiselle Yulia Biriukova, the very talented Russian portraitist.

Miss Biriukova began her studies in the Imperial Academy of Petrograd. At the beginning of the Russian revolution in 1918, she was forced to flee to the Orient. She told interesting tales of the two years she spent in Japan and China.

During the last six years she has been studying at the Royal Academy in Rome, of which she is a distinguished graduate.

Toronto is very fortunate in Mademoiselle Biriukova's coming. She has taken a studio in the building of The Group of Seven, at 25 Severn Street. She will be very pleased to receive visitors who are interested in her work.

Mr. C. F. Andrews, "The foremost friend amongst Westerners of the people of India", will speak in Convocation Hall on Sunday night at 7 o'clock on "What is Moving at the Heart of India?"

A close friend of Ghandi and Tagore, Mr. Andrews, since he went to India twenty-five years ago, has devoted his life to the service of the Indian people. He paid two visits to South Africa and one to the Fiji Islands on behalf of the Indians in those places. No man knows the Indian mind and the political and social situation in India better than he.

Mr. Andrews spent last summer in British Guiana with Sir Gordon Guggisberg.

A sweeping victory for the Conservative Party and a substantial increase in Mr. Ferguson's majority in the House was the net result of yesterday's balloting in the Ontario Provincial election.

At 3.30 this morning "The Varsity" ascertained the standing to be as follows:

Conservatives	89
Liberals	11
Progressives	4
Ind. Conservatives	2
Lib. Progressives	1
U.F.O.	1

Doubtful	3

Both the Premier and the Leader of the Opposition enjoyed comfortable leads in their own ridings.

The result of the four-cornered race in St. Patrick's Riding revealed:

Currie (Ind. Cons.)	856
Knowles (Soc.)	128

SLIGHT INTEREST SHOWN IN ELECTION RETURNS

Special Hart House Radio
Gets Little Response
From Men

Although Hart House was supplied with a radio for the benefit of those students who wished to listen in to the election results, very few took advantage of the opportunity. Very little enthusiasm was shown and the few that were there, eight to be exact, were for the most part asleep. This lack of interest may be shown by the fact that the chess room was full and the library was not lacking any readers, while others enjoyed a quiet chat in the common room. The radio reception was good and in no way to blame. Results came in clearly.

Sinclair's Daughter Departs

ONE VOTES TWICE

"I am leaving at midnight on Tuesday after the class party to drive home to vote," replied Miss Minerva Sinclair, secretary of the third year executive of University College, and daughter of W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., when asked by "The Varsity" if she intended to use her franchise. Several other cases were heard of where co-eds were travelling from fifty to two hundred miles to vote in their home towns, Ingersoll, Peterboro, and Oshawa being among the towns named.

"I was frightfully sorry I didn't get my name in," remarked one young lady just come of age, "I'd love to have used my first vote for this Labor fellow, R. E. Knowles. I went down to the meeting on a street-corner the other day and stood in the mud to hear him. The speakers were on soap-boxes, so they were alright."

One enthusiastic co-ed voted twice. "The Varsity" learned. After voting here she drove home, and finding her name on the voters' list there, voted again, in blissful ignorance of the fact that she was committing any criminal offence. Another woman student was so interested that she not only voted, but acted as a deputy returning officer from seven o'clock in the morning until ten at night.

All students are cordially invited. The meeting is under the auspices of the Student Christian Association.

FOR 'A' THAT

The Chairman of the Board of Governors of this University of Toronto spoke several days ago from a political platform as a private citizen expressing views on a vital moral issue. To this procedure "The Varsity" naturally cannot take exception.

Yet, had a professor in this same university ventured to speak from a political platform as a private citizen expressing views opposite to those which seem to prevail generally, we suspect that the effect would have been explosive, and that it would have been hinted that the professor's place was behind the desk. Similar cases have been too recent to be forgotten.

PRESSURE AND THE PRESS

Night before last a skilful robbery was executed in Wynmildwood, and, steps were forthwith taken to see that the undergraduate newspaper published no details. And, naturally, the representatives of this paper who were present were in no position to disregard the request for suppression.

The city police were called upon to find the culprit in the case, and, of course, news of the sneaky at once reached a downtown paper through the regular police beat channels. The staff of that paper, none of whom, happily, live in girls' residences, had little to fear in the publication of details. They published with gusto.

The mental processes of those who held back the story from the undergraduate paper are, to the observer, devious and obscure, and it is surely impossible to discern what end they expected to achieve.

Yet the net results are plain. On one hand, one hundred thousand strangers, critical and perhaps unfriendly, were told the whole story, while, on the other, six thousand friends, sympathetic and allied, were all but denied. These friends in the university, to be sure, were done a discourtesy, but a graver one was done the undergraduate paper, in that it was refused what must inevitably have leaked out in the course of events and what actually did so with great speed.

And it is difficult to see what was to be gained by suppression. The theft is surely no reflection on those in charge of Wynmildwood, though one not acquainted with the facts might see this in an urgent request for silence. The wiser course is to give free and complete publicity to the truth; this will at least gain sympathy for the unfortunate, while silence, ultimately impossible, gains nothing.

AGAIN ETHICS

In the Correspondence Column we publish an earnest appeal from the President of the Third Year of University College, pointing out that several etchings of value had been removed from the Women's Union at a recent class party.

As the President points out, we all understand the spirit that prompted the removal. At first glance, this seems to be the case. And yet, do we?

Kleptomania of this sort seems to be all too generally accepted as essential to the student who would be a gay dog and a brave fellow. This does not keep the act, viewed impartially, from being just as much a theft as the Wynmildwood episode which was so carefully suppressed. If it gives satisfaction to anyone to realize that an act of dubious value has been committed, let him keep the pictures; if he wishes to erase the original mistake by a fine act, let him restore the etchings.

CRITICISM

We cannot go to the length of indicating all the deliberate misquotations and wilful substitutions in phraseology upon which L.T.C.M. has based his grossly personal attack upon the Music Editor of "The Varsity", but we must make our correspondent aware that only unbounded willingness to work and a general competency for their positions ensures the appointment of our special writers to the staff of this paper. However, the statements of the Music critic, regardless of his competency, must never be regarded by his readers as more than personal comments; the use of his column is the sole privilege of the reviewer which is not enjoyed by the correspondents who may take issue with him. If readers of "The

Sunday Evening Songster

The men of the university will hear with pleasure that the Sunday evening songsters are to be resumed this Sunday and will again be under the very capable direction of Mr. J. Campbell McInnes. The Programme for the first Songster will be as follows:

- 1.—Who would true valour see.
- 2.—Widdicombe fair.
- 3.—O No John.
- 4.—Early one Morning.
- 5.—Carry me back to Old Virginny.
- 6.—What shall we do with the Drunken Sailor?
- 7.—Flight of the Earls.

- 8.—Gently, Johnny my Jingo.
- 9.—A la Claire Fontaine.
- 10.—Lazarus.
- 11.—Down among the Dead Men.
- 12.—Golden Slumbers.

These songsters were begun some years ago and were carried on with varying degrees of success under a number of directors and at that time appeared only as a rather disorganized development of the ordinary sing-song. However, under the admirable guidance of Mr. McInnes, who is an artist of the first rank in the musical profession, the Songsters have become an integral part of the university and

VARSITY YOUNGSTERS SEEM MUCH TOO GOOD FOR TRICOLOUR LADS

WET FIELD

Second Quarter Sees Varsity
Nail Up Their Major
Score

Varsity junior football team gained a lead of eleven points on the round when they defeated Queen's 11 to 0 yesterday at the Varsity stadium in the intercollegiate play-off.

Hodgetts, Cutler and Litowitz started for the Blue and White, while Quinn and Hall turned in good efforts for the losers. Hodgetts and Quinn matched swords in a punting duel with honours going to the Toronto half. Litowitz produced the only touchdown of the game when he raced 15 yards around the Tricolour right wing for a touch, which he converted himself. Cutler ran back kicks well and Queen's tacklers found him hard to bring down. The soft, wet, field and slippery ball doubtless accounted for much of the fumbles on both sides. The play was decidedly loose at times and both teams were penalized plenty for off-sides.

The return game will be played Saturday in the Limestone City and Varsity, having secured a substantial lead, should win the round. The ultimate winners meet McGill in the junior final.

Fumbles on the part of Queen's forced them to go on the defensive. However, the Tricolour line held and Varsity failed to score. Hodgetts essayed a field goal which was blocked and Hodgetts was fortunate to recover. Quinn's long kicking pulled Queen's out of a bad hole.

Varsity commenced the second period by making some nice gains by means of end runs. Quinn took a catch on his own line and ran it back 25 yards. It was a nice effort. A long kick by Quinn took the play to mid-field. W. Byrne broke through the Blue line to block Hodgetts' kick and though Varsity retained possession, they suffered a loss of 15 yards. Quinn tried a placement kick, which fell short and a Queen's man offside touched the ball and Varsity secured it at their own 35 yard line. Queen's were off-side twice in succession which gave U. of T. a nice break. They drove the Tricolour back to their 15 yard line and then Litowitz went over for his touchdown which he converted. Score 6 to 0 for Varsity.

The third quarter began with a series of fumbles by both teams. Quinn kicked to Cutler who muffed, but managed to recover. Then Hall did likewise and Litowitz snagged onto the ball for Varsity. Hodgetts hoofed one to Hall, who was halted one yard from Queen's touch line. Quinn and Hodgetts exchanged kicks and Hall ran the latter's back 15 yards. Then Hodgetts made a sensational run of 40 yards, the longest of the game. He tried a field goal, but failed. Queen's made little headway against the Blue line and Hodgetts kicked to the dead-line for a point.

During the game Queen's effected three successful forward passes. When this new experiment in Canadian football works it is spectacular and is a good means of gaining yards. How-

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity should take this Saturday's game with McGill without any great trouble, but the Western game has taught the Blue and White that they cannot afford to take any game for granted. Coach Ronnie McPherson has been putting his team through stiff workouts all week and will send his strongest combination to Montreal to oppose the Red and White.

* * *

Jack Sinclair's return to the game makes the Blue's backfield look more like normal again. With Sinclair, Bell, Fitzpatrick, Hallam and Davey available for rearguard duty and that same solid Blue line in front of them, it is very hard to be pessimistic over the outcome of the game against the crippled Redmen.

* * *

To-day at 4 p.m. at the Stadium it is proposed to stage a game between the Varsity Intermediates and Orphans. This fixture should produce a lot of action as both teams are keen to leave no doubt as to their relative superiority.

* * *

The Blue and White junior gridders, although they have received very little attention this year, have showed themselves to be a great little team and well worthy of support. In whitewashing Queen's yesterday to the tune of 11 to 0, the Blues displayed a well-balanced, well-coached aggregation that should be hard to stop for the Junior Intercollegiate title. Hodgetts and Cutler on the Varsity backfield and Litowitz at flying wing shape up as real senior prospects. Coach Lou Carroll is to be congratulated on the success of his first coaching assignment which has resulted, despite the fact that his team have not had any stiff opposition to date to keep them in trim.

BIG BLUE PREPARE FOR WEEK'S FIXTURE

Team Will be Intact for Fight
At Molson Stadium On Saturday

JACK SINCLAIR BACK

Coach McPherson put the big blue through a snappy practice yesterday. Everyone on the squad was out, and the only injury reported was Captain George Morgan with an injured ankle the result of the Western game. However, he will be in shape for the McGill encounter.

Ronnie has not let down on his interference work coaching. Last Saturday the team forgot whatever it knew about line interference, and the work of the Mustangs in this department nearly put them in the win column. Varsity have to go some to perfect this angle of the game before the Queen's Invasion.

Jack Sinclair was out, and should turn in a good game at the Molson stadium. For the first time in a long while the backfield will not be short any men. The line is the same that has gained more yards than any other in the Union.

The Redmen are weakened this year by backfield injuries, with St. Germaine, Doherty and Kritzwiser not available for duty as yet. However, Saturday will probably see a strong Red and White football machine out to give the Blue a stubborn battle.

The Dental Hallowe'en Dance, held last night in Columbus Hall, was attended by one of the largest crowds in years.

ever, the play requires perfecting.

Varsity secured a safety touch when Hodgetts kicked the ball to Quinn who muffed it into touch and was brought down. The remaining two points also were the result of a safety touch. An inside kick by Magladerly failed, but ended in the safety touch for Varsity. Final score 11 to 0 for Toronto.

The teams:

Queen's—Whytlock, Davidson, Patterson, Quinn, Alexander, Lewis, M. Byrne, J. Byrne, Hinsberger, Goodwillie, Miller, Doty. Subs: Hall, Davidson, Starr, Symens, Lochard, Thomas, Smillie, Adams.

Varsity—King, Hodgetts, Cutler, Litowitz, Magladerly, Shipp, Patterson, Fear, Swerling, Shapiro, McGibbon, Stubbs. Subs: Rogers, Booth, Rottenberg, Brown, Ellsworth, Mudge, Harvey, Gibson.

WOODMEN SCORE WIN AS DRUGGISTS SLIP

Leslie Runs for Forty Yards to Make Game's Feature Play

SCORE 7-2

Forestry took a close game from Pharmacy yesterday, the final score being 7-2. Pharmacy held well for most of the first half while Wadland put his team in the lead by booting over for a rouge. Leslie's snappy 40 yard run which came toward the end of the 2nd quarter, put Forestry on the opposition's 10 yard line. Hodgins then went over for a touch which was converted. The second half produced two points, each team getting a dead-line. Leslie, Hodgins and Christie showed up well for the winners, while Beckett, Brown and Goldsmith were best for Pharmacy.

Forestry — Flying wing, Meyer; halves, Leslie, Hodgins, Eidt; quarter, Flatt; snap, Crealock; insides, Hunt, Boulbee; middles, Christie, Milton; outsides, Walkom, Josee; subs, Young, McGiven, Townson.

Pharmacy — Flying wing, Clegg; halves, Wadland, Beckett, Skurko; quarter, Cain; snap, Wilkison; insides, Podolosky, Keating; middles, Brown, Goldsmith; outsides, Robb, Walford; subs, Thorburn, Wolfe, Freclick, Moffatt, Webber.

FURNITURE HURLED

ped into this "ideal common room" to read "The Varsity" he said: "To read 'The Varsity' without the solace of tobacco is quite impossible."

Replying to the motion, Binning, the Leader of the Opposition, said that Dr. Barber had promised him that the room would be painted and proper lighting and window-curtains would be provided. He said also that he had learned that there was only a faint possibility of a common room in the new building, and that if one were provided any furniture bought now could be moved into it. He claimed to have been informed that another room could be used as a lunch room. The motion was put to the House and passed.

The Speaker read a letter from Professor Sissons conveying the thanks and congratulations of the Faculty to the students for the splendid Charter Day program. The latter was greeted with a concerted roar of rage, and order was again restored with difficulty. Moving a vote of want of confidence in the Government for having been responsible for such a fiasco, Mr. Binning made an impassioned speech. Replying, the Premier said: "I'm quite willing to admit that I'm not particularly clever, and I just try to wangle on as best I can." He compared himself to the lowly amoeba, which passes over obstacles instead of trying to go around them. When the question was put, the motion was defeated by a large majority.

Diligent Detectives Deduce Something Sick In Siberia

By E. R. Toll

"My dear Shotson," began the great detective one evening suddenly starting up from the table and spilling the dominoes in every direction, "how could I have forgotten?!! Quick, we can just make it."

Seizing our great-coats, we hailed a passing four-wheeler. "V.C.S.P.," shouted Worlock to the dozing cabby, "and a full half farthing if you make it before the doors close."

Then maddening speed... a dash through that noble arch "The Truth Shall Make You Free".... a downward stair flight.... and we burst into Parliament just as the Big Ben of the Hon. member from Berry struck 7.58.

The Hon. member from Dignan had the floor—but not all of it—his colleague from Reynolds had feet which covered the greater part.

"... and so I move," he was gasping, "that there be no Vic blackboard this year."

During the melee which ensued, I observed my friend Worlock Slomes take out a pocket rule and carefully measure the windows, the door, the ceiling, and the width of the Premier's forehead. "This is most important," he observed, "as the Hon. gentleman himself admits he is not very clever."

But now I observed Worlock commence biting his ears, and twitching his nails in such a manner that I knew the storm was approaching.

It came in the form of the Hon. leader of the opposition.

Seizing the floor before the Hon. member from Carson could again rise on a point of Philosophy, he proclaimed, in no uncertain terms, the rank inadequacy of a measly fifty shillings to create an Ideal Commonwealth.

And again pandemonium ensued.

It was evident, however, that milk spilled on a fine chesterfield must be irretrievably lost; that it was quite impossible to read the Undergrad. Daily without the solace of El Ropo cigars; and that chair-throwing (but not craps) was a most obvious and satisfactory form of parlour recreation.

The meeting then closed with the benediction.

"Well, Worlock," I queried when again we were alone, "what do you make of it all?"

"Simple, quite simple, my dear Shotson. 'Tis but an infinite lot of twaddle based on discrepancies in the statements of one St. Louis the Barber."

have taken a recognizably important place as representing a most valuable form of musical expression, Community Singing. In the past the Songsters have maintained an average attendance of two hundred and the number gives evidence of increasing from year to year. The programme as printed gives a fair indication of the type of music that is sung at the Songsters—the best of folk and national songs with a generous smattering of shanties and historically important popular music. Anyone who cares to sing, regardless of his talent, will find immediate pleasure in the Songster programmes and those who take a particular interest in music will find the music most interesting and the scholarly and entertaining guidance of Mr. McInnes of inestimable value.

Who ever heard of "la Campanella" being trivial—or the Edward German "Dances"—or the great "Staccato Etude" of Rubinstein, the performance of which was undoubtedly the greatest feat of the evening?

I also take exception to the "critic's" statement that the arrangement of the Bach "Prelude and Fugue" is inferior, and that the prelude is unsuited to the piano. It is very apparent that Mr. K— does not know this work quite as well as he would lead us to believe.

It is high time, Mr. Editor, that you people got wise to yourselves and gave the squirrels a treat.

We expect to find a little intelligence exhibited in critical articles in our University Daily.

An Appeal

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,

On the evening of Tuesday, the 29th, the Junior Year of University College held a class party at the Women's Union. There was a large crowd at the dance and unfortunately, several etchings disappeared from the walls of the Union. Everybody understands the spirit which prompted the removal of these pictures, and under ordinary circumstances nothing would have been said, but these etchings, which are originals are, of course, irreplaceable. They were presented to the Women's Union by a friend, and consequently, are greatly valued. Few gifts are presented twice, but the women would value a presentation by the present holders of the pictures as much as the original presentation.

Yours, etc.,
D. A. Keith.

Treat the Squirrels

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir,

It was with a great deal of resentment and not a little feeling of pity that I read your article yesterday dealing with the Hart House Musicale on Sunday evening: pity for the demented "critic" who could write such stuff, and for the paper which would publish it, and resentment at the tenor of the whole article.

I was not at all surprised to note the initials "J.J.K." at the foot of the article. Unfortunately such things have appeared before. I know "J.J.K." only by reputation, and what I have heard of him in the music room, and read of him in "The Varsity", and after two years have come to the conclusion that he is in no position to make the sweeping (often slurring) statements which come from his pen.

I am glad to note that our "critic" did pick out the high spot of the evening and give Mr. Scott Malcolm well deserved praise for his trill in la Campanella, but I do object very

Sir Joseph Flavell Gives Jocular Advice to Avoid

Members of the Board of Governors smilingly refused to be interviewed, when approached by "The Varsity" regarding yesterday's editorial which had raised the question of the university professor's right to enter the political arena in view of the part taken in the provincial election by Canon Cody, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto.

"No. There is no interview. Better see Sir Robert Falconer," said Mr.
Angus MacMurphy, with a quiet smile when shown the editorial at the five o'clock adjournment of the Assizes Court before which he had been pleading. However, on being told that Sir
Robert was out of town, Mr. Mac-Murphy relented to the extent of asking a few pointed questions. "After all, your university professor is in the same position as the school teacher? Is he not? Doesn't his salary come out of the taxes? People paying the taxes send their children to schools and they don't want politics preached to them. However, there is no need to be stirring up trouble there."

"Canon Cody is in a different position," Mr. MacMurphy continued. "He is not paid a cent from the government for his position as Chairman of the Board of Governors." The barrister then quoted the precedent of a vice-chancellor who had for many years taken part in politics. "Of course being a judge he now takes no part in

"Yes. And I understand that Oxford, also, provides speakers in elec-phy, commenting on the fact that the School of Economics at Cambridge University is closely linked with the Liberal party of Great Britain. "But things are different over there. We are not as far developed along these lines."

Sir Joseph Flavell was much amused at "The Varsity's" editorial, on which he laughingly refused to comment for publication. Sir Joseph courteously received "The Varsity" and preached a friendly homily on the great virtue of not looking for trouble take a freshie to the tea. Lists are posted in the women's cloak-room and freshies are to sign the list at once, stating whether they can or cannot come so that sophomores may ar-seniors have the privilege of taking the wives of members of the faculty.

And the all-important refreshments will be served by the executive of third year. The programme consists of a series of toasts. It will prove both short and interesting. The au-is a delightful opportunity to see those

TORONTO FOUNDED WITH FOLK TUNES

Murray Gibbon Addresses The Empire Club Luncheon
Thursday

SONGS ALSO A LULLABY

"I always think of Toronto as founded on folk-song," said Murray Gibbon, director of the various folk festivals staged by the Canadian Pacific Railway, at the luncheon of the Empire Club yesterday. The "foundation song" of Toronto, according to the speaker, was "A la claire fontaine", which was sung to the stroke of the paddle by the traders who established Fort Rouille in 1765, the site that later became the city. Folk-song, or "music of the people" was inbred in the French-Canadian: "The French mother, when she is singing her baby to sleep, sings a folk-song to that baby."

Mr. Gibbon humorously advanced the theory that Toronto, even more directly, was based on folk-music. The city, he pointed out, was dependent on Protestantism; Protestantism depended largely on communal hymn-singing; and hymns were, to a great extent, folk-songs.

The speaker also referred to the valuable contribution made to Canadian music by immigrants who imported their folk-songs. Typical songs were sung at the conclusion of the luncheon by Mary Frances James and Herbert Hewetson.

INTERESTING ADDRESS AT M. AND P. MEETING

The M. and P. Society held their second meeting in Room 43 of the Physics Building on Thursday afternoon. After refreshments served by the second year, two very interesting talks were given. The first, by Mr.
R. MacKay, told something of the method of flotation used at the mines to separate ore. He stated that this method had been propagated with no knowledge of its underlying principles and that only lately had any attempt been made to discover these. So that in this field is still a wide range for research which should interest not only the metallurgists but also the physicist.

Dr. Chant spoke most interestingly on "The Evolution of Modern Astronomy", dividing astronomy into the old, or the measurement of position of the stars, and the new, which depended on a spectroscopic analysis of the light from the stars, and from their dark bands, a determination of the chemical composition of the stars. He stated that it was thought that the apparent differences in chemical composition of the stars was due to the age of the stars, the spectrum changing as the star grew older.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speakers and the meeting adjourned.

MISSING ETCHINGS RETURNED SAFELY TO WOMEN'S UNION

Keith's Letter to "The Varsity" Credited With Success

NAMES REMAIN SECRET

Forlorn Figures Detected By
"The Varsity" Reporter
At Door

"Three etchings have been returned, of the four taken from the Women's Union on Tuesday evening," said Miss Kilpatrick, of the Women's Union to
"The Varsity" last evening.

"We feel that this is very good of those returning the pictures," continued Miss Kilpatrick, "and so we cannot give any of the details, in all fairness to everyone. The spirit of the letter written by Mr. Keith must have influenced the persons who took the etchings, and we appreciate it very much."

The etchings were taken from the walls of the Union during the Junior Introductory Dance held on Tuesday evening. In an effort to have them returned, members of the year executive asked for their return through the columns of "The Varsity."

"The Varsity" reporter, seeking for news of the lost etchings, chanced on two forlorn figures as they carried a parcel to the door of the Women's Union and handed it to the girl who answered their knock.

"We were returning the three etch-ings stolen," said one of them in answer to the reporter's question.

"A red-headed girl came to the door and I said, 'We are returning some articles we borrowed from this house on Tuesday evening.' She thanked me and we went out again."

The identity of the two gentlemen returning the pictures could not be learned, however.

PROFESSOR TOUCHED BY DEEP FEELING

Ernest Mahaim of Liege University Interviewed by
"The Varsity"

FRIEND OF LABOUR

"I was especially touched by the sympathy shown my country by Canadians," said Ernest Mahaim, Professor of International Law and Economics at Liege University, Belgium, in an interview given "The Varsity".

"I came to this continent, along with Sir Cecil Hurst, former legal adviser to the Foreign Office of Great Britain, as a delegate to the Institute of International Law, which met in New York."

The Institute is an "Academy" the members of which are elected by the various countries. I was the delegate sent by Belgium, Sir Cecil Hurst sent by Britain. The Institute was presided over by James Brown Scott, and met for 10 days. From the Institute we journeyed to New York and then to Washington, and I am now on my way to my native land, Belgium.

"Yesterday, I spoke in Hamilton to the League of Nations Society and to the Canadian Club. The feeling of sympathy Canadians feel for Belgium,
I consider very touching. Of course I met many men who during the Great War, saw Belgium first hand and understand our situation. But I must

BERETS SUITABLE FRESHETTE ATTIRE FOR ALL COLLEGES

Parasols and Berets Better Than Straw Hats and Stockings

STANDARD INSIGNIA URGED

Victoria Girls Not Satisfied With Their Badge
of Inferiority

"We feel that our freshies should show humility of mind in their attitude rather than humility in wearing apparel," stated Miss Mary Winspear of St. Hilda's College when her opinion was asked on the adoption of colored berets as the standard fresh-ette insignia.

Dorothy Bishop, 3T2, Vic., thinks that whatever is worn ought to be the same throughout the colleges. "A beret is the only article of clothing that a girl can wear in bright colors that isn't utterly ludicrous; as a matter of fact they are becoming to most girls."

"I would be quite willing to adopt the beret as a badge for the 3T4 freshies," stated Doris Pringle, Vice-President of 3T3 Vic., who will doubtless have a major part in the initiation of the incoming Thundering Herd. "I didn't care for the small straw hats or the stockings, but I liked the para-sols and berets. Although the Vic.
girls didn't want anything ridiculous,
I'm sure some of them would have liked something more noticeable than the green ribbons with small glass animals."

The U.C. freshies seemed quite content with their tams, but the Ladies of the Odd Stocking weren't quite as enthusiastic about their fate. All were of the opinion that whatever the badge, it should at least be standardized.

DEEPEST INTEREST IN WORK OF S.C.M.

Speaker Tells of Great Influence of Organization
Abroad

SMALL IN INDIA

"The Student Christian Movement is very small in India owing to the comparatively small number of Christians, but Christianity is being judged by them," Miss Gertrude Rutherford told the meeting of that association in the Women's Union last evening.

Miss Rutherford has just returned from a tour in the East where she says she received great courtesy as representing students in Canada.

"You belong to a great fellowship," she concluded, "world-wide in extent, and those in India, China and Japan are intensely interested in everything you do."

The supper party ended with a ghost story about a madman who said he was not mad and with all the lights out.

During the months of November and of February, there will be a series of addresses on Wednesdays from 1.30 to 2 o'clock at the Union, on the topics, "Citizenship" and "Internationalism". However, the first address, next Wednesday, postponed in favour of Mr. C. F. Andrews, who has been in intimate relations with the people of India. He will also speak at Annesley
Hall, this Saturday from 4-6 o'clock.

Overcoat Stolen

Another overcoat was stolen yesterday from the Physics Building. R.
M. Thomson, II U.C., left a grey overcoat on a hook in the hall of the Physics Building while attending a lecture yesterday morning, and found it missing when the lecture was over.
Cloak rooms are provided for students attending lectures, and are locked while lectures are in progress to make such thefts impossible, but these hooks are the only place convenient for men attending labs on the main floor to leave their coats and many students attending lectures use them also. They are near the door, and accessible to anyone entering the building.

GOWNS TO APPEAR AGAIN ON CAMPUS

Revival of Days When Gowns
Were Worn by All Undergraduates

GOWN WEEK STARTS MON.

Next week is Gown Week!
Away back in the good old days,
the time when gown wearing began in the University of Toronto, everybody, men and women alike, accepted it as a duty (or pleasure) as U.C. women accept the makeshift residences.
But gradually the custom diminished due to the increasing need of arts students to go all over the campus in all kinds of weather for lectures and it seems to require bolstering up by such institutions as an annual gown week which, this year, starts on Monday.

During next week it is not compulsory for students to wear gowns, but highly recommended. The wearing of a gown has its advantages and disadvantages. It dispenses with the nuisance of a hat for women, since it has always been a tradition in University College that if a woman student does not wear a gown she must wear a hat.
It saves clothes, covers a multitude of sins; provides an ever-present shoe cleaner and pen wiper; keeps out drafts; and by its introduction of uniformity into the dress of women, supplies less diversion for male students in lectures and is thus more conducive to concentration.

The custom has the approval of university authorities. Miss Kilpatrick, dean of women, was highly in favour of the wearing of gowns and of gown week, and stated that she hoped in future to establish a gown exchange where graduates who did not wish to keep their gowns could sell them at reduced prices to undergraduates. She declared also that since gowns are necessary for graduation, students might as well procure them and have the use of them up to that time.

Antics Afield

Students at the University of Washington prove by example that "necessity is the mother of invention", according to the U.W. Daily. A hopeful freshman, trying out for the track team, was told to soak his feet in a certain tub of solution, which was supposed to toughen the skin and make them immune from injury. Discovered a short time later taking a bath in the tub, the verdant one explained to an irate coach that he was "pulling a fast one" on the upper classmen in his fraternity.

"To be or not to be is no intelligent question for university students," says that bewildered fount of wisdom, the editor of the University Daily Kan-saw, "because most of them do not know what they would be, even if they were."

MYSTERY REMAINS AS TO LEAKAGE OF THEFT STORY

Miss Manning Declares That All Girls Were Forbidden to Report

TELEPHONE GIVES CLUE

Students Not Suspected In The Recent Wymilwood Robbery
Outrage

"I absolutely did not give the news of the Wymilwood robbery to any of the downtown press," said Miss L. M.
Manning, head of Victoria Women
Students' Union and a Wymilwood official. Miss Manning was interviewed by "The Varsity" last evening.

"I refused to give a statement to anyone and asked the police to be silent on the subject. I also asked the thirty girls in the house to be silent on the matter," said Miss Manning.

Asked if it were possible for thirty girls to keep such a secret, Miss Manning admitted it might be difficult.

How the information as to the thefts reached the daily press seems to have been a greater cause for concern to Miss Manning than the actual thieving itself.

"We believed it was in the best interests of this house to withhold all information," she stated.

"We have not yet discovered who gave the news to the downtown press.
It appears to have been someone in this house. We are working on the matter of a telephone call out of Wy-milwood, but the party who made it is still unknown." It was intimated that whoever gave the news would be severely dealt with if discovered.

"The Varsity" would certainly have received the news if anyone had been informed officially," said Miss Manning. "But even the city editors of the downtown papers would have withheld the news if I had asked them."

Members of the staff of "The Varsity" residing in Wymilwood were warned against publishing any details of the affair. Miss Manning also suspected, she stated, members of the staff of giving the information to

HARMONIOUS RELATIONS PREVAIL THIS YEAR

Boarders and Day Students
Agreeable, Says St. Mike's
President

"This year the relations between resident and non-resident students have been quite harmonious, although in previous years there has been some dissension," stated Mr. Vern Kennedy, president of the fourth year at St.
Michael's College. "The ill-feeling that exists at Victoria has no counterpart here and the non-resident students have expressed no dissatisfaction because resident students control most of the clubs and chief offices in the college. The reason for this is that the boarders are better organized and the laxity of day students in attending meetings."

However, the day students present at the interview did not entirely endorse this opinion, but they seemed content to let the existing conditions remain and had no thought of raising any protest against resident domination of their affairs.

The consensus of opinion at Trinity College was that no such conditions existed there as at Victoria and day students had equal opportunities with those in residence. Student opinion seems to be that this crisis in student relations concerns Victoria College alone.

THE ABUSE OF LIBERTY

It seems that the privileges of Hart House Library are still being abused in spite of the attempts to remind the student body of the evils of undue liberties. Earlier this fall the announcement was made that some sixty volumes were missing, and to bring this forcibly to the attention of the members, the library was closed for some time.

Possibly the lesson should have been more drastic.

The experience of one of the editors several evenings ago bears out this suggestion. He went to the shelves where the book he desired was supposed to be; it was not there. No one there was reading it, yet it could not be found after a search of an hour and eighteen minutes.

In the search all manner of books were found hidden away under chesterfields and chairs, undoubtedly cached for future use. "All Quiet on the Western Front", was detected behind volumes of French literature.

The next evening the book first desired was found on the shelves, but not where it rightfully belonged.

The Curator was certainly not at fault, for either the disappearance or the misplacing of this volume. A more plausible explanation is that some member took the book home and later replaced it in spite of the warning that volumes are not to be removed from the room.

It is to be hoped that a repetition of the first lesson will not be made necessary.

THE ELECTION AND THE UNIVERSITY

The Ferguson Government, as we all know, was returned to power by a majority that surprised even the most optimistic supporters of its cause. And this majority, if political experts are correct, will give the government an opportunity to carry out many projects which have been broached, but not realized, in the past.

Of these, one will doubtless affect the university. We refer to the ambition of the Minister of Education to make it possible to take the first two years of the university courses, or one year at the least, in local colleges and high schools.

And when one realizes how taxed the facilities of a university that has not been over-supplied with funds have become in caring for an enormous first year in the pass course, the value of the suggestion made by the Minister of Education becomes apparent. In fact, the university might well take the first step, and abolish the first year of the pass course itself, it is possible, almost universally, to take honour matriculation work at home, which renders first year pass unnecessary, and anyway, the number of those who enter the second year of the pass course with honour matriculation standing becomes increasingly large.

Of course, it will be difficult for school trustees and local officials to arrange for this advanced work, but the difficulties surely do not disguise the value of the step.

The election results, it may be said, have turned out well for the university, in that they have given four years of security to a leader who has already shown an active interest in educational reforms.

The Table Round

Referring to the underpayment of professors, the New Republic deprecates the contention that a higher standard of instruction will be automatically secured when salaries are raised. This argument is advanced by Messrs. Yandell Henderson and Maurice Davis in the Yale report on "Income and Living Costs of a University Faculty."

We agree with the New Republic insofar as it regards education as leading to a broader outlook than that which measures everything by pecuniary standards. The rewards of the professorial life are not all expressed in terms of money, and to elevate the financial aspect is to correspondingly degrade the status of the profession.

Sec. B.—"Sh-h-h! Nix. Somebody's comin' downstairs!"

First B.—"Shall I give dem de works?"

Sec. B.—"Naw, wait a minute." (They hide by the bannister.)

Enter the dean, clad in a rayon dressing gown.

Dean (Spying them)—"What is the meaning of this?"

First B.—"Of which?"

Dean (Wrapping her gown around herself angrily)—"Of this!"

Sec. B.—"That's up to you lady. It is informal ain't it?"

First B.—"Bad form, I'd say."

Dean—"How dare you!"

First B.—"I ain't doin' nothin'!"

Dean—"Silence, my man! Haven't I seen you before?"

First B.—"Gosh! It's Abernathy! I'm your brother Bill!"

Dean—"Why, William! What is the meaning of this?"

First B.—"Why bring that up? Ah, Abernathy, I'm broke and I ain't eaten for three weeks. Can't you give me and my buddie some grub an da bunk for the night?"

Dean—"Impossible! Don't you realize the position you are in?"

First B.—"Well, we are commercial travellers."

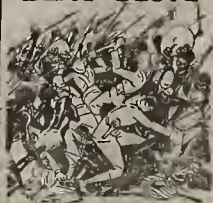

A chorus of men's voices is heard from without in a serenade. Curtain, if any.

McPHERSON'S GRIDDERS TACKLE REDS IN MONTREAL TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity need a win over McGill to-morrow in Montreal. In spite of Western's good showing last Saturday against McPherson's men the Tricolour should defeat the Londoners at Kingston. If Queen's come through the Blue have to down McGill in order to have a chance to tie Queen's. If both Varsity and Queen's lose, the locals could tie Queen's by beating them here. If Toronto win and Queen's lose, then the game here on November 9th will decide the Intercollegiate championship. If Varsity lose and Queen's win it's all over. That's the dope.

* * *

The Varsity-McGill game will mark the return of Jack Sinclair, Varsity's good kicking half. "Sinc" is sure to get in the game against McGill, but will not likely go the entire distance.

* * *

Advances from Montreal indicate that McGill will have a tough time lining up a backfield against Varsity. Although McGill are out of the running and weakened through injuries this game cannot be conceded to the Blue. The Montrealers will go down fighting and will give every ounce to chalk up a victory at Varsity's expense.

* * *

Varsity Intermediates had a gala day yesterday. Minus some of their regulars they defeated the Orphans 6-5 in a quarter hour session. Tylor's 50 yard run for a touch was the high spot of the struggle. Then after this little appetizer the Intermediates lined up against the Intercollegiate team. Before they got under way the spectators expected a repetition of "Custer's Last Stand". But Chaffe's men surprised everybody by stepping in and holding the Big Blue team to a scoreless tie in another short session. Tough on the Ints. that they lost their group as it seems that yesterday they really hit their stride.

* * *

Varsity Juniors' 11 point lead in their game with Queen's to-morrow should be enough to bring back the bacon to U. of T. Coach Lou Carroll has a smart team that should get somewhere in the Canadian play-offs.

* * *

Varsity Orphans play Windsor at the Stadium to-morrow. The game starts at 1.30 and will be followed by the Montreal-Argo game. The Orphans have as yet to break into the win column, but the Windsor game may go on the right side of the ledger.

* * *

The Yale-Dartmouth game Saturday will bring together "Albie" Booth and Al Marsters in a duel that should, in the least, be interesting. Booth, diminutive Yale half, is the latest sensation in American college football, while Marsters is an "All American", and the leading point-scorer of the season. Last week against the Army, Booth scored three touches plus converts for twenty-one Yale points. Marsters has a total of over a hundred markers to his credit.

Junior Meds Head Group By Defeating Jr. U.C. 6-1

In yesterday's Mulock Cup game Jr. Meds hold undisputed lead of their group by defeating Jr. U.C. by the tune of 6 to 1. There were some very outstanding long runs in the game. Graham of Meds made the feature run for 65 yards for a converted touch-down in the third period. Syd Freifeld and Haas of U.C., also made some spectacular runs. Murby of Meds did some very fine kicking.

Jr. U.C.—Wing, Haas; halves, Freifeld, Price, Smith; quarter, Knight; snap, Hermant; insides, Anderson, Miller; middles, Walker, Thomson; outsides, Pendrith, Walker; subs, Clark, Reid, Cross, Hogg, Cohen. Meds.—Wing, Dickson; halves, Graham, Murby, Gibb; quarter, Lackner; snap, Nicol; insides, Mathers, Eager; middles, Merritt, Vaughan; outsides, Marquis, Coleman; subs, Heller, Noble, Tait, Jackson.

BIG BLUE TEAM HAS FINAL DRILL FOR M'GILL GAME

Scrimmage With Orphans and Intermediates Proves Useful

JACK SINCLAIR BACK

Johnny Harrison Out For One Game With Injured Leg

Last night the Blue Intercollegiate team in their final workout before the McGill game. The Blue and White had a useful tackling and signal practice while the Intermediates were having a game with the Orphans. It is only fair to mention that the Intermediates pulled out a 6 to 5 win, thanks to a sensational 65 yard run by Taylor which resulted in a touch. After this tussle was concluded both Orphans and Intermediates took turns at opposing the "Big Team". Although the condition of the playing field was not conducive of the best brand of football, the Blue Seniors enjoyed a useful scrimmage and look to be in the pink of condition.

The only notable absentee from Varsity's line up was big John Harrison, who, owing to a broken blood-vessel in his leg, will not likely compete against McGill to-morrow. Charlie Ruddell will, in all likelihood, be seen in his position at flying wing. The rest of the line-up will likely be the same as has represented the Blue all season with Jack Sinclair back at his old position on the half line.

Although not definite, the Varsity line-up will probably consist of Sinclair and Bell on the rearward, Wood at quarter, Ruddell and Jim Sinclair as flying wings, Gooderham and Elson on the ends, Morgan and Little, middles, Bean and White insides, and Keith, snap. And with reserves like Hallam, Davey, Fitzpatrick, Dewar, Kelly, Galloway, Stewart et al, it would seem that only over confidence could prevent the Blue and White from downing the riddled Reds to-morrow at Montreal.

VARSITY HARRIERS BID TO RECOVER TROPHY

Stiff Competition Foreseen But Blue and White Boasts Fast Men

With a strong harrier team, University of Toronto will make a valiant bid on Saturday morning of this week at McGill to reclaim the Intercollegiate Harrier Trophy, captured from Varsity last year by R.M.C.

Stiff competition is expected, but the Varsity team is greatly strengthened by Wally Graham, Hal Williams, Howey, and the two veteran harriers, Lee and Smith.

Although Queen's participated in last year's meet, it is not announced whether it will have a team in Saturday's run. Balmner and Jacobs will likely be members of the McGill quintette.

Sr. S.P.S. Win in Water Polo

Senior S.P.S. scored the second victory for their college when they defeated Senior Dentistry 5-0 in water polo yesterday afternoon. Dents put up a good fight but were unable to hold the School forwards. Pierdon did some fine shooting for S.P.S. and was responsible for 2 goals. Alexander and Grant scored the remaining three. Final score 5-0.

S.P.S.—Alexander, Grant, Gibbs, Ward, Little, Boughton, Hicks, Pierdon.

Dents—Stewart, Merrill, Moser, Coupland, Walden, Marsh, Murphy, Adams, Mahaffy.

a good game as defence. School scored 2 goals in the first half and 3 in the last. The line-up:

School—Powell, Fisher, Towers, Hayhoe, Bryce, Withrow, Sutton, Craig and Nasmith. Trinity—Rea, Winyard, Hunt, Cuttall, Sanders, Macdonald, Mervynne, Chapple, and Lund.

VIC, AND SR, S.P.S. CLINCHED GROUPS IN MULOCK RACE

Schoolmen Meet Serious Opposition From Dents and Senior Meds

VIC HAVE IT EASY

Some Good Rugby and Much Spirit Shown in Games to Date

With the local rugby season getting down to its final stages, winners have been definitely decided in two of the Mulock Cup groups.

Sr. School, last year's cup-winners, have clinched the honours in Group 1. They had pretty strenuous opposition but managed to finish in first place with three wins and one loss. One more game remains to be played between Dents and Sr. Meds and it will decide the runner-up.

The issue is still in doubt in Group 2. Jr. Meds and Jr. School have a tie game to be replayed and the result depends on the outcome of this game. The S.P.S. team must also win from Jr. U.C. to stay in the running.

Victoria had little trouble in grabbing the laurels in Group 3. They won three straight games, although Trinity put up a stiff fight in their first meeting.

St. Michael's, Forestry and Pharmacy are all in the running in the fourth group. The Irish are in first place with four wins and one defeat and can clinch it by beating Pharmacy on Nov. 7. Pharmacy and the Foresters can force a three-cornered tie if they both win their remaining games.

As usual the teams in the Cup series have furnished some good rugby, with many hard-fought battles.

SOCCER SUPREMACY AT STAKE SATURDAY

Win or Draw Will Give Blue and White Championship Saturday

IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

A win or draw will clinch the 1929 intercollegiate soccer championship for Varsity when McGill invade Toronto for the final game of the season to-morrow morning. The Varsity lads are in tip-top shape after a strenuous week of final conditioning, and the management and team are confident of finishing the season with an unblemished record of victories.

If the Varsity boys annex the title, as they have a better than even chance of doing, they will end a string of five successive championships held by the disciples of John McGill. The Montrealers have not enjoyed so much success this year, but can send the three team group into a triple tie by capturing to-morrow's fixture. Even in that event, Varsity are sitting pretty since the championship will be awarded on the basis of total goals during the season, and Varsity need only two scores to-morrow morning. Line-up—Goal, Cox; right back, White; left back, Gregg; right half, Goldenberg; centre half, King; left half, Jackson (Capt.); outside right, Carbert; inside right, Ward; centre, Davidson; inside left, Rowland; outside right Downing; alternates, Helper and West.

International Harrier At C.N.E. Park Saturday

The International Silver Relay Race will be held on Sat. Nov. 2, at C.N.E. Park at 2 p.m.

This is a 30 mile event, the team of ten men covering 3 miles each, and is contested by Monarchs and Hamilton Olympics among other clubs.

The U. of T. Harrier Club's team, selected on the Brotherton Cup showing, will consist of Moore, Merritt, Crashaw, Walsh, Hayward, Bradley, Craig, McKeercher, Blewitt and Seaborn, manager.

Shall I Wear Pyjamas?

An unheard-of idea a few years ago and yet by no means unusual today when the most modern of pyjamas are designed for wearing at bridge, at tea, for all the comfortable leisure hours at home. College girls revel in them. They're so much in the picture of modern youth.

The Negligee Shop features a showing of gorgeous lounge suits and pyjamas, in silks and satins, in velvets and prints.

Waiting 'Round in Barber Shop Wondering on Sundry Topics

By A. E. F. Allan

THINGS TO DO WHILE WAITING FOR A HAIRCUT AT HART HOUSE BARBER SHOP . . . .

Sit down. Wonder if each of those six people is waiting for a haircut, too. Why didn't they wait till tomorrow? Do you think that guy there needs a haircut? He's almost bald. Who does he think he is, anyway, Bernarr McFadden? Heh! heh! that's not bad. Remember that and pull it sometime. Perhaps he's waiting for a shave. Do you need a shave? When did you shave last? Do you suppose a barber can spot people who shave themselves? Do they resent it? What would happen if the barber lost his temper while the razor was poised above your jugular vein? Why don't you grow a beard? Remember the time you tried to cultivate a moustache? What are you blushing about? . . . . Isn't that Joe Whosis getting a shoe-shine? Doesn't he look like a dam' fool sitting up on that throne with that idiotic stare of his? Don't you think you ought to have a shine? You're not going anywhere to-night. What are you stalling for? There's Joe coming down. 'Lo Joe, ol' man! howzay boy? Now, go on up yourself and have a shine. You look as if you'd walked through a pasture. Did you ever walked through a pasture? How many pastures have you walked through? . . . . Look at Joe. He isn't tipping that boy. Cheap skate! Well, it's against the rules, anyway, isn't it? Is that why Joe isn't doing it? Aw! cut it out! who do you think you are? . . . . Well, are you going to have a shine yourself? What's the matter, have you just got enough for a haircut? Well, why don't you admit it? . . . . Suppose the price of haircut has gone up since last time? What's the matter with you? What are you sweating for? . . . . Haven't you got a piece of gum on the bottom of your shoe? Scrape it. Isn't that a piece of gum stuck out there on the floor? Reach out and feel it. Now have you got a piece of gum on the bottom of your shoe? . . . . Pick up that copy of "The Varsity". Who gets out that rag, anyway? Pretty lousy! Well, could you do any better yourself? What do you know about getting out a paper? Quit crabbing! Who's the half-wit who writes this sappy stuff about Omar? Why doesn't he write something somebody can understand? How do you know somebody can't understand it? Perhaps it's subtle humour. Don't show your ignorance. . . . What'nell's this? A couple skirts? Wadda ya suppose they're doing down here? Suppose some guy should run out of the locker room in all his masculine splendour? How many times have you run out of the locker room in all your masculine splendour? What are you blushing for this time? Do you suppose that blonde broad would blush if a guy should run out of the locker room? How would you be able to tell if she did blush? See her give that barber a dirty look! He told her to get outta here. Did you ever see such a dirty look? Do you know anyone with a dirtier look? Name ten people you know with dirtier looks . . . . Look at her sit down. Why do women always cross their legs? Do you think she has a nice leg? . . . . Read "The Varsity"! . . . . Why doesn't she pull her skirt down? Do women let their skirts slip up like that on purpose? Do you ever watch women demurely pulling their skirts down on the street car? Did you ever see one of the same women during the summer in a one piece bathing suit? Is she trying to hide anything now? . . . . What's that? . . . . NEXT!

Here and There

History was made in Canada when Chief Bimbatow Wahwash-kache (Running Deer), of the Ojibways, met and greeted in all friendliness Chief Ocanamonto (Deer) of the Iroquois, at Caughnawaga Indian Reserve, near Montreal, recently. There is no record of these tribes ever having met before in Canadian history. The Ojibway Chief is better known as Paul Cameron, head Indian guide for the past thirty years at Nipigon Camp, northern Ontario. Neither could speak a word of the other's language and conversed through the medium of English.

Judges of the annual fishing contests held at French River, Nipigon and Devil's Gap (Lake of the Woods) bungalow camps, have announced the winners as follows:—W. H. Graf, of New York, and Frank S. Slosson, of Chicago, tied for the trophy at French River with a 30-lb. muscogelone each; J. H. Lunn, of Hammond, Ind., won the Nipigon trophy with a 7 1/2-lb. speckled trout, closely followed by Mrs. Bundy, of Kansas City, with a 7-pounder; and A. R. Joslin, Jr., of Cincinnati, took the Devil's Gap trophy with a bass weighing 3 pounds, nine ounces.

"The destinies of Canada and Japan lie together in the great Pacific Ocean," declared Hon. Iyemasa Tokugawa, K.C.V.O., first minister to represent the Emperor of Japan, when he reached Dominion City here with the arrival of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France, at Vancouver recently. He was accompanied by Togo Fukuma, Japanese Consul-General, both of them being on their way to Ottawa where the former later delivered his credentials.

What is regarded as a record movement was made recently at the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Elevator No. 7 at Port Arthur, when in 4 1/2 hours, 550,000 bushels of wheat were transferred from the elevator to the hold of the steamship Le-moyne. There were periods during the loading of the ship when the wheat was carried like a torrential golden river from the elevator at the rate of 2,566 1/2 bushels per minute.

Fifty different steamship lines now serve to carry Canadian products to every continent from the port of Vancouver, states a recent trade review issued by the Royal Bank of Canada. The review adds that in a period when the other great ports have had difficulty in maintaining their pre-war volume of trade, traffic through the port of Vancouver has experienced steady growth. From 1920, when going ships in 1913, the number increased to 1,344 in 1928. During the past year total trade of the port had a value of $260,000,000.

The largest sugar beet crop on record in Southern Alberta is being harvested in the Raymond district, centre of the industry. About 8,500 acres were sown to sugar beets this year, 2,000 more than in 1928, and the crop will on estimate yield about 65,000 tons or 23,000 above last year's production.

Cable advices from London state that Captain Ronald Stuart, V.C., D.S.O., U.S.N.C., R.N.R., commander of the Canadian Pacific liner "Duchess of York," has been officially selected to attend the Armistice Day ceremonies at the Cenotaph in London. Captain Stuart is one of the youngest liner captains on the North Atlantic and the passenger ship captain to wear the Victoria Cross. It is expected that he will also be present at the "Prince of Wales' dinner at V.A.S.

Blue Plays Steady Game

Hodgetts' Fine Aerial Attack Puts Queen's on Defensive While Varsity Scores

The University of Toronto Junior football team won the Junior Intercollegiate championship as a result of their victory over Queen's, 15-2 on the round. U. of T. carried a lead of 11 points to the Limestone City and increased it by downing the Tricolour 4 to 2 Saturday morning at Richardson Stadium on a muddy field.

The Queen's line proved stronger than the Blue, and Hodgetts was forced to do a lot of kicking. His long punts relieved the pressure on the "T" line time and again. Queen's executed the new inside pass successfully on five different occasions, netting them 140 yards in all. Once the play resulted in a gain of 40 yards for the Kingstons, and again one for 35 yards. Toronto did not avail themselves of the modified forward pass, but resorted to plunges and an aerial attack.

Hodgetts turned in another fine exhibition on the half line, while Cutler teamed up well to give Varsity an edge on the Queen's backfield of Quinn and Patterson. The latter was particularly adept at running back Hodgetts' hoists.

Quinn's muff near Queen's line gave Varsity a nice break and though Patterson recovered, the Blue line held and Hodgetts was able to kick for Varsity's first point in the first quarter. In the third frame Queen's completed two outside passes for big gains and Quinn was in a position to tie the score with a kick for a rouge.

Quinn added another single in the final period when he kicked to the deadline. Varsity got the winning two points when the U. of T. recovered an onside kick and Magladerly dropped over a field goal, making the score, Varsity 4, Queen's 2, and 15-2 for the Blue on the round.

Antics Afield

The Minnesota Daily, on its own admission "The World's Largest College Newspaper", and far-famed proponent of the popular "back to the toga" movement, states with glee that 419 men at the University of Indiana have formed a No-Shave Club, pledging themselves not to shave till Indiana wins a football victory. One sorority, refused admission to the No-Shave Club, founded a No-Cosmetic Club, while another refused to accept dates with callow beardless youths.

MAY CUT PASS ARTS COUNCIL TO DECIDE

First Year May be Abolished Due to Many Failures and Large Registration

NDT REVOLUTIONARY MOVE

The proposal to abolish the first year of the pass course has excited no little interest among students and university officials for some time. The exceedingly high percentage of failures in first year pass arts every year has led some to believe that an ill is present which is in sore need of reformation; while, on the other hand, there are those who argue that the present facilities for obtaining honor matriculation in the university are a necessity to certain students and could only be removed with injustice to many.

Rumors that such a step might be taken have gained credit about the campus of late, and it has been learned from reliable sources that the proposition will be brought up at a meeting of the Council of the Faculty of Arts this afternoon. The move, if it should be made, would only have been.

Managing Director of Mail and Empire Disapproves of News Suppression

"The readers of a newspaper are paying for news. It is the duty of the newspaper man to see that they get it; if he suppresses any news, he is not living up to his obligation to the public," said John Scott, Managing Director of the Mail and Empire, at the University Press Club luncheon on Friday. Mr. Scott compared the newspaper to the retail business, which must cater to the demands of its customers if it expects to succeed.

In accordance with the custom of the Club, the guest was not asked to deliver an address; instead, questions on a variety of pertinent topics were brought up and answered. In the course of the meeting Mr. Scott told how a man had once given his own obituary notice to the Montreal Gazette; how people tried to play jokes on the society editor; how one of the greatest American newspapers had referred a few years ago to "Edward VII" as laying a corner stone.

The speaker also emphasized the fact that words were the tools of the newspaper man, and it was accordingly his duty to become as skilful in their use as possible.

In Mr. Scott's opinion, the university graduate was needed in journalism, because he possessed a knowledge of English and a background of history, and was relieved of certain handicaps which hampered a non-university man.

Mr. Scott was inclined to scout the menace of capitalistic control of newspapers. "No matter who controls the paper, it is still catering to the same public, and still selling news. If it does not deliver the news, it will be weakened," continued the speaker. He likewise denied that the business and advertising office could exert undue influence on the news columns, because once this pressure conflicted with the normal processes of news service, the paper was weakened, and this would react directly upon the business end of the paper.

ARTHUR LISMER WILL DISCUSS "CHILO ART"

Toronto Artist Will Address Meeting in Sketch Room at Hart House

Mr. Arthur Lismar will discuss "Child Art" at a meeting in the Hart House Sketch Room to-night at 8 o'clock. He will illustrate his remarks with references to the exhibition of wood cuts now on view in the Sketch Room, executed by children under fifteen years of age, pupils of Professor Cizer, who for years has been interested in art from the point of view of the psychologist and teacher. The "type methods" of teaching which the professor uses in his art class, the Vienna School of Arts and Crafts, have been widely adopted.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR FIRST HART HOUSE DEBATE

"Reputation Given Toronto For Intolerance is Deserved" Will be Question

MAYOR MCBRIDE EXPECTED

Dr. Salem Bland May Also Come and Four Undergraduates Are Slated to Speak

Final arrangements have been concluded for the first Hart House Debate of the season, which will be held in the Debates Room on Wednesday evening of this week at 8 p.m. The subject as announced previously will be: "Resolved that in the opinion of this House, Toronto deserves her reputation for intolerance."

This subject is expected to arouse considerable interest in view of the recent suppression of alleged Communists in Queen's Park. His Worship Mayor McBride has announced that he hopes to be present and take part in the discussion, although he cannot give definite assurance as yet. Rev. Dr. Salem G. Bland is also expected as an honorary visitor.

The motion will be moved by Mr. T. V. Kennedy of St. Michael's, and will be opposed by Mr. J. C. Clough of Trinity College. Mr. C. L. M. Douglas of Trinity and Mr. F. W. Burton of U.C., will speak third and fourth respectively. As will be noted, the Debates Committee has reverted to the system of placing the names of four undergraduates instead of one on the paper.

The tellers for the ayes will be Mr. V. C. Webb of Medicine, and Mr. W. J. Palmer of U.C., Mr. J. R. Cadwell, U.C., and Mr. D. W. Buchanan, Victoria, will act in the same capacity for the noes. Lionel M. Geller, secretary of the Debates Committee, will be clerk of the House.

EAST LOOKS TO WEST SEES UNGODLY FIGURE

In Face of Dissipation and Sin Even for One Righteous Man West Will Not be Saved

SO DECLARES C. F. ANDREWS

"It is my fear that it is the West which may be rejected because it has not the spirit of Christ," declared Mr. C. F. Andrews of Delhi, India, last night at Convocation Hall in concluding his message of "What is moving in the heart of India." He pointed out that the life of the West is bound up in its wealth and luxury, its ambition and pride; that it was to cities essentially like our own that Christ cried out, "Woe unto thee—It shall be more tolerable for Sodom in the day of judgment than for thee."

"The East looking towards the West sees a figure which does not seem to have its place in the midst of it all. She is not looking to the Christian Church in its grandeur and magnificence, not to the West in its material splendour, but to the Crucified. In

Hart House Bulletin Board Shows Strange Variety of Losses Suffered

ONE PER CENT RETURNED

"Lost: Grey tweed coat. Lost: Eversharp pencil. Found: Brass dish. Found: Wrist watch."

Such reads the "Lost and Found" board in Hart House. The inquiring "Varsity" reporter strolled over to the Bulletin Board to scan for an idle moment, this mite recorder of tragedy unspeakable. There was found that vast number of notebooks, in various sizes, styles and colour, even bindings,—had been found, and as yet unclaimed. Pins of various types were reported found along with wrist watches, fountain pens and Latin translations. A "long white glove (ladies)" and a "shoe buckle with brilliants", were found in this building forbidden to the fair sex.

On the "lost column" 'side the story was less humorous. A hat, a pair of deerskin gloves, a cigarette case, and those so often heard of "coats" were among the missing. Here were recorded the lost articles of a simple froth and disdainful senior.

AERIAL ATTACK EFFECTIVE

Bean's Run for Touch Features Game; Bell and Sinclair, Both Star Players

McGill ..... 0 0 0 0—0

Varsity marched over McGill 13-0 at Montreal, Saturday, in the race for the Intercollegiate Union title. In the first few minutes of play there was little to choose between the two, but from the first punt scored onwards, the Blue and White displayed marked superiority in every department, and the wonder is that the Reds were not swamped by a bigger margin.

The Blue aerial attack was effective, Sinclair booted the ball high and far and timed his kicks perfectly, the ends grassing the Red rearguard in their tracks. Bell made the McGill wings look foolish by his clever side-stepping and tricky pivoting. The McGill extension runs were nipped in the bud every time, while Varsity ran up big gains. The feature of the game was Wally Bean's crash through the Red line for thirty yards for a touch.

McGill were weakened by injuries. Urquhart and Jacquays who have played at outside, were pressed into rearguard duties, and turned in pretty creditable efforts as embryo backs. St. Germaine started, but is out of the game for good this season due to leg trouble as a result of a tackle in the first few minutes of play.

Varsity have improved since their last engagement with McGill; Saturday they were penalized just half a dozen times for offside. The interference work was pretty weak, the wing line twice providing brilliant American running interference for the back line.

Urquhart kicked off to Fitzpatrick, who was downed on Varsity's 35 yard line. On an exchange of kicks Sinclair gained as the Blue ends gave the McGill backs no chance to get away. Bell took one of Jacquays' high kicks and side-stepped half a dozen Red tackles to make 25 yards before being thrown into touch. Sinclair booted to St. Germaine behind the deadline for the first counter. McGill got its first break when Don Young fell on Sinclair's muff. Varsity moved the yard.

Excited students in the university residences treated passers-by to showers of moisture after the game Saturday afternoon. Impartial treatment was meted out to all, with double doses for Christie hats and open roadsters.

A car parked in the tennis court adjacent to the residences was rolled into the narrow space between North House and East House, and placed in such a position that it cost the owner considerable time and trouble, with language ad lib, to remove it.

CHEERS AGAIN

Those of us who were financially unable to view the achievements in Montreal on Saturday doubtless witnessed the double-header played in the Varsity Stadium here. And occasion was given for more pondering on the rooting situation.

The rooting sections were packed during both games. While the O.R.F.U. teams were on the field the rooting was up to the usual standards of enthusiasm . . . but when Mr. Turville and Mr. Johnson and Mr. Moore began to operate the yelling was notable. In other words, the rooters were more enthusiastic for an outside team—the Argos—than they had been for their own team in the O.R.F.U. series.

There can be no doubt that, as a spectacle, the Argonaut-Montreal game was the better of the two games on Saturday, and those who saw it cannot blame the rooters for their partiality towards an event that did not concern them, as university students. It is hard not to yell for a winning team in a close game. But it is still harder to root enthusiastically for a losing team in a less exciting game . . . The local rooters find it much too difficult. . . Yet a week ago, in London, we saw the Western students keep up that raucous, strident unanimity, which marks well-timed and earnest rooting, throughout the whole game.

The Western success in cheering was due, partly, at least, to the leaders and their organization. . . How is the cheering organized here? In the spring the incumbent Men Students' Administrative Council meets with the newly-elected council that is to operate after the summer vacation. Somebody is nominated for the position of President of the Rooters' Club. The chances are that he doesn't care about rooting: probably does not know anything about it; but the office gives him a place on the Joint Executive, which, of course, is the main thing. The fall will find this President of the Rooters' Club faced with the task of organizing cheering and getting cheer leaders, which may, for the gentleman concerned, be quite absurd and uncomfortable.

It will be seen that the present system all but railroads a hesitating, if not unwilling man into directing cheering. The fallacy of such a system must be obvious.

The Athletic Directorate, it may be thought, has to do with rooting. It has not; and one can hardly blame it for disclaiming responsibility for it. Nor is the President of the Rooters' Club to blame—by the way, what is the Rooters' Club?—nor are the cheer-leaders, themselves.

We suggest, first of all, that the Rooters' Club be abolished. Of course, there is no such organization, but there is a president, so away with him. In his place, there should be appointed a Head Cheer Leader. Each spring, at the appointed time, applications for this position should be called for, and passed upon by the proper body of the student councils. An honorarium of ten dollars for each game should be attached to the position. In addition, the Head Cheer Leader should be allowed to appoint assistants, subject to the approval of his employers. The assistants also should be given a pittance.

Moreover, the job of Chief Cheer Leader should be made one of honour and of gravity, so that men of ability and reputation would aspire thereto. Complimentary dance tickets should be reserved for him; he should be included in receptions and feeds given to prominent students. "The Varsity" would arrange to interview him on controversial topics.

The advantages of having the rooting in charge of this official are obvious. The success of the cheering would be his direct responsibility; the university as a whole would know it, and be prepared to condemn or approve him. He would have the summer to plan his actions, and be prepared to act the minute the term opened. In a short time the value and honour of the position would be generally realized, and competition for the promotion among the junior

Instalment IV

In those dear days, beyond recall,
When men were brave and stories tall,
There lived around Temagami

A gang of Indians, wild and free.
This was no tame reserve-tribe band,
These babies felt they owned the land.

And, if a missionary came,
They made him do the hootchie dance
Over a fire, sans shirt and pants,

Which gave his hair a pretty singe.
They went on many a tribal binge
With two-bit rum from Montreal.

Like which there's nothing now at all.
In fact, a person there could see
The origin of the word "whoopee".
(These boys would make a bleacher rock,

Dignan would never stand the shock)
The chief was "Heap Big Cats' Meow"

And, for chief cook, masseuse, and frau,
He had a squaw called Minnetat

(Means little tootsie). Was she fat!
They say, where e'er her fame re-sounds

She hovered round three hundred pounds.
But, though you might believe at first

Her darling tummy-tum would burst!
If e'er she ate another meal,
This chicken had her Sex Appeal.

Although some critics called her
"much",
She had "The Skin You Love To Touch."

And buxom figure, at that time,
By men was rated just sublime.
She had a sweet and upright mind

And what a figure—from behind!
In fact, for various kinds of fame,
She put these "slips of girls" to shame.

McLeod and Snar had turned the prow
Into the land of "Cat's Meow".
But, for the big-time Indian greeting,

For Foghorn and fair Minne's meeting,
For Foghorn's love, a noble passion

Of strong men, now gone out of fashion,
Since movietones of back-stage plays

Made love a hisping thing of lays,
A love that warmed his every tissue, leaders would become keen, and an incentive to work. The subordinates should be chosen from the years in order, so that, in time, a group of trained men would be evolved.

It will be argued that we advocate professional cheer-leading.
This is absurd. How anyone can become professional on the remuneration we suggest is hard to visualize. It would be as difficult for the cheer-leader as for those members of "The Varsity" staff who receive emolument. The point about the $10 is this: if the cheer-leader shows signs of slackening his zeal, one can step up and say: "Here! You are being paid for your work, but your work is not satisfactory. Snap to it!"

There will be objections to our proposal, we feel; yet we believe we have the credit of being both critical and constructive; qualities which have been sadly lacking in respect to the S.A.C. for some time. . . . .

GREEK INSCRIPTIONS FOUND FASCINATING

Professor Merritt Compares Archaeology to Work of Detective

INFORMATION VALUABLE

"Piecing together the fragments of Greek inscriptions is more fascinating than working out a cross-word puzzle," said Professor Benjamin Merritt in his lecture on "An Ancient Puzzle" last night. By means of lantern slides Professor Merritt went on to show how the archaeologist is able to relate the broken fragments and fill in the missing parts of the old inscriptions.
"My work is like that of the detective," said the professor, "but unfortunately my evidence is much heavier than his."

He pointed out that much interesting and valuable information—from the expenses of the Peloponnesian War to the daily wages of architects and sculptors in Athens—are revealed by the solution of these early crossword puzzles.

"And," Professor Merritt concluded, "there are still lots more puzzles to solve."

After the lecture questions were answered, and an announcement made of the next lecture on archaeology.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday, Nov. 9, should be the biggest day from a football standpoint that Varsity has had since that freezing afternoon late in the autumn of '26, when the Blue and White defeated Queen's up at the stadium and broke the Tricolour's long string of Intercollegiate football championships. If Varsity can beat Queen's here the locals and the Kingstonites will finish the regular schedule in a tie for first place, necessitating a play-off.

* * *

Queen's have won five and lost none, while Varsity are four and one. The Blue's only defeat was accomplished by Harry Batstone's men down in the Limestone City, but Varsity are confident of reversing the decision here this Saturday. The Blue and White are certainly being primed for this game, and should field their best team of the season.

* * *

Varsity and Queen's both won handily Saturday, the Blue whitewashing McGill and the Tricolour blanketing Western in the same style. The men from the Limestone City have an impressive scoring record with 86 points for and only 7 against in 5 games. Varsity have rung up 65 to 17 by the opposition in the same number of games.

* * *

The Blue juniors won the Junior Intercollegiate championship for the fifth time in six years when they defeated Queen's juniors Saturday, taking the game and round. The "Frosh" are a smart team that will give any other minor aggregation a real battle.

* * *

The Orphans handed Windsor a neat trimming for their first victory of the season. The Blue played a wide open game and won going away.

* * *

Saturday was a red-letter day for the Blue and White. The Intercollegiate beat McGill, the Orphans handed Windsor and the Juniors grabbed the Junior Intercollegiate from Queen's. Then the Blue Harriers brought home the bacon from McGill and the Soccer team knocked off the Redmen. Three championships in one day is nice going.

BLUE HARRIER TEAM WIN INTERCOLLEGIATE U. OF T. SOCCER TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Five Varsity Runners Finish
Among First Nine
Contestants

WALLY GRAHAM FIRST

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, P.Q. — Varsity harrier team satisfied the most optimistic of its supporters by winning the Intercollegiate Harrier Race at McGill yesterday morning. Toronto scored first, fifth, seventh and eighth, for a low of twenty-one. McGill ran second, third, sixth and fourteenth for second place, with twenty-five. R.M.C. was third with an aggregate of forty-two, and Queen's fourth with fifty-seven.

Of the first nine men, Toronto claimed five and the fight that every Varsity man put up was the feature of the meet. The race was won by that wily veteran, Wally Graham, whose terrific battle with Lockhead of McGill from the crack of the gun to the finishing line was one of the high lights of the encounter. Going to the front for a commanding lead of seventy-five yards he finished in 31 minutes, 47 3-5 seconds, which although the course was 220 yards shorter than last year, is 40 2-5 seconds faster than the course record of 32 minutes, 28 seconds.

Balmer of McGill ran steadily throughout to finish a good third. Don Smith staked a thrilling duel with Greenwood of R.M.C. for fourth place but was unable to overtake his man by inches, and placed fifth. Calhoun of McGill was sixth and finished close behind Hal Williams, captain of the Varsity team. Fred Lee, the well-known S.P.S. track star, and Howey, the diminutive Vic three-miler, then paraded into the Molson stadium, and finished in that order to cinch the title for Toronto.

MCGILL KEPT ON DEFENSIVE

The indomitable spirit of the Blue and White added one more win to the series of triumphs of the Varsity teams over the week-end, when the Varsity soccer team, undefeated in a season's campaigning, won the soccer title from McGill, for the first time in six years.

For the first half of the game the Blue team had it all its own way. On a neat pass from Goldenberg, Downing planted the ball between the McGill goal posts, in the first minute of play. Immediately afterwards, when Davidson headed the ball through the McGill defense, Downing scored again. Roland quickly followed this up with another goal on a long kick from the side of the field. The half ended when the ball rolled into the McGill goal off one of the visiting players.

McGill scored a goal early in the second half after Davidson was injured in a melee in front of the Varsity goal. The rest of the game was more even, and each side scored a goal, Varsity's by Corbie, to end the game, 5-2.

ORFUNS VANQUISH WINDSOR MIC-MACS

"Football or Basketball?"
Query Spectators at Sloppy Game

WINDSOR'S PLAYING WEIRD

The Blue Orfuns finally broke into the win column when they vanquished the Windsor Mic-Macs 23 to 12 last Saturday in the first game of the double-header at the Stadium. Varsity took good advantage of the Mic-Mac's sloppy ball handling to gain their victory. Seldom has such a weird exhibition of ball passing been seen here as that displayed by the Borderites. At times the spectators wondered whether they were watching football or basketball. Richardson featured the Blue and White attack with some fine broken field running. Traynor was also prominent for the Orfuns and pulled off several long runs, one of them resulting in a touch. In the first period he got right through the Windsor team and sailed 30 yards for the Blue's first major score. Scott and R. Stringer also went over for the five-point score.

The Blues were always in the lead, although at one time in the third stanza the Mic-Macs had drawn within two points of them due chiefly to a sensational 80 yard dash to the touch-line by Jubenville, and a Windsor recovery of a Varsity fumble behind the latter's touch line.

Levisky relieved Richardson on the kicking end and turned in a neat effort. He drove a long boot whenever called upon, and was successful in putting a drop kick over the bar near the close of the game.

The Orfuns have always been inclined to weaken towards the close of their games, but refused to back up in this fixture, outscoring their opponents in the latter stages by a good margin. The Blue and White did not look invincible, but showed a great improvement over their previous performances this year. The whole team played well, but Richardson, Traynor, Buck, Baker, and R. Stringer were probably the most effective, with Parsons, Jubenville and Coombs the stand-out players for the losers.

In that part of the general mud that vic campus embraced Friday, Vic defeated a makeshift team of U.C., to which even Vic contributed, in a meaningless game 14-0. Conditions prevented a display of brilliant rugby, but the kicking of DeMille, Witzel's bucking, Barry's general activity, Buchanan's running and Hart's efficiency at quarter were prominent. U.C. were unable to cope with Vic's weight, and were quite handicapped. Their backfield, however, worked in an excellent way, considering.

the East Christ is known and his way understood."

He quoted from a Hindu poet of Bengal, who sums up the heart of India: "Come, eastern saint and savior whom we know and love. Come to us. We are crushed under the heel of oppression and crushed by our own evil and passion. The West does not understand Thee. Come to us. We have a place for Thee in our hearts."

Mr. Andrews described an incident which he himself had witnessed in South Africa in which Ghandi had shown his great Christlike love.

It was announced that at 7.00 p.m. on Monday there is to be an informal meeting of the S.C.A. at Wymilwood to give the members an opportunity to meet Mr. Andrews. Also on Wednesday from 1.30 to 2.00 in the Women's Union Mr. Andrews is to address the Women of the college in the Auditorium.

MAY CUT PASS ARTS COUNCIL TO DECIDE

ing on the first year of the pass course and would not be as revolutionary as might be supposed.

The matter has come up other years with the problem of accommodation for the constantly increasing registration, and the proposal which will be under discussion to-day, has always been put forward as a possible expedient for dealing with the situation which has become more serious each year.

There is no way of knowing what will be the decision of the Council this afternoon. Opinion might be entirely against the proposal; it might be put into the hands of a committee for further investigation, or, if the Council was in favor of it, it might be passed on to the Senate of the University which would be the usual procedure.

For obvious reasons, opinions are not forthcoming from university officials at present, for, as one professor said, "It seems rather premature to be asked to state opinions on an issue that has not been stated yet." The issue, if there is to be any, must necessarily grow out of this afternoon's discussion.

The present proposition is a matter that has entirely to do with the internal administration of the university, and is not a part of Premier Ferguson's program of educational reform which would make it possible to take the first two years of university work in local colleges, though it would seem to fall in with that plan. It is an expedient designed to solve a problem in this university of both an academic and administrative nature—namely that of alleged inefficiency in first year pass and increased numbers.

FOUR LOST ARTICLES CLAIMED IN HUNDRED

information as to the length of time that the notices appeared on this board. The Warden's office supplied the necessary details. Here it was learned that a very accurate account is kept of "lost and found" articles. While the bulletin board might be cleared monthly, there is still a permanent record in the Warden's office. Articles lost for two or three years are sometimes claimed. If not claimed they go to the finders on the principle of "Finders keepers, losers weepers." This process of returning to finders is carried out over a year if the finder wants still to retain his find.

The percentage of lost articles that are claimed is very low, about 4 per cent. The percentage of lost articles returned to their owners, "The Varsity" was told, is even less, almost less than 1 per cent. It would appear that anything lost in Hart House is not likely to be found again in the original owner's possession.

Archie and Agnes Agitated Screaming Sisters Sour Show

By H. D. Price

"Hello Archie!"
"Hello Agnes!"
"How are you?"
"How are you?"
"Fine"—in chorus.
"Where do we go from here?"
"That's a hum lead."
"Well, how would you do it?"
"To start with, my name isn't Archie."
"But you couldn't go for having the fact published, could you?"
"Come, come—what did you think of the blooming game Saturday last, if you know what I mean, old fellow?"
"Great, what do you think?"
"Some screaming females sat behind me, and soured the whole show—all talking, all talking, all talking, vitaphone, dictaphone, microphone."
"Oh, yeah?"
"Yeah! Some heel had serpentine paper, and those shell-shocked mamas thought it was cute. It went like this: 'Oh, Betty, don't you think it would be the sweetest thing for all of us to bring some of that darling paper to the game next Saturday?'"
"Oh, mar-velous."
"I wonder what the men say when they get in a group like that? I bet they swear."
"I don't know, Betty, but I'm going to ask my brother, he played football once!"
"Ooooh—did you see that, why he's wonderful—he ran all that way! Who is that girl in the red hat—the funny one?"
"Yeah, it must have been terrible for your aesthetic sport temperament, Archie!"

"And say, I'm telling you, Ag, that Argo-Montreal game was no slouch—wow, plenty of fight, what I mean!"
"Did you see Lou Marsh in his black brushed plush ensemble—tres chic—?"
"Whoops,—I wonder if the upholsterers have reported the theft."
"Theft?"
"Right. Theft!"
"It was a theft right enough that struck 'Wimblewood' last week."
"And how, and how, and how!"
"That's what the defectives wanta know!"
"I won't tell."
"Ah, my life is now an open book before your eyes, my secret is known."
"Archie, trust me, what caused your slip from grace?"
"She took me skating—and besides, I suspect!"
"What?"
"I don't think she's a nice gurrul—I have a feeling that she drinks her bath water."
"You're base, Archie!"
"Oh, yes, but I have a falsetto arrangement for occasions."
"What are you talking about?"
"I'll plunge, what is it?"
"But your continuity! How about it?"
"It's fine, er—how's yours?"
"Final—full chorus of cat-calls singing in the rain of old boots and empty bottles."

sticks for the first time on a plunge and end run. Sinclair kicked to St. Germaine, who was tackled hard and forced out of the game with a bad knee. Soon after Kelly was injured, and Galloway took his place. First quarter over: Varsity 1, McGill 0. Jacquays kicked short and in the melee a Varsity line man touched the pigskin: Halpenny gathered up the bounding ball, and nearly broke clear. Jacquays punted out of touch and Varsity were on their one yard line. Sinclair kicked to midfield, pulling the Blue out of a tight spot. Varsity were breaking up McGill extension runs for losses. On an extension run the Blue wing line provided beautiful running interference for Bell, and the ball was brought back with a penalty. Urquhart fumbled and Subosits dribbled the ball, but Nichol fell on it to save a touch. McGill secured possession on Varsity's 30 yard line on Sinclair's muff. Sinclair took an attempted placement kick under his goalposts and booted to midfield. Half-time: Varsity 1, McGill 0.

In the third quarter Varsity made yards through the line. Twice Sinclair ran back McGill punts for 10 yard gains. Wally Bean crashed through centre for 5 yards, and followed right up on a fake swinging back to break through a gaping hole, galloping 30 yards for a touch. Don Young looked to be away for the goal line but was run out of touch. Mc-Gill made yards again. Nichol took a punt and made off for his own goal posts, and was graced for a 10 yard loss. Bell dashed around the end on an extension run for 35 yards, and repeated by breaking through the line for yards. The ball was on McGill's 5 yard line, and the Red line held Varsity to no gain on two plunges. An attempted drop by Sinclair went for a rouge. Third quarter: Varsity 7, McGill 0.

McGill were weakening steadily and offered Varsity little opposition at times. Play was getting pretty listless with good football displayed only in spots. Urquhart fumbled and Ruddell pounced on the ball 15 yards in front of McGill's posts. Sinclair booted over a drop. Sinclair kicked 55 yards into touch at McGill's 5 yard line. The Redmen handed Varsity the ball on a wild pass. The Blue hammered the line for yards twice, and Sinclair ended the scoring with a neat field goal from the 15 yard line. Final score: Varsity 13, McGill 0.

Varsity—Flying wing, Jim Sinclair; halves, Jack Sinclair, Fitzpatrick, Ruddell; quarter, Bell; snap, Keith; insides, Bean, Kelly; middles, Little, Dewar; outsides, Gooderham, Elson; subs, Morgan, Stewart, Long, Hallam, Davey, Galloway.

McGill—Flying wing, Halpenny; halves, Urquhart, Smyth, St. Germain; quarter, Granger; snap, Swaby; insides, Littlefield, Jacquays; middles, McTeer, Munro, Chard; subs, Church, Wilson, Russell, McGillivray, Matheson, Nichol, Stewart, Taylor.

QUEEN'S DEFEAT WESTERN IN FINAL GAME AT HOME

Tricolour Backfield Superior to Mustangs and Carter Stars

Special to "The Varsity"

Kingston, Nov. 2—The Tricolour closed their home season here to-day by defeating Western 14-0. The local backfield was greatly superior to the Mustangs' and turned the tide in favour of Queen's. Carter's kicking again featured, the tall half consistently outkicking the opposition.

Queen's made a rouge on Carter's long punt to Savard for the only score of the first quarter. In the second period Queen's got a touch when Elliott fell on a loose ball behind the Western goal line. The half-time score was, Queen's 6, Western 0. In the third stanza there was no score, but early in the last quarter Carter kicked for a rouge followed by a touch by Munro, which Gilmore converted. The last point came on Gilmore's attempted placement which went for a single. Final score: Queen's 14, Western 0.

DROPPING FIRST YEAR PASS ARTS NOT DECIDED ON

President Falconer Suggests
Topic to Arts Council;
No Action

TO DISCUSS NEXT TUESDAY

'What 100 With Common Sense
Are Doing Now,' Says
Principal Wallace

No open discussion of the proposition to abolish the first year of the pass course took place at the meeting yesterday afternoon of the council of the faculty of arts. Sir Robert Falconer put the proposition before the council and it was learned from him that discussion of the question was put over until next week.

"I put the case before the council," said the President in an interview with "The Varsity" last night, "and open discussion of the question will take place at the next meeting—probably next Tuesday."

In the meantime members of the council will have an opportunity to think over the proposition before stating their opinions before the body next week. Sir Robert stated that he did not know what would be done about the matter.

"There is, of course, much to be said for the abolishment of the first year of the pass course, although there are most certainly arguments on the other side," said Principal Wallace of University College, when interviewed by the "Varsity".

"The students themselves are settling the matter to a certain extent, and the number of them enrolling in the second year of the pass course is growing. Therefore the change would be less serious than it might seem."

Principal Wallace went on to remark that a great number of the students entering first year pass are those who come to the university undecided as to what they want to do.

"As a general rule these are a very unsatisfactory type of student, and a great many of them flunk in the first year. If we insist on their qualifying for second year pass from their honour matriculation, would we not be merely forcing all to do what a hundred of good common sense are doing already?"

HIS TEAM DIDN'T WIN COACH HAS TO RESIGN

Enoch Bagshaw Loses Job
When American College
Twelve Lose

Special to "The Varsity"
Seattle, Wash.—Enoch Bagshaw, head coach at the University of Washington, has resigned his position due to adverse criticism, due to the rugby team's failure to win games, but has consented to continue coaching the team.

The University of Washington Daily says, "Because the winning of college football games has become an American sports fetish, it was impossible for Enoch Bagshaw to remain as head coach. When his team won, he was secure; when a dismal row of defeats were recorded in the ledger, the future became uneasy. Long, weary hours of service have been given to the student body by Coach Bagshaw since he came to Washington. Appreciation for that service has not always been in evidence, for a student group, whose complexion constantly shifts, forgets its victories, but seldom forgets its smarting defeats."

Queen's Scientists Heftier Than Arts

Science freshmen at Queen's upheld their reputation for he-man strength when on Saturday at the Queen's-Western game, they defeated their more frail and studious brothers, the Arts freshmen, in a strenuous fight over a giant football at half-time. The ball was pushed over on the Arts territory at the very outset and eager reinforcements from the bleachers turned the struggle into a riotous melee in which, miraculously, no one was hurt. At the expiration of half-time Science was still well over the middle line and blushingly acknowledged the cheers from the joyful part of the mob in the stands.

TROJAN HELEN UNNOTICED?

The following are excerpts from the answers of members of the Women's Press Club, to Bernard Shaw's article on "Clothes and Sex Appeal":

"The modern girl has discarded sex appeal with the spinning-wheel and substituted 'IT'."

"Negroes go in for practical nudity—and—large families. Is it just the desire to see a lot of little pickaninnies trotting around that causes this, or is there even a bit of the Biological Urge present?"

"Helen of Troy would have passed unnoticed in a tennis frock."

"Simplicity and brevity of dress is as characteristic of the modern girl as upholstery and exhibitionism, of the Victorian," are some extracts from the various manuscripts.

HINDU PEOPLE REFUSE ADMITTANCE TO CANADA

Mr. C. F. Andrews and Mr.
Kartar Singh Outline Personal Experiences

"India has never contemplated excluding Canadians from India. India does not think in that way," said C. F. Andrews of Shanti Niketan, Bengal, speaking on the question of emigration from India to Canada at the Women's Union yesterday afternoon. Mr. Andrews went on to point out that Canada really shut the door on Indian immigration in 1909 by passing a law that only Indians coming direct from India could take up permanent residence in Canada. Since then the immigration laws have become increasingly strict until to-day it is practically impossible for an Indian to enter Canada even as a temporary resident. This has naturally caused a great deal of bitterness in India, where the people feel that they should have perfect freedom to move about within the British Commonwealth of Nations.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Kartar Singh of Vancouver, gave a brief outline of his experiences since he came to Canada as a boy. He said that his main work is trying to bring the East in contact with the West and to secure greater tolerance for his fellow countrymen, of whom there are about one thousand in British Columbia at the present time.

"Have you had a swim yet?" queries the editor of the Florida Alligator. Maybe he wouldn't think that was so funny if he were up there, shivering in the cold November blast.

OPINIONS VARIED ON DEPRECIATION OF ORIGINALITY

"Originality Does Not Count," Is Statement of R. Russell,
II Classics

C. SAGER TEMPERS VIEWS

"Depends on Intelligence of Student," Says Principal
Wallace

An American paper asserts that the students get the highest grades who are most agreeable with the teacher's point of view or prejudice. Those with the least originality are marked up the highest at the college examinations, because they agree with the professor, further states the article.

When questioned as to whether they thought this system obtains in Toronto, the general consensus of opinion among University of Toronto undergraduates was quite varied.

"I consider it is better to give your own opinion, because originality is to be commended," said Isabel O'Rourke, III English and History, St. Michael's College.

"My own opinion is that it is absolutely practised at the University of Toronto. If one ignored the professor's remarks, and wrote what one liked, one would be out of luck. In my course, originality does not count," was the reply of R. R. Russell, II Classics, U.C.

"I intend to use my own opinions but on the whole I'll temper my views with those of the professor's," states C. Sager, I Psychology, U.C.

Mr. E. K. Brown of the Department of English, University College, when approached by "The Varsity", would not express any opinion on the question. He jokingly remarked that "The Varsity" to get in touch with a man with several years of experience behind him.

Principal M. W. Wallace, head of the Department of English of University College, said:

"It depends on how much intelligence a student has. It is just a foolish statement uttered by some minor secondary school teacher. Any serious professor at the University of Toronto always welcomes original views. He does not like anyone to be original at the expense of common sense and good judgement. Anyway the writing of pseudonyms kills it."

DO HART HOUSE SHOWERBATHS LACK INCENTIVE TO VOCALISTIC EFFORT?

According to the popular tradition, a showerbath, a jovial disposition, and a tendency to spontaneous vocalism go hand in hand. Yet persistent rumours have apparently been spreading about the campus to the effect that joviality and vocal music of the more cheerful type are noticeably lacking where Hart House showers are concerned. Yesterday a reporter issued forth from the office of "The Varsity" to investigate this alleged lack of musical inspiration.

First he accosted a joyful student and asked the reason for all his happiness which was evinced by the latter singing, "This is my Lucky Day". He replied that he had the first time found a shower which suited him. He did not have to try any of the others in order to get more than one spray of water.

"What we need are bigger and better showers," said S. F. Caldecott,

STUDENT COUNCIL MOVE TO IMPROVE ROOTING SYSTEM

President Rooter's Club Says
Lack of University Spirit Responsible

ROOTER'S CLUB IMAGINARY

Circumstances Made Appointment of New Cheer Leader Necessary This Fall

"There are two reasons to be ascribed for the lack of cheering this year," stated D. H. Ward, president of the Rooter's Club. "One, the passing of that club and the other, the lack of a real university spirit which would give vent to enthusiastic support for our teams whether winning or losing. Since the abolition of the Rooter's Club there has been no definite means of instilling spirit into the cheers and the cheer leaders are unable to rouse support."

In conversation with Mr. Ward it developed that the president of the Rooter's Club was appointed by the S.A.C. but the club over which he presided (Continued on page 4)

PROFESSOR ROGERS ON CHEMISTRY OF CRIME

"Chemistry and the detection of crime," was the subject of an address given by Professor Rogers before an open meeting of the Medical Society yesterday afternoon. Professor Rogers' work is that of analyzing the contents of the stomach and other viscera of victims of murder for traces of poison of all kinds. He stated that a history of the case helped most materially even if it only told the length of the illness before death, because this might give a clue to the type of poison used, if any.

There are only four rapid poisons—carbolic acid, strychnine, oxalic acid and cyanide. Carbolic acid leaves an odour by which it is easily identified. Cyanide has only recently come into use, usually in the form of its potassium or sodium salts, and strychnine is by far the most common. It is speedy, efficient and leaves no pathological condition in the tissue of the stomach.

The large lecture room in the Anatomy building was filled with students viewing the interesting exhibits of pistols and bullets. Prof. Rogers said that he would never follow out a bullet case because he lost caste by falling from his specialty—chemistry.

Once on "The Varsity" Now Edits "The Torch"

Leonard Ryan, erstwhile "Varsity" editor, is planning on taking over that position on "The Torch", if reports may be believed. "The Torch" is the official Newman Club paper.

FABIUS SOCIETY WILL REORGANIZE

May Change Name of Group to One Rejected
Last Year

NATIONAL BOOY PLANNED

The Fabius Club executive plan a complete reorganization including election of officers, the granting of membership to Laborites and consideration of a national association at tonight's meeting in Wymilwood, the initial gathering this session. The compromise name, "Fabius Club", which was taken last session when the proposed "Fabian Society" raised such a storm of protest may this year be rejected in favor of the better known title.

The Laborites who, at the Elgin House Conference this summer were fired with such enthusiasm for the cause by the oratory of Mr. Philip Mathams of McGill, have already had one meeting this session at which they waived organization plans until at this meeting with the "Fabians" the question of the amalgamation of the two groups could be decided.

"The three seniors on the executive feel that they have not the time to do justice to the club," said Mr. L. "Buzz" Sherwood, the retiring president, himself a Trinity man in fourth year C and F, at Baldwin House. "We are leaving the business of the club in good shape and will continue as active members."

A National Association of Fabian Societies which would bind the Labor organizations at the different Canadian universities has been mooted but the Toronto local does not yet feel strong enough to take the lead. However, a committee will be appointed to gather data on the socialist societies in other universities with a view to such organization.

Mr. Jack Harris, Treasurer of the Fabius Club, a third year Victoria College student, is not resigning his office. In fact he is looking forward to doing a rushing business collecting membership fees at to-night's meeting.

At a recent peanut banquet held at the University of Illinois, students succeeded in demolishing 150 lbs. of peanuts, 50 gallons of cider and 8 bushels of apples.

Antics Afield

A society note in the University of Washington Daily states that cringing co-eds at the University of Nebraska attempting to enter sorority dormitories at a late hour by means of stealth and a convenient fire escape will automatically ring an alarm bell in the room of the house mother, with results probably beneficial but undoubtedly unpleasant to the young lady concerned. The item also claims that a reprimand will be meted out to the girl's escort, but Toronto students will have difficulty in believing that any sane man would allow himself to be interrupted into escorting a co-ed up a sorority fire escape in the wee sma' hours.

WOMEN DEBATERS SPEAK FOR PLACE ON VARSITY TEAM

Victoria College Sisters Are Chosen; Trinity Girls
Place First

WILL REPRESENT TORONTO

Nine Candidates Spoke Before
Selection Committee
Yesterday

The preliminary tryout of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union took place yesterday afternoon at the Women's Union. Of the nine girls who spoke, Miss Mary Winspear, (of last year's team), and Miss Louise MacMillan of Trinity, and the Misses Marie and Anna Bicknell of Victoria, were chosen to represent the University of Toronto in the inter-college debates on November 25. Miss Ruth Sparling of Victoria, and Miss Margaret Bonis of Trinity, took fifth and sixth places. Two girls from St. Michael's also debated, and University College alone was not represented.

Each candidate spoke for three minutes on either side of one of the four subjects—which will also be the subjects of the inter-college debates at the end of the month—resolved that, "The Labour Party is the party of the future", "We should have the same freedom of speech as in the mother country", "Censorship of films, stage and printed matter is desirable", and "We derive more benefit from extra-curricular activities than from lectures". In addition to this each girl spoke extemporaneously on one of four other topics—resolved that, "The owl preceded the egg", "The world would be a better place without telephones", "The choosing of a wife is more important than the choosing of a vocation", and "Academic dress is an anachronism".

Miss Biss, Miss MacDonald and Dr. Cassidy acted as judges.

SUGGEST VARSITY COLOUR SCHEMES

One Individual Suggests Yellow
As An Appropriate Pigment

"MAUVE WOULD BE CUTE"

"I would have dyspepsia reading it," ejaculated one co-ed when questioned as to whether or not she would like "The Varsity" to follow the example of the "Utah Chronicle" and be printed on mauve paper. "No, it's much too violent," said another, "—and funereal," added a third.

However, opinion was very evenly divided on the subject, and an enthusiastic freshette burst forth, "Oh, wouldn't that be cute!"

Several disapproved of using mauve, but thought colour might be an improvement. "How about the college colours?" was suggested. "Why not print 'The Varsity' on blue paper with white decorations around the edge?"

"Yellow would be an improvement," growled one soured individual, "The Varsity" is that anyway!"

Practically everyone was enthusiastic over coloured editions for special occasions. Suggestions of an orange one for Halloween were greeted with delight, and the violence of a Christmas number in red and green was contemplated.

THE HART HOUSE DEBATE

We should like to commend the Hart House Debates Committee on its choice of subject for Wednesday evening. An institution which exists for the expression of opinion must, to attain any degree of prestige, not only adopt a questioning attitude regarding the most vital and delicate issues, but must build up, in the rising generations of those who sponsor it, a certain tradition which will lead them instinctively and fearlessly to cling to that attitude, quite apart from personal inclination: thus does such an institution acquire character. The salient triumph of the debates, the cornerstone of an attitude, was the inducing of the Prime Minister of Canada to defend his action in an important national matter, against an opposition which left no dart unshot, in a house which, had he not ably defended himself, would possibly (though not probably) have voted against him. It will be a lesser triumph, but following on the same attitude and helping to cement it into a tradition, to have the Mayor of Toronto defend his position in an issue which has been much in the public mind and has evoked violent comment.

The Hart House debates have not yet quite risen from college-boy oratory bouts to a national forum. But nothing can, in our opinion, add to their repute more than a set tradition that they should coldly discuss the warmest questions. We doubt, too, if anywhere else in North America, the mayor of a city could meet students in open debate on the subject of his suppression of radicalism.

We regret, of course, that this subject will give scope and space to Young Menckanism. Mencken is a fine fellow in his way and does a great and needed work, but he is better admired than copied. Parlour Bolshevism, too, is a sorry thing.

However, we shall see.

PASSING THE HONOURS

We are glad to note, again turning to the subject of the Hart House debate, the reversion to the old system of nominating four speakers instead of only one. Speeches on the paper certainly tend to be no worse than those from the "floor", and this practice allows for a spreading of the honours. Twenty years hence it may be an excellent thing to be able to say, on some formal occasion, that one has spoken "on the paper" in Hart House.

With the Theatres

MASSEY HALL

One could easily have sat through the first two groups of the Isadora Duncan Dancers' programme on Saturday without receiving any particular thrill, but anyone who could watch the third and final group without being deeply stirred must be dead indeed. The Schubert-Schumann-Grieg group which opened the programme had beauty of form and movement which pleased the eye without leaving any very distinct impression. The Chopin group had more of life and graceful vigour, but still gave no hint of what was to come. When in the concluding group the young dancers suddenly became articulate through their own Russian folk-music, the audience began to feel that peculiar tingling of the spine which the gods happily bestow on occasion to relieve the bugbear of so-called analytical criticism. The Russian Workmen's Song provided the most thrilling moments of sound and rhythm I have ever beheld on any stage. If this music springs from the soul of Red Russia, we are paltry and futile in opposing such a Russia. Incidentally, in the final number—the Russian Girl Scouts'

Song—one of the young dancers did appear to abandon herself to the dance in the best Dionysian tradition.

SHEA'S

Drop whatever you're doing and go to Shea's this week! Next to "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" the feature is the best film I have seen this year. Ina Claire—billed for the benefit of the Great Unpolluted as Mrs. John Gilbert, if you please—appears in a thoroughly intelligent film version of the stage success, "The Awful Truth". If you don't like this comedy of the smart set's domestic difficulties, and if you don't become incoherent about Ina Claire, then you don't know what real comedy is. And there's an ending . . . well, I hereby solemnly warn you to get there before the congenial idiots of censorship get there before you. As for the rest of the program—Herb Williams will send you out of the theatre with the delightful feeling that you have spent twenty minutes in an insane asylum. His is a topsy-turvy world; he has a highly developed sense of burlesque; and he deserves his reputation. Only one of the other acts is worth anything, but by that time you won't mind.

Art, Music and Drama

Students' Concerts

We are looking forward to being able to make a definite announcement in the near future in connection with the Students' Chamber Music Concerts which are again to be given by the Hart House String Quartet in Convocation Hall. In the meantime, it will be well if undergraduates will bear in mind that these concerts are especially arranged by the Quartet for the students and for their convenience are given in the late afternoon rather than in the evening. In the series there will be five concerts and the programmes will, as in the past, be comprised of the works to be given in Hart House Theatre programmes.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that "The Varsity" hears of the most gratifying success that is attending the Hart House Quartet in its first tour of England. We have come to regard the Quartet as intimately connected with the university and it is with some pride that we note that the Quartet were "at once acclaimed as an assembly of first rank" by their audiences in England. In reviewing their concert given in Wigmore Hall, London, one of England's foremost critics, Herbert Hughes, remarked that "in all they did there was the liveliest sense of rhythm and complete unanimity of mind. Toronto should be proud to have such a quartet as this making music within her boundaries."

 —J.J.K.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mr. Randolph Crowe, pupil of Signor Fontana, presented on Friday afternoon one of the finest vocal programmes Hart House has heard in some time. Mr. Crowe's finest single piece of work was the Largo al Facciotum from the Barber of Seville, giving the artist full opportunity to demonstrate his mastery of the detached style in one of the most difficult numbers of its kind in opera. The two contrasting Vaughan Williams numbers, however, showed that Mr. Crowe was not slave to any one medium. The "Sapphic Ode" of Brahms, done in a steady and modulated low barytone, was possibly the artists most difficult rendition, since it gave him no chance to indulge in the vocal heroics which his style of voice, unless most carefully trained, demands.

Mr. Crowe has a voice not only of great promise, but of thoroughly noteworthy present accomplishment. He has a fine sense of dramatic values and a stage presence which older artists might well envy.

CONTRIBUTORS' DAY

You may talk of the joys of Hawaii,
 Of the charms of the isles of the west,
 But they are not for such men as I am,
 For alas! I have egg on my vest.

You may talk of the charm of the mountains,
 With Beauty by far at their best,
 But I am not fit to enjoy them,
 Woe's me! I have egg on my vest.

You may talk of the brush of the painter,
 Of odes to the Muses addressed,
 But I haven't the soul to enjoy them,
 I am known by the egg on my vest.

Not of me are told stories of manhood,
 Of rescue of damsels distressed,
 But wherever you go they will tell you,
 "Oh yes! He has egg on his vest!"

Though I weary my musces with striving,
 And fight to attain to the crest,
 Still that terrible cry follows after,
 "Oh look! He has egg on his vest!"

MANY well-to-do citizens in this country owe their start toward success to opening a savings account in early life and practising thrift in order to build up that account.

Are you building up your success fund at the Bank of Montreal, which for well over a century has been conserving the savings of ambitious Canadians?

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity Juniors will meet McGill to-morrow at the Molson Stadium in the first of home-and-home games for the Junior Intercollegiate football championship. The Red and White won the right to meet the Blue frosh by eliminating Loyola. The "kids" are improving with each game, and they should dispose of McGill quite handily.

* * *

While all eyes are focussed on the football classic this Saturday at the Stadium, things are beginning to hum in the hockey and basketball circles on the campus. Yesterday the Athletic Association announced the coaches and managers of the various Intercollegiate squads.

* * *

"Red" Porter will again coach the senior hockey team, and Frank Sullivan will be the junior mentor. Brock MacMurray, Jimmy Johnston, and Les Bowles will manage the seniors, intermediates and juniors respectively. The position of intermediate coach will be filled later.

* * *

Coach McCutcheon of the Varsity basketball squads will have three able managers to assist him. T. W. Major has the senior assignment and H. J. Spooner and G. W. Robson the intermediate and junior duties.

* * *

The Orfums travel to the Tunnel Town to play their last scheduled game of the season with Sarnia to-morrow. A victory for Varsity will not alter the standing of the group. The Imperials, as group winners, meet Balmy Beach on Saturday to determine the O.R.F.U. champions.

* * *

The biggest question on the campus is: Can Varsity defeat Queen's on Saturday. A Blue victory will necessitate a championship play-off next Saturday at either Montreal or London.

* * *

Coach "Ronnie" McPherson is letting no grass grow under his feet. The usual Monday lay-off has been discarded and the entire squad was out to the practice yesterday. Workouts this week are being held with the Stadium barred to all. The injuries to the players are fast healing and it is expected that everyone will be on deck Saturday.

* * *

The game in Montreal was not an exhibition of good football as far as Varsity was concerned. The weakest department in the team's play is the interference work. The line interference on Saturday was pretty wobbly; twice Varsity had the ball on McGill's five yard line, but couldn't gain a yard as the Blue line failed to provide holes for the ball carrier. "Ronnie" is spending a lot of time on this part of the play and the hoped-for improvement in the Blue machine should develop before the Tricolour invasion.

JUNIOR GRID MEN LEAVE FOR GAME

Came Through Saturday's Tussle in Fine Shape for Final Series

SIGNAL PRACTICE TO-DAY

The University of Toronto Junior Rugby Team enroute for Montreal to-night, where they will play McGill on Wednesday in the first of a home-and-home series for the Junior Intercollegiate Championship. The return game will be played here on Saturday morning. The team came through the game with Queen's in the best of shape and are feeling confident that they will give McGill a real fight for the championship.

At the practice held yesterday some new plays were introduced to the team which should be good yard gainers.

Hodgetts and Cutler, the half-backs, appeared to show no ill-effects of the game on Saturday, and they should give a good account of themselves. Mudge, the player who went in and played outside and made good, is sure of starting as a regular.

Just a light workout was held with signal practice the order of the day.

The team is working together like a well-oiled machine. They give great promise and there is much good material for next year on this junior team.

Lou Carroll deserves great praise for the painstaking efforts he has put forth in moulding this year's outfit.

VARSITY RUGGERS LOSE TO MCGILL

For the third successive year McGill has won the Intercollegiate British Rugby championship. Last Saturday, defeating Varsity 4-5, in Montreal, the Red and White rugger men increased the lead they gained here a week ago, and thereby clinched the title. The match was played on a field rendered very heavy by the recent rains, but the going was fast and furious from the first whistle to the last. A week ago the Varsity squad were slow and overwhelmed by the McGill teamwork, but on Saturday they combined just as well as the Red fifteen, and fought like demons. It was hard luck that the Blue squad did not win, for they certainly deserved it, keeping the McGill team tied up in their own half the greater part of the game. Two of the McGill touches were scored from runs extending from within their own 25 yard line, and one from the Red goal line where a Varsity fumble cost dearly. The game was very clean, but hard fought, and the second half, when the Blue and White were going all out to get over the line, saw several casualties.

Varsity's try came in the second half when MacLean scored after a run manoeuvred by Lee, who turned in a wonderful exhibition of tackling. Salter, playing behind Roome, opened up many attacks on the McGill line; he was well supported by MacLean and Rogers, who unselfishly passed out to their wingmen, Archbold and Lee, where many hard knocks were given and taken. It is not fair to pick out any of the forwards, for every man in the line gave all he had. Knowles, Brown, Garner and Telford were probably the outstanding ones.

Varsity—Fullback, MacKay; three-quarters, Archbold, MacLean, Rogers, Lee; halves, Roome, Salter, Garner; forwards, Knowles, Nash, MacFie, Telford, Alin, Brown, Wymburne.

WATER POLO CONTESTS END IN CLOSE SCORES

Victoria Juniors Defeat Meds. As Senior Meds. Tie School

Junior Vic defeated Junior Meds 1 to 0 in a close game at the Hart House tank yesterday in the interfaculty water polo series. The play was very even throughout the game. Davey, of Meds played a wonderful game in goal while Glass and Barrett were best for Vic. Line-up—

Vic—J. McLean, Gould, Cowle, Barrett, Edmison, Glass, O'Neill, Smith, King.

Meds—Bennett, Allen, Collinet, Rogers, Lambert, Sutherland, Davey, Williams and Fee.

The second match brought together Senior Meds and Senior S.P.S. The game ended in a tie, 3-3, although at half time the score was 3-0 for School.

Grant, Alexander and Pierdon were best for School, while Short and Dible played well for Senior Meds. The line-ups—

Senior Meds—Dible, Short, Blackwell, Irving, Thompson, Brennan, Peacock, Jackson.

Sr. S.P.S.—Ward, Grant, Liddle, Alexander, Gibbs, Broughton, Hicks, Pierdon, Murby.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE LOSE OPENING GAME

St. Hilda's Run Up Top-Heavy 56-13 Victory in U.T.S. Gym

Amidst rousing cheers and yells from the Trinity men, St. Hilda's College basketball team walked from the floor of the U.T.S. gymnasium with a score of 56-13 to their credit after defeating Household Science in the first game of the season. The Saints worked out some very effective plays. Fran Crooks, who played on the regular defence line last year, is now jumping for the team, and is as good, if not a better centre than she was a guard. The sidelines applauded the fast and intricate team work on the part of the blue and grey, who were kept right on their toes by the enthusiastic acclamations of the loyal, red-blazered Trinity supporters.

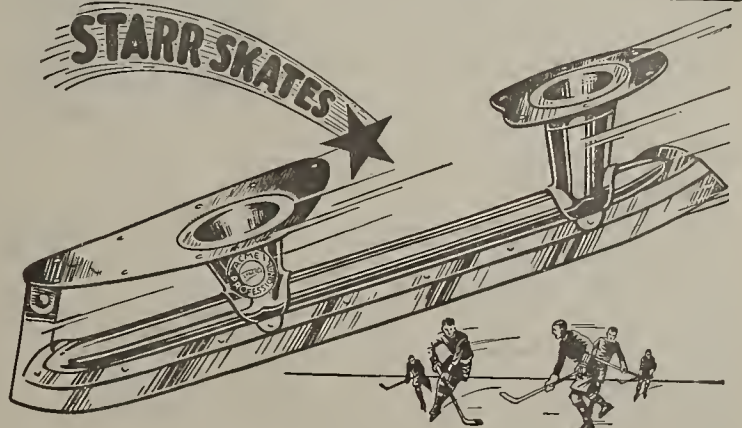

Trinity—J. Ward, Grant, Liddle, Alexander, Gibbs, Broughton, Hicks, Pierdon, Murby.

Introducing . . .

The NEW Starr "Acme" Professional Skate!

WHEN the old Starr Acme Skate was first introduced in the year 1868, it represented the first actual advance over the former wooden-topped skate which was bolted and strapped to the boot sole . . . and the fact that the Encyclopaedia Britannica has recorded this achievement is proof of its importance in the sporting world . . . it says "The next step in improvement was the Club Skate (Starr Acme Club), originating in Canada, a patent appliance adjusted by clamps to fit the boots."

. . . And now, it is with justifiable pride that the Starr Manufacturing Company, Limited, announce their new STARR ACME (Professional) Skate . . . which, they believe, is destined to take an even more prominent place in the skating world than did the old Acme of 1868. . . .

The new Starr Acme Professional Tube Hockey is a hockey skate de-luxe . . . hand finished . . . every operation in its manufacture is performed by expert workmen . . . the blade is of tool steel which seldom requires sharpening . . . reinforced tube, patented tube and cups welded and soldered to the runner . . . a better hockey skate, is not made.

Every Starr Skate is fully guaranteed

ST. MICHAEL'S WINNERS IN GIRLS' COURT TILT

Occupational Therapy Cagers Fall Short in Last Period Spurt

St. Michael's College girls were victorious over Occupational Therapy in a hard fought game of basketball last night by a score of 22-17. Half-time score was 14-6 for the Double Blue, but in the second half the winners' combination faltered badly, and Occupational Therapy staged an almost successful rally. It was due to sterling efforts turned in by the two defense players, Eileen Harrison and Pauline Bondy, and the centre, Loreto McGarry, that Occupational Therapy were held to as small a score as they were. Dot Burton and Marion Gibson were outstanding for the losers while Gert Ellis scored 6 points for them. Olive Macklin was high scorer for St. Mike's, registering 10 points.

John Knight To Sing At Organ Recital—headline in the Florida Alligator. Obviously a virtuoso of astonishing vocal ability.

PHARMACY DOWNS KNOX ASSUME SECOND PLACE

Theologs Receive Whitewash as Druggists Score Six Touches

Pharmacy defeated Knox by the decisive score of 30-0 in a Mulock Cup fixture yesterday, obtaining glorious revenge for their loss of a year ago. Their victory was as clear cut as the score would indicate. A peculiar feature of the game was the fact that all the points scored resulted from unconverted touchdowns. The Druggists set a near record for interfaculty competition when spectacular long runs carried the ball over the line for a major score on no less than six occasions.

Becket of Pharmacy was the best man on the field. Cain, his team mate, and Davidson and Glen of Knox showed up well.

Pharmacy—Clegg, Skurles, Becket, Wadland, Cain, Wilkinson, Moffat, Keating, Goldsmith, Brown, Walberg, Robb; alternates, Theal, Wolfe, Webber.

Knox—Glen, McCoy, Stuart, Barclay, Davidson, McDermott, O'Hara, H. Davidson, Wismer, Denver, Anderson, Row; alternates, Sales, Bush, MacDonald, Ritchie.

SCHOOL WINS PROTEST IN EXTRA SESSION

Jr. School took Jr. Meds into camp 2-0 yesterday in the twenty minute period which was granted when the former were successful in their protest. The time-keeper's watch stopped toward the end of the game played on October 25th. This allowed Meds to tie the score at 2-2.

School—Wheaton, Hallet, McNicol, Lichty, Muir, Moffat, Swallow, Mitchell, Coulter, Mabey, Bartholomew, Eastwood.

Meds—Dickson, Legatt, Graham, Murby, Hackner, Nichol, Mathers, Eager, Merritt, Vaughan, Marquis, Coleman; subs, Heller, Noble, Tait, Jackson.

WITH THE THEATRES

UPTOWN

Callo Callay; a silent movie! We thought they were extinct. "The Four Feathers" is strong stuff. The name of Faversham was synonymous with loyalty to the British Crown until there came a man who was afraid of being afraid. Richard Arlen portrays the young lieutenant who fought his fear and redeemed his honour in a series of hair-raising exploits. There is only a brief glimpse of Fay Wray, the colonel's daughter, who would only marry a soldier.

If you like outdoor scenes, you will like "The Four Feathers". It is a refreshing change from the indoor action of the talkies. And the spectacle of the maddened hippos is worth seeing. The fight between the British squad, and the "Fuzzy-wuzzies" is hot stuff.

S.A.C. CONSIDER CHANGE

sides is wholly imaginary and a relic of the Rooters' Club of former days. He is a member on the Students' Administrative Council and his chief duty is to supervise the cheer leading and he is in no way responsible for organizing the quality of the cheering as yesterday's editorial stated. The cheer leaders are selected through applications in the spring, but this year, due to no fault of his, the chief cheer leader was forced to resign and another was appointed late in the fall, thus upsetting any plans that might have been made.

The S.A.C. have apparently seen a weakness in this system and a motion is before the executive to abolish the office and adopt a new plan, for the apparent fallacy of one man being responsible for organizing university enthusiasm.

The difference between Western University and the University of Toronto was shown by Mr. Ward to be the difference in university spirit between the two due to several causes. Western is a small college in a small city, and quite united in spirit, whereas this university is composed of several faculties and colleges and is inclined to have more faculty spirit than general loyalty to alma mater. McGill is faced with the same situation as we are and has tried to cope with it in a similar manner with similar results. When they called a volunteer rooters' practice only a few people besides the cheer leaders turned up. "At present," Mr. Ward said, "each cheer leader receives at least one trip out of town," and he did not see how paid cheer leaders would solve the problem. Apparently the logical solution will be a return to the compulsory rooters practice, for in no other way can the present apathy in cheering be changed.

Student opinion seemed to back the main features of the editorial and the general opinion was that a change is needed. Some thought the cheer leaders at fault, but could not say why they did not encourage them with a little assistance.

The idea of paid leaders met with the disapproval of a few but most thought it would help considerably. All seemed to long for the days when Curly Graham was able to arouse the enthusiasm of the whole student section, but was unable to ascribe a definite cause to the existing lukewarm response.

A weak army comedy and a rather grotesque skit depicting whoopee in 1900 round out the programme.

P.E.U.

Platus Fails to Excite Cousin Eustace But Hart House Hulloo Has More Success

Our cousin Eustace craves the higher entertainment, so we told him to go to the Players' Guild. He dropped in the other evening. After an eagle-eyed lady had pried fifty cents from him at the door—he was raising a fund to extend something, he told us—he wasn't quite so enthusiastic about the performance.

"Rather vulgar," said Eustace when we asked him what it was like. "There was a fellow who seemed to be drunk, and a slave who was meant to be funny. I think it all ended happily."

"Who was it by?" we asked. "That's the worst of it," said Eustace pathetically. "The author was a bird by the name of Platus—one of these Romans, you know, and he is supposed to be rather famous. I didn't think it was much of a play."

Eustace doesn't often wax confidential, but he told us that his dramatic experience had been very limited. On one occasion, he pulled the curtain before a large audience just as the stage manager was busy tacking up the sky. After that had been forgotten, he distinguished himself by rushing out from the wings while a play was in progress, brandishing in his hand a beard, while he declared to one of the principals, "You've forgotten it."

Eustace is meeting some of the important people around the university. He told us about one of them who has an office in Hart House and says, "Hullo there!" every time he sees him. He is quite excited about it. We would never have thought it, but Eustace has joined a committee to protest against the lunch time line up in Hart House. Of course, he must have his food, but we were surprised to see him becoming an agitator.

Poor Eustace. He is sitting up late working to-night so he can attend the debate on Wednesday and see the game on Saturday. Yes, he is quite a football fan. He knows the difference between a safety touch and a rouge—but that is another story.

QUEEN'S DEAN OF WOMEN HEADED TORONTO SCHOOL

"Greetings to many old friends connected with the University of Toronto, especially former students of Glen Mawr," was the message given by Miss J. J. Stuart, acting Dean of Women, Queen's University, to a member of the women's "Varsity" staff spending the week-end at Ban Righ.

Miss Stuart, a graduate of Cambridge, has for several years been the capable principal of Glen Mawr, 651 Spadina Ave., Toronto girls' day and boarding school, and is now taking the place of Miss Hilda C. Laird, who is spending this year at the University of Munich in an intensive study of German.

Miss Stuart, who is a very busy woman, paused long enough to add she is finding her new duties a very pleasant responsibility.

Dear Sir:

After the Varsity-Queen's rugby game here I found a gentleman's gold ring which hasn't been claimed by anyone in Kingston. As this ring may belong to a Varsity fan who accompanied the team here, an attempt on your part may locate the owner.

I will mail the ring if satisfactory description is given.

Yours truly,
 W. L. Christie.

Mr. Cooper has achieved international prominence as an interpreter of wild animal psychology and latterly as a delineator of frontier life in Canada. His latest work, "Go North, Young Man, Go North", is an analysis of Northern Canada and its opportunities and won for itself an instant acceptance by critics as an unprejudiced and accurate portrayal of present-day conditions in the Dominion. Mr. Cooper has just returned to New York from a somewhat protracted trip through Canada in search of fresh material for both novels and articles, during which he travelled to Fort Churchill, on the Hudson Bay Railway. Mrs. Cooper, who accompanied him, was the first woman, outside of residents of Churchill, to travel entirely by rail to the new terminus of this grain road on the shores of Hudson Bay. (adv.)

CO-EDS CONSIDER HANDBOOK USEFUL

Map Useful When Walking Home; Aid to Out-of-Town Freshettes

SOME FIND IT TOO LARGE

The Students' Handbook was found yesterday to be generally popular and well appreciated among co-eds, if that has not already been proven by the rush for them at the beginning of the term.

"It's been my best friend this year. I use it for diary, engagement book, and account book," said one young lady (a senior), "and it's nearly worn out already. But I don't carry it round with me—I wouldn't want to; I keep it in my desk." One promising freshette declared that, "the first month a freshie's at college it's wonderful" and uses it for "everything under the sun."

As for its size, more than a few co-eds found it inconvenient. "It is bulky in your pocket, if you happen to be wearing something that has a pocket, and it ruins the shape of a person's pocketbook," was one opinion, although some girls carry it in their purses quite conveniently, it depends on the purse—and many wouldn't want to carry it all the time even if it were smaller and more convenient.

TABLES IN STACKS BANNED IN FUTURE FOR UNDERGRADS

Intended for Reference Work of Faculty and Graduates

STUDENTS OVERTAX SPACE

History Students Annoyed
When Forbidden to Use Desks

"The tables in the stacks of the library are intended for those who want to take notes and I don't want the undergraduates to come and use that place for continuous work," stated Mr. Wallace. "There is a reading room for that purpose."

However, some of the history students, who have found the reading room rather inconvenient for work that requires constant reference, have become much annoyed when there recently appeared a mandate in the form of neatly printed and thumb-tacked notices requesting the undergraduates not to use the desks in the stacks.

Sid Howell, IVth year U.C. thought "it was a wet idea because the stacks are the only quiet places to work."

Students have been using this limited space, originally intended for faculty members and graduates, to the exclusion of everyone else, and have been the cause of its being overcrowded, so that when members of the faculty desired to refer to some latest work they found that every available place was taken up.

IF HAUSFRAU GETS UPPISH CALL IT AMERICANISM

Americanization of Europe Dr.
Friedrich Schoenemann's
Theme

"If the cook leaves, if the hausfrau gets uppish, if a marriage ends up in the divorce courts, if newspapers become sensational, when you are in Germany call it Americanism and be on the safe side," said Dr. Friedrich Schoenemann in his address on the "Americanization of Europe" in West Hall last evening. Dr. Schoenemann went on to say that one of his colleagues in the University of Berlin even ventured to say that Mark Twain was responsible for the lowering of the German taste for good jokes. This is the attitude of the German public toward Americanism.

The speaker disclaimed all association with this view, having spent nine years in the United States. He explained that individuals in Germany passed through three stages with regard to American ideas; first they denounce, then they study, and lastly they imitate. However, the speaker maintained that Americanization could never be complete because the situations are entirely different; namely, in the United States raw material is cheap and labour expensive, whilst in Germany exactly the reverse is true.

The speaker alleged that the idea that Europe is a colony of the United States is absolutely ridiculous because the United States is interested in Europe only as a safe commercial investment, which attitude is never on a parallel with colonization. Germany has copied one custom from the United States to her advantage," he continued, "and that is the custom of democratic and universal education. But," he said, "absolute democracy is as impossible as 100 per cent prohibition in the United States."

HUMAN SACRIFICES ACCOMPANIED DEAD

Miss Ruth M. Home Declares
Bound Feet in China
Due to Men

DEAD VERY INFLUENTIAL

"Probably the origin of bound feet in China was due to men wishing to keep their wives from running away or to make them graceful," said Miss Ruth M. Home, yesterday in her lecture on "The Social Life of Ancient China" given at the Museum.

It was once the custom in China for the dead to be accompanied into the tomb by animal and human sacrifices of which the bereaved widows formed a willing part. The Chinese thought that their beloved dead continued a form of existence very close to this world and the necessities of life which were placed in the tombs furnish valuable information concerning ancient Chinese life.

As humane counsels prevailed clay models which by magical art were supposed to become animated, replaced the human sacrifices. The dead, too, might even return to life and had great influence on the living. They could bestow blessings, if given sufficient attention, or bring down curses if neglected.

"This might be very useful in examinations, for they might persuade the examiners to let students through or, on the other hand, might deprive students of their reason," Miss Home pointed out.

Hart House Debate

J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of the Canadian Press, and Joseph E. Atkinson, proprietor of the Daily Star, will attend the debate in Hart House to-night on the subject: "Resolved that, in the opinion of this house, Toronto deserves its reputation for intolerance." Members of the City Council have also been invited.

It is expected that the topics of discussion will range from free speech to the attitude of other Canadian cities on the question of Toronto's moral status and her athletic standing. For purposes of identification, those who wish to speak are asked to leave their names at the Warden's office.

Rhodes Scholarships

"Applications for the Rhodes Scholarships are more numerous this year than last," said D. R. Michener, Barrister, when called by "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon. November 15 is the last day for receiving applications. Mr. Michener said, and the election will be held then and the results announced in the last week of November.

"The Ferguson government has passed legislation making my economic research through provincial government records practically impossible," said Mr. J. A. Connors, secretary of the Toronto Labor Party in explaining to the Wynmwood meeting of the Fabius Club how government action had hampered his gathering of statistics to prove the interlocking of capitalistic directorates through parliamentary members. The control of business by the banks and the strong representation of business in the House of Commons were stressed by the speaker, who illustrated his remarks with intricate charts showing how fifty-one parliamentarians controlled three hundred and ninety-two of our greatest corporations.

Mr. Walter H. Billbrough, of third year C. and F. at Baldwin House, was elected president of the club at the reorganization meeting preceding Mr. Connors' address. Colonel Smythe States Aims "School men will be called upon to supervise," declared Colonel Smythe of the Technical Service Council yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Engineering Society in his "sermon" on Engineering Employment. Col. Smythe then proceeded to give a most interesting and valuable account of the council, its formations, functions and objects.

The council was formed in June, 1928, by men of the different industries and associations. Its objects are to retain for Canada young men of technical ability, to bring graduates into contact with industrialists, to acquaint university boards with the requirements of industry and to mutually aid employers and graduates in employment problems, both technical and scientific.

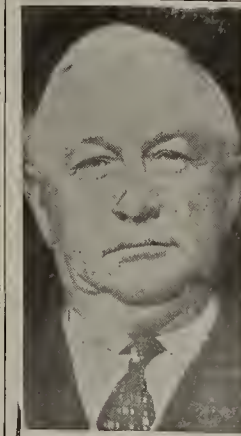

"The industry no longer demands only men of technical ability," continued—(Continued on page 3)

SECRET PRACTICES NOT YET EXPLAINED

Coach Denies Explanation Given by Downtown Paper on This Subject

QUEEN'S SUSPECTED

The secret practices being held by the Intercollegiate rugby squad this week have not been ordered on account of lack of support by the student body, Coach Ronnie McPherson told "The Varsity" yesterday, in denying the charges made by the Mail and Empire to that effect.

"While the students don't seem to care about supporting the team when it is down," Coach McPherson stated, "that's not the real reason why I ordered secret practices." He preferred, however, not to state why during this week students will not be allowed to witness the workouts at the Stadium.

"How about the Queen's boys coming down here and stealing the signals?" he was asked.

"They've done it before," was his only answer.

Coach McPherson pointed out that it was usually the older men who took the most interest in the practices, and that the students only were enthusiastic when the team was making a good showing. Not more than ten or fifteen men, he stated, had witnessed the workouts consistently.

The Mail and Empire, in discussing the holding of secret practices, says: "It is an apparent slap at the Varsity student body for its lack of support at the practices during the training season. Up until yesterday when everybody and his brother were out in force, the players paraded through their stunts with about eight loyal supporters looking on. The great Varsity spirit has always been at its best when the team is winning. If the team is down in the rack, you couldn't chase them out with a Gatling gun. The players did their best in practice, but somehow or other the college yell was muzzled, and the old enthusiasm was gone."

Hart House Debates Will Show
Student Opinion of Actions

INTELLIGENT DISCUSSION

Student Opinion is Equally Emphatic in Regard to Recent Suppression

"Toronto holds a very unenviable reputation for intolerance," said Prof. T. J. Meek, when questioned by "The Varsity" with regard to this evening's Hart House debate on that subject. "Chief Draper, in his attempts to vanquish Communism from Toronto, has flouted the constitutional right of free speech. Because the Communists wished to say something in which he did not concur, he resorted to force in order to suppress them. His strong arm methods have been bitterly resented everywhere, especially in Western Canada where feeling runs pretty high on the matter. Why, outside of Russia and Italy, such methods are unheard of!"

Asked whether he thought the debate was really worth while or whether the student body was just trying to play politics, Prof. Meek was very emphatic in his reply. "It will be gratifying to have some intelligent discussion on the subject, after all the trash that has been circulated in the papers. We in the university are constantly striving for freedom of speech and freedom of thought. We should therefore, express ourselves when this right is interfered with."

Undergraduate opinion was equally emphatic in its condemnation of police methods used to suppress Communist meetings in Queen's Park. "Chief Draper's actions have been absolutely outrageous," said J. Spector, Jr. Arts. "People have been sent to jail for less serious violations of the law than Chief Draper has committed. He has earned for Toronto a reputation for intolerance of which we cannot be proud."

"I think the idea of having four speakers instead of one is very good," said M. Wineberg, Arts. "Having four speakers prepare their arguments, assures a lively and intelligent discussion on both sides of the question. One speaker, especially in a debate of this kind, would most likely be prejudiced against one side. With regard to to-morrow night's debate, I don't think there is any doubt as to the outcome. Everybody is feeling pretty sore over the treatment meted out to the Communists."

CREAKING ARGYLL STAIRS EQUAL ALARM BELL

Residence Co-Eds Deny Rumor That Fire Escapes Prove Convenient Entrance

Strange rumours are being circulated that fire escapes have proven a convenient mode of entry for certain co-ed night-hawks of the university residences. It has even been suggested that housemothers and dons here might well adopt the tactics of the Nebraska housemother and instal an alarm bell on the fire-escapes, so as to check up on these prowlers.

The one drawback to the idea is that in most cases the outside stairs are unfortunately absent up to the second floor, so that the young lady concerned would have to do some "high stepping" to even begin her perilous ascent.

Miss M. E. Porter of Argyll House, when approached by "The Varsity", declared, "The stairs here creak, and that is as good as a bell any day." Queen's Hall residents are too much—(Continued on page 4)

USE OF POOL GRANTED AS SITTING OUT SPOT DURING MASQUERADE

Lighting Effects, and Fountain to Compensate for

FIVE ORCHESTRAS TO PLAY

Decorative Scheme of Rooms to Represent Universities
Cym Black and White

Final arrangements for the decoration of Hart House during the annual masquerade to be held on November 15th have now been completed by the House Committee, and many novel lighting and scenic effects have been devised to give the House a highly festive appearance.

The feature of the decoration scheme will be lighting effects and coloured panels representing various universities. The music room will be dedicated to McGill, the east common room with Indian panels will be given over to Western while Queen's will be appropriately honoured in the lecture room.

Sitting-out places will be provided in the upper gymnasium, the south common room and the pool, while the lower gallery is to be used as a rendez-vous. The use of the pool, "The Varsity" was informed, was obtained only on condition that there be no smoking there. Different colored rays, however, will shine on the water and a fountain will play under the gallery—(Continued on page 3)

CANADIAN LITERATURE SHOWS EXCELLENCE

"Ralph Connor", Katherine

Speak at Meeting

DR. PRATT READS EXTRACTS

"Canada has a bully fine literature and there is no reason to challenge our loyalty to it," said Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, Canadian rector of a New York church, an author himself, and unexpected guest at the mass meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association and Canadian Literature Club of Toronto, in Convocation Hall last night. "Our literature is too young to waste our time trying to select one or more members of the Canadian Valhalla and sweep the rest out into Billy Sunday's dust rag."

Since he spoke at the conclusion of the program, his remarks were well illustrated by the typical and varied works of the authors who had preceded him—works comprising that Canadian authorship which it is the purpose of the Literature Clubs to foster.

"Ralph Connor" censured the efforts of young people who felt no definite urge to write and had not had sufficient—(Continued on page 4)

Innovation At Tea

This year an experiment is being tried out by the committee in charge of the Faculty Teas at University College. Instead of having hostesses from any department, certain courses will be definitely represented at each tea, and students of these subjects are particularly urged to attend. To-morrow wives of members of the faculties of Household Science, Chemistry, Biochemistry, Anatomy and Physiology will receive and pour tea. Graduate students in these subjects are invited, as well as all U.C. undergrads.

PHONEY MOVIES

Since last season the cinema palaces have with a whoop and a hurrah burst into sound and noise. Up to the present "The Varsity" has not commented on the change. This admirable reticence cannot, frankly, be chalked up to the credit of the editors in the last great audit; as a matter of fact, the change from dumbness to sound effects took place when the editors were busy baffling the professors and preparing to peddle magazines. We intend, however, to take a fling at the squawkies before we graduate or are guillotined.

In order to prepare ourselves for the high calling which we knew awaited us in the fall, we made a point of viewing all the good shows and a lot of the bad ones, during the dog days, and we now feel qualified to pass judgment.

We call to mind the "Singing Fool", following which everyone went home to have a real good cry; the "Trial of Mary Dugan", which was hardly fit for the little ones, and would have offended the B. of G. if reviewed in these columns; the "Canary Murder Case", which taught us that a man who backs a poor hand in poker is likely to be a murderer; the "Broadway Melody" which ditched the deserving gal; "Weary River" with a boy scout as a penitentiary warden; "Black Watch" without a Swiss movement. . . . .

There was, in addition, the "Desert Song" with sand effects and cabaret scenes in a desert fort; "Follies of 1929" in which the proper parties reached the bright lights; "Dr. Fu Manchu" with a Scandinavian mandarin who aged not at all in thirty years, and called his family names out of a seed catalogue; "Old Arizona", an O. Henry plot extended through five reels; "Hole in the Wall" which expressed a belief in the return of spirits; "Cocoanuts", with worse puns than last year's Champus Cat; "Drag", with the hero, a newspaper man, carefully turning his back to typewrite, and then giving an imitation of a man executing ants on the kitchen table with one finger. . . . .

Also not to be forgotten was "Broadway Babies", in which the sugar pappa from Detroit relinquished his peaches to the faithful stage manager; "Dance of Life", which fooled all hands by sending the main characters back to small-time. . . . .

And so they go. As a whole, the talkies are not inferior to the usual run of silent films, though inanity of dialogue is likely to be added to feeble plots. Yet "Mary Dugan", "Broadway Melody", "Desert Song" and "Cocoanuts" were surely worth-while, providing exactly what the movies need—plots to which music and dialogue were essential adjuncts. . . . .

To some extent the sounds are helpful. We like to hear a train roar along, even if we suspect that the puffs are made with the tympani. But there is no reason why we should hear the hero expectorate as if someone had dropped a bucket. We must leave something to the imagination, and that was precisely the virtue of the silent film—it gave our imagination exercise. It is one thing to be at liberty to speculate that the leading man is saying " . . . *****" and quite another to hear the shocking thing bellowed from the proscenium. It is an intrusion upon one's rights as a private citizen.

And again, one has to be twice as clever to concoct a good talkie, because, in addition to plot, dialogue is needed—a dickens of a job to do properly. Speeches must be reasonable and natural, where a written title allows due leeway for artificiality.

Some critics believe that the cost of sound equipment and the natural reaction of the public will kill the talkie; others hold that the silent drama is done. What we advocate is the equation of the two. We hope to see Charlie Chaplin again in one of his pathetic comedies of pantomime, and Harold Lloyd in the hysterical rapidity of buffoonery which would only be impeded by noise; we should like to sit through the "Thief of Bagdad" and "Broken Blossoms" again while the orchestra—not a phoney, but a real one—plays tender themes.

On the other hand, we should hate to miss the "Wedding of the Painted Doll", sequence from "Broadway Melody", and the gripping "Trial of Mary Dugan" with essential voice effects.

Of course, silliness of plot is inevitable; consider that there are five first run houses in Toronto, requiring in all, a total of two hundred

STUDENTS' SEATS?

The Editor,

"The Varsity":

Dear Sir:

Isn't it about time that the students of the University got a look-in on the good seats for the big rugby game? After all, it is the students' stadium and the students' team, so why shouldn't there be at least a few of the good seats for us?

To those of us who are not fortunate enough to have friends in the inner circle it was very disappointing when after having stood in line for nearly two hours Tuesday morning we were informed that the seats in the big covered stand would not be put on sale to the students, nor were any of the better bleacher seats available.

How long, Sir, are we going to have to put up with such high-handed and bureaucratic methods on the part of the Athletic Directorate? The explanation can hardly be that there were no seats available because in the other intercollegiate games this season there has always been a fair supply of these seats for the early comers. But now when the most important game of the season comes along we have to take second best.

It is about time that a straightforward explanation of the situation was given by those responsible. At present they certainly leave the impression that the seats are either being sold to people downtown who have no connection with the University or are being reserved for those invidious individuals (expert in the intricacies of "wire-pulling").

Yours truly,
H. G. Steen,
IV. Vic.

WHOSE TICKETS?

November 5, 1929.

The Editor,

"The Varsity".

Dear Sir,

Something is rotten in the Athletic Office when bona fide undergraduates of the University of Toronto are forced to stand in line through the cold grey hours of early morning only to find when the wicket is opened at nine o'clock that no seats in the covered stands are to be put on sale and that the quantity of desirable seats in any portion of the field is not merely limited but is practically non-existent.

The widespread criticism which is already raging on the campus will doubtless be set down by the moguls of the ticket racket as the inevitable reaction of the disappointed to a situation which no one could help. But is it true that no one could help it? At the last Army-Navy game held at Soldiers' Field in Chicago in 1926, the entire seat sale was withheld from the general public until the students of both institutions had had their opportunity to obtain tickets. The surplus of the sale to the public was diverted to provide transportation for students from the East to Chicago. This sort of procedure shows a sense of proportion, a due respect for the needs of the very students without whom college football and its incident rah-rah and colour would not exist.

Who was it that had the privilege of gobbling up all the choice seats before the students even had a look-in yesterday morning? Is the dirty figure of graft raising its ugly head in the midst of that very department of university activity which has always been most jealous to maintain a spotless reputation? What is all this inane chatter about the legitimate demands of the alumnus and the interested outsider? The Athletic Directorate has not fulfilled its obligation to the undergraduate merely by offering him a season ticket. The undergraduate's legitimate pride in his Alma Mater is bound to find expression in his desire to attend games—especially the Game of the Season—in company with a group of enthusiastic friends or relatives. These people are willing to

VARSITY JUNIORS PLAY FIRST OF FINALS AT MCGILL TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Women's basketball is at last well under way, half a dozen games being scheduled for this week. St. Hilda's got well away on Monday, when they overwhelmed Household Science in one of the first games of the interfaculty tournament. But this is the first time Household Science have entered a team and in coming up against the Saints they had some stiff opposition.

* * *

The U.C. freshe team is also an innovation and their clash with Senior for a good freshe team from high school basketball ranks.

* * *

The U.C. women's swimming team is strengthened by some speedy freshies this year, while Margot McDonald, Betty Holton and Mary Wyndow are still on the job. It looks as though U.C. may hope to repeat last year's performance and pull down the interfaculty swimming trophy.

to compensate for any restrictions upon the guests' freedom.

All the decoration work, it was stated, has been done by Toronto artists, some of whom are pupils of Mr. Arthur Lismer.

Five orchestras will provide the music for the dancers. A twelve-piece band will play in the big gymnasium, while the other four will be distributed in the various common rooms.

The big gym itself will be set out in black and white, and varied color lights will illuminate the room. The court yard, it was stated, will be illuminated also but will not be open for sitting-out.

VARSITY FACES MCGILL MEDETTES DEFEATED IN JUNIOR RUGBY BY FAST U.C. JUNIORS

First of Home-and-Home Series in Eastern Canada Junior Intercollegiate Finals

TEAMS WELL MATCHED

The Varsity junior rugby squad face the McGill thirds to-day at the Molson Stadium. This is the first of a home-and-home game series in the Eastern Canada junior intercollegiate playoffs for the title. On the dope there is little to choose from between the two teams. The blue and white displayed championship form when they eliminated the strong Queen's outfit, taking both games, and Coach Lou Carroll appears to have rounded his freshmen into real contenders. In Hodgetts they have a kicker who compares with any in junior company and who is also a first-class ball-carrier. Cutler and Litowitz on the half line are fast and tricky and can be expected to star against the Montreals.

The Redmen, on the other hand, can be counted on to make the series a real struggle from start to finish. This is the first group championship they have won in many years and this season's squad is claimed to be strong in all departments.

The return game will be played at the local stadium next Saturday morning and will be well worth seeing regardless of the outcome of to-day's struggle.

If the locals win out in the series it is likely that they will continue on in quest of the Dominion title.

WOMEN'S BASEBALL TO START NEXT WEEK

U. C. Hopes to Obtain Title Which Vic Has Held Last Two Years

ST. MIKE'S ENTERS LEAGUE

With the women's interfaculty baseball league opening immediately after Thanksgiving the coaches are all working their teams very hard.

U.C. has excellent prospects this year. They have a great find in their pitcher, Marion Shadle, a freshe.

Helen McKinley, Frances Dale, Wilma Hazlett and Phyllis Ferguson of last year's team are out again and with these players U.C. will have a really smart infield.

Christine Elmslie, whose timely hitting was a feature of last season's games, is not out yet this year but U.C. is still hoping that she will change her mind about playing, for she is greatly missed.

Vic carried off the title last year for the second consecutive time and on advance notices should have a strong team again this year. Daisy Quance, their star pitcher, is very steady and she also holds her position extremely well.

Very little is known about St. Mike's as yet. They are coached by Ruth Huggins, a St. Mike's grad and former member of the Athletic Directorate, who is now at O.C.E. St. Mike's have not had contending teams for the last two or three years, but Lorenzo McGarry and Willie Ann Luckett have been granted permission to play baseball as well as basketball and this should strengthen the teams considerably.

INDUSTRY DEMANDS TACTFUL LEADERSHIP

timed the speaker, "but now requires men with ability for tactful leadership." This, he believed, could be developed in men who would be careful in their choice of proper industry, choose a reliable firm, accept the position most similar to their choice, do anything asked by the firm and forget the future.

Good Passing and Shooting Marks First Game of Women

FACULTY SERIES BEGINS

The U.C. juniors defeated the Meds women 48-18 last night at the Lillian Massey gym in their first basketball game of the season.

The Medettes showed a good fighting spirit and although they were rather at a loss before the splendid team work of the juniors, their play improved decidedly in the last half of the game. Lack of co-operation more than anything seemed to be their trouble.

Some very fine bits of passing as well as a steady line of good defence and shooting marked the game put up by the juniors.

Lots of encouragement was given the Medettes by the cheers of their supporters who lined the side of the gym.

The players were as follows:

U.C. Juniors — Forwards, Wilma Hazlett, Louise Carroll; side centre, Bessie Lowry; guards, Lorraine Harvey, Betty Thomas; sub, Mary Lackey; coach, Phil Griffiths.

Meds — Forwards, Vera Peters, Miriam Brick; guards, Marguerite Brown, Chris Fraser; centre, Bliss MacQuarrie; side centre, Vi Henry; coach, Vi Anglin.

CORRESPONDENCE

travel many miles for the chance. They intrust the purchase of their tickets to the student, believing that he surely — of all people — will be certain of procuring entrance to an affair which is so peculiarly his. I submit that the student has very definite rights in this regard; rights which yesterday were ignominiously side-stepped by those responsible for the mode of procedure now in force.

I do not in any way blame those people in the Athletic Office whom the frantic efforts of a hectic yesterday left in a complete state of exhaustion; but I do most earnestly submit that there is something radically wrong with the system of ticket sales and apportionment now in operation, that there is a mistaken conception on the part of officials of the rights of undergraduates, and that certain very definite allegations which are being made in student circles demand an instant reply.

Yours, etc.,

A. Allan,

DENTS CONQUER SR. MEDS IN MULOCK CUP FINAL

Dents Had Decided Edge; Sinclair Stars; Score 6-1

Dents, lead by the redoubtable Eddie Sinclair, conquered Sr. Meds yesterday afternoon in their final Mulock Cup game by the score of 6 to 1. Dents showed the dash and pep of a team of seasoned veterans and the game was never in doubt. For Dents Sinclair was the best, being the point scorer on every occasion. Campbell and Jolosky were also quite effective. Meds certainly tried hard at all times and deserved a higher score. Their best players were Robinson, Leyton and Johnston.

Dents — Conn, Kush, Campbell, Sinclair, Jolosky, Cook, Mitchell, Brown, Gibson, Wylie, Purdy, Milne.

Sr. Meds — Robinson, Layton, Johnston, Bull, Ebbs, Dunn, Lee, Parsons, Kergin, Weamsley, Beef, Nott, Scandiffio, Givens, Brown.

Uncle Ned Dilates Upon The Great Moral Questions of University Life

By G. G. Brooks

Dear Uncle Ned,
 I have been reading a great deal in "The Varsity" and elsewhere recently about the composition and processing of Hart House soup. Is it true that various rodents, reptiles, insects, and beasts go into the composition of that delectable concoction?

Hot Stuff.

Dear Hot Stuff,
 I might have known from your elegant style that that letter was from you. But why bring that up?

Uncle Ned.

Dear Uncle Ned,
 Can you give me any suggestions for a costume for the Hart House masquerade? I would like to get some really original costume so I can get a prize. I have thought and thought, and I'm still thinking. Please give me a few suggestions.

Riff-Raff.

Dear Riff-Raff,
 Now you are asking questions! I have been thinking too, but I haven't had the nerve to use any of my ideas.

TICKET SALE SYSTEM UPHELD BY DIRECTOR OF ATHLETIC OFFICE

Criticisms Termed Unfair and Unjustified by Members of Directorate

EXPLANATIONS GIVEN

Each Student in Line is Given Opportunity to Buy Four
Tickets

That the criticism of the system of ticket sale for the game on Saturday expressed in letters printed in the correspondence column yesterday were unfair and unjustified was the opinion expressed by members of the Athletic Directorate when approached by "The Varsity" on the question last night. Beyond that they said that they would be glad to explain the system of allotment personally to anyone who wished such explanation.

According to T. A. Reed, the Athletic Director, seats in the covered stand are all allotted to season ticket holders and members of the teams, with the exception of a large block held for supporters of the visiting team, and two sections at the ends of the stand which were kept for open sale. The best seats in the stand went to those who had held them for nine years or more continuously and the preference graded down to one year holders. Undergraduates holding the regular season tickets were granted four year standing.

In the open stand there are 1600 seats covered by Alumni tickets, 950 by full season tickets, and 1598 by student season tickets.

In regard to the line-up on Tuesday, Mr. Reed informed "The Varsity" that there were only about 150 students lined up, and that each one was given the opportunity to purchase four tickets. When the line-up was disposed of there still remained a considerable number of tickets which were disposed of during the day to

DONNING OF GOWNS A TERRIBLE NUISANCE

Various Opinions of This Garb
Expressed by Co-Eds
During Gown Week

THEORETICALLY GOOD

"Why not make it compulsory to wear gowns in University College?" asked several co-eds when approached on the subject of gown week by "The Varsity". "The trouble is half of us don't own gowns, but we'd buy them if we had to."

"Surely we don't need to freeze to death just so we can appear academic," said Frances Bechtel, second year Commerce and Finance, when "The Varsity" asked her opinion on the subject.

"And what's more, someone might think you were from St. Hilda's!" explained one smart co-ed when she heard the above remark.

A former Queen's student, Margaret Cavin, said, "Wearing gowns is a terrible nuisance. You're always changing from a coat to a gown or vice versa and it certainly doesn't help you to get to lectures any sooner."

A freschette, Margaret Dunham, summed it up this way. "Theoretically it may be all right, but practically it doesn't seem to work."

DON'S BEARD STAYS DESPITE COMMENTS

Old Order Not Yet Changing to Give Place to
The New

BEARDS ARE DISTINCTIVE

"No, I have not decided to cut off my beard," said Professor A. St. E. De Champs, "as yet." Professor De Champs was quoted in the Daily Star last evening as saying that he intended taking this drastic step.

"What was very common in the way of beards, when I first came to Toronto 33 years ago is now considered very striking," said Professor De Champs in his interview with "The Varsity".

"Every professor in the university had a beard in those days, and it appears that I am the only one of the old order that is left. This makes me a rather striking figure perhaps, as the only full-bearded professor on the campus."

Commenting on the great change during the last quarter of a century Professor De Champs said, "It seems that we must all look exactly alike, now."

Asked if he did not think that the removal of his beard would cause him to be no longer the unique figure and personality that he is on the campus, Professor De Champs stated that he was perhaps too unique a figure.

"People in Toronto, not being overly considerate, do not seem to like my appearance," he said, "and I constantly hear comments on it. When I first came here I could go anywhere in Toronto and no one took any notice of my beard, but now it is considered very unusual."

The I.O.D.E. Scholarship, won last year by Miss Mary Coleman, '29 Vic., has been awarded this year to Miss K. H. Coburn, B.A., who graduated from Victoria College in 1928, tying for first place in the Philosophy and English course, and winning one of the regents' gold medals. She is Interviewed last night by "The Varsity", Miss Coburn said that she had not yet decided at which university she would study, as under the terms of the scholarship she could attend any one she wished. She expressed her intention of doing work in English and Philosophy. The scholarship will become effective next fall.

Undergrads' Bludgeons and Rapier-thrusts Oppose Each Other at Hart House Debate

By N. J. D., B. D. B.

The Debate, as usual, provided an object lesson in man's inhumanity to man. There is nothing in the world more cruel than an undergraduate body in a critical mood.

Example of Hart House sophistry in the best traditions:

Mr. Dignan: "... I humbly beg the Speaker's apology ..."

Mr. Speaker: "The Speaker never apologizes ..."

The members of Hart House surely owe a debt of gratitude to their Committee, in that a sample of debating as practised by experts was imported. We trust that it will be a lesson to the members of the House.

PROFESSOR PAYS TRIBUTE TO GREAT FRENCH POET

Declares Paul Valery's Works
Worth Reading Fifty Times Over

"It would have taken the police a quarter of an hour to re-establish order, had I made this statement in France," said Professor MacKay, who while speaking last night on modern French poets at the U.C. French Society, declared he believed Paul Valery to be the only French poet. "He is the only one who merits a speech, and even if there were others, I haven't read them."

Professor MacKay went on to say: "At first it is difficult to see anything but the music and the richness of his verses. They must be read five times, perhaps fifteen, perhaps fifty. But it is worth the trouble. He doesn't want his poems to be easily understood—he writes for the few who are willing to work to understand him. Paul Valery's only fault is that he does not write in Latin."

SKIT MAY BE SHOWN AT SATURDAY GAME

Nine S.P.S. Men Set Precedent
By Being Temporarily
Bashful

AND SAY NOTHING!

A thick fog of mystery surrounds the rumour that certain ambitious quarters are planning to present a half-time skit at the Varsity-Queen's fiasco on Saturday. Authorities refuse to divulge the names of the merry Thespians and the nature of the antics they are preparing to enact before the fans.

Mr. A. Gordon Burns admits that the troupe consists of nine S.P.S. students residing in South House. "They are anxious to avoid advance publicity, preferring to keep their offering a surprise. They have put on some very successful skits in the past, so I think that this one ought to be good."

With a smile that confirmed the suspicion that he has something up his sleeve, Mr. Ross Workman laconically declared, "I'm not making any statements about this. I don't even know what it's all about. However, there is no doubt that the fans are in for some rare entertainment."

At South House, stolid silence greeted the attempts to gain information on the form of the entertainment. However it was learned that a group of nine students, most of whom are in Engineering, have been working for the past few days on a skit.

"There is nothing to say on the subject," said K. J. Joyner, who is in charge of the affair, "except that we are planning a skit. It is not customary to tell in advance what is being done, as it is usually sprung as a surprise."

Hart House Great Hall Opens Late on Friday Noon

On Friday, November 8, lunch will not be served in the Great Hall or in any of the dining rooms of Hart House until after 12.30 p.m. This ruling has been passed by the Board of Stewards in co-operation with those concerned in order that the Armistice services might be completed without interruption on the part of Hart House.

Motion Sustained By Vote of 211 to 56

IRONY, SARCASM

Rev. Dr. Bland and
Mayor Also Speak

Last evening the members of Hart House debated on the question "that in the opinion of this house Toronto deserves her reputation for intolerance." The motion was sustained by a vote of 211 to 56. The question was moved by T. V. Kennedy, St. Michael's. Mr. Kennedy traced Toronto's intolerant acts from the imprisonment of Rabbi Gourolay in 1811 to the Battle of Queen's Park last summer. The three cordons of policemen used in the latter affair reminded Mr. Kennedy of the lines of Torres Vedras.

J. C. Clough of Trinity followed from the Opposition side. He cited numerous instances of Toronto's tolerance from electing a rebel as the first mayor to tolerating General Draper as police chief. Communists were preaching sedition, blasphemy and slander. (Cries of no! no!)

C. L. M. Douglas of Trinity, speaking for the motion, attempted to prove conclusively that this city is intolerant, referring to its week-long Sunday, and stating that the house would show its intolerance if it defeated the motion.

J. H. Burton of University College wound up the list of regular speakers. He spoke scathingly of the coffee shop intellectuals who accused the city of all sorts of things and said that he thought good morals paramount in importance. He lauded Cromwell's statue smashers and expressed the opinion that tolerant races came to a bad end. During Mr. Burton's long pauses, cries of louder were heard.

The motion was then thrown open for discussion and G. O. Murrell, Wright, B. A. Dignan, Earl Lautenslager, J. R. Caldwell, D. Gordon, J. N. Higginbottom, Prof. G. H. Brown, P. C. B. Fisher, B. D. Beamish, S. T. Fisher, F. H. Clayton, H. R. S. Ryan, and C. L. Coburn were heard. During this time Mayor McBride arrived.

Rev. Dr. Salem G. Bland, a frail white-haired figure, arose to speak. When he came to Toronto he said, it was with the assurance that he would not stay, as it was said to be an intolerant city. He was still here, but he

Disdaining to seek shelter behind the chaste asterisk, the courageous Editor of the University Daily Kansan comes right out in the open and heads an editorial with—"To Nebraska With the Band."

An item in the Society column of the dignified Queen's Journal describes the hospitable reception given an Arts frosh who visited the Anatomy Building, sanctum sanctorum of the Medical Faculty at Queen's. He was encouraged to remove his coat, also his vest and pants, which were immediately thrown out the window, and was then immersed in a tank, "quaintly decorated in its interior with a few choice specimens of prehistoric men in various stages of dismemberment," and "highly reminiscent of a charnal house at rash hours when a plague is at hand."

"IF THE SHOE FITS . . . ."

The facetiousness of the output of the youthful intelligentsia of this University is becoming more obnoxious with each new number of our college publication.

True literary work requires cerebral animation to the extent of a harmonious combination of the King's English. The concentration exhibited by articles which have appeared this fall is neither wide nor deep; and any real thinking that has been done is so cloaked and concealed with glib remarks and pointed innuendoes, that its value is lost.

Although a great part of the vocabulary and construction used can be technically termed "the King's English", His Royal Highness would shrink from admitting even a speaking acquaintance with the slang and drivel sometimes attributed to him.

The root of the trouble seems to be first, that the speed of the world-to-day brands a man who stops to think with the zeal of the scholar—a zeal unwelcome because it implies intellectual preoccupation and pseudo-social ostracism. Secondly, that the present attitude is adopted through sheer laziness, and evasion of the actual task of thinking. Thirdly, that the low standard of present writing is the result of a satisfied ego that views its handiwork as the ultimate of perfection. Such a sad situation could be quickly remedied by the realization of undergraduate writers that much can be gained by the study of well-known examples of English literature; and the expansion of vocabularies, if necessary, by the hunderd perusal of the well-known Webster's.

A prominent Canadian professor once assigned one fairy story a week to his English class, and it was such a successful innovation that other English departments followed the example. Doubtless a few of the self-elected cynics of the youthful "Litterate" would find such a program advantageous both to their imagination and their cynicism.

UNDERGRADS' BLUDGEONS AND RAPIER-THRUSTS

T. V. Kennedy invoked history, but seemed to pick mostly on incidents of expressed political opinion. However, some of his points were never answered.

J. C. Clough, feels that progress is tolerance, in an exhibition of the Trinity style at or near its best.

C. L. M. Douglas spoke with reason. As far as the actual matter of tolerance went, he was almost entirely unanswered.

The delicate platonism of F. Burton was more enjoyable than germaine. There is a distinction between what should be and what is.

The Chair was often in a delicate position. Religion popped in and out of the discussion, to be caught and forbidden only occasionally.

The House has purred to the outpouring of reason of many a luminary; the House has cheered, the House has hooted, stamped its feet, shouted "Why?" "Who?" but never before has the House split into sides to roar down battling champions.

It was supposed that the Queen's Park epoch would be the principal bone of contention of the debate, but not a member of the House plainly denounced or plainly defended it; this was left for visitors.

GRACES OF "SAINTS" MAKE ANNUAL SALE BIG SUCCESS

Fortune-Telling, Pond-Fishing, Pennants, Crests, Sweets in Demand

Various auctioneers held the floor yesterday afternoon at the close of the St. Hilda's College Annual Sale when different articles, both ornamental and eatable were sold to the highest bidder. Excitement ran high and each person present tried to outbid his neighbour.

During the afternoon, very chic waitresses in black and white aprons and frilled caps gave prompt service to the patrons of the Tea Room. From table to table there moved picturesque figures revealing the mysteries of the future with the aid of tea-cups while fortune-telling by cards was well patronized in the Common Room.

The Fish Pond was always surrounded by people trying their luck, but sometimes it failed when men got such things as perfume and hair-nets. Candy, as usual, was in great demand and, although there were no children present, the all-day suckers vanished as if by magic.

The very smart St. Hilda's and Trinity pennants were quickly sold, as were the articles on the Art Table bearing these college crests.

Alas, we fear that, if this sort of thing continues, the easy casual air of Hart House will give way to sincerity and thunder.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

November 6, 1929.

The Editor, "The Varsity", Dear Sir:

It is with profound regret that we read in this evening's Star of the recent decision of Professor de Champs with respect to the very distinctive beard which has been familiar to so many generations of students. We feel, Mr. Editor, that in the case of such a popular don, a student plea for the reconsideration of such a move as the drastic measure proposed need not be thought indelicate.

From one's first entrance into the university, Professor de Champs is one of the most outstanding and distinguished figures whom one sees on the campus. Surely, we all regret the gross discourtesy and unfortunate demonstration of provincialism which has forced the gentleman to consider the shaving of his beard. Is it necessary for a professor to look like a rosy-faced bank clerk in order to escape the puerile comments of passers-by? . . . comments which, in all probability, are occasioned by a certain element of jealousy. Indeed, were it not for lack of backbone, many beards might appear about the campus.

Therefore, Mr. Editor, let us in all sincerity and seriousness, add our encouragement to the feeling which has prompted Professor de Champs to maintain for so many years one of the few distinctions which our university can boast in a day of depressing standardization and soi-disant efficiency.

Yours, etc., Five Men of 3T1.

The Table Round

That Mr. Julian Green must, as a creator of fiction be ranked with Poe and Dostoevsky, has been the exclamation of at least one critic upon reading "The Dark Journey", a work whose depth of tragedy and fineness of delineation has caused its author to be declared the winner of the Harper Prize Novel Contest for the current year. And although one feels that this is a rather hasty statement to make of a young man who, in "The Dark Journey" has only published his third novel, the furor aroused by its appearance in France commands our attention.

Without question its deep psychological insight, its appalling tragedy, and its sheer beauty of description entitle it to be styled a work of genius. The point, however, at which the controversy over Mr. Green's work has no doubt arisen, is in the emotional experience of the characters themselves. Guert, Madame Londe, the Grosgeorges, Angele, are, as Mr. Oliver Way claims in the London Graphic, utterly abnormal, and sexual frustration (which is the main theme of "The Dark Journey") is in their cases allowed to have a devastating and calamitous outcome.

Now this criticism of the abnormality of the characters is to a certain extent justified. An unhappily married tutor, a stupid laundry girl, a procurer, and a rich and bored married woman—all these are fit subjects for the delineation of abnormal tendencies. But it may well be that these characters are not so abnormal as the critics suppose.

To construct a working definition of normality we might say that it is the ability of man to adapt himself in a more or less satisfactory way to a given set of circumstances or a given environment. Now the characters in "The Dark Journey" exhibit the painful results of frustration simply because they cannot adapt themselves to their rather commonplace circumstances. They sit down and brood over their misfortune until despair compels them to some criminal action. And they all brood introspectively largely because they have no moral or religious theory of existence upon which to fall back in time of adversity. Madame Londe, for example, "thought only of Heaven in happy moments. Now she considered that she had been betrayed by that God who was said to be just and who amused himself by elogging the well-oiled wheels of her commonplace existence." Even Angele, the victim of the procurer, at times "ragged against God who allowed such tragedies."

CHAMPUS CAT

The debate is over, and while we feel 211-56 that we are in an intolerant milieu, it is a safe bet that the Lecture Hall will never replace the Bandstand as a place of historic siege.

Rest assured, members of the Debating Society, your progress will never be impeded by a triple line of Boys in Blue.

The Queen's Park Salient has been extended, but invisibly.

As a visitor, we hoped to see some of the undergraduate orators cover themselves with the pendants of verbal brilliance; they emitted only a few, faint, feeble glimmers. It remained for the professional politicians, to whom debate is a business and not an experiment, to show the embryo Churchills how to be forceful if prejudiced.

Jimmy Simpson's story of the Finn who was arrested as a Communist on account of his wife's Finnish cook book was worthy of at least 20 votes.

People do not mind much what you say so long as you amuse them. Bernard Shaw discovered that lucrative fact some decades ago.

It seems funny to don the old Cat's whiskers just for one evening again. Laff hard while you're here, boys and girls, there's not much to laff at outside.

BOTH TEAMS PREPARE FOR RUGBY CLASSIC

Three Varsity Players Are Recovered From Hurts and Will Play

QUEEN'S IS CHEERFUL

The Queen's-Varsity game here is being regarded as the football classic of the season. The Tricolour won on October 12, but indications are that Varsity now at full strength, will succeed in tying up the Union.

In the last encounter the Big Blue line showed its superiority over the Tricolour by moving the sticks ten times to their three. It was a different story on the backfield. Jack Sinclair was forced out of the game and Carter's toe helped settle the game in the last few minutes of play. "Sine" showed his wares against McGill last Saturday by kicking two great field goals and punting the pigskin for as much as sixty yards. Queen's aerial attack may not be quite as effective Saturday. Reports from the Limestone City are that Carter is kicking for seventy-five yards and Gilmore is dropping long distance goals with perfect despatch. However, Sinclair at his best should be a match for both.

Don Wood and "Thunderbolt" Harrison have showed up in uniform to the "secret" practices, but have not engaged in heavy scrimmage work as yet. But they will be sure starters on Saturday, as both are rapidly recovering from their injuries. Captain George Morgan will be on deck, having completely recovered.

Football talk down at Queen's is unusually cheerful this week. Coach "Red" Batstone has all his men out; no one is reported as being unable to start this Saturday. Carter, Britton, Sutton, and Stuart are working away hard, and the team, contrary to press reports of previous games, is at full strength.

St. Michael's College Alumnae were the hosts to the students of Loretto and St. Joseph's at a bridge party held at St. Joseph's College last night.

Assisting their teacher, Mme. H. Lasserre, to give a demonstration of the Danlosse method of Eurythmics at Amesley Hall last night, three accomplished young pupils so successfully enthused the interested audience that many of the onlookers afterwards emulated the dancers to the best of their ability.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Next to the mystery of where all the good tickets went, the chief concern of the Varsity supporters is the Blue's possibilities of downing the fast-travelling Tricolour on Saturday. The experts are very loath to pick a winner for this "battle of the century". Queen's however, on their record, are likely to enter the game slight favourites. However, those who saw the first Varsity-Queen's clash must admit that McPherson's men gave as good as they received that time, and might have pulled out a victory had Jack Sinclair been able to go the route.

* * *

Reports from each camp indicate that both teams will field their strongest line-ups and there will be no chance for alibis from either team after the game. The Blue and White have been practicing hard all week behind barred doors and are rounding into their best form of the year. The Blue team is very keen to avenge that defeat at Kingston. What a wonderful week-end it will be if they do.

* * *

Once again Varsity's smart little junior football outfit have demonstrated that they are the class of the Intercollegiate series. The juniors piled up a 17 point lead yesterday at McGill in the first of home and home games for the Intercollegiate Junior Championship. There does not seem to be much doubt now as to who will be Queen's successors to the junior championship throne.

* * *

Yesterday at Sarnia the Varsity Orfuns completed this season's schedule taking another defeat from the group leaders. The Orfuns have been disappointing this year and have never really seemed to get going. They always gave their best, however, and next year with additions from the Juniors and Intermediates should show the way in their group once more.

S.P.S. AND VICTORIA LEAD IN WATER POLO

Meds Make Their Place in Junior Series by Defeating Trinity

In an interesting water polo game yesterday at the Hart House tank, Jr. Meds defeated Trinity 2-0. Allen and Bennett scored for Meds. As a result of their victory Meds are now in third place. Line-ups:

Meds — Bennett, Allen, Cullinen, Rogers, Lambert, Sutherland, Williams, Davies and Watt.

Trinity — MacDonald, Hunt, Chapple, Lerent, Winyard, Cuttill, Rea, Chambers and Mervyne.

Standing of teams:

SUBSTITUTES WIN 6-0 FROM VARSITY ORFUNS

Sarnia Imperials Save Star Players for Balmby Beach Play-Off

TEAMS PRESS HARD

Special to "The Varsity" Sarnia, Nov. 6th—Varsity Orfuns closed their 1929 season with a loss to the Sarnia Imperials in the Tunnel Town yesterday, 6-0. The game had no bearing on the group standing as Sarnia clinched first place last week.

The home team took no chances with the play-off game with Balmby Beach on Thanksgiving Day, and the local board of strategy presented a substitute team on the field.

Play was even for the greater part of the first quarter with both teams playing an aerial game. Before the whistle blew for the first quarter, Richardson fumbled Warren's punt near his own goal line and Sarnia secured for a touch, which was not converted. First quarter: Sarnia 5, Varsity 0.

For Varsity, Bennett, Dickson and Scott starred with McPhedran and Warren the best of the Imperials. The line-ups:

Varsity — Flying wing, Bennett; halves, Richardson, McLeod, Levinsky; quarter, Twatts; snap, McCullough; insides, Lazenby, Henderson; middles, Stringer, Scott; outsides, Baker, Knowles; subs, Monkhouse, Adams, Wright, Mueller and Dickson.

Sarnia—Flying wing, Stirret; halves, McPhedran, Vanhorne, L. Perry; quarter, Warren; snap, Ewen; insides, Wilson, Blalock; middles, Baker, Welch; outsides, McLean, Burwell; subs, Dale, Scharfe and Bevan.

RARE AND VALUABLE BOOKS POSSESSED BY LIBRARY

Besides the books in general use, there are in the university library many rare and valuable old volumes. Among these are twenty-two "Incunabula" books, that is, books printed in the very infancy of the industry. There is a volume of Livy printed in 1478, a missal printed in Bamberg, Bavaria, in 1499 which contains some extremely beautiful illuminated capitals and a unique manuscript of Greek Gospels of the late eleventh or early twelfth century.

One volume of particular interest is a first edition of Addison's Spectator. About ten thousand volumes are added to the library each year to accommodate the constantly increasing student demand.

Second year University College held their first class party of the year at the Women's Union last night. A

JUNIORS KILL HOPE OF MCGILL FOR TITLE

Varsity Team Takes Redmen Into Camp For 18 to 1 Victory

RETURN GAME HERE

By T. I. Levine, McGill Daily

Molson Stadium, Montreal, Nov. 6—McGill hopes for a rugby title this fall were given a severe jolt to-day when the Red clad juniors succumbed disastrously to Varsity, 18 to 1 in the first of the two-game series for the Junior Intercollegiate football championship. In virtue of their win, the blue and white enter the second and last tussle next Saturday at Toronto with a seventeen point lead that will be hard to overcome and consequently are here considered favorites to take the round.

To-day's game was by no means an exhibition of football on the part of McGill. In fact the Redmen played throughout the 60 minutes with fumbles and misplays dogging their steps. The Varsity squad was quick to take advantage of the "breaks" and rolled up a large score, although the relative playing merits of both squads were equal.

The forward pass which was being used during the game proved of little advantage to either team.

Bernie Hodgetts, of the Blue juniors was the star of the game, his punting alone accounting for seven of the Blue's points.

McGill—Flying wing, Fyche; half backs, Bell, Sellar and Johnson; quarter, Newton; snap back, Black; insides, Kaufman and Christmas; middles, Mullaly and Henry; outsides, Hilliard and Henderson; subs, Duncan, Levine, Shacter, Howard, Neel and Clift.

Varsity—Flying wing, Shipp; half backs, King, Hodgetts, Litowitz; quarter, Cutler; snap back, Magladery; inside, Patterson and Fear; middies, Swerling and Shapiro; outside, McGibbon and Stubbs; subs, Rogers, Booth, Rottenberg, Mudge, Brown, Harvey, Gibson, Ellsworth.

TRINITY WINS FROM U.C. IN MULOCK CUP GAME

Trinity defeated U.C. Monday afternoon in the last Mulock Cup game of the season, by the close score of 6-5. U.C. played the best game of their schedule, and threw a big scare into Trinity. If they had fielded the same team all season they would be at the top of the heap to-day. But the combination of Trinity told in the closing moments of play when Stone went over the line to score the winning points.

Trinity—Strathy, Fairer, Coleman, Wilson, Witherspoon, Stewart, Hubert Martin, Stone, Parmenter, Walsh, Rapsey, Yeats.

U.C.—Davies, Standish, McGibbon, Fleming, Keith, Ward, Wilson, Caldecott, Holmes, Cook, Holton, Hollinwood, French, Harrington, Finningley, Finlayson.

JUNIOR SCHOOL NOW TIE IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

In the Mulock fixture yesterday, Jr. S.P.S. defeated Jr. Arts 2 to 1 in a very grueling struggle. The winning point was scored during the last two minutes of play. This victory places Junior School tie for first position in its group. The first score was made by Cross of S.P.S. by a beautiful long kick during the third quarter. Junior Arts countered by an equally spectacular kick by Haas during the same quarter.

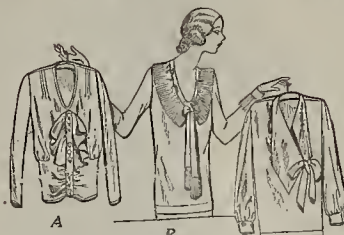

Arts—Wing, Haas; halves, Freifeld, McAlpine, Price; quarter, Knight, snap, Hermant; insides, Hogg, Daimont; middles, Thompson, Walker; outsides, Cross, Walker; subs, White, Smith, Cohen.

Junior School—Wing, Wheaton; halves, Lichty, McNeil; quarter, Muir; snap, Moffat; insides, Swallow, Mitchell; middles, Mabey, Coulter; outsides, Eastwood, Bartlewood; subs, Wood, Eaton, Kane, Little, Pearson.

large crowd turned out to make the event a highly successful one.

THE TABLE ROUND

It may of course be said in extenuation that they find no steady influence in their human contacts. And perhaps this forms the real defect in the book—the tragedy is so universal that the characters as a group appear to have been placed in an abnormal relationship to each other, rather than that they are abnormal in themselves. F.N.Y.

Are there any great authors who are unreadable? It is the fashion today to deride Ruskin as an "impossible" author, and many others whose reputation was long regarded as invulnerable are falling victims of the new age. People have confessed to us that they are unable to read Dickens; others cannot face Meredith. Personal dislike may of course spring as much from personal limitations as from any defect in the author in question. Established literary reputations are usually enhanced by the occasional voice of dissent. But the changing standards of different ages may make or unmake celebrities of the past.

Co-Eds Kill Cow From Kitchen In Effort To Get Glass of Milk

By Oscar Abramowitz

The other day I stepped into the mad hunger, seized it, and horrors of Women's Union. Then without even baking it, they ate it all up, even to the last crumb. "Watch out!" cried somebody as I crossed the threshold. "What's the matter?" I ejaculated. "You nearly stepped onto the mile of nickels," the fair warner said. And so I did. There before my feet I saw a shining row of five cent pieces which stretched all around the floor and up the stairs.

I inadvertently opened a cupboard door. On the shelf were three hundred or so co-eds eating lunch.

"Why do you eat there?" I queried. "There is no room in the cafeteria," ventured one.

Just then one of the other two hundred and ninety-nine stuck her foot by mistake into the speaker's mouth.

I then went into the cafeteria. A sight greeted my eyes which I shall remember for the rest of my life. Aye until the candle is burnt. About three thousand and one co-eds were struggling to get a glass of milk.

"Be patient, girls," said the woman behind the counter. "The cow refuses to function just at present."

"Bring him out!" yelled they in a chorus. "We'll function him, we will."

The cow was brought from the kitchen. Poor thing! A scarier cattle was never seen. The co-eds, in their mad hunger, seized it, and horrors of Women's Union. Then without even baking it, they ate it all up, even to the last crumb.

I next noticed a peculiar noise upstairs. Eager to find what the cause of the racket was, I pushed my way through the usual masses of hundreds of co-eds perched on banisters, stairs and even chandeliers, in order to rest their bones.

Upstairs at last, I dashed the door open of the room where I had heard the commotion. There, dancing a ring-around-a-rosy were three or four co-eds.

"Why are you dancing in this manner?" cried I.

"We managed to get a chocolate bar, we managed to get a chocolate bar, within seven hours of the time we asked for it," was the glad reply, as one of them popped down first!

I went out of this place. As I walked along, musing to myself, I heard a shout.

"Stop!" I looked before me and saw a small puddle. As it was a rainy day I had not noticed it.

"Why?" cried I to the speaker, who was a fair co-ed.

"That is the Lillian Massey tank. You oughtn't to mess it all up for us, you know," she remonstrated.

tion of realistic drama was Ibsen and he was followed by a long line of continental and English dramatists of whom some of the latter were Shaw, Galsworthy and Barton. The speaker gave a concise but comprehensive account of various realistic dramas.

"The supreme virtue of Ibsen's drama," said Mr. Knox, "was overlooked in England which benefitted by the example of his consummate workmanship in revelation of character." The speaker went on to raise the question whether the deepest experiences could be expressed in realistic drama which is bereft of the flowery language.

A very animated discussion followed the address.

certainly thought it had a reputation for intolerance. He hoped this meeting might burst the city's shell and give vent to new ideas. Tremendous cheering followed.

His Worship the Mayor opposed the motion vehemently. "We don't oppose free speech, we oppose Communists," he said. (Cries of why? why?). "Ninety-five per cent of citizens are with Chief Draper. Here there were boos and groans and shouts of "let him speak". The mayor mentioned the election of two Catholics, Eddie Murphy and Joe Gibbons, to positions of trust as evidence that Toronto was the most tolerant city on earth.

A special motion was passed prolonging the session so that James Simpson, vice-president of Trades and Labour Conference of Canada could speak. In his dynamic address Mr. Simpson lauded the British way of dealing with soap-box orators and told some amusing stories to prove Toronto's intolerance. His policy would be to let the Communists speak, only arresting them when they preached treason and sedition. (Loud applause)

The Mayor replied and cited two instances to prove the Labour Union intolerant and Mr. Simpson again rising, explained the instances. His Worship accused him of skating around the question, the hot give and take ended and the heavy artillery was still. The members filed out, voted, and returned to hear the result announced by the Speaker.

students, and other people connected with the university.

These seats were for the most part in the open stand, although a number of them were for temporary seats along the running track on the east side of the field. The temporary seats number about four hundred.

Speaking of "this insane chatter about the legitimate demands of the alumnus and the interested outsider" the Director pointed out that it would be unjust to expect the downtown agencies to help dispose of tickets for less important fixtures if they were deprived of the opportunity to supply their clientele with tickets to games such as the coming one.

The usual standing room bleachers are being constructed and tickets for them are on sale to-day.

GOVERNMENTS NEED VOTE OF EDUCATED

Everyone Should Study Current Topics, School Trustee Declares

WOMEN ARE CITIZENS

"We women who dwell in cities are now citizens, not persons, although we apparently existed in that condition for many years," said Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, once the president of the S.C.M. at Oxford, and member of the Board of Education of Toronto, to the women of U.C. at the S.C.M. noon hour talk at the Women's Union yesterday in a lecture on Citizenship.

"Now that we have woman suffrage, it is our duty to take an intelligent interest in community and national affairs. It is rather a calamity that hundreds of people should go through life without studying history, economics or even the current events. We should make it one of our duties as citizens to read always about some aspect of public life in the newspapers, such as the business of the League of Nations or conditions in China. It is also a vital thing for the country that educated people should vote.

"Citizenship in its broader sense is found in our patriotism, that is, our loyalty to a pattern of ideas, or an ideal for our national welfare. A government cannot enforce laws unless it has public opinion behind it, and hence every citizen has a vital effect on government, as government depends upon individual opinion."

This was the first of the noon hour lectures of the S.C.M. of University College which will deal this year with the important topics of citizenship and international relations.

PROFESSOR KNOX LIKENS IBSEN TO BERNARD SHAW

"Drama more than other arts is sensitive to the change which takes place in people," declared Professor Knox in his address on Realistic Drama at the Players' Guild yesterday afternoon. "Realistic drama came into being at the end of the nineteenth century after several decades of mere melodrama," he continued.

The speaker affirmed that in drama the new movement had a vigorous expression of the new social interests and the attitude was rigidly scientific. The pioneer and impetus in the introduc-

UNIVERSITY HONOURS HER FALLEN HEROES AT MEMORIAL TOWER

Annual Armistice Service to be Held at Tower
This Morning

TWO MINUTES' SILENCE

Carillon Service to Mark
Close of the Short Ceremony

The annual Armistice service of the university will be held at the Soldier's Tower at 12.10 noon to-day. It was learned from the Alumni Federation, which is in charge of the arrangements, that no special invitations have been sent out for any distinguished visitors to be present. "Armistice day services have come to be regarded as purely a family ceremony in memory of those students who fell in the Great War."

Certain sections have been roped off for the use of special portions of the audience. The terrace east of the north wing of University College is reserved for members of the Faculty, who are invited to be present in academic costume. The concrete walk south-east of the Tower will be reserved for representatives of associations presenting wreaths. They are asked to assemble before 11.45 a.m.

Undergraduates are requested to remain outside the enclosure of ropes until the C.O.T.C. has marched in, when the ropes will be removed and they will be allowed to move closer to the Tower. The C.O.T.C. will form ranks north of the Mining Building and will march to the Memorial Tower, arriving there at 12 noon.

The service will open with the singing of the Hymn of Supreme Sacrifice. There will then be the general salute, followed by two minutes' silence. After the Reveille, the ceremony of decorating the tablets will take place. Sir Robert Falconer reading the names of those presenting wreaths. This will be followed by Benediction, the Royal Salute and God Save The King. A Carillon recital will mark the close of the service.

An Apology

Since the beginning of the term in news stories, "The Varsity" has unfortunately misspelled the name of a respected professor, M. St. E. de Champ. The editors wish to apologize to Professor de Champ for this apparent discourtesy.

Antics Afield

The Fashion Editor of the McGill Daily, after extensive research, triumphantly announces the ensemble which is considered the ne plus ultra of fashion and chic for men at the University of Illinois this year. The main motif is a peppermint striped shirt, with a green sweater to set it off. The sine qua non, however, is generally conceded to be a pair of red suspenders with blue trimmings.

The University Daily Kansan relates a tender tale of a poor jailbird, one Sam Morfia of St. Louis, who was being given a free train ride to the county jail, but unfortunately missed the train, due to the negligence of his Federal escort. Poor little Sammy didn't know what to do, but somehow he found his way to the jail, and next morning bright and early the warden of the jail was awakened by Sammy knocking on the door of his future home. He had caught the next train. Another fairy tale will follow next week.

30,000 People Say
Architects

"There will be a new stadium erected within the next few years," said T. A. Reed, secretary treasurer of the University of Toronto Athletic Association, in a press interview on that subject yesterday.

The stadium of the University of Toronto has been overtaxed during the last few years, and although the stands are used but a few times a year, the Athletic Directorate has decided definitely that the stadium will be replaced by a new one. Work will probably not start for some time as yet, according to Mr. Reed, as there is still some outstanding debt to be paid on the Varsity Arena, so that financial difficulties must first be surmounted.

"Before anything is done the step must be approved by the Board of Governors of the university, since they are responsible for all financial matters," said Mr. Reed.

The new stadium will be capable of accommodating over 30,000 people, according to proposed plans being prepared by architects. The stands will be concrete, and in the shape of a horse shoe with the open end at Bloor (Continued on page 5)

CRITICISM LEVELLED BY UNDERGRADUATES AT "THE VARSITY"

Editorials Are Too Partial And News Service Is Poor

FRIGHTFULLY SUPERFICIAL

Editor Ought Not to Think He Expresses the Views of All Students

"The Varsity" has this in common with other papers," said Bob English, Wycliffe College, interviewed by "The Varsity," "that it has to cater to the average mind. I am not so sure that the average mind of this university is above that of the public in general. The paper is not taken seriously by serious students. It is sometimes hoisterous, irresponsible and frightfully superficial. I have not been keeping in close touch with The Privateer, but it is a good sign, since it does not seek to please everyone. It is the product of a group of coffee-shop intellectuals, to use Mr. Burton's expression. I'd call it Old Elm Bohemianism."

V. Little, II Arts, Victoria, complained that "The Varsity" does not devote enough space to news about the students. "There is too much about outsiders and profs. The other papers at the University of Toronto are good, considering how much time the students are able to expend on them."

BATTLE OF YEAR

Regular Line-ups Will Appear in Action on the Field

To-morrow afternoon at Varsity Stadium there takes place what should prove to be the classic battle of the present football season when the Tricolour of Kingston, led by the redoubtable Harry Batstone, locks horns with the McPherson-coached Blue and White squad. Reports emanating from both camps indicate a spirit of optimism and confidence prevailing with a certain amount of respect for the other team's strength. Queen's have suffered several slight injuries during the past week, but from latest reports will field their regular line-up.

The return of Jack Sinclair to the Blue's rearward is being hailed with delight by the Varsity supporters and it now appears likely that only John Harrison will be missing from the Varsity line-up when the opening whistle is sounded to-morrow afternoon. Harrison ruptured a blood vessel in his knee in practice last week and his chances of getting in the game to-morrow are very slim. However, as he says himself, he will be all right for the game next Saturday in Montreal.

Sinclair's superb punting ability has given the Blue and White a new confidence in themselves and it is quite possible that Jack may perform a Turville act to-morrow at Queen's ex- (Continued on page 5)

TERM "SCHOLAR" IS CREDIT

"I do not think that the speed of present day life is destroying the power of thought," stated Professor Louis A. MacKay, of the department of Latin in University College, when interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding yesterday's editorial. "It takes much more brain power to drive an automobile than an ox-cart, and more thought is required in operating an aeroplane than in riding a bicycle. I have the greatest admiration for a twelve-year-old boy who can put together a radio set, since a thorough knowledge of his work and continuous mental concentration are necessary."

"In reading history we come in contact only with the outstanding men of the pack. You cannot expect the man on the street to have the intellectual development of a Socrates, a Plato, or an Aristotle. The mentality of the ordinary Athenian was probably no more highly developed than that of the everyday man of present times."

TICKET SYSTEM IS EXPLAINED

Students' Council Alleges No Discrimination Against Students

CONCRETE STATEMENT

The "Varsity" is in receipt of the following letter:

The Editor,
"The Varsity",
Dear Sir:
This morning's correspondence column contained two letters from undergraduates which not only voiced an objection to the methods of ticket distribution for the Queen's game, but cast a reflection upon the integrity of the athletic officials of this university. As these letters stressed the point that the student body as a whole had been unfairly discriminated against, we, as officials of the Students' Administrative Councils, wish to give a statement of the case as we have found it.

The opportunities offered to undergraduates for the purchase of tickets for football games are as follows:

1. Through the regular season ticket sale open to all subscribers for seats in either covered or open stands.
2. Through the student season ticket sale open to all students for seats in centre sections of the bleachers at a ridiculously low price.
3. Through the regular sale to both men and women of individual seats for each game (with a maximum of 4 per student) for such seats as are still available after the above two sales have been completed, and after consideration has been given to the followers of the visiting team and to the downtown public. (It has been noted (Continued on page 5)

AUTOMATIC MACHINE TO BE INSTALLED

Dispensary Will Sell Sundries
When Tuck Shop
Is Closed

ALWAYS AVAILABLE

An automatic dispensing machine which will sell cigarettes, chocolate bars and chewing gum has been installed in the Barber Shop corridor of Hart House.

"This machine has been designed to serve students particularly at times when the Tuck Shop is closed," said J. R. Gilley, Comptroller of Hart House, commenting on the purchase.

"It has been felt that something of the nature was necessary, since it has been financially impracticable to keep the Tuck Shop open at dances, on Saturday afternoons and late in the evening. Cigarettes and chocolate bars will be available now during the whole time that the House is open."

Mr. W. R. Cowan, assistant comptroller, explained that the machine is the invention of a Canadian girl.

"It seems particularly appropriate that Hart House should be the first of the university buildings to install it," he said.

The machine, it has been explained, will take only the large 5 cent pieces in the chocolate bar slot.

In the event of the machine proving successful, the Hall Committee may consider the purchase of further machines to relieve the pressure on the Tuck Shop during the busy periods, it is announced.

HYMN OF SUPREME SACRIFICE—

O Valiant Hearts, who to your glory came,
Through dust of conflict and through battle-flame,
Tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved.

Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war,
As who had heard God's message from afar;
All you had hoped for, all you had you gave
To save mankind—yourselves you scorned to save.

Splendid you passed, the great surrender made,
Into the light that nevermore shall fade;
Deep your contentment in that blest abode,
Who wait the last clear trumpet-call of God.

GALAHAD

Elsewhere in this issue appears a letter from the secretaries of the Students' Administrative Councils with reference to the criticisms made in our correspondence columns of the sale of tickets for the Saturday game. While we consider that the criticism was adequately answered by an interview which Mr. T. A. Reed granted "The Varsity", we are more than pleased to welcome Mr. Burns and Miss Parkes to our columns, and to note the readiness with which they leap to defend the Athletic Office against student criticism.

THE DOPE

To-morrow afternoon the fortunate are to witness a game that has been highly-looked-to during the past weeks as the event of the season. Weather permitting, the prediction should come true. More, the course of news has added to the excitement; secret practices, rumours of a new stadium, discontent with the ticket distribution, friends' friends who have the dope on weak knees . . . . All these have been mentioned.

To the people with an ear to the ground, it has seemed that during the past months there has been growing an increasing tendency to speculate on college spirit, football teams, rooting, college athletics and kindred topics . . . . If the game to-morrow is an old-timer, a rip-snorter, the discussion will be shut up; if it proves an uninteresting spectacle, the discussion will undoubtedly continue and grow stronger and assume a bias unfavourable to things as they are now.

STUDENT DIRECTORY EXPECTED TO APPEAR SOMETIME NEXT WEEK

Publication Has Not Been Unduly Delayed Says Acting Registrar

CO-OPERATION LACKING

Several Hundred Additional Names Make Directory Big Task

"The Directory is expected to come out next week," Acting Registrar A. B. Fennell told "The Varsity" yesterday.

Asked what had been the cause of the delay, Mr. Fennell replied that there was no delay, and that the Directory had not been published until after Thanksgiving last year. "You have no idea of the amount of work attached to the getting out of a directory," he stated, "and especially when there is such a decided lack of co-operation on the part of the students. We have been very busy for some weeks now sending out cards and using the telephone in order to ascertain the correct address of many students. When you consider that the Directory will contain several thousand names and addresses it is a wonder that any approach to a complete list can be made at all."

LUCRETIOUS ONE OF GREAT POETS, SAYS PROF. TAIT

Was Follower of Epicurus, Who Was Philosopher of Materialism

"He was likely a little mad and he may have killed himself (as tradition relates) but Lucretius was one of the greatest poets," stated Prof. M. D. C. Tait yesterday in the first of the public lectures to be given in West Hall on Thursday afternoons at 5 o'clock. The speaker showed that Lucretius, a Roman of the troublesome Republic period, was a follower of Epicurus, the originator of the teaching that "Pleasure is always good and pain always evil." The theory of the atomic structure of matter which Greek imagination conceived, was the basis of his whole exposition of life. He was the poet of materialism; the poet of things as they are. He gives twenty-eight proofs that the soul is mortal and then sings a song of triumph over its mortality.

"Words sprang up as a chance meeting of atoms. They were not created," was one of the many points of the poet's teaching which Mr. Tait gave and verified by extracts which he read from the works of the poet.

Mr. Fennell concluded by saying that if there were any omissions it would be the fault of the undergraduates themselves. The Directory will take the same form as that of other years except that there will be several hundred more undergraduate names included.

WHEN SWALLOWS BUILD NESTS

When swallows built nests in my grandfather's beard
 And hatched some young swallowlets there,
 A swarm of annoying young bird lice appeared.

And galloped and gambolled through grandfather's hair.

They eagerly followed each bite during tea
 Each mouthful of spinach and pork,
 Perched high on his whiskers they snatched at debris
 That fell from his faltering fork.

Now in spite of our arguments, threats and protests,
 Grandfather in anger at last
 Put fleas in his fuzz to prey on the pests,
 And they ate the chicken lice fast.

The spiders he purchased to pounce on the fleas
 Wove webs in his whiskers and ears,
 The swallows then gobbled them up with great ease,
 Curtailing their creeping careers.

"Hold Everything", is the title of a musical comedy that Aarons and Freedley will present at the Royal Alexandra Theatre on Monday matinee (Thanksgiving Day) for one week prior to a five weeks' engagement at the Shubert Detroit, Detroit. "Hold Everything" comes to Toronto direct and intact from the Chicago run, which followed a record-breaking run of one solid year at the Broadhurst Theatre, New York. The book is by B. C. De Sylva and John McGowan and the music by Ray Henderson and the lyrics by De Sylva and Lew Brown. The De Sylva, Brown and Henderson combination is responsible for "Good News", "Follow Thru", "Manhattan Mary", and ten editions of the George White "Scandals", while McGowan is the author of "Excess Baggage", "Tenth Avenue" and the new Aarons and Freedley musical comedy, "Heads Up", which opens shortly on Broadway. Aarons and Freedley are among the most successful producers in the field of musical comedy in England and America. All their plays have been successful in London, and "Hold Everything" is now being presented there at the Palace Theatre. These young producers have a peculiar knack of making their shows attractive to young people and that includes those who do not intend to grow old, some of their past successes were "Tip Toes", "Oh, Kay", "Lady Be Good", "Funny Face", "Spring is Here" and "Here's Howe". "Hold Everything" is all about a boxing championship fight, the girl the would-be champion loved and the struggle she had getting him into the championship class in spite of the well-meaning but ill-advised coaching of his own manager. That disposes of the story, and it is an unusually consistent one for a musical comedy. "You're The Cream In My Coffee" and "Don't Hold Everything" are two of the many songhits. The large cast embraces such Broadway favorites as Bert Lahr, Nina Olivette, Helen Gilligan, Sally Sweet, George Murphy, John E. Young, Harry Shannon, Frank Allworth, Edmund Elton, Locke, Jarak and Locke and others, not forgetting the large chorus of girls and boys. Matinees will be given on Monday and Saturday, and there will be no Wednesday matinee during this engagement.

The Hart House String Quartette, which left Canada early in September on its first European tour returns to Toronto Sunday, having in the interim graduated to a position of world importance. During the brief five years of its existence the Hart House Quartette has gone forward steadily until to-day it is by far the most important organization of its kind on the American Continent and is recognized by many as one of the finest string quartettes in the world.

The achievements of the quartette during the past two months can leave little doubt of this. When it left Toronto in September it had been booked for only seven concerts in England and none on the Continent. Three days after its first appearance in Wigmore Hall, London, it had been offered bookings for twenty-two English concerts next year.

Immediate engagements in Paris and Brussels were also offered. These it was found impossible to evade. The day following the Paris debut the quartette found itself in demand for a tour of France, Spain, Italy and Germany, during which it would be necessary to give forty-five concerts. This tour will be undertaken in 1930-31. Success is almost unprecedented as far as chamber music organizations are concerned.

Upon returning here the quartette will appear at the Canadian Pacific Railway Music Festival in the Royal York Hotel, after which it will complete its annual series at Hart House and fulfill numerous engagements throughout Canada and the United States.

It is extremely doubtful whether after this year the quartette will be as available to Canadian audiences as it has been in the past. While, as before, it will devote itself mainly to Canada, the demands that are being made for appearances elsewhere will make it increasingly difficult for the quartette to devote as much time as its sponsors could wish to the entertainment of Canadian music lovers.

QUEEN'S PLUNGERS READY FOR CRUCIAL GAME OF SERIES

In Spite of Minor Injuries Batstonians Expected to be at Top Strength

SUTTON TO DIRECT TEAM
Carter and Gilmore Will Be At Top Form for Half Line Duty

Special to "The Varsity"
By R. W. Clark
Sports Editor, The Queen's Journal
Kingston, Nov. 7.—Queen's are ready for the big battle to-morrow and for the first time this season will be at full strength. The local stadium was thrown wide open this week and the faithful rail-birds were given a real treat. The Tricolour plungers tore into the opposition so recklessly and viciously in Wednesday's workout that after Gorman, Munro and Gaetz had been knocked out in three successive scrimmages, Coach Batstone called a halt. The remaining time was spent in signal drill as was the whole of the rehearsal this afternoon. Though several members of the squad reported minor hurts, none are regarded as serious and the Batstonians are expected to be at full strength. Special attention this week has been directed towards strengthening the line, which now boasts highly effective interference. This all-important cog in the machinery has improved mightily since that narrow squeeze with Varsity here. Abbott at snap with Gaetz and Nichol alongside give the locals a formidable centre. Middle wing plunging duties will be shared by Stuart, Hamlin and Kilgour, who should hold their own with the vaunted Varsity buck-ers. Stuart and Hamlin have recovered from injuries and this week have been hitting the opposing line with reckless abandon. It is probable that Gourley and Dickey will start at outside. Both have shown great prowess in nailing the ball carrier and seldom indeed has an opposing end run been able to break away.

"General Ike" Sutton, peer of college quarterbacks, will again direct the destinies of Queen's in this so important game. Sutton, in his final year of Medicine, is at the peak of his football career, and by many is regarded as the best pivot man in the Dominion.
The secondary defence burden will rest on the worthy shoulders of Bub
Britton, Armour Munro and Bob Elliott. These sturdy campaigners have shown great versatility and besides being sensational defenders, have proved equally as valuable on the attack.

Queen's stellar backfield duo, Carter and Gilmore, will again bear the brunt of the half-line burden. Carter has completely recovered from the shaking up at the hands of Western and in practice this week has been kicking long, high spirals, averaging from 50 to 65 yards. Red Gilmore was never better in the stellar role of placement kicker and it is expected that the ex-Oakwood star will be given many opportunities of gathering triple points. Both halves are showing uncanny steadiness in catching, while their ground gaining jaunts are an invaluable asset.

There are capable relief men for every position so the Tricolour should be able to travel at top speed throughout. All in all it looks like an epic struggle with two strong, well-balanced confident squads battling to the last ditch with no quarter asked nor given.

Probable Queen's line-up—3, Britton, flying wing; 2, Carter, half; 4, Gilmore, half; 5, Munro, Half; 1, Sutton, quarter; 7, Abbott, snap; 11,
Gaetz, inside; 10, Nichol, inside; 15,
Hamlin, middle; 14, Stuart, middle;
16, Gourley, outside; 17, Dickey, outside; subs: Kilgour, 12; Elliott, 6;
Hastings, 22; Caldwell, 8; Basserman,
9; Lackey, 30; Gorman, 18; Dediana,
21; Ralph, 24.

JACK SINCLAIR
Varsity half, who is expected to star against Queen's.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Queen's-Varsity game to-morrow is the high-water mark of the local football season. The Tricolour are coming to town determined to carry off the Intercollegiate championship and the right to enter the Eastern Canada finals. But a fighting Blue team are equally confident of victory and a tie for first place. Everything considered, Saturday's game should be a battle from start to finish with the better team carrying off the honours.

Varsity will field the strongest team that has represented the university his season. Barring "Big John" Harrison, who is definitely out of the game, the entire squad is fit and ready. A week's practice behind closed doors has put the men at the peak of their game and in addition is found to have prepared a few surprises for Harry Batstone's men.

The old "injuries" story has come from Queen's, but Saturday will doubtless see all the Tricolour stalwarts in action. Queen's rearguard is rated by many as the best in the college series, but it is doubtful if the Kingston line is as good as Varsity's. Sinclair and Carter will have an interesting kicking duel, with both booting them far and high.

Varsity has shown great tackling in the games to date and Queen's will have to go some to equal the Blue in this respect.

The largest crowd that ever saw a football game in Canada should pack the Stadium to-morrow. Tickets have been at a premium for days. College games have a colour that is to a large extent lacking in other matches, while Queen's in particular are a big drawing card here and generally give a fine display. To-morrow is one game that the Blue have to take or it's all over and wish that in mind will enter the fray with the old "do or die" spirit.

Varsity juniors play McGill juniors here to-morrow in the return game of the junior finals. The Blue and White have a seventeen point lead and ought to increase their margin.

The Orphans will play an exhibition game Thanksgiving Day with Oshawa Intermediates in the Motor City. The latter have won their group and are likely entrants in the senior series next season.

BILLY BELL
Flashy Blue half, who has starred consistently this season.

JUNIORS TO MCGILL WITH 17 POINT LEAD

Should Win Intercollegiate Junior Laurels On Saturday

REDMEN ARE STRONG

The blue and white junior rugbyists are carrying a seventeen point lead into the second game with McGill here on Saturday and, barring a complete reversal of form on the part of both teams, should win the game and the Intercollegiate junior laurels. If the weather is dry the struggle will take place at the Stadium as a curtain-raiser to the senior tilt, commencing at 12.30. Otherwise it will be played on the back campus in the morning.

Although they outclassed the opposition down in Montreal, the locals are not taking anything for granted yet.
The Redmen have a strong outfit and if they can cut down on fumbles, will be hard to beat. McGill teams always play their best rugby in Toronto. However, Hodgetts, Litowitz, King and the rest of the local freshmen are out to set the example for the seniors by coming through with a win. Their line-up will probably be the same as that which started in the first game.

Mrs. Dr. McMurich and Miss
Laird received at the Faculty Tea in Croft Chapter House yesterday afternoon. Many of the undergraduates in the various science courses availed themselves of this delightful opportunity of meeting the members of their faculties and their wives.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY HOLDS FIRST AT-HOME

The first Occupational Therapy At-Home held Wednesday night in the Reception Room of the Royal York, was a brilliant success.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dunlop, Miss Wright, supervisor of Occupational Therapy, Miss Milne, supervisor of Physiotherapy, and Miss Anne MacDonald, president of the class of 370, received.

Some excellent music contributed much to the enjoyment of the function.

The second monthly tea of the "Varsity" staff was held yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. The large number of probationers present received helpful criticism from the editor-in-chief and the managing editor.

Secretaries and presidents of the various S.C.M. groups, were entertained at tea yesterday afternoon in Miss Kilpatrick's room at the Women's Union, and were given brief suggestions as to their work for this year.

Mrs. Wm. Collum of Winnipeg was the dinner guest of Miss Kilpatrick at the Women's Union last evening.

Japanese women are not regarded as bona fide students at the University of Tokyo, and in many Japanese universities are given no credit toward degrees. They are instituting a campaign, however, to obtain equal educational facilities with Japanese men.

Miss C. F. Valentine and last year's Head Girls of Queen's Hall were entertained at dinner Tuesday night at that residence.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE BOWS BEFORE U.C. BASKETEERS

Senior U.C. Women in Hard Fought Game Come Through With 30-14 Score

Thursday night at the U.T.S. gym, Senior U.C. defeated Household Science 30-14 in a league game of inter-faculty basketball. Frankie Dale and Phil Ferguson and Edith Peake on U.C.'s defense were outstanding and many of Household Science's most promising rallies were nipped in the bud. The forwards also tried hard and Phil Ferguson went on and played forward a short time after playing defence for most of the game. Household Science were not very sure of themselves, but will undoubtedly improve.

St. Michael's and U.C. Freshies played an exhibition game. St. Michael's won 38-19, but the play was very ragged. Mary Laekie, on U.C. defence starred, while Vic Quinlan scored 18 points. St. Mike's are improving and should give Vic seniors a good battle when they meet a week from Monday.

"IKE" SUTTON

Queen's brilliant field general, who will guide the destinies of the Tricolour against Varsity.

LAST TRIBUTES PAID LATE S.P.S. GRADUATE

Was Engaged in Altitude Flights for Dominion Government

DEMONSTRATOR HERE

The funeral of Paul Garton Stanley, University of Toronto graduate, who was killed while flying at Sault-au-Recollets on Tuesday, was held from his home here yesterday.

The late Mr. Stanley was an honour man in mechanical engineering at S.P.S. of the class of '26. The following year he was a demonstrator here in machine design. He was a Phi Delta Theta. A year ago in order to pursue his study of aeronautics he went to Camp Borden, from which place he proceeded to Vancouver last spring. A short time ago he went to Ottawa to engage in altitude testing for the Dominion government. He was testing a Vickers seaplane when he met his death.

A brother of Paul Garton Stanley is at present in second year Commerce and Finance, while another brother and two sisters are also Varsity graduates.

HOWARD CARTER

Star kicking half, whose punting has played a large share in Queen's victories.

ST. MICHAEL'S DEFEATED BY PHARMACY IN RUGBY

Pharmacy defeated St. Michael's last night in an inter-faculty rugby classic 7-2. From the first the game was a hectic struggle and the outcome uncertain. The break in the game came in the last quarter when St. Mike's kicked into scrimmage on their own 10 yard line and Pharmacy secured. Goldsmith got the touch for Pharmacy. Keating and Brown were also prominent. Cerre, securing all St. Michael's points, was the best man on the field. St. Michael's was still pressing hard in the dying moments of the game.

Pharmacy—Walford, Beckett, Freilich, Skucko, Cain, Wilkinson, Starkman, Keating, Goldsmith, Brown, Robb, Wolfe.

St. Michael's—Burns, Skeller, Schuck, Cerre, Dell, McAlpine, Pope, Pereyma, McGooey, Regan, Terrant, Lacey.

pense. There are many local supporters who figure that Jack Sinclair, paired with his brilliant backfield partner, Billy Bell, will make the fans forget the celebrated Gilmore-Carter combination.

Don Wood, fighting Blue quarter, will again be back at the pivot position and North Ruddle, who turned in a nice effort at McGill last week, will likely fill Harrison's place at flying wing. Ruddle has not had much opportunity to show his wares this season, but to-morrow will likely see the former Orfium quarter in a prominent position in the Blue's offensive and defensive work.

Varsity's line will be the same that has represented the Blue and White all season and it is generally admitted that the Blue have a slight edge on the Tricolour in this division.

This game has all the earmarks of being a "wowsers", and those fortunate enough to obtain tickets are likely to see an outstanding battle from start to finish. That the Blue and White are confident and full of pep is obvious, especially to those who happened to be near the locker rooms last night about 5.30 when the inter-collegiate squad got playful with fire hoses and what not.

With both teams very keen to prove their relative superiority to-morrow's contest may develop into the "battle of the century".

NEW BOWL PLANNED TO REPLACE OLD ONE

Street. It is not proposed that there will be any covered stands, except where the upper deck will overhang the lower seats.

The west side of the old stadium has stood in the same condition since the early days of organized sport in the university. This side, of wooden structure, which takes a great deal of room, will probably be rebuilt over Devonshire Place if city officials will give the necessary permission.

The grandstand was built in 1911, while the bleachers on the south and east side were built in 1924.

"There is a great need for more accommodation," said Mr. Reed, "but it will be several years before the project can be completed."

This addition would make the Varsity stadium the largest football stadium in Canada.

VARSITY CRITICIZED BY UNOERGRADUATES

H. Sager, 1 Psychology declared, "I think that 'The Varsity' caters to the come-and-go element, not to deep thinkers. The editorials are too frequently devoted to flighty subjects. 'The Varsity' could raise itself to a higher liberal standard. As for 'The Privateer', it is attempting to wrestle with weightier subjects, but it devotes too much space to mediocre topics. College journalism is of no importance to outsiders, but it has become a vital necessity to students."

"Some of the editorials in 'The Varsity' are too one-sided," stated Joe Gold, II Arts, U.C. "I don't like the idea of the editor telling his readers to read the editorials. Furthermore, he shouldn't assume that he is expressing the views of the whole undergraduate body when he writes." Mr. Gold charged that a good majority of the editorials aren't worth anything.

POWER OF THOUGHT NOT DESTROYED

It is superficial. If you get a man talking on a subject in which he is genuinely interested, you will find that his powers of perception and judgment are just as keen as those of the people of past ages. A man very naturally does not ponder very deeply on a subject which holds little interest for him, and there is no reason, after all, why he should.

"As to the speed of the world branding a man with the odious appellation of 'scholar', the question arises as to whether or not the term is one of reproach. Of course if a man is nothing else, he is rather a useless fellow, but in general I believe that the name is one of credit."

STUDENTS' COUNCIL EXPLAINS SYSTEM

that seats allotted to downtown patronage are never in better locations than those available to students.)

4. In games where the demand is excessive, through sale of reserved standing room or bleacher edge accommodation open to students only.

A consideration of the above facts should prove conclusively that there has been no unfair discrimination against students. The suggestion of graft on the part of athletic officials is, of course, unworthy of reply.

In conclusion, we can only say that the Councils have always found the athletic officers in general and the Secretary in particular more than anxious to co-operate, and that in many cases they have gone out of their way to give support, both moral and financial, to student undertakings.

We feel that these facts are well-known to the student body as a whole, and offer this concrete statement merely for the benefit of the few who may have misunderstood the situation.

Sincerely yours,

A. E. M. Parkes,
Secretary W.S.A.C.

Large numbers of poultry are moving from Maritime Province points over the lines of the Canadian National Railways to Boston, Mass. Above is what has been called a hen "pullman," containing three thousand birds from Prince Edward Island. Large numbers also move from places in New Brunswick. Poultry raising is an industry to which the Maritime Provinces are particularly adapted, and it would appear to be one that pays good returns. A "by-product" of these shipments is the eggs, which are collected each day by the attendant and sold enroute. As many as a case and a half are collected during the trip.

CO-EDS IN FAVOUR OF WEARING GOWNS

Saints Freeze, Eat and Sleep in Gowns to Appear Academic

GOWN WEARING INCREASING

"We like gowns pretty well over here and the more we wear they show the better we like them," said Mary Dickinson, IV St. Hilda's, when questioned by "The Varsity" "how the Saints feel about freezing, eating and sleeping in their gowns in order to appear academic. Nobody appeared a bit worried, that St. Hilda's life was one grand sweet gown week after another.

Louise McMillan, III Trinity, declared she was very much in favour of the tradition of wearing gowns.

At Vic this year there appears to be an increase in gowns, especially among the second year.

"I like the idea of Vic people wearing gowns," said Kay Eaton, III Vic, "and I wish more would do it."

Rugby Rows Rouse Risible Remarks Writes Reporter Regarding Ruling

By A. E. F. Allan

THINGS TO DO WHILE WAITING FOR THE KICK-OFF . . .

Wrap the rug tightly about her. Wrap it about yourself too, if you can make the couple with one rug. Ask her if she's comfortable. If she murmurs "Yeah" or "Uh-huh", don't pick up one of those kitchen chairs down on the track and drape it around her lovely neck. Don't shove the programme down her throat either. You will probably find a use for the programme later on. Just smile sweetly and think of Eddie Guest and the poets of the later journalism. . . . Look around the stadium. Isn't this college? Doesn't it hand you a thrill to be part of such a great big institution? Look at the nice people over there in the covered stands. Wonder how they got their tickets. Remember what the Athletic Director said? Some of them have been there for nine years. Well, if they've been waiting around for nine years, they ought to get a good seat by this time, oughtn't they? That's a helluva long time to hang around for a ticket isn't it? How long did you wait in line last Tuesday? Do you think that's any kind of a way for a civilized man to act? Do you remember that guy who tried to crash the line? He certainly got thrown out on his ear all right, didn't he? Can you imagine anyone having nerve enough to do a thing like that? . . . Perhaps he didn't want a ticket. Perhaps he was just looking for the barber shop. . . . What's she saying? These seats aren't so hot? What's she expect? the Queen's Park bandstand? . . . Ask the usher if he's sure these are your seats. If he says how does he know, he can't see them, tell him not to get snotty or you'll report him to the Board of Governors for passing around dirty remarks. That'll hold him. Or will it? . . . Is that a guy coming in with a Christie? Yell: "Christie! Christie!" . . . Why didn't you wear your own Christie? Scared? What are you scared about? Scared somebody will shout "Christie"? Is it a damfool idea to shout "Christie"? Well, what're you shouting for? How many damfool ideas can you name offhand? Name ten damfool ideas around the campus. How many of them do you follow? Why? Scared? What're you scared about? Haven't you got any guts? Is that just another damfool idea? . . . What's she saying now? Do you know the captain? Huh? . . . Well, answer her! Do you know the captain? You know a couple guys who met him once at a Dental hop? What kind of an answer do you call that? Why don't you come right out and tell her you don't know anything about him and you couldn't even think of his name until you saw it on the programme? . . . You're going to have an embarrassing afternoon. What do you know about the game, anyway? How're you going to answer the girl's questions? Are you going to have the guts to tell her you don't know? Try and do it! . . . What's that noise? Has the game started? Oh, it's just the band? What're they playing? "After the Ball Was Over . . ." What's that for? Did somebody score a touchdown? . . . After the game what are you going to do? Going to a tea-dance? You don't like tea? Well, who said anything about tea? What are you going to do with her after dark? . . . Say, what's coming off here? . . . Whoops! my dear! Here they come!

MASQUERADE TICKETS IN LARGE DEMAND

Crowds Wait in Icy Air For Chance to Procure
Tickets

The urge for tickets to the Hart House masquerade was the cause of much merriment on the campus and adjoining streets last evening and early this morning.

School of Practical Science students, in order to get tickets, are annually obliged to line up. While tickets are distributed this morning, the line up began early last evening.

The roll is called during the night once every hour. During the intervals, it is deemed necessary by the students that whoopee must be raised in order to keep all members of the party awake. Nearby residents complain that this has at times the same effect on them, when groups of students serenade the streets and raise yells on the campus.

Varsity juniors showed their class when they defeated McGill 29-5 here on Saturday. Last Wednesday the Blue and White won an 18-1 victory at the Molson Stadium. The 47-6 count on the round gives the frosh the Intercollegiate junior rugby title.

Lou Carroll's "kids" were superior in every department of play. They outkicked, outplunged and outran the Red, and, but for a Blue fumble in the third quarter, they would have white-washed McGill. The forward pass was used quite often, in the last quarter McGill tried the play five times, three of which were successful and went for an average of 15 yard gains. Varsity's passes were badly directed and were intercepted for losses.

Litowitz began the scoring when he skirted the end for 20 yards for a touch, which he converted. Varsity were pressing the play. Litowitz attempted a drop, but the ball hit the crossbar and bounded back. The diminutive half recovered and put play on McGill's five yard line. Patterson plunged for the touch and Litowitz (Continued on page 3)

Immediately after Sinclair's trusty boot had snatched the Intercollegiate title from the impatient hands of Queen's in the last second of play, a milling horde of students crowded onto the field and started a snake-dance. ### Two Minute Silence

The memory of those who died overseas for King and Country was honoured once more by the university in the service before the Soldiers' Tower on Friday.

Professors and students to the number of some hundreds formed a square before the Tower shortly before noon, and the C.O.T.C. took up its place within, facing the Tower.

At ten minutes past the hour the band struck up "O Valiant Hearts", which was sung quietly by the bystanders. As the music died away the clear notes of the "Cease Fire" rang out from the Tower, followed by the General Salute, and then two minutes passed in silence as the crowd stood reverently, heads bowed, in respect for the fallen. Then the bugle sounded (Continued on page 3)

Senior Playoff

Representatives of both Varsity and Queen's met after Saturday's game to decide the location of the playoff. The ordinary procedure is that the playoff is on a neutral Intercollegiate field. Montreal was discussed, but neither team wished to make the long trip and the added possibility of a frozen field at Montreal Saturday eliminated the Quebec metropolis from further consideration. As both Varsity and Queen's wanted the fixture a coin was tossed with the result that the game will be played in Kingston this Saturday with the same officials in charge.

HART HOUSE

Whose tenth anniversary came on November 11. It was opened in 1919 by the Duke of Devonshire, though originally begun in 1911.

Hart House Warden Writes of Birthday Greetings From Vincent Massey

You ask me, Mr. Editor, to write a few words on the occasion of the tenth birthday of Hart House. It is not easy. Ten years seem a short time, particularly where universities are concerned.

Hart House is peculiar not only in the things which it is doing, but also in the things which it does not do. This is my ninth year as Warden of Hart House, and as I look back I ask myself what is the dominant idea which lies behind its varied and active daily life. Simply this, I think. That in addition to adequate provision for the social and athletic activities of its members, a prominent place must always be found in Hart House for the development of music, art, drama, debating, religion and a definite relationship between the Warden and the undergraduates. During the earliest period Mr. W. F. Bowles did fine work in setting in motion the administrative machinery. What has been done since is the result of the combined efforts of a large and enthusiastic company of undergraduates and senior members, of an efficient and devoted staff and of a kindly and understanding President. And to me it is absolutely clear that to them must go the credit for any contribution Hart House may have made to the university at large. For they have always understood that not only is there a visible Hart House, namely this beautiful building (in itself a tribute to Mr. Vincent Massey and its two architects), but that there is also an invisible Hart House—something which cannot be defined—call it spirit, atmosphere, ethos or anything (Continued on page 4)

Editor, "The Varsity",
Hart House,
Toronto, Ont.
Dear Sir:

I have pleasure in complying with your request that I should send you a few words in connection with the tenth anniversary of the opening of Hart House.

On November 11th, 1919, the doors of Hart House were thrown open and its work commenced. The preparation of the plans and the construction of the building had occupied nine years, although, of course, during the war, building operations were practically suspended. In spite of the fact that great care had been taken to see that the physical equipment of the building should be appropriate to its task, Hart House, at the time of its opening and for a few years after, was, naturally, in the nature of an experiment. Then years ago in a physical sense it was completed, but like all buildings it was a mere shell until life came into it. As the student body, in due course, took full possession of the structure and gave a meaning to all its diversified activities, Hart House became something organic, its stone and brick being the outward expression of a corporate life within.

The experimental period has now long since closed and I am happy to know that the institution has more than realized the ideas which underlie its construction and which we ventured to express in an inscription on its walls. Whatever usefulness it may have achieved is, of course, due in the first instance to the fine quali- (Continued on page 4)

Those Terrible Tricolour Tricks Gave the Razz To Varsity Dicks

How'd'ya like the goal posts Saturday? Red, White and Blue. A little earlier, they were Red, Yellow and Blue. Yea, Tricolour!

Notice the drapery around the front of the press box? Not patriotism but self-protection. Underneath on the chaste white plaster was painted, "Science, Queen's, 31, 32, 33." And what colours? Make Whistler turn in his grave. Thought that "college spirit" was dead until we piped that.

Where were the Varsity dicks?

"Alfie" Pearce and his "barking dogs" led the Tricolour on the field. Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like this.

Queen's did themselves proud. Neat band and a squad of haggies. Only thing missing was the haggis.

Maudie the Milkmaid and a somewhat kittenish cow formed a suitable background for an important duel staged at half-time. Movies were taken by a representative of the Inter-lake Camera Club.

Did ye honorable gate-keepers examine your season ticket closely? If so, why? Ask the lad two seats along who is reading "The Varsity". He might throw a little light on the matter.

One more. Were you among those who thought that a tie would turn the trick Saturday?

Hart House Success Under Two Wardens in First Ten Years

Bowles and Bickersteth Solve Difficulties in Able Administration

Birthday Yesterday

Increased Registration Made
Many Difficult Problems

On Monday, November 11th, Hart House celebrated its tenth birthday. Since its opening in 1919 Hart House has had two Wardens. The first was Mr. Walter F. Bowles, a graduate of Victoria College. His was a tremendous task in drawing together with an entirely new staff the various activities of Hart House. Mr. Bowles had no precedent to go by and it was his devoted enthusiasm which did so much for the House in its early years. With the increased registration due to so many students returning from overseas, there were many difficult problems to decide. Hart House owes a debt of gratitude to its first Warden for the able way in which so many difficulties were overcome. Mr. Bowles is one of the few life members of Hart House.

The second and present Warden is John Burgon Bickersteth. Mr. Bicker- (Continued on page 4)

Tickets to Queen's

"There will be no announcement as to excursion rates to Kingston and the sale of tickets for Saturday's game until after the Athletic Directorate meets with representatives of the Students' Council at noon to-day," said T. A. Reed, Secretary of the Athletic Association, last night. "But you can say that there will be special rates and that there will be tickets. We will know definitely what we can do after the meeting, when we will make an announcement. There will also be a statement for Wednesday's 'Varsity'."

Mr. Reed informed "The Varsity" that a block of 5,000 seats was reserved for Toronto fans, and if Queen's erected extra stands, there might be a few more.

Antics Afield

A despatch in the mighty Minnesota Daily would go to show that fraternities in the States are not as bad as they are painted. The Daily states that the Supreme Court of Illinois has ruled that Greek letter organizations are exempt from taxation, as they are "Charitable and educational organizations".

A despatch from Ann Arbor in the same issue states that five fraternities at the University of Michigan have been placed on probation for "toleration" of intoxicants at fraternity dances. Would that be classed as a charitable or an educational activity?

Varsity Had to Win

Every Blue Player a Star As Toronto Team Ties
For Title

By Larry Dawson
Sports Editor, "The Varsity"
One second to go. The score is tied 6-6. Queen's have the ball on their one-yard line. First down. Carter is going to kick and it looks like the Tricolour have won the championship. This will be the last play of the game. Then the whistle will call time and it'll be all over. The ball is snapped. Carter sends it soaring. Sinclair has it and he's being smothered by the Queen's tacklers. No, he's returned it far over the line. Carter has it. The Blue swarm around him and he's downed for a point. The whistle blows. The game is over. Varsity has won.

And that was a fitting climax to a wonderful game. From start to finish two hard-fighting, game squads waged a torrid battle before the record-breaking crowd that filled Varsity Stadium Saturday. After Queen's had forged to the front in the third quarter the Blue and White gamely tied the score. But a tie was not good enough. Varsity had to win to force a playoff. And that supremely dramatic drive to victory will live long in the memories of those who were there.

Beyond all doubt Jack Sinclair was the "man of the second", but every blue-clad player was a star. They gave all they had and more. Some played (Continued on page 3)

HART HOUSE

We present in this issue two messages signed with names that are familiar to everyone who knows Hart House and its history. To those who bear these names is owing in large part the honour and esteem which must result from the position now occupied by the House. For it is the model and envy of many universities, and in many places it is that which marks Toronto apart from other educational institutions.

To the individual male student, the House is a blessing undisputed, for it gives him in university cultural and physical advantages that he has not known before and will not know after. To the individual woman student it is a tantalizing vision of what, unhappily, is yet to be. To the student body, to student government, it offers disadvantages, in that it usurps certain functions that normally, at other universities, belong to the co-educational administration.

What Hart House will mean to the undergraduate fifty years hence, one cannot say. But the men students now, with hardly an exception, can say that some of their clearest and dearest memories of university life will be centred about the House until the last. And, when one considers the weight of tradition now behind the House; the minute books piling up on the Warden's desk; the debates already gone into history; the masquerades . . . when all these are reviewed, it is evident a considerable heritage will be handed down to the student of 1980.

To the Honourable Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to Washington, and to the Warden of Hart House, Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, we offer our appreciation of their kindness in writing for this issue.

STUDENT FINANCES

To-morrow "The Varsity" will publish parts of the balance sheets of the Joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Councils. This will be the first time that this financial information has been available to the student body. It directly concerns you, the student; it tells what happens to the four dollars you pay to the Bursar; whether "The Varsity" and "Torontensis" make money. We ask every reader, in our capacity as editors of this college paper, as members of the student body, and as those who have pressed for a greater interest in student affairs, to read the statements, and the editorial comments as well, wherein we shall seek to point out what is not readily apparent in the figures.

APPLAUSE

We would be hard pressed to find any appreciable dissatisfaction with the playing at Saturday's game, or with the rooting, if every game gave the same opportunity for enthusiasm, there would be no trouble with the cheering. Unfortunately, equal opportunities are not always offered. For such occasions we repeat that a highly organized cheering squad is needed; one which knows when to yell and when not; one which will have signals arranged with the team to relay the number immediately of an injured player . . . There should be men ready next March to make preparations for the rooting of the following season. They should have money to spend on necessary apparatus, should drill together, and be quite ready for grand whoopee in the fall of 1930.

CHAMPUS

SMALL DIET ON THE FERNET FRONT
 Chapter 2

I am still lying on my face in the mud. The wind is sweeping torrents of rain down my neck. The night is cold and black. A heavy evening barrage has torn our wiring party to pieces and I alone remain. Fritz Schnitzel crumpled up before me, Hans Heiferling threw himself into the air behind me, and Franz Fungus was blown to atoms and spattered all over me. Now the French shells are striking nearer my position every second.

ond. One of those vicious daisy cutters has blown a spray of spring buds into my button hole. Ain't Nature grand?

C-C

Now I hear footsteps, nearer, nearer. It is the French attack. In a moment I will be discovered and slaughtered, or if I am fortunate, taken prisoner. Someone stumbles over me. A startled curse. A bayonet gleams before my nose. I shut my eyes.

C-C

Crunch—A sickening weight rushes across my body. Himmell! I am saved: I have been run over by a tank! I am buried in the mud. Everything has gone misty.

C-C

When I awake I am in the hospital. My comrades found me in the mud after the attack and brought me back on a couple of shovels.

C-C

Day by day I regain my strength. (Continued on page 3)

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Editors' Note: We have three letters from students of St. Hilda's discussing the co-ed gown problem, and one signed by five co-eds dealing with a well-known beard. Space at present does not permit us to print these letters, yet at the same time we wish to point out that all of these letters were submitted under pseudonyms. The editors would find such letters much more welcome if the writers were willing to submit their own names for printing. If the letter is not of sufficient credit to the writer to cause him to wish to sign his own name to it, it is hardly equitable to ask "The Varsity" to print it. Again, the editors of this paper have their names at the top of every editorial column, accept responsibility for every issue, and hence, feel justified in asking for the right to print the names of those who write a comparatively small letter. Moreover, a letter signed with a bona fide name, carries infinitely more weight.

Rugby Tickets

The Editor,
 "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

Last Wednesday you printed two letters relative to the sale of rugby tickets to undergraduates. Subsequently, an interview with the Athletic Director and a letter from the secretaries of the S.A.C. were published by way of reply. Since a certain element of misunderstanding has arisen in the matter, I claim—as the writer of one of the original communications—the further hospitality of your columns, in view of statements placed on record by the above named officials, and various mistaken notions to which I am led to believe they gave expression in private. I desire to iterate the following:

1. I have no complaint to make against the courtesy or the efficiency either of officers or employees of the Athletic Directorate. As far as I personally am concerned, I was able to secure through the regular channels four excellent tickets for Saturday's game. Therefore, I maintain that no personal motives may be urged against me.

2. I neither made nor implied charges of graft on the part of athletic officials. If the persons who gathered this from my letter will re-read it, they will find that my mention of graft related to possibilities of such an element's creeping in, due to the alleged ease with which outsiders could procure tickets for university rugby games. Knowing the officials in question as I do, such a charge would be ridiculous; and I submit that the gentlemen showed more sensitiveness than judgment in alluding to it.

3. I did not urge that students had been discriminated against in the matter of tickets. Rather, I urged that there had not been discrimination in favour of students. I cited as the most pertinent and timely example the fact that no seats in the covered stand had been placed on sale for undergraduates when the wicket opened on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. Whether or not this point has been satisfactorily refuted, I leave it for the student body to decide.

I cannot, sir, refrain from remarking on the fine spirit evidenced by the Athletic Director in his sincere desire to clarify the situation and by the secretaries of the S.A.C. in their loyal expressions of confidence in the officials of the Athletic Directorate. In view of this, I cannot but regret their evident failure to grasp my main (Continued on page 4)

SPEAKING OF SPORT

What a game! They're still talking about it! No seconds to go and Varsity scores the winning point! There couldn't have been a closer finish.

* * *

"Sinclair's" winning kick is a high spot that will be remembered for years and then some.

* * *

The stands couldn't believe it for a minute and then they went crazy. Jack Sinclair was carried off the field, shoulder high, amid a roaring mob of enthusiasts.

* * *

The game was predicted as the season's classic and the prophets sure batted 1,000. And right here we go on record as calling the playoff at Kingston on Saturday to be another "wowser".

* * *

After nominating Sinclair for the Hall of Fame it is one tough job to pick any other Blue player as a stand-out. Billy Bell played a wonderful game and George Gooderham's tackling was sensational. But every Varsity man was good.

That week's secret practice certainly worked wonders. Maybe Queen's will adopt the idea this week.

* * *

In addition to Sinclair's famous return there were several outstanding plays. Don Wood's flying tackle on Gilmore was one of the weatest efforts ever made by a tackler. Then when Gilmore missed a placement Sinclair's return to centre was a beautifully played drive. And Sinclair's long high punt to Carter in the last minute of play could hardly have been placed better.

* * *

Varsity juniors swamped McGill 47-6 on the round. The Blue and White have had a good margin on every team they have met this season and are right in line for a Canadian championship in the age-limit series.

* * *

The Orphans finished their season with an exhibition game at Oshawa yesterday. A somewhat makeshift team were forced to bow to the Blue Devils, 1928 Intermediate Champions.

JACK SINCLAIR STARS IN THRILLING VICTORY

that last few minutes out on their feet and with only their heart to urge them on. Don Wood and Wally Bean were carried off the field in the last few minutes of the game, but the men who relieved them amply filled their places. Billy Bell, who had starred on the half-line, stepped in at quarter and led his team to victory.

Queen's got away to a flying start when Sinclair fumbled Carter's kick and the Tricolour secured in Varsity territory. Queen's could make no headway through the line and on Carter's kick Sinclair was routed. When Queen's lost the ball on a third down at centre Varsity worked the ball to the Tricolour thirty-yard line and Sinclair's attempt at a field-goal went to the deadline to tie the score. Following a short kick by Carter, Varsity gained possession on Queen's twenty-five yard line where another missed drop-kick by Sinclair was taken by Carter for a rouge. At quarter time Varsity led Queen's 2-1.

Varsity continued to press in the second quarter and put Queen's on the defensive well within their own territory. Queen's fumbled on their ten-yard line and the Blue secured. From fifteen yards out Sinclair kicked a neat field goal to put Varsity in the lead 5-1 at the end of the second quarter.

With the Blue four points in the lead at the opening of the third period and with Varsity having had the edge in play prospects looked fine for a Varsity triumph. But Carter got away on a neat run and then Gilmore missed a placement which Sinclair grabbed and on a beautiful play returned to the open field at centre. Gilmore's thirty-yard run again put the ball near the Blue goal posts. Gilmore missed another kick from placement and Bell ran it out. Carter's long kick was muffed by Sinclair behind his own line and Nichol of the Blue's pounced on it for a try. Gilmore missed the convert. With Queen's leading 6-5 Varsity's chances were not so good.

With the wind at their backs, the Blue began their drive. On a series of neat plunges Varsity worked the ball within thirty yards of the Tricolour goal posts. Sinclair tried another drop which went to Gilmore for a rouge. It was now a question of time. Could Varsity get that one point? With about three minutes to go Gilmore, who was onside, recovered Carter's kick on Queen's forty-five yard line. Three minutes to go. Carter kicked to Bell. Varsity had the ball on the Blue thirty. Sinclair kicked to Carter at centre. The Tricolour failed to gain on downs.

Then Queen's got a nice break. Carter's kick was blocked by the Tricolour got a first down. Then Carter kicked to Varsity's twenty with about a minute to go. Bell, now at quarter, called one plunge and then Sinclair kicked on the second down. Carter fumbled on the Queen's forty yard line and Ruddell got it. Sinclair boot a long high one over to Carter, who got it out a yard. Then Sinclair returned Carter's kick and the game was over. Varsity 7, Queen's 6.

Varsity—Flying wings, Ruddell and Stuart; halves, Sinclair and Bell; quarter, Wood; snap, Keith; insides, Kelly and Bean; middles, Morgan and Little; outsides, Gooderham and Subosits; subs, Jimmy Sinclair, Fitzpatrick, Elson, Dewar, Galloway, White, Hallam, Davey.

Queen's—Flying wings, Britton and Munro; halves, Carter and Gilmore; quarter, Sutton; snap, Abbott; insides, Gaetz, Nichol; middles, Stuart and Hamlin; outsides, Gourlay and Dickie; subs, Elliot, Basserman, Kilgour, Gorman, DeDiana, Hastings, Lackey, Caldwell.

once more, this time with the "Reveille".

Wreaths were placed one by one before the tablets, and Canon Cody pronounced the benediction. The band played "God Save the King" and marched away.

Then—the bells rang out thanksgiving as the crowd melted away.

WILDLY YELLING FANS CELEBRATE VICTORY

rade down Devonshire Place, preceded by the cheer-leaders and bearing at their head two members of the Blue team and an old wooden chair.

A cordon of police, mounted and on foot, accompanied the crowd down Devonshire Place, east on Hoskin Ave. down Queen's Park Crescent and then east to Bay St. The two players were released as the line passed Wycliffe College. Two cars parked north of the Parliament Buildings were found decorated with Queen's colours, and rapidly stripped of the hated emblems.

Singing the unexpurgated version of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here," and shouting vigorous "Toronto's" through cracked larynxes, the parade snake-danced down Bay St., weaving their way from side-walk to ear-tracks and back. By this time police officers were so numerous they seriously impeded traffic. The S.P.S. yell of "Toke Oike" and Victoria's "Hora Hosta" were boomed down, and the line chanted enthusiastically, "Yonge Street, Yonge Street, on to Yonge Street!" while several theatre addicts were heard debating the relative merits of Shea's and the Uptown. The wooden chair which had been seized at the stadium was passed back and forth from one end of the line to the other. Nobody knew why, but everybody helped to pass it on.

At Dundas St., it required a phalanx of mounted men to keep the line headed down Bay, and at Albert it finally succeeded in turning east again, only to be diverted south on James Street past the City Hall. Immediately a cry went up of "Speech from Sam Mc Bride! We want Sammy! Speech! Speech!" Disappointed by His Worship's absence, the students turned west on Queen St., and filed silently past the Cenotaph with bared heads. Angry cries of "Hats off! Take off your hat!" were hurled at the representatives of law and order, who refused to remove their headgear.

When the procession, persuaded by the firm but gentle limbs of the law from a sudden intention of honouring the Royal York Hotel with their presence, turned up University Avenue, things began to happen, and that right rapidly. Two unfortunate members of the Queen's band were discovered lug-ging their instruments in the general direction of the Union Station, and were immediately besieged with requests for a recital before they left. "Music!" shouted the eager fans. "Give us some music!" For a short time the ill-fated musicians seemed quite overwhelmed. Eventually a number of lusty "coppers" came to their rescue, and the students passed on, defeated but unshook.

Quiet was restored as the General Hospital was approached, but a hullabaloo of cheers broke out again at the sight of a group of nurses on a balcony. At College St. opinion was divided between Yonge Street and the bandstand as a destination, and the police took advantage of the momentary dissension to divert the parade westward. As the head of the line continued on past the street to the east of the Engineering building protests were heard of "That's our street. It belongs to us. You can't keep us off our street." When the corner to the west of the Engineering Building was reached, the cheer-leaders called a halt while three cheers and an acaemic "tiger" were given for the faithful escort.

converted. First quarter: Varsity 12, McGill 0.

McGill gave the Blue little opposition. Varsity intercepted a pass, and from 20 yards out Hodgetts kicked for a field goal. Varsity's end runs were netting them big gains. Gibson broke away on the Blue thirty five yard line and passed to Cutler, who went over for a touch. This 75 yard run was the feature of the game. Litowitz converted. Half-time: Varsity 21, McGill 0.

In the second half McGill settled down and gave Varsity a good fight. Hodgetts kicked for a rouge. On a completed forward pass, and a long end run the Blue went over for another touch. Sellers broke through to block Hodgetts' kick, scooped the ball up and scored a touch, which was not converted. Third quarter: Varsity 27, McGill 5.

The last quarter saw some real open playing. The "kids" took all sorts of chances. Bell fumbled behind the line, but the ball bounded out of touch

Rummyegg and Jolly Etta Talk Twaddle

By R. M. Laplante

Time:—After the masquerade.
(Rummyegg and Jolly Etta returning on foot from Hart House.)
R: Great to get some air again!
A minute more would finish me. It would be silly, don't you think To take a taxi, when it's such a perfect night for a stroll and Annesley isn't far. We'll walk.
J.E.: Perfect night Rummyegg?
"F you hadn't a receding chin You'd feel the rain. We'll get soaked Hurry up! You talked twaddle all evening and d'you think I'll listen to any more?
R: But didn't you have a lovely time?
J.E.: I didn't have enough to eat, You ate everything in sight.
And anyway there's a pin in that darn' doublet of yours that stuck into me when we danced. Why couldn't you get a decent costume?
R: Say listen here, who thought of this?
J.E.: How'd I know you'd look like that?
—A buckled scarecrow, a be-ruffed rake—
And what's more, that balcony scene you did in the pool-room was a flop.

Oh, I was mortified. Did you have to make me look as ridiculous as yourself?
(She sobs into her handkerchief.)
R: Why Etta dear, if I had known—I say!—What's wrong?—that handkerchief—
J.E.: Looks gory does it?—Well big boy. Let me tell you, my nose isn't bleeding. That's the colour of my sleeve. You would walk home in the rain. (They turn in at Annesley.) It's the fire-escape for me, I guess. I'll have to run up it. You stay here and do as you're told. Count the windows as I pass them. Whistle when you come to the seventh from the left, second row from the top—that's mine. Good night Rummyegg, remember the combination. (She tears up the fire-escape. He begins feverishly but losses count at the third story. Making desperate deductions, he whistles feebly—then flees as she disappears in a window. Two minutes later she emerges hastily and begins counting the windows herself.) Six, seven, no, three, four, five, ohyegods!

ties which its undergraduate members themselves have brought to its work. Again, it has been more than fortunate in its leadership. The university is grateful to Mr. Bickersteth as Warden of Hart House, not only for his wise and skilful guidance of its activities, but for something even greater—for having brought to it a spirit which has not only made the building an efficient organism, but has given it the character of an instrument of education. To Mr. Gilley, the devoted and able Comptroller, Hart House owes much, as indeed it is indebted to all the members of a loyal and efficient staff. The influence of the institution has been greatly widened by the sympathetic co-operation of the representatives of other organizations, amongst whom I should like to mention Mr. T. A. Reed, whose continued helpfulness is so deeply appreciated. May I take this opportunity of extending to the Warden, the Committees and the members of the House my warmest and most cordial good wishes and to express the hope, in which my wife joins, that their activities during the second decade of Hart House may be marked by a steadily increasing measure of success.

Yours sincerely,
Vincent Massey.

It is this spirit of real friendship, of humour, of good cheer, of the appreciation of the fine things of life which has influenced many who look back to Hart House with affection and is even now influencing those who are still undergraduates and who are learning to love Hart House and all that it stands for in their student days.

HART HOUSE SUCCESS UNDER TWO WARDENS

steth is the son of the Reverend Samuel Bickersteth, D.D., Senior Canon, Canterbury Cathedral, Chaplain to His Majesty the King.
His early education was received at Charterhouse and he later attended Christ Church, Oxford. While at Oxford he not only received his M.A. degree but also gained his Blue in Association Football and was captain of the Oxford University Association Football Club during the year 1910-1911.

After leaving Oxford he spent two years in Western Canada, the greater part of this time in Northern Alberta, where he was a member of the Archbishop's Mission of the Anglican Church. He returned to England in 1914, enlisted with the Royal Dragoons immediately on the outbreak of war in August and served with this unit throughout the whole period of the war. During his long service in France he distinguished himself by winning the M.C. and bar. After the war he returned to Western Canada, where he held a position on the History staff of the University of Alberta. He left the University of Alberta in 1921 and returned to the Old Country. During the summer of that year Mr. Bickersteth was offered the position of Warden of Hart House and after the most careful consideration decided to accept that responsibility. He took over his duties as Warden in September.

thesis—namely, that the system of apportioning tickets for important games showed the existence of a wrong sense of proportion and a non-recognition of the fact that the students are the university and that without them there is no university and no college games with all their incident colour. I reiterate, sir, my belief that this attitude is prevalent in official circles, Athletic and otherwise. I, in common with a great many others, lament this condition and propose to use what influence is ours to see that it is ameliorated. "If this be treason . . . ."

DERELICT BOTTLE EXCITES INTEREST AND ROUSES HEAT

Stray Container Investigated
By Snooping Reporter In Hart House

"BURNING SENSATION"

No Information Forthcoming
About the Origin of the Find

At 7:05 p.m. precisely on Saturday, November 9th a "Varsity" reporter observed a peculiar aroma pervading the atmosphere outside the east doors of Hart House library. Following his nose, he tracked the odour to its source, a quart bottle, made of brown glass and bearing the label of Hiram Walker & Sons, Ltd., of Walkerville, Ont., which claimed the original contents to have been Canadian Club whiskey. The bottle was placidly reposing in a waste receptacle a few feet from the library door.

On investigation it was found to contain a few drops of a colourless liquid, from which emanated a persistent odour of ethyl alcohol when the stopper of the bottle was removed. When placed in contact with the reporter's tongue, the liquid produced a strange burning sensation, as of liquid fire. A drop or two which trickled down his throat by accident seemed to produce a not entirely unpleasant sensation of warmth throughout the system. No explanation of the presence of the bottle in Hart House is as yet in evidence.

ADORN FOR MERE MEN

"It always takes longer than I think it will, so I'm never ready on time," said one despairing co-ed to the "Varsity" in answer to the statistic gathering questions regarding how much time is spent by college girls getting ready for dates.

"Well," said another, "it takes about an hour for a tub and dressing and then the awful struggle to get the powder to stick to my nose." The group laughed sympathetically, and some one added, "It always takes me at least ten minutes more to make sure I have a handkerchief and comb, and if I have to put on long gloves for a dance, I try to allow fifteen minutes for the ordeal."

"Men never appreciate our looks anyway, so I just rush. I can get ready in fifteen minutes for any kind of a date," was the contributing remark of a Victoria lassie.

"But you aren't counting the time it takes to get manicures and marcel and shampoos and things," said a practical science and consequently practical minded young lady. She was the perfection of finish even on the campus, and we seized her figuratively for the intricate details.

"Would you count the time spent buying hose and perfume and powder and lipstick?" "The Varsity" inquired.

"Yes," she answered after a moment. "In fact all in all I think most girls spend fully half their time getting ready for dates. Not just the actual immediate pre-date preparation,"

ATHLETIC SPIRIT IS ON THE WANE

Literary and Athletic Society
Debates Value of Athletic Effort

MOTION IS PASSED

"Progress must take place through international contact, so with inter-faculty sport," said Bruce Murray, first speaker on the affirmative, on the debate, "Resolved that a waning interest in athletics at University College is to be deplored", held last night at the second U.C. Lit. and Athletic Society meeting.

"U.C. is the oldest college and has a reputation, but we don't get out and fight for it. This is deplorable. The athletic director is not to be blamed and the interest depends on the student body as a whole."

"The importance of athletics has been overestimated," stated Leo Matania, first speaker on the negative.

"There has been so much development of muscle that it is hard to say whether U.C. is for learning or not. Athletics are very good and necessary, but mental development is of more importance. Does interest mean that when a team wins we should parade downtown like maniacs? We should rejoice that interest in athletics is waning and that the students are placing studies above muscle making."

"The purpose of athletics is not to develop muscle but to make one think," retorted Gord Gardin.

"There should be an interest in everything. Athletic activity develops the mind. U.C. will degenerate into students who spend all their time in the library. International sport is looked for in the colleges. The Olympic games in 1930 will not be as it should if the athletics are waning," he said.

"The university does not offer ath-

Dr. Herbert Gray

Who will address students on devotional subjects next week.

EMINENT AUTHOR TO SPEAK HERE

Will Spend Four Days In City
Commencing on Sunday
the Seventeenth

TO DISCUSS RELIGION

Dr. Herbert Gray, the noted English student leader and author, is spending four days in the University of Toronto commencing on Sunday next with services in Convocation Hall at eleven a.m. and seven p.m.

Dr. Gray was the outstanding speaker at the first National Student Conference held in the University of Toronto in December, 1922, and made a name for himself at that time in student circles throughout Canada. He is the author of several important books. No book was more widely read in the first few years after the Armistice than As Tommy Sees Us, which was a presentation of the soldier's view of the Church that only a man who had had a wide experience of army life could have written. Since then Dr. Gray has given us Men, Women and God, an important contribution to the problems of relations between men and women, A Christian Adventure With Christ as Guide, and Jesus and the Art of Living.

Dr. Gray will conduct devotional services in Knox College Chapel on Monday and Tuesday at 1:30, and will speak in Hart House Theatre at 5:15 each day. These meetings are open to both men and women and all students are cordially invited. On Wednesday at 5:15 he will give an address to men in the Music Room, Hart House, on "The Ethics of Jesus". The general theme of Dr. Gray's addresses will be "The Place of Religion in the Life of Students To-day."

FRATERNITY STATUS REGARDING TAXATION HARD TO DETERMINE

Professors and Students State Various Opinions on Question

RESIDENCES ARE PROVIDED

Members Pay for All Services in Majority of the Fraternities

"If the question were to be taken up here," said Prof. Auger of Victoria College, when questioned by "The Varsity" as to whether or not fraternities should be exempt from taxation, "it might be argued that they are exempt, inasmuch as they are a part of an educational organization. I believe the Supreme Court of Illinois in ruling that Greek letter societies are exempt, termed them 'charitable and educational organizations' so that they might come under a certain category. I do not know of any other reason why they might be termed charitable."

Undergraduates were quite unanimous in their opinion that fraternities are not charitable and educational organizations. "Fraternity members pay for everything they get," said M. Freeman, I C & E. "The fraternity does not spend anything towards the keep of the students, outside of the money it receives from its members. It cannot therefore be called a charitable organization, although in some cases it is of great service to out of town students."

Earl Lautenslager, III Victoria, thought that fraternities would come under the category of charitable organizations when the university did not provide suitable residences for its students. "That is the case down at Northwestern University, but here in Toronto, the university supplies extensive accommodation in its various residences," he said.

A despatch from Ann Arbor in yesterday's "Varsity" stated that five fraternities at the University of Michigan have been placed on probation for toleration of intoxicants. "It's tolerated here," said J. A. Fisher, a fraternity man in II S.P.S. "but the fellow is kept out of the way. A drunk at a frat dance is usually subdued but no rough treatment is meted out to him."

The College of Education of the University of West Virginia may be assumed, as its share in the national campaign to stamp out illiteracy in the United States, the task of allotting students to illiterate persons near Morgantown to teach them to read and write.

Antics Afield

Students at the University of Denver having expressed dissatisfaction with the type of genus homo registered in Engineering there, the Denver Clarion runs a news article under the following enlightening headline: "Thousand Copies of New Engineer To Be Published."

The Ohio State Lantern announces that it has heard from the Washington Daily that professors in the Minnesota College of Medicine are becoming suspicious that certain students are taking lectures by proxy, with the aid of hired substitutes. Accordingly, they have provided themselves with photographs of all students, which may be used to identify those answering to the roll call.

YOUR FOUR DOLLARS

Certain time-honoured fictions are exploded by the financial statement of the Joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Councils which we print elsewhere in this issue. Up to the present, unhappily, these fictions have been maintained by the absolute ignorance of the student government concerning its own finances; a condition that is deplorable, pathetic, and ridiculous, when one considers that the students conduct publishing enterprises whose balance sheets show figures running into many thousands.

And now that the figures are known, the fictions are destroyed and two staggering truths leap out! The statement has been so designed that these facts are likely not to appear, at first glance, to those unaccustomed to reading statements, but they are, nevertheless, undeniable.

Now, for some time it has been made public that "The Varsity" was a losing proposition. Who made this public, is hard to say, yet the strength of the impression can be substantiated by those who have had to do with the Executive and student publications in past years.

At the same time, "Torontonensis" has been considered somewhat of an unwarranted luxury, and the editor was continually forced to curtail originality, and even reasonably inexpensive typography, for the sake of the budget.

Well! These fictions can never be used again; they are knocked on the head at one swat; "The Varsity" is not a losing proposition, but a highly profitable enterprise, and each copy of Torontonensis costs not, as we have been led to believe, a dollar and a quarter for each year of undergraduate life, not even a dollar, but nineteen cents.

Consider "The Varsity" statement. Do not be afraid of it, because you are unaccustomed to statements; it is nothing but a list of the moneys received and spent on account of "The Varsity". Down at the bottom you see a "loss" of $2,348.04. But over on the statement of the profit of the Executive as a whole is a profit of $12,670.65 on "administration". Administration? Turn to "The Varsity" statement again, the part marked "revenue". Do you miss anything? "Subscriptions, $61.70." These are the subscriptions of a few graduates and others. But what of your subscription and ours?

On page 40 of the Arts Calendar, 1929-30, is written, "The annual fee of the Students' Administrative Council provides for a year's subscription to "The Varsity". Mr. A. G. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the Councils, when questioned, pointed out that this subscription had always been generally considered a dollar per student. But not a mention is made of it in the statement.

In the academic year 1928-29 there were 5,961 students, at least 5,700 of whom paid for "Varsity" in S.A.C. fees. At a dollar apiece, one cent an issue, this so-called "loss" of $2,348.04 becomes a profit of $3,451.96. Even at fifty cents a subscription, one half cent an issue, the "Varsity" makes a profit of $601.96.

Do you see what this means? For years "Varsity" editors have been told and told again that they edited a losing proposition. Any business would lose that gave its product away. In this statement not one red cent of your four dollars is apportioned to "Varsity" subscriptions, so that, on the face of it, the "administration" is handed a profit of over twelve thousand dollars and "The Varsity" a loss of twenty-three hundred. Given even half a cent an issue, the "Varsity" hurdles the high printing cost of $72.35 per issue and romps away to a pretty profit!

Now let us consider "Torontonensis". Let us say that we don't want to bore you with figures; the editors feel it their duty to show you the situation as it appears. It has long been supposed that each student gave a dollar a year to the S.A.C. which, in return, gave him a copy of "Torontonensis" when he graduated. Let us apply this to the year of '29, assuming that all students who failed before becoming seniors forfeited their past fees to those who survived. Last year the class of '29 eligible for "Torontonensis" numbered 899, in its junior year 971 and soon, so that we estimate conservatively, allowing for the six year term in Medicine and the two years of Occupational Therapy, and so on, that, at a dollar per head per year, the class of '29 paid $3,500 for Torontonensis. Put this to the credit of the 1929 Torontonensis and, instead of a "loss" of $1,007.21, there was a profit of $4,927.79. Whoopie! Put in another way, the cost of Torontonensis to the S.A.C. was only $1,007.21, or only 18.3 cents for each student per year in the class of '29.

Nineteen cents! Out of a fee which the class of '29 paid for four years, all that it got by way of Torontonensis was nineteen cents' worth. And the way this is expressed in the published statement of the Joint Executive is that "Torontonensis" suffered a "loss" of a thousand dollars. On the basis of this statement, without going into general expenses, it should be possible to run the entire current activities of the Joint Executive on a fee of two dollars. And this corporation has been in business for over twenty years.

It is not the intention of the editors to cast aspersions; one purpose only has governed this editorial, and that has been to indicate to the reader, the student, certain matters which the auditors' statement cannot be expected to make clear to one not used to interpreting balance sheets.

Art, Music and Drama

Organ Recital

Dr. Moure's first recital for this season was a distinct success and promised well for a delightful and profitable series.

The new console in addition to improving the appearance, greatly facilitates performance. The thirty-two fast pedal reeds, the new tube and the French horn are most valuable additions.

A new Borowski sonata of classical style lost effect in this reviewer's opinion by the strict 19th century registration of the intermezzo. Its delightful plainsong theme and idyllic cadences were scarcely afforded the happiest medium for expression provided by 20th century instruments.

The Bach C minor received a scholarly rendition, the new tuba showing itself to be of excellent quality and of great power in the last few bars.

James' meditation a Ste. Clotilde and the Reverie du Soir from the "Suite Algerienne", were neatly played and heartily applauded.

This popular series of organ recitals by as thoroughly academic and masterful player is sure to receive excellent support.

More About Rugby Tickets

November 7, 1929

Editor of "Varsity":

I have been very glad to see the protests in "The Varsity" regarding the sale of seats for the Queen's-Varsity game. But the fault is not altogether with the Athletic Board. The real seat of trouble is deeper than that. Out of the gate receipts, particularly from rugby, the Board is required to finance all the sports of the university and this is naturally no small item. Gate receipts are accordingly of paramount importance and hence one can scarcely blame the Athletic Board for selling tickets downtown at $2 rather than to students at $1. The Athletic Board is forced by circumstances to depend for financial support upon downtown patrons and they accordingly must be accommodated. This is, of course, a situation that ought not to exist and I have protested against it ever since I came to Toronto. If athletic activities are an important part of university life, and they are, they ought to be supported financially by the Board of Governors identically with any other activity of the university and should not be made dependent upon gate receipts. This is nothing other than commercialization, commercialization for a good cause, but commercialization nevertheless. At the University of Chicago all athletic activities of the university are under the direction of the Department of Physical Training and the head of that department, Mr. Stagg, is professor of Physical Training and was appointed like any other professor by the Board of Trustees and receives his salary and financial support for the department in general from the Board of Trustees. In brief, the Department of Physical Training is on an identical footing with any other department of the university and is run for the students and not for the general public. Hence, tickets for games are always available first to students, staff and alumni, and to all of these the best seats (not the second best) are offered at a reduced rate that is the same to all three groups. It is only after these three groups have been fully satisfied that tickets are available to the general public. This is as it should be here.

Sincerely yours,

T. J. Meek.

A university of atheists opens in Leningrad, Russia, recently with an enrolment of about 50 women and 250 men, with the purpose of developing a powerful body of anti-religionists and atheists in Russia.

Student finances, as we all know, are under the control of the Joint Executive, which works through its Finance Committee. The Joint Executive has complete powers, subject only to a Finance Committee of the Board of Governors. We wish to indicate to the latter body and to the students, who, at times, seem to be overlooked as a necessary part of university, that in all differences between the editors of "The Varsity" and of "Torontonensis" and the financial powers, the editors have been reminded of the "loss" on their publications, a fiction which the present statement, to all outward seeming, seeks to perpetuate.

SHEA'S

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians will take you to Shea's this week. These gentlemen are masters of the jazz idiom and amply merit their place in the sun. With them are two personable females, one of whom is the round-eyed baby-singer who pleased the patrons in last season's film, "Syncope". The current screen attraction, "Hold Your Man", offers the spectacle of the blonde Laura La Plante blossoming forth as an audible comedy star. The story concerns a Paris divorcee which didn't come off, and provides amusement and a certain amount of French. Lupino Lane has a short comedy of his usual hilarious order. And—oh, yes!—the news reel offers shots of Saturday's Queen's-Varsity game.

U.C. JUNIOR BASKETEERS DEFEAT VICTORIA WOMEN 32-14

SPEAKING OF SPORT

So there's to be a play-off at Kingston! Co-ed problems now centre about transportation.

* * *

That good old college spirit which was supposed to be languishing if not dead, staged a live come-back last Saturday. It will probably still be going strong at the end of the week.

* * *

Medette athletes, although only about eighteen in number, do not intend to be looked over by any other faculty this year. Far from it!

* * *

Med freshmen look good and are turning out consistently. Last year Medettes won all their games in the hockey series until Dot James, their star player, dropped out. Barring a like misfortune this year their chances look good. "Rome" McCulloch is a powerful centre and Vi Henry a good side centre.

* * *

Dr. Marion Hilliard coached the team last year and it is hoped she will repeat.

* * *

U.C. juniors had the edge on Medettes in basketball last week in passing. Meds are trying to correct this in practice. The next game will show.

* * *

Dama Lunly will be a great addition to university hockey if she does not decide to join up with a local team. She was goalie of the St. Thomas girls' intermediate hockey team, winners of their section, and is now in architecture at S.P.S.

Special to "The Varsity"

Delaware, Ohio—Students are dodging the ban on automobiles imposed by officials of Ohio Wesleyan University by taking the lady-friend for airplane rides instead.

Jim Bausch, star player on the University of Kansas rugby team, and noted for his ability to send opposing players to the hospital, insists that his fellow players greet him by his full cognomen, "James Aloysius."

EASTERN CANADA RUGBY STANDINGS

The following are the final standings of the various Eastern Canada Senior Rugby Unions:

INTERCOLLEGIATE

	W	L	T	For	Against
U. of T.	5	1	0	72	23
Queen's	5	1	0	92	14
McGill	1	5	0	14	80
Western	1	5	0	23	84

The playoff for the Intercollegiate title will take place at Kingston next Saturday as the result of Queen's winning the toss.

INTERPROVINCIAL

	W	L	T	For	Against
Hamilton	5	1	0	120	20
Montreal	4	2	0	41	40
Argonauts	3	3	0	50	35
Ottawa	0	6	0	12	128

O.R.F.U. SENIOR

Group "A"
	W	L	T	For	Against
Sarnia	6	0	0	95	18
Windsor	3	3	0	50	73
Hamilton II	2	4	0	40	66
Orphans	1	5	0	56	62

Group "B"
	W	L	T	For	Against

Twin City	3	3	0	59	33
St. Michael's	2	4	0	51	103
Camp Borden	1	5	0	14	65

The Sarnia Imperials, winners in "A" group, won the O.R.F.U. senior title by defeating Balm Beach in the playoff yesterday.

WATER POLO TEAM TO PLAY TO-NIGHT

Expect Keen Competition From City Team, Which is Strengthened

PLAY HERE NOV. 30

The opening game of the City Water Polo League will be played at Central "Y" tank to-night at 9:00 p.m. and will bring together Varsity, last year's champions, and a much improved Central "Y" team.

The university team, holders of the Star Trophy have been practicing faithfully under Coach Fran Lorenzen, and are ready to take Central into camp. The outside teams were running under difficulties in last year's league as they had not been in league competition before. This year, however, they are right on the game and with experienced players expect to make the Varsity boys fight for the cup.

The Varsity team has lost Johnnie Goss, Leo Latchford and Laurie Bulter by graduation but new men have come along and are fitting in nicely. Capt. George Spence is playing a good game, both offensively and defensively. He is backed up by a strong team including Eddie Sinclair, last year's captain, Army Armstrong and Harvey Graham of last year's team.

The City League should give the University of Toronto team a good opportunity to improve their weak points before the opening game of the International Water Polo League, which will be played with Penn A.C. on Nov. 30th.

KNOX DEFEATS VICTORIA IN FAST SOCCER GAME

In a hard fought fight yesterday afternoon Knox defeated Victoria in soccer 2-1. Knox had the edge throughout the game and it was only due to the spectacular playing of Vic's goal that the score was not higher. In the first half there was no score by either team. In the last D. Davidson scored the first goal for Knox on a penalty kick. A little later Beeton sent another home. Toward the end of the game Victoria scored. Final score 2-1.

Knox—Irvine, H. Davidson, W. H. Jack, W. West, Roland, D. Jack, Macdonald, Beeton, D. Davidson, Johnson, Milroy.

Vic—Little, Simpson, Cox, Snell, Reacom, Cryderman, Hughes, Norman, Houston, Searle, Leslie.

VICTORIA DEFEATED BY U.C. WOMEN IN JUNIOR GAME

Good Combination Marks Play in Close Basketball Game

WINNERS ARE SPEEDY

Louise Crouch Is The Star As She Scores Seven Times

U.C. juniors played Vic juniors in a fast basketball game last night at U.T.S. gym to win by the score of 32-14. Both teams passed well, Vic using a backward pass, but the winners proved superior in speedy interception.

During the first half of the game, U.C. displayed good combination. Mary Lackie, side-centre, was particularly fast, while Louise Crouch shot seven of the ten baskets scored for U.C. in this period. Betty Keyes, forward for Vic, put up a strong fight but had insufficient steady support.

In the second half the Vic team rallied, and showed excellent fighting spirit, but the winners kept up their combinations. U.C. took advantage of their opponents' fumbles to intervene in the play. Both teams kept up speedy playing till the end. Line-ups:

Vic Juniors—Forwards, Margaret Waugh, Betty Keyes; guards, Bessie Mountain, Margaret Cork; jumping centre, Dot Bishop; side centre, Mabel Christian; subs, Isabelle McKillop, Ada Sparling, Florence Sparling.

U.C. Juniors—Forwards, Louise Cronch, Bessie Lowry; guards, Jean Allen, Lorraine Harvey; jumping centre, Betty Thomas; side centre, Mary Lackie; sub, Pat MacLean.

CHARTERED TRAIN TO CARRY ROOTERS

Athletic Directorate Pays Part of the Cost of Special Accommodation

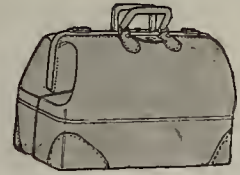

FOR STUDENTS ONLY

"At a meeting to-day of the Athletic Directorate, it was generously decided to offer students special combination rates of $5.00." Mr. A. Gordon Burns told "The Varsity" at the S.A.C. office last evening. "This includes the ticket for the game and a special return railroad fare."

"Wednesday at noon," continued Mr. Burns, "student season ticket holders may secure their tickets and other students will get theirs on Thursday noon. The train which has been specially chartered by the Students Directorate and Athletic Association and reserved entirely for university students, will leave at 8:25 Saturday morning from the Union Station. To insure that only students be passengers, registration cards must be presented on purchase of ticket and must also be shown when handing ticket to the conductor on train. Regular tickets to the game are at three prices, $1, $1.50 and $2.00."

"The train leaves Kingston at 6:30 p.m. although the railroad tickets will be valid for return on any regular train. There will be included in the equipment, dining cars and special coaches set aside for women students under the usual satisfactory chaperoning of Miss Parks."

"The Athletic Directorate have consented to defray part of the expenses of the trip in order that the team will be assured of as much support as possible. This is an excellent opportunity to see a fine rugby game and it is, therefore, hoped that every student will take advantage of the special rate and go down and help his team win the Intercollegiate title."

GOING TO KINGSTON SATURDAY ?

UNIVERSITY CLUB BUILDING RISES ON NEW LOCATION

All University Graduates Are Eligible to Join the Club

The University Club is erecting a new building on University Avenue and running through to Simcoe Street which will be ready for occupancy between the first of December and the New Year. The Club, which has been in existence for fifteen or twenty years, formerly occupied the site of the new Star building. It is not a University of Toronto Club particularly, since graduates of any university and schools of good standing, such as Osgoode and the Royal Military College, are eligible for membership. The new building will be fitted with dining, lounge and billiard rooms among others necessary for the social intercourse of the graduates.

WITH THE THEATRES

short series of "Impressions from Faust," by the Uptown Ensemble. This opens with some good singing, in the transformation scene and is followed by some good dancing in a veritable Bacchanalian orgy, by the Uptown ballet. The main feature, "Illusion," is rather weak as far as the plot is concerned, although the acting on the whole is good. "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll make the picture what it is. The usual musical act of War time music fills up the Thanksgiving programme without adding anything particularly inspiring. As a whole this week is certainly not the best we have seen at the Uptown in the last few weeks.

letics as a main issue," said Marvin Gelber.

"Students are now interested in educational matters. How can an intelligent person watch twenty-two ruffians chasing an inflated rubber ball in the mud? The interest is only present when a team is winning. This interest would be more welcome if taken in U.C. literary activities."

The motion was carried by the house. The literary director announced that the U.C. magazine will be of a higher grade than in the previous years. It will be ready for purchase in a week or so. Arrangements have been made for a 75th anniversary meeting of the society.

A motion was brought to the attention of the athletic director favouring U.C. with tennis courts. It will be reported on at the next meeting.

Refreshments followed at the close of the meeting.

Bunkley Braves Bughouse Blues Interviewer Insists Idiot Insane

By N. J. DeVill

"We have all kinds from up your way," said the attendant, side-stepping a party who was trying to sic one of the iron dogs onto one of the deer which decorated the lawn.

"Hey," protested eye scribe, "I'm not a university student. I'm a newspaper man. I'm from the Aurora Borealis, looking for Bunkley Shuter."

"One of the worst," said the nurse. "But we have lots of undergraduates. Their chief delusion is that by running around in circles they can be in two places at once."

At this juncture a wild-eyed person rode up on a tricycle and began to shoot paper wads at us.

"Bunkley!" I cried, for it was none other than he.

"Mr. Speaker," cried Bunkley, "I really don't know where I should be stand, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I think I ought to be sitting up on that chandelier."

"You're cuckoo!" we cried.

"Now I'm gonna sing a little song folks, an' I know you're gonna like it; and it's gonna be a big surprise for you. I wrote it myself an' it's called 'The Goo-gloo Bird' after an old friend of mine. She's a queensy sort of person; she not only reigns but she pours tea. And what have we to fear, with Gilbert at the elm? Steer on, brave hearts, steer on, and may there be no bulls. Heat the Primrose Bath on the Benson Burner. The gas is off? Never! Never! Not while I can sing:

"The Gnat-gnat byrde sate on a tree
Deep in ye Wyng-wang Wood
And all who saw could plainly see
He sang as best he could"

"What are they throwing at those poor pigs?"

"Fake pearls," said Bunkley, "fake pearls."

"Do they know they're fake?" we asked.

"No," said Bunkley, "of course not. Look at that fellow pelting them with primroses . . . ."

"There!" said Bunkley, "I never accompanied myself on the piccolo before. Dear sir, I have had six bottles of ketchup and I'm still behind in my lessons—"

The lightning bug is clever
But he hasn't any mind
He flies about creation
With his headlight on behind,"

as the great Chicago has it. But I must be off—"

"I'm sure you are," said eye scribe. "You seem to be a little cuckoo."

"You make me feel cheap," said Bunkley, making a left-hand turn on his tricycle.

"How did you come to be in this bug-house?" we asked.

"I said the United States was on an economically sound basis."

"Well," we replied, "that's harmless."

"But two Baldwin House professors heard me and this is the result."

"Are you sure that was everything?"

"Well," said Bunkley judiciously, "perhaps the fact that I used to eat in a w.k. tea room and coffee shop had something to do with it."

"How come?"

"The morality squad pinched the place for intellectual piracy and sent everybody down here. There they all are, over there in the barnyard."

"What are they throwing at those poor pigs?"

"Fake pearls," said Bunkley, "fake pearls."

"Do they know they're fake?" we asked.

"No," said Bunkley, "of course not. Look at that fellow pelting them with primroses . . . ."

HOURS ARE WASTED

But all the things leading up to it. Washing your hair, getting your shoes cleaned, pressing your dresses, fussing over dress patterns, getting the right frame of mind."

Another co-ed broke in. "If you are going to include those things, you might as well say all the time. So we spend most of our lives getting ready for dates."

"I don't, and you don't have to," exclaimed a peppy St. Hilda's fresher. "An hour a day will keep your clothes in order, and that long will look after the shampoos and such things. And then say an hour to assemble the picture. Well, even if you have a date every day, that's not more than three hours."

"Well, even at that, I wouldn't be ready," mourned the first co-ed. "If I worked as long as I get ready for dates, I'd get a first and a flock of scholarships every year."

The whole group decided that it was well worth the time and effort to feel just right, and see the admiring gleam in the date's eyes, even if it had waited twenty minutes.

Satisfied, "The Varsity" departed, with the conviction that the time might be wasted, but the end justified the means.

Here and There

(415)

A ship of heroes skipped by one of themselves was the unique feature of the sailing of the Duchess of York on a recent trip from Montreal. Six holders of the Victoria Cross, Britain's most envied and most meritorious of war awards, were on the vessel, which was under the command of Captain Stuart, himself a V.C. They were on their way from Canada to London to take part in the dinner by the Prince of Wales to Victoria Cross men from all parts of the Empire, slated to be held November 9. Other V.C.'s travelled on Canadian Pacific liners Minnedosa and Empress of Scotland.

The stage is being rapidly set for one of the outstanding developments in Canada in a decade when the English Folk Dancers and exponents of English folk dancing will hold a festival at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, November 13-18. A British opera by a British composer of world-wide fame will be produced for the first time on this continent when "Hugh the Drover," by Dr. R. Vaughan Williams, is put on during the festival, and Canada and Canadians will be introduced to a whole new world of art and beauty.

"We are all primarily conscious of the fact that this country, measured by any of the yardsticks by which the prosperity of a nation can be gauged, is a very prosperous country, notwithstanding disturbed stock markets and a rather unusual grain situation, both of which are, we hope, temporary," said E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, at a dinner given recently in his honor by the St. Catharines Chamber of Commerce.

Robert Hume and George Thornton, veterans of many competitions, who teamed up from Manor, Saskatchewan, in the Canadian Pacific Swine Club competition for boys and girls of the province, have carried off the silver trophy and will join the teams from the western provinces for a trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto as guests of the railway.

Bituminous sand deposits of the McMurtry district and along the Athabasca River will eventually furnish the large quantities of material required for waterproofing and surfacing the gravel roads of the western provinces, is the opinion of Major C. G. Ommanney, director of development for the Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal.

Colwood Golf Course, where the second annual Empress Hotel mid-winter golf tournament will be staged in February next, is one of the finest links on the continent, declared Walter Hagen, British open golf champion, who recently played an exhibition game there. "It is a tricky course that calls for the best in a player and the park-like surroundings are ideal," he added.

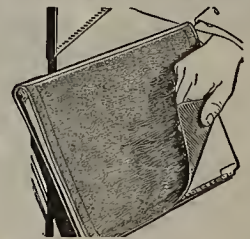

George Johnson, son of Henry Johnson, locomotive engineer of 32 years' standing with the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been awarded a scholarship for five years at L'Ecole Polytechnique of Montreal, following the recent examinations for entrance at that school. He is a resident of Three Rivers, Quebec. These scholarships have been offered since 1905, since which year 47 opportunities for free tuition have been offered by the railway.

T. A. Reed Charges Professor Meek With Lack of Knowledge of Athletics

Unnecessary To Travel South
For Inspirations Says
Secretary Reed

CHAIR NOT REQUIRED

Undergraduate Opinion Seems To Agree With Professor's Letter

"Although I have not had time to carefully read Professor Meek's letter in yesterday's 'Varsity', as usual he shows his lamentable lack of knowledge of athletics in the University of Toronto," stated Mr. T. A. Reed, of the athletic directorate when interviewed regarding Prof. Meek's suggestion as to the foundation of a chair of Physical Training here.

"It is not necessary for us to go to Chicago or any other American university for our inspirations. The Athletic Association is directly responsible to the Board of Governors of the university. Its budget must be approved by them and its financial secretary is responsible to the Board of Governors through the athletic directorate. Although the details are slightly different the athletic directorate is virtually a chair of Athletics with myself at its head. It might be pertinent to add, 'Has Prof. Meek read the report of the Carnegie Foundation of its recent survey of athletics in American Universities.'"

Undergraduate opinion seemed to approve of the foundation of a chair. "Prof. Meek is right," thinks L. G. Arnold, II, C & F, "university rugby should be run primarily for students and secondary consideration should be given to the public. Adopt any means possible to that end, but the foundation of such a chair seems feasible."

T. Grandon, I Vic, though not boasting great knowledge on the subject, though the students should get the greater percentage of tickets and leave a share for the general public.

Band Practice

All members are urged to be on hand for to-day's practice, at 5.00 p.m. The band intends to make the trip to Kingston with the rugby team and therefore requires that every member be present. Practice will be held at the usual time and place.

Allan Jones

Who sings the title role of "Hugh", in the performance of "Hugh, the Drover" at the Royal York on November 15, in the six-day English Music Festival being staged by the Canadian Pacific Railway under the supervision of Murray Gibbon. Mr. Jones was a visitor at the High Table in the Great Hall of Hart House recently.

FIRST POSTER GROUP HELD BY MR. LISMER

Craftsmanship Considered More Important Than Subject in Many Cases

IMPORTANCE OF COLOUR

Yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, Mr. Arthur Lismer held his first poster group at the Women's Union. Mr. Lismer stressed the fact that a poster to be of any value, must catch the attention immediately. "But," he added, "the artist must be thoroughly at home with his medium—the brush—before he attempts to be original. Craftsmanship, or treatment of subject, is often more important than the subject itself." To emphasize this point Mr. Lismer showed how important a part colour and clarity of outline played in the art of making posters. "One would not advertise a Shakespearean tragedy in pale mauve or primrose yellow," he humorously observed.

In order that the members of the group may become proficient in this fascinating "craft" Mr. Lismer proposed that they should practice certain artistic designs which he explained.

The group meets at the Women's Union every two weeks, alternating with the "Art Appreciation Group" which Mr. Lismer holds at the Art Gallery.

BOOK DEPARTMENT PROVIDES SAVING FOR ALL CLASSES

Actual Figures Prove That Prices at University Press
Are Lower

DELAYS CAUSE COMPLAINTS

Student Opinion Varies As To Value of Service Rendered by Press

Are books sold cheaper in the downtown shops and departmental stores than in the Students' Book Department? Complaints have come to "The Varsity" from different quarters that books cost more or are sold no cheaper at the University Press. In order to see if these statements were well-founded or not, "The Varsity" solicited opinions from undergraduates selected at random about the campus and college halls.

A third year medical student said that he had procured premiums of stationery from one of the shops near the university. He said that he preferred to buy his books at this store because of the free linen given out. Also penman's of his and other faculties were given for nothing. He still has some writing paper left with the official medical crest on it which he got in his first year.

"I believe the press is quite reasonable in price. I think the service could be improved. Books nearly always have to be ordered. I don't see why they can't have a bigger stock on hand. It is very annoying to have professors tell you to get a book and to find on going to the Press that you can get it in about three weeks. If the Press had these books on hand at the beginning of the term, people would buy them as they have the money then," said "Al" Dignan, 3T1, Victoria.

Mike Freeman, I Commerce and Finance, stated that a book he had procured downtown was a lot dearer than at the Press.

Mr. R. J. Hamilton, manager of the University Press, in an interview with "The Varsity", stated:

"The most effective answer to the (Continued on page 4)

Writers! Attention!

"The Varsity" wishes to announce that through the kindness of the Literary and Debates Committee, a weekly literary section will be run in its columns, with substantial prizes for the best work submitted by the readers. It is anticipated that the first section will be run on Wednesday, November 20. Short prose and verse of all kinds will be considered, and exact details will be announced later.

The section will be conducted by P. E. Ussher, B.A., and Nathaniel A. Benson, M.A.

3T3 Year Party

3T3 held a successful year party last night. Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick, Mrs. G. Howard and Mr. C. N. Cochrane, acted as patrons. The Union was guarded by three policemen, which is said to have accounted for the lack of volume in the S.P.S. yell given at the end of the party.

BLUE AND WHITES EXPECT TO FIGHT AT TOP STRENGTH

Coach Concentrates on Few Weak Spots in Secret Practices

ONLY BEAN STILL OUT

No Injuries Reported at Queen's and Tricolour Working Hard

Varsity are not going into the game on Saturday with any degree of overconfidence. Coach McPherson has had the Big Blue working out at the Stadium every night this week and the team is showing pep and punch that promises to defeat the Tricolour on their own gridiron.

"Rennie" is concentrating on the few weak spots still apparent in his football machine. Light scrimmage work and signal practices are the order of the day. Wally Bean has not appeared as yet in uniform but it is confidently expected that Varsity will be at top strength on Saturday. The other injuries have all turned out and should be okay for the championship fray.

The field at the Stadium is pretty soft, and the team is pretty well accustomed to a muddy gridiron. If it should rain on Saturday Varsity ought to display the same brand of good football that they have shown on dry ground. The backfield are sure catchers and can take the slippery pigskin without a fumble.

Reports from the Tricolour camp indicate that Queen's have no injuries. "Bubs" Britton, who was the most seriously injured last Saturday, has taken part in the heavy scrimmaging, and the "wolf" cry is being discarded in this all-important fixture. Coach Batstone is taking no chances, and has been working the team hard, expecting a well-earned victory.

Queen's are preparing to set up a new attendance record at the game. The special stands imported from the Molson Stadium will be set up and accommodation provided, for 12,000. Varsity will send 5,000 strong, and the Big Blue is assured of plenty of support.

Antics Afield

All other alibis having been scornfully rejected, the McGill Daily tries to account for its defects by claiming that the News Editor, L. C. Carroll, is definitely insane. Only last week, in company with a few chosen companions, he led a parade through the heart of Montreal, claims the Daily, beating a big bass drum and stopping at intervals to deliver Communist orations. Each of the gentlemen was equipped with a fork, with which he industriously garnered cigarette-butts and transferred them to a cup. Entering Windsor station, the cavalcade attempted to wash the floor with small paint brushes and proceeded to roll peanuts along it with their noses. After another Communist address, a collection of six cents was taken up. Carroll has attempted to explain his actions on the ground that he was undergoing a fraternity initiation ceremony, but we hear that this statement has served only to strengthen the suspicion of his mental aberration.

MISS HOME DELIVERS LECTURE ON POTTERY

Comparison Is Made Between Chinese and European Pottery

HISTORY IS TRACED

"Variety, antiquity, beauty and craftsmanship all go to make the study of the potter's art in China peculiarly absorbing," stated Miss R. M. Home, in her lecture on Chinese Pottery and Porcelains given Tuesday at the Royal Ontario Museum. "Compared with it, European pottery is crude and provincial while the porcelain is a child of yesterday, barely two centuries old, a child moreover of China itself."

In the early period, between 200 B.C.-200 A.D. the shapes for the jars and vessels were borrowed from the bronze. The glory of this time, however, was the glaze, which must have made its way from Egypt to China, for glaze was invented in Egypt and from there penetrated eastward.

"In the next period, Tang, the glazes of lead were very popular; a dab of green, yellow or brown lead glaze was placed on the outside of the figure before firing, then it was placed in the kiln, and the heat caused the glaze to run and streak in the charming fashion seen on the figures. The pottery of these two periods was almost entirely tomb furniture.

With the Sung period, there was the disappearance of the mortuary use, and emphasis was on the artistic aspect;—pottery and porcelain were used for tea-bowls. Tea to the oriental did not mean a social gathering but had an aesthetic and religious significance. They appreciated the evanescent beauty of nature, and the glory of man's handiwork.

The Players' Guild

The Players' Guild of University College announces its completed annual programme as follows:

Wed., Nov. 20th—Lecture; Sir Barry Jackson.

Wed., Nov. 27th—Literature, Schnitzler; Director, Mr. A. Allan.

Wed., Dec. 4th—Melloney Holtspar, Masfield; Director, Mr. R. Card.

"Yes, in a sense, that should not be called a deficit," said Mr. T. A. Russell, chairman of the finance committee, of the Board of Governors, of the University of Toronto, referring to the "loss on publications" of $3,355.25, in the Joint Executive's first financial statement in "The Varsity" yesterday. "The Varsity" interviewed Mr. Russell on the station platform before his train pulled out for New York. He had not yet seen the editorial but took a copy to read on the train.

"We used to show so much for 'Varsity', so much for 'Torontonensis' and so on. Perhaps with things in better shape we may arrange the figures that way again," continued Mr. Russell in explanation, "but the last four or five years it has been a question of plugging things in as best we could and trying to make ends meet and get that deficit paid off to the Board of Governors."

Since the eleven thousand dollars had been repaid of the loan which the Board of Governors made to cover a deficit in student administration, Mr. Russell thought that the "Torontonensis" editor and the staff of "The Varsity" would have less reason to complain of the constant pinch of finances.

"The student government finances are in fine shape now. You are pretty much in the position of a man who has had his affairs straightened out and is now on his feet so that he can look himself in the face once again. He may consider a few luxuries."

"There is a real liability there and we plan to build a reserve fund to meet it," said the finance committee chairman, regarding the spreading of the cost of "Torontonensis". "It has been paid out of each year. Pretty (Continued on page 3)

THE MAYOR LETS GO

Speaking on intolerance before an Orange Lodge the night before last, Mayor Samuel McBride told the members that he had been insulted at the Hart House Debate. This is what the Mail and Empire quoted him as saying:

"I have had some insults thrown at me since I have been in public life but I was never insulted so badly before as I was the night they got me up to the Hart House and told me that Toronto was an intolerant city."

And what is more, the Mayor sailed into the faculty:

"If that is the kind of ideas the university is putting into the heads of the young men of this city," he declared, referring to the debaters who had called his domain intolerant, "it is time we got rid of those teachers and put in men who would teach the young people to boost Toronto."

We can hardly let statements such as these pass without comment. True enough, it is a little unpleasant to be invited to a place as a prominent guest, and then have the "boys" holler and boo at one. Yet we fail to see how the Mayor of Toronto can speak about reforming the university when his city, though directly and indirectly receiving millions of dollars from the presence of the university, does not contribute to its operation and maintenance in any respect whatever. And we also wonder at the courage of the chief executive in speaking so glibly of the university when the city apparently refuses to recognize the rights of one of its respected professors as a private citizen.

He censures the faculty on grounds that would have occurred to no one but the Mayor of Toronto. The faculty, he believes, teaches the "boys" to be critical. The weight of progressive opinion, we fear, will disagree with Mr. McBride, when he deplores this. It is a fine thing for the "boys" to be critical; if the faculty teaches this, more power to them!

We believe that the recent debate was one of the most encouraging signs to have been observed in these quarters for some time. The result augurs well for the future of the university.

Incidentally, the Chief Magistrate gives us one of the best possible proofs of Toronto's intolerance himself.

ON TO QUEEN'S!

Five dollars to Kingston and return, with a ticket to the great game thrown in! We are confident that we echo the public reaction when we gasp at the Athletic Association and the Students' Council officials and wonder how they do it.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

The Editor,
"The Varsity",
Dear Sir:

His Worship the Mayor feels "insulted," we are told by a morning paper, by the proceedings at the recent Hart House debate, and appears to desire the introduction into the university of such tests as may guarantee the profession of the true administrative faith—that is the body of opinion held by Mayor McBride. Some citizens, on the other hand, would welcome a municipal readjustment that would provide our great city with a chief executive who could discuss public matters with the citizens without a display of childish petulance at those disagreeing with him.

The ideals of pre-war Germany, which are possibly admired by the Mayor, resulted in the following incident which may be taken to represent the Mayor's idea of what should be in Toronto. A friend of the writer, who had incautiously observed, while on a visit to Berlin, that the Emperor was Laughter makes life worth living, claims the humorist, and there are many who would apply the term to literature, and say that laughter makes literature worth reading. Needless to say, that is an exaggeration, yet the function of humour in literature is as important as that of pathos.

The Table Round

As tragedy inculcates an impression of the grandeur and dignity of man, so comedy imparts the idea that he is ridiculous. Neither view is complete; each one is the complement of the other. Without earnestness and serious application, the world's work would never be done; without the ability to get away from ourselves and laugh at the spectacle we are making, the burden would be too heavy for us.

Humour is capable of many interpretations, but one infallible test is its relation to human character. Character must be its basis or else it lacks validity. The only true laughter springs from a realization of some inherent absurdity in human nature. And the balanced outlook on life can be secured by a proportioned experience in both the humorous and the tragic aspects of literature.

Art, Music and Drama

Players Guild

The Guild's best offering so far this year was provided yesterday afternoon in Miss Margaret Colvin's production of John Millington Synge's "Riders to the Sea." The tempo of the gloomy Celtic tragedy was retained throughout by the players and in the handling of the lighting. There was a slight jarring note, unfortunately, in the unevenness of the dialect. Miss Patricia O'Connell, as Maurya, and Miss Margaret Donald, as Cathleen, were excellent in their handling both of the dialect and their difficult roles. Miss Helen Dingle was good also; but Mr. Sidney Hernant, although he knew how to handle himself, made no attempt at the brogue. One feels that if a dialect is introduced at all, it should be maintained.

The "keening," however, was done with exceptional and almost uncanny effect. In fact, taking it as a whole, Miss Colvin and the Guild are to be commended for an effective production of a difficult piece. It was done smoothly and with evident understanding.

VARSITY TRIM CENTRAL Y.M.C.A. IN WATER POLO GAME BY 6-1

JUNIOR HOCKEY TEAM SHOWS FINE PROMISE

Good Combination of Players, Old and New, to be Tested Tuesday

WILL PLAY VICTORIAS

The junior hockey team has been working out pretty hard this week at the Varsity Arena and from those who have shown up from last year's team, and those who put in an appearance as newcomers, Coach Sullivan should assemble a promising sextette.

Last year's veterans, Crerar, Brant, seem to have greatly improved their game, both in speed and stamina, and should be a great mainstay this year. Hetherington, Hummsett and Grandhed have also shown great improvement and after a few more practices should play better than ever.

Leviusky, the big Marlboro defense man, will probably play for the juniors and his presence and playing will greatly encourage the team. Don Smylie and Williamson are two newcomers who were always in the fray and their back checking provided something spectacular in the practice game. They both pack a wicked shot.

The first game will be played at the Arena Gardens next Tuesday night against the Victorias in the first round for the S.P.A. Cup.

SENIOR POLO TEAM DEFEATS CENTRAL Y

Varsity Opens City League By Loose Game, Winning by 5 Goals

FAIR SPEED THROUGHOUT

Varsity senior Water polo team scored a win over Central "Y" in the City League opener at the Y tank last night. The game was fairly spirited throughout.

The Central team led by Bert Gibson showed quite an amount of speed, but lacked the ball handling ability of the Varsity team. The game was loosely played in spots, lacking in combination play.

Central took the lead in the first few minutes of play on a shot by Gibson, but Armstrong tied the score a minute later with the only other goal of the period. In the second period the Varsity team took advantage of the deep end of the tank to score five goals in as many minutes, three by Alexander and one each by Glass and Armstrong. This brought the final score to 6-1. The defense of Spence, Sinclair and Graham worked well, while Ayers in goal made several nice saves.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Coach Ronnie McPherson is again driving the Blue and White along in secret practices. Judging from the showing of the team on Saturday these hush-hush workouts produced the goods and warrant being resumed. The Varsity interference was functioning very effectively last Saturday, especially in the first half when the Blue plungers made the Tricolour line look very ordinary. It was also noticed that the plays from scrimmage were engineered with a snap and precision that was really refreshing. An absence of fumbles on the line contributed to the general impression that the coming Intercollegiate champions were being seen in action even if a victory was only snatched from the jaws of defeat with no seconds to go.

According to reports from the Limestone City the Tricolour supporters have gone rugby mad. With the same condition prevailing locally, both teams can be assured of the heartiest of support.

The experts predicted that last Saturday's struggle would be an epic one and their fondest predictions were more than realized. And now with the teams tied for the Intercollegiate leadership and everything at stake, the coming encounter has all the earmarks of the game of games of the present football season, although most fans would be quite satisfied to glimpse another struggle of the calibre of last Saturday's sensational set-to.

With interest in Varsity's football possibilities at a fever heat, there are not many, probably, who realize that the Blue hockey squads have commenced practicing for the coming campaign. The Juniors have been practicing for nearly a week now in preparation for their opening game in the S.P.A. series next Tuesday night. The Seniors got on ice for the first time yesterday and again look strong enough to retain their Senior O.H.A. championship provided a good net-guardian can be secured. This seems to be the only position in which the Blue need reinforcements.

The Varsity junior football twelve continue their quest for the Eastern Canada football title this Saturday. They play Rideaus in Ottawa in the semi-final round and are favoured to beat the Parliamentarians in this fixture.

VICTORIA IN FINALS BY DEFEATING S.P.S.

Condition and Coaching of Vic. Proves Superior to That of School

FINAL SCORE 3-1

Victoria's "fighting twelve" won their way into the finals of the Mulock Cup series when they defeated the representatives of the School of Practical Science 3-1. The fixture was well played throughout and showed both teams at their best.

School opened the scoring when a kick to the deadline gave them their lone point. This lead was kept till half-time, the period score being one to nothing in favour of School.

The Vic team started out to show their superiority with the opening of the second half. Their advantages in condition and coaching soon resulted in points. Although School tried hard to equalize they were forced to be content with the final score, 3-1.

Hart, DeMille, Addison and Willets were the pick of the winners, with Davidson and Grosvenor starring for the losers.

Victoria—Hutton, Willis, Addison, Buchanan, Hart, Clark, Searle, Gregory, Lindsay, Doyle, Ferguson, Hogg, DeMille, Witz, Le Snell, Barry, Carson, Davidson, Meneley.

S.P.S.—Rapey, Grosvenor, Armstrong, Handcock, Davidson, Wilson, Anderson, Zieman, Tyson, Little, Crerar, Hardy, Blair, Bremmman, Butterill, Sheddin, Meyer, Cowie.

Officials—Bailey and Arnold.

ST. MIKE'S DEFEATED BY FORESTRY BY 2-0 SCORE

After Many Fumbles On Both Sides Foresters Come To The Top

With a muddy field, a heavy ball and darkness descending in the last quarter, Forestry defeated St. Mike's by a score of 2-0.

At the beginning of the game both teams agreed to ten minute quarters to avoid darkness, but the city lights witnessed the last quarter.

At no time was the game a decided victory as both teams were equally guilty of many fumbles, which should have meant points.

The first quarter was scoreless. The second featured the only score of the game, being two rouges kicked by Leslie of Forestry.

The third quarter was a drab affair with the teams mixing it very little.

The fourth produced a great number of kicks with Start of Forestry saving the game by pulling Certe down when he appeared to be away. Frado, Burns and Calderone starred for St. Michael's and Leslie, Meyer and Start for Forestry.

MEDICALS TIE S.P.S. IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

Finished in Darkness, Game Must Be Played Over Again

The playoff of the Mulock Cup group was played yesterday between Junior Meds and Senior S.P.S. The game resulted in a tie which means another game. At half time the score was 4-2 for S.P.S., Lichty kicking a field goal and a rouge for S.P.S. Legate and Murby each kicked a rouge for the Meds in the first half. The last quarter of the game was played in almost complete darkness, which resulted in many loose balls. After the third quarter the score was 4-3 for S.P.S. and another Jack Sinclair game was staged when, in the last minute, Murby kicked to tie the score. Graham of Meds was the star of the game and was very hard to tackle.

S.P.S.—Halves, Lichty, McNichol; quarter, Pearson; flying wings, Hallet, Wheaton; snap, Moffatt; insides, Swallow, Mitchell; middles, Maybee, Kane; outsides, Eastwood, Bartleman; subs, Wood, Coulter, Muir, Little, Freeland, Campbell.

Jr. Meds—Halves, Murby, Graham, quarter, Lackner; flying wings, Dickson, Gibb; snap, Nugent; insides, Culham, Bright; middles, Vaughan, Merritt; outsides, Coleman, Legate.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE RUGBY GAME

A ticket for University of Toronto students only (train and game for $5.00), is offered by the Athletic Association. It is non-transferable and registration cards must be presented on train along with ticket.

These tickets are on sale for Student Season Ticket holders until 12.00 noon to-day.

Men—West Common Room, Hart House.

Women—Room 82, University College.

Registration card must be presented.

Only one ticket to each student.

GENERAL STUDENTS' SALE THIS AFTERNOON AT 1.00 p.m. IN ABOVE PLACES.

ALSO, TICKETS FOR GAME ONLY.

TICKETS FOR QUEEN'S GAME SELLING READILY

Only Two Tickets May Be Bought on One Registration Card

Judging by the way the Varsity-Queen's game is eclipsing the Masquerade in interest, there should be a mob at Kingston on Saturday. The Big Blue promise to put up a great battle and should receive plenty of support on the part of the students.

The Athletic Directorate has answered student criticism of ticket selling by undertaking to defray part of the expenses of chartering a special train. Tickets went on sale yesterday at the S.A.C. and the remainder will be sold to-day. The pasteboards ought to be snapped up in no time and students intending to go should make sure of getting their admissions before they are put on sale downtown.

Each student may purchase a railway fare and ticket to the game for $5.00. Two tickets alone may be bought on a registration card. Alumni and friends may secure railway transportation for $5.65 with tickets extra. The game is the biggest in years and Varsity should win. "Nuff sed." All aboard for the trip!

AGGIES SOCCER TEAM DEFEATED BY S.P.S.

Final to be Played on Friday Will be Keen Battle For Cup

The S.P.S. soccer eleven defeated O.A.C. at Guelph on Monday, the score being 2-1.

The game was very keenly contested, which resulted in an interesting and fast display. Downing scored both goals for S.P.S., while O.A.C.'s only goal came from a penalty kick. The teams were about evenly matched, and the return game, which takes place on Friday at 11.30 a.m., should be a hard battle for supremacy.

The S.P.S. line-up was—Helper, McCracken, Gregg, Graham, MacKay, Franklin, Ward, McDonald, Downing, Wallberg, Riddell and Bayley.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Theta Alpha Phi fraternity at the University of Pittsburgh, is intending to cast its own members in an "all-collegiate" movie of university life.

much like you pay your wife at the first of the month and it is immaterial if it is for this month or next month so long as you keep on paying each month. However, supposing for any reason "Torontoensis" should cease publication; the first year man has paid for a quarter of one volume. It is business to protect this liability."

Mr. A. Gordon Burns, secretary-treasurer of the Council agreed with the editorial except for the sentence which seemed to insinuate that "Torontoensis" cost only nineteen cents per copy. "The actual cost of printing, engraving, etc., is actually almost five dollars per copy. It is quite true that only nineteen cents a year comes out of the fees."

"That last figure could be called 'surplus or debit' instead of deficit; it is just a difference between revenue and expenditure without regard to revenue from fees," said Mr. Burns regarding the wording of the statement. "If we continue to show a surplus, the fee will be cut down even after the extra dollar fee has been taken off. Only three dollars will be charged next year."

Mr. Burns agreed with Mr. Russell that there was more money to be spent on student publications this year. "The 'Torontoensis' editor has been granted five hundred dollars more for engraving this year."

"After all," claims the McGill Daily, "a traffic officer only does his duty according to his lights."

They like the College Gossip

MAKE a resolution now to call father and mother every week on the telephone and tell them the college gossip.

Father will like to hear details of the big games from son, and mother will get satisfaction from hearing daughter's voice which scores of letters could not bring.

An evening to telephone home, with the call charged to the home telephone, is now one of the settled things in many families. The cost is surprisingly low.

The telephone directory will give you details of the reduced rate periods on long distance!

BOOK DEPARTMENT PROVIDES SAVING

 inquiry whether books are sold cheaper in the Students' Book Department than in downtown shops and departmental stores is found by comparing the actual charges for books used in large quantities and sold only to students and members of the staff. These differences in cost are frequently brought to the attention of the Book Department by purchasers.

A list of comparative prices of books was produced. Mr. Hamilton said that only the prices of books in large demand are compared in the list. In a few cases, however, the prices of medical books are found to be the same, as the publishers fix the retail charge.

"The Varsity" has selected the following:

Title	Prices Students' Book Dept.	Downtown.
Faculty of Arts
Hudson edition of Shakespeare, each volume	.60	.65
Anthology of Modern Verse	.65	.75
North and Hilliard: Latin Prose Composition	1.35	1.75
Sandiford: Educational Psychology	2.65	3.50
Kennedy: Documents of the Canadian Constitution	4.00	4.50
Faculty of Applied Science
Thomson: Calculus Made Easy	.75	.90
Faculty of Medicine
Wheeler and Jack: Handbook of Medicine	3.15	4.00
Osler: Practice of Medicine	7.50	7.50
Leather Loose-Leaf Notebooks (With metal hinges)
No. 5 size—No. 4551—complete	3.25	4.95
No. 6 size—No. 4281—complete	4.75	7.25
"It will be seen from the above comparison that prices on the average, are about 20 per cent. lower in the Students' Book Department, and when the large number of each title is taken into consideration, the saving to students amounts to a large sum. These prices have all been checked within the last couple of days, by one of the Book Department clerks, all of whom are university graduates," concluded Mr. Hamilton.

Student Sufferers Solicit Solace and Receive Relief From Many Ills

By C. L. Coburn

Written every once in a while by Dr. M. D. Quack, maker of Quack's Pain-Killer, guaranteed to cure eczema, neuritis, epilepsy, sore throat, lumbago, fallen arches or what have you. By special appointment to Chompus Cat. Testimonials are earnestly solicited.

Testimonial from a former sufferer.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 Before I took your medicine I was all run down. I couldn't run or walk up hill without gasping for breath. My heart would beat so hard you could hear it for blocks. In cold weather my hands would get blue with cold, and I had to rub them vigorously to warm them. I have taken six bottles of Painkiller and now I am never bothered with breathing or my heart beating, and I am quite unable to rub my hands. I shall never take anybody else's medicine.

Omar Cayenne.

A very sad case.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 I am very much worried. Before I came to Toronto I was normal in every respect. I have been here two months and I find that my arms have grown three inches longer, while the rest of me has not grown at all. What might be the cause of my trouble?

Andre.

Dear Andre:

Yours is a very sad case without any remedy. After very careful diagnosis, I have come to the conclusion that you are suffering from elongation of the arms. This comes from reaching too far for the raisin bread in Hart House.

Yours sympathetically,
 M. D. Quack.

Draw your own conclusions.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 I have just taken one bottle of your Pain-Killer . . . . .
 (Forwarded by the executors of the estate.)

A great tribute to Pain-killer.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 All my life I have been very bashful and self-conscious in the presence of the opposite sex. I have taken two bottles of Pain-killer and I am now absolutely unconscious all the time.

Cherry Blossom.

I can help you too.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 What's good for a hangover?

Mac.

Dear Mac:
 A hair of the dog that bit you. Try Pain-killer.

Dr. Quack.

Another cure.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 My room mate was all run down and wouldn't eat, or drink anything but gin. I put a spoonful of Pain-killer in the bottle and he went right up in the air immediately. Now he won't drink anything but distilled water.

Grateful.

A new use for Pain-killer.

Dear Dr. Quack:
 For years I was afflicted with a dreadful ailment and didn't know it. Even my best friends wouldn't tell me. I have taken a dose of Pain-killer every night for the last three months. Now even my best friends tell me.

Sunshine.

POLICE CLASH WITH ENGINEERS IN HEART OF CITY FOLLOWING RAID ON THEATRE BY STUDENTS; AS RESULT EIGHT WERE TAKEN AND QUESTIONED

Drinking Alleged To Have Taken Place At Soph-Frosh Banquet
After Which Schoolmen Parade En Masse
Up Yonge Street

GIRL AT WICKET REFUSES TO SELL TICKETS TO MOB

Poles Pulled Off Trolley Wires And Traffic Impeded As Ribald
Students Are Mauled By Blue-Coated
Upholders Of Law And Order

The police and the School of Practical Science men clashed last night on Yonge street above Loew's after a raid on the theatre following the annual Soph-Frosh banquet. As a result eight students, four from Toronto and four from outside the city were taken in by the police and questioned. No charges have as yet been laid, although the possibility of doing so is still present according to Inspector W. C. Johnston of the Number Two Police Station. The names of the students taken in hand by the police were withheld and unless formal charges are laid they will not be given to the press for publication.

The banquet which was held at the King Edward Hotel, was conducted in good order with Dean Mitchell, Prof. T. R. Loudon and Prof. J. R. Cockburn among those at the head table. There was no sign of what was to follow although some five or six students had partaken a little too freely of hard drink.

After the banquet, which broke up at 9.30, the students lined up in double column, and despite protests of the seniors, paraded along the car tracks of King Street to Yonge. From that point they went swinging up the main thoroughfare giving the Varsity and S.P.S. yells. In their process they held up all traffic and pulled the poles off the trolleys. When they reached Queen Street the mob of between four and five hundred made for the sidewalk and then decided to go into Loew's theatre.

The girl at the wicket on seeing the huge mob, immediately phoned into the assistant manager's office and he called the police. Meanwhile the ushers barricaded the doors, but the engineers broke them down and some two hundred gained entrance. After being spoken to by a senior member of the student body and with the aid of the ushers and some plainclothesmen the celebrators were silenced.

After the students left Loew's the theatre they proceeded en masse up Yonge street on the right hand side. The

GRADING OF ESSAYS IS NOT MECHANICAL

Best and Worst Essays Always Receive Same Relative Position

MOST DIFFICULT TASK

"You can't turn yourself into a machine and systematically grade essays," said Mr. Macdonald when consulted as to his method of marking them. "English is not like mathematics where one thing is right and another wrong, but the grading depends on individual judgment. There is no agreement as to what constitutes a good essay, but you have to judge by your own standards. In fact it's one of the hardest tasks I know of," Mr. Macdonald went on to say.

When "The Varsity" approached Mr. Endicott on the subject, he remarked, "Temperament naturally enters into the question, but no matter who marks the essays the best and worst will always obtain the same relative positions. Comparison is bound to occur, but just because you have a poor lot of essays is no reason why the better ones should be given good marks."

BLUE SUPPORTERS LEAVE TO-MORROW

Three Thousand Blue Rooters Will Accompany Team to Kingston

METHODS OF TRAVEL VARY

There will be a great migration to Queen's on Saturday to witness what is expected to be one of the best games of the season. Up to 5 o'clock yesterday the Athletic Office reported over 3,000 seats sold. "Of this number," said Mr. T. A. Reed, "about 600 are going by the special student train which leaves the Union Station at 8.25 a.m. Saturday morning. There are still lots of good seats left and these will be on sale to-day at the Athletic Office and in West Common Room."

Means of transportation to the game vary from palatial Pullman coaches to gas buggies of ancient vintage. Hundreds of students will step along the highway in the latest models of roadsters while Henry's lizzies will occupy their time-honoured place in the great trek. Charley Brown, III S.P.S., will conduct a party of six in a 1921 Ford touring. He is leaving Friday night and hopes to be in Kingston in time for the game. A 1922 Gray-Dort will carry S. Smallkin, I Arts, to the game. His equipment will include, one tow rope, two spare tires and a lot of optimism.

Every student the "Varsity" accosted showed great interest in the game. From what we gather, many students will be minus a lot of money and clothes if Varsity loses. Two students who have bet their shirts on the game, refused to divulge their names.

The line-ups for tickets which were in evidence yesterday, will again be seen to-day. "We don't want to send back a ticket," one representative of the Athletic Office told the "Varsity," "and judging from the demand for them, I don't think we will."

A store in Lincoln, Neb., has given a hundred cowbells to students at the University of Nebraska to be used at its games.

Mel Elson

Who is president of the 1st year, S.P.S., and is expected to give a great performance as outside in the game against Queen's to-morrow afternoon at Richardson Stadium.

SPECIAL STUDENTS' TRAIN

Don't forget Canadian National special students' train for Kingston leaves Union Station 8.25 a.m. Saturday. Be sure to have registration card.

Mayor McBride Was Not Insulted At Hart House Debate Say Professors

"Mayor McBride was not insulted at the Hart House debate," stated Professor N. A. MacKenzie, of the Department of Law. "The raging to which he was subjected was all done in a friendly spirit and did not arise from personal animosity. Such things are quite customary in universities, particularly in the old country, where even the chancellors of these institutions are subjected to friendly ragging, all of which is taken in the friendly spirit in which it is meant. I think his worship is taking the matter altogether too seriously."

"The audience was boisterous, but not insulting," said Professor G. W. Brown of the Department of History. "It is not logical to suppose that the mayor would be invited to Hart House in order that he might be insulted. The heckling to which he was subjected is a part of all such open house debates and is in no way extraordinary or insulting. His worship appeared to be in the best of humour immediately following the debate and did not seem to feel that he had been slighted."

"I do not think that his remarks regarding the supplanting of professors who taught the students to be critical should be taken seriously."

"I do not believe that Mayor McBride was subjected to any unfair criticism," stated T. Vernon Kennedy of St. Michael's College, the mover of the question. "The students took objection more to the manner in which he delivered his address than to the Final announcements concerning the Hart House Masquerade have been issued by the House Committee. Holders of tickets are asked to pay special attention to the regulations concerning taxis and private cars, and also to the location of the cloak rooms.

The South door of Hart House will be the main entrance. Cars will approach it from Hoskin Ave., only, and exit via College St. The De Luxe Taxi Cab Co. have arranged to have all meters stop at the entrance of the university grounds and masqueraders are asked to pay their taxis before drawing up to the steps. This is very important and the co-operation of all will be appreciated. The West door of Hart House will also be an entrance. Cars will approach from Hoskin Avenue and proceed south to College. The De Luxe cars will register their meters here upon entering the West driveway and payment must be made before the cars approach the steps. Parking areas will be around the campus, on both sides of Devonshire Place and on one side of Hoskin.

It is most important that guests should note carefully the cloak room arrangements. Ladies will use the Billiard Room and the regular Cheek Room. Gentlemen will use the Sketch room and Locker room. Ladies will wait for their escorts in the Lower Gallery. They will go up the stairs by the Tack Shop and wait at the top by the Great Hall. Ushers are in-

Weather Uncertain

The chances for clear weather at Kingston to-morrow are only fair, according to the reports issued by the Meteorological Bureau. A large area of low pressure has been hanging over the great lakes and eastward, and shows no disposition to move on. The low pressure, say the experts, means rain, or at the best, showers. As it is, the weather man will have much to do with to-morrow's struggle, as the rain has already made muddy a field notorious for its slow drying. Which team is better in mud?

FURTHER OUTBREAK OF SCARLET FEVER IS NOT PROBABLE

DISEASE IS CHECKED

Neither of Cases Are Serious
And Students Progress Favourably

"There is no danger of a further outbreak of scarlet fever," said Rev. G. F. Kingston, Dean of Residence in Trinity College, when interviewed by "The Varsity." "The two boys who became ill with scarlet fever were immediately removed to the Isolation Hospital and every precaution has been taken to prevent the further spread of the disease."

"Norman Dickson was the first student to be stricken with the disease," continued Rev. Kingston. "On the first sign of illness, he was isolated in the infirmary and as soon as his case was diagnosed, he was at once removed to the Isolation Hospital. Steps were taken to check the further spread of the disease and the building was disinfected."

Segregation Of Species On

NON-STOP FESTIVITIES

Can students who attend the Masquerade Friday night and Saturday morning be expected to appear in good condition in Kingston at noon the same day? This game will surely not be one to permit yawning or snoozing between whistles. In fact, it is the opinion of several male undergraduates that if no sleep is to be had before the game, there will be little chance of getting any afterwards, what with laughter and song far into the night. It has even been suggested that if one wished to really sacrifice something toward the support of the team, one could sleep Friday afternoon before the dance and store up sufficient energy to carry oneself through the whole week-end in highly regarded non-stop fashion.

Miss B. E. M. Smith, 4th Vie, in an interview with "The Varsity," said that missing a night's sleep meant nothing to her. "This segregation of the species on the train is the bunk and as far as that goes," she added, "On Monday evening, after spend-

STRONG TEAMS TO PLAY

John Harrison Returns And Jack Sinclair Plays On Backfield

Last night Varsity's Senior Inter-collegiate football warriors finished off their training with a light workout in preparation for to-morrow's all-important fixture at Kingston. The Blue and White will be at full strength for the first time this season and judging by the pep and dash displayed this week in practice Batstone's men are in for a gruelling struggle to-morrow afternoon.

Reports from the Queen's headquarters are equally optimistic and state that the Tricolour will also be able to field their strongest combination which augurs well for a struggle of such titanic proportions as the Richardson Stadium has never before seen.

That sensational victory of last Saturday has put new life into the Blue and White and, come what may, that Varsity team will be in there fighting tooth and nail to bring back the Inter-collegiate title to the home of the Blue.

The return of big John Harrison to the Varsity line-up has added a lot of strength to the Blue machine. Harrison is not only a decided scoring threat, but is a smart tackler as well. Don Wood and Wally Bean have both

EXAMPLE FOR EUROPE

"The greatest by-product of our empire is the United States," said the Reverend G. Stanley Russell in his address to the Empire Club at their banquet in the Royal York on Thursday, "and there is no folly we repent more than the loss of the United States. By-products are often the result of things not intended. The independence of the United States was not intended by Great Britain, but this country is to-day the greatest ally of the mother country and the British Empire in general."

"A thing I greatly resent is the people who deride the United States. We do not glorify the Empire when we slander another country. I believe Dr. J. A. MacDonald when he said that the idea in North America was for a close union in thought and mind between the United States and England."

SOMETHING MAY HAPPEN

The following prophetic and ominous editorial from the University of Washington Daily gives reason to believe that the critical attitude criticized by Mayor McBride is not confined to the University of Toronto:

An American university which lapses into smug self-contentment today faces intellectual death.

The pace is swift—the competition keen—even within the supposedly cloistered walls whose tenants are increasingly being judged by modern standards of efficiency.

There must be constant questioning of methodology, of personnel and prevailing educational philosophy. Acceptance of the present as the ultimate is far more dangerous in a university than in the most complex commercial structure erected by any of that university's graduates.

To question, to experiment, to evaluate, and then to accept—with reservation—higher education methods is the course which seems to be followed by the more adventurous, and presumably more successful, of college presidents.

If ever a new university were in a transition period it is the University of Washington. For we are new, our history scarcely spans the life of a middle-aged man.

We are beginning to feel the stings of growing pains. It is a healthy sign. We are not electing to accept our present educational scheme of things as permanent.

Specifically, Washington's faculty and student body are questioning more than ever before the academic organization of the University. There is a brisk wind, that of sturdy dissatisfaction, blowing into Washington's musty scholastic closets.

Something may happen this winter.

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Editor,

"The Varsity",

Dear Sir:

It seems to be generally felt that the system of rooting which has existed since compulsory rooting practices became a thing of the past is in need of alteration and improvement.

The usual criticisms have been showered upon the cheer-leaders, however, excepting the editorial suggestions of "The Varsity" and an idea for rooting practice from Mr. Ted Sharpe of S.P.S. the criticism has hardly been constructive.

Thus, at this time when interest in rugby and rooting is at a peak, we take the opportunity of calling for suggestions concerning cheer-leading and rooting. The greatest "evils" at present appear to be the size and loose-knit nature of the university and the lack of rooting practice. The results are the lack of the desirable personal contact between team, rooters and cheer-leaders; secondly, the lateness of the season when the rooting reaches any degree of co-ordination or wholeheartedness; thirdly, the absence of the absolute mutual confidence between rooters and leaders so necessary for successful rooting.

PROMISCUOUS DIETING LEADS TO EARLY GRAVE

Dr. Willard of Household Science Makes Startling Announcement

"Every girl should take her physician as her diet precriber and not a movie star," said Dr. Edith Gordon when asked her opinion on co-ed reducing. "The question of reducing is one to be settled between the girl and her physician and not by the girl herself," she continued.

Dr. Gordon declared that among the various students at this university there are more underweight than overweight. She went on to explain that excessive weight might be due to two things—over-eating or improper working of the glands.

Dr. Willard, of the faculty of Household Science, made the startling announcement that the reward of promiscuous dieting would be an early

We hope to hear from a large number of graduates and undergraduates and ask that suggested schemes be as completely worked out as possible.

Please address communications to A. E. Davison, S.A.C., Hart House.

Yours very truly,

D. H. Ward,

Friday Afternoon Recital

At the W.U.A. musicale for U.C. women, Madame Norah Drewett de Kresz will be the artist. The program will be given at the Women's Union from 4 to 5 p.m. 'Madame de Kresz will play the following numbers: Gavotte variee ..... Rameau

Menuet ..... Arne
Capriccio ..... Scarlatti
English Suite, A minor ..... Bach
Prelude; allemande; courante; sarabande; bourree; gigue. Sonata, F major, op. 10 Beethoven Allegro, andante, presto. Fantasy, F minor ..... Chopin
Three Etudes ..... Chopin

Well girls, to-night is the Masquerade. We finally landed a ticket. It seems that a friend of godfather's cousin knows a theolog who didn't want to go. We hunted him up and told him, among other things that the party was a hot-bed of sin. Well, that spoiled that chance. He decided to go. What was my woman's phone number?

C—C

We received ours from a school man. We told him it was a dreadfully naughty party. "Too tame for the likes of me," he bellowed, protruding his cetaceous thorax. "Anyway I won enough in a crap game during the line up.—You can have my woman too.—No?"

C—C

After figuring up our assets we find that we have nothing weird enough in the wardrobe to suit and that we cannot afford to rent a costume. We have ransacked the attic, basement and grandmother's clothes closet without success, although grandmother's corsets might do in a pinch for Chinese armour.

C—C

An idea came to us in the bath-tub. "Go ye as the dying Gaul," we sang "Get a collar and—"

C—C

Speaking of baths we hear that the pool will be flooded with light. This grave, due to tuberculosis or a host of other dire maladies.

Miss Amy Lovegrove declared that most girls have to reduce either by restricted diet or exercise to be able to wear successfully the dresses of this season.

Miss Louise Messecar said that she did not believe in starvation diet, but thought everyone should limit the amount of food consumed except at Thanksgiving.

The general consensus of opinion on the campus was that the new styles demanded still the willowy silhouette and that girls would at least attempt to adhere to it.

will be a great improvement over the water used in former years. In case we still have the water, the guests will be asked to smoke a good sea-going brand of navy cut cigarettes.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TITLE AT STAKE TO-MORROW AT KINGSTON

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow's game at Kingston should be about the biggest event that the Limestone City has witnessed in years. About half of Varsity is making the trip and the much discussed "College Spirit" will be there in full force. It took last Saturday's game to arouse enthusiasm to any great degree and the game to-morrow is bound to be another red-hot battle that will give the rival cheering sections something to enthuse over.

The unusually attractive rates that are being offered by the S.A.C. and the Athletic Association has met with ready response. In addition to the special train large numbers are motoring. The usual collection of hitch-hikers are girding up their loins in preparation for the arduous journey.

Varsity and Queen's will be at full strength for the big game. Harrison, the Blue flying wing who was out of last week's game will be back in the line-up. Queen's will present the same team that bit the dust here.

Saturday's game is a tough one to call, but on the fighting spirit that the Blue displayed in rallying against the Tricolour last Saturday we venture to predict that they'll take Queen's again.

Varsity Juniors play Ottawa Rideaus in the Capitol to-morrow in the Eastern junior semi-final. The teams appear evenly-matched, but the Blue juniors will likely come through. The game is a sudden-death affair.

There are still plenty of tickets available for the Queen's game. Students may purchase either special train tickets, tickets to the game, or both.

FURTHER OUTBREAK IS NOT PROBABLE

ing the holiday at his home, William Bowden returned to Trinity House. Shortly after his arrival he reported that he was feeling ill. He was immediately isolated and when it was ascertained that he had scarlet fever, he also was taken to the Isolation Hospital.

"It may be that Mr. Bowden contracted the disease from Norman Dickson," added Rev. Kingston, "but as far as the latter is concerned, he must have contracted it from an outside source."

The latest reports from the Isolation Hospital state that neither of the cases are serious, and that the boys are progressing favourably.

"But I wish this fact in particular to be published in your report," stated Rev. Kingston, "there is no panic among the students, no one sick in Trinity House at present and there is no danger of any further cases breaking out."

Norman Dickson played for the Junior Intercollegiate rugby team and at the time he became ill was playing for Trinity College.

It will be remembered that in the fall of 1927 there was an epidemic of smallpox at one of the university residences, mumps in the spring of 1928 and the flu at St. Michael's College in the fall of 1928.

REGULATIONS MADE FOR MASQUERADE

structed to enforce this rule and the guests can save themselves time and trouble by noting it now. Weather permitting the quadrangle will be open to the guests.

Guests are again reminded that smoking will not be allowed in the Gallery of the Pool. This is an extremely important obligation on every Masquerader, and the Committee ask every support in observing this regulation. The regular programme commences at 8.30 and concludes at 2 p.m.

As previously announced the judges of costumes will be Mr. Sprout and Mr. Harris. Prizes will be presented on the following basis:

- (1) One for best gentleman's costume, judged by the standards of art.
- (2) One for the best lady's costume judged by the standards of art.
- (3) One for the most original costume, lady or man.

The House Committee again announces the distribution of tickets to undergraduates for the Masquerade for the hour 12-1 p.m. to-day, Friday. Tickets will be distributed to the student presidents of the various faculties and colleges, who must pay upon receiving them. Tickets will also be distributed to the various committees at the same time.

VARSLTY BATTLES QUEEN'S TO-MORROW

recovered from injuries suffered in last week's game and are expected to turn in just as sparkling performances to-morrow as they did last Saturday.

Jack Sinclair will again seek to bring victory to the Blue and White through his great punting ability and along with him on the backfield will be the ever-reliable and ever-brilliant Billy Bell. Wood will again be calling the signals and for flying wings Coach Ronnie McPherson has John Harrison, Charlie Ruddell and Jimmy Sinclair. Johnny Stewart showed last Saturday that he also can fill in at this position very acceptably.

There is no question about it; the Blue and White have the smartest collection of line players in the Intercollegiate series. Keith, at snap, needs no introduction and Bean, Kelly, Galoway and White at inside are four top-notchers. At middle, Coach Ronnie has two veterans and a promising newcomer, Morgan and Little are old-timers and good ones, and Dewar a husky freshman who has made good at the midway position. Ronnie has no fewer than five good outsiders to choose from, Gooderham, Elson, Stewart, Subositis and Fitzpatrick. Fitzpatrick can also relieve on the half-line along with Hallam and Davey.

From a playing standpoint the Varsity team should enter the game to-morrow slight favourites. But the fact that Queen's are playing on their own home grounds to a wildly partisan home crowd should give Queen's about an even chance to cop the game, but judging from the demand for tickets here the Blue and White supporters will be numerous enough down in the Limestone City to make the Varsity footballers feel right at home.

CHAPERONE SYSTEM TERMED NEEDLESS

"we don't need any chaperone—we can take care of ourselves."

On the other hand, Miss Eleanor Medd, also 4th Vic, went so far as to claim that "The Masquerade should be postponed." On the question of separate cars for men and women, she agreed with Miss Smith, remarking that she didn't see why they could not enjoy the privileges of ordinary travellers. "And chaperones," she declared, "are quite unnecessary because they don't prevent us from doing anything."

It has been estimated that about 20 per cent. of the students going to the game will also attend the Masquerade the night before. There is no doubt, furthermore, that a goodly number of potential team supporters have been influenced by these closely conflicting dates. Regarding this situation, the question has developed as to the advisability of having a sleeper on the special train Saturday morning. This proposal has met with hearty approval from various students who were interviewed by "The Varsity".

"It seems to me," said Stu Penny, 2nd Meds, "that it would be an efficient and pleasant method of having us delivered strictly fresh for the game. But," he added, "it might involve the need of a few more chaperones."

However, Miss A. E. M. Parkes, B.A., who has chaperoned former excursions and who is in charge of the girls' car on this occasion, stated to "The Varsity" that she anticipated no trouble whatsoever on this trip. "There will be a separate car for the girls," she said, "several cars for the boys, a diner and the last car, as usual, will carry the team. Only once or twice have I ever had any trouble with the men and I can readily say that, as a rule, they behave so decently that the trip is quite enjoyable for everyone concerned and I very seldom need assert myself."

VARSLTY JUNIORS TO MEET RIDEAUS IN CAPITAL CITY

Coach Carroll Has Team in Fine Shape for Crucial Contest

TO MEET O.R.F.U. WINNERS

Only Injured Player is Litowitz Who Is Out With Bad Ankle

One more obstacle confronts the University of Toronto juniors in their triumphant march toward the Eastern Canada finals. To-morrow afternoon Coach Lou Carroll's sensational youngsters tackle Ottawa Rideaus in a sudden death game in the Rideaus' own back yard. The winner will meet the winner of the O.R.F.U. junior playdowns.

Rideaus have established a reputation for themselves by taking the Quebec championship from Montreal A.A.A.'s age limit outfit, but Coach Carroll and his team are optimistic that the success which attended their efforts in successive series with Guelph, Queen's and McGill, will be repeated. With one exception, the team are intact for the game. Litowitz, the flying wing who scored one touchdown and converted twice in the second game with McGill, is out with a bad ankle.

A survey of the figures indicates that the 1929 edition of the Varsity juniors deserve their name for scoring power. In the six games they have played this season they have made exactly 100 points, against a total of 11 scored against them. O.A.C. scored three points in two games, Queen's two, and McGill six.

The members of the party will be the guests of the Ottawa Hockey Club at the game on Saturday night between Ottawa and New York Americans.

The starting line-up is being reserved until the game commences. The following players will make the trip: leaving by train at one p.m. to-day: Halfbacks, Hodgetts, Cutler, Mudge; flying wings, Gibson, King, Baynon; quarters, Magladery, Ellsworth; snaps, Hendry, Shipp; outsiders, Stubbs, Hume, McGibbon, Dyer; middles and insides, Patterson, Fear, Rogers, Booth, Cwelling, Rotenberg.

CANADA'S DESTINY FOR UNIFICATION

This was the purpose of Canada to foster the friendliness of the American republic for the future well-being of the world. There is in North America a long frontier between the republic and Canada, but there is not a single gun on the frontier. This shows two nations in perfect amity and confidence. This should serve as an excellent example to Europe who should be shown how to walk.

"Canadian nationhood was another thing which is a by-product and which was not intended. In Canada a consciousness has been developed which is distinctly its own. Canada is not distinctly British or American but a country with a genius and an outlook all its own. Canada's destiny is to place itself between England on the one hand and America on the other and draw these two countries into closer connection and common thought."

"One would realize where the real strength of England lies when they see a London 'Bobby' walking stoically down the street trying to keep the crowd back from harming a crowd of Communists."

"If Britain, Canada and the United States hold together their influence

GRADING OF ESSAYS IS NOT MECHANICAL

Mr. G. W. Brown, of the Department of History, said: "An essay is not just an academic exercise. Professors wouldn't read dozens of them every year if students didn't get some practical benefit from writing them. Does the student assimilate the material and form an opinion of his own on the subject? When he does and expresses his conclusions clearly, you have a good essay."

Students expressed the opinion that essays were marked comparatively and that the first ones probably received the highest marks. Agnes Jamieson complained that the young professors marked far harder than the older ones, while E. Paget exclaimed: "I don't believe they mark them at all!"

Masquerade Marauder Mauls Mayor In Insulting Insolence Irregardless

By A. E. F. Allan

Look down into the pool. Isn't it ads . . . "Develop your personality! Don't stand abashed in the presence of others!" . . . What's your own costume supposed to represent? Have you made up your mind yet? Is it Nero watching the Burning of Rome or Midnight on a Queen's Park Bench? Hm? Well, if you don't know, who does? Perhaps you're supposed to be Mayor McBride. Do you feel insulted? That's too bad! What did you come to Hart House for if you were afraid of being insulted? Did you ever insult anyone? Would you like to? Name ten people and two mayors you'd like to insult. How do you feel when you're insulted? Do you feel small? Do you feel like a worm? How does it feel to be a worm? Well, how do you know you feel like a worm? Are you a worm? Who said so? Why didn't you sock him in the nose? Did you ever sock anyone on the nose? Name twenty-five human beings and a couple of taxi drivers you'd like to sock on the nose . . . Did you see the dirty look that taxi driver gave you to-night? What was that for? Do you suppose he put it on the bill? He did put something extra on the bill, didn't he? Do you suppose they charge extra for people all dressed up like a couple dam' fools? Why do people dress up like a couple dam' fools? That's a deep one, isn't it? If you could answer that, you wouldn't feel like Mayor McBride!

POLICE CLASH WITH STUDENTS

police began to forcibly put the students off the sidewalk. One in plain clothes grabbed a student by the arm.

"Who the h— are you?" queried the belligerent engineer.

"You'll soon find out that I'm somebody," was the voice of the law. "Now go on home, quick!" And the hapless School man was pushed off the street onto the road amongst a large number of others.

However, this interference in their celebration didn't dampen the ardor of the School men and they congregated in groups on the left side of Yonge Street and shouted: "Toronto is an intolerant city."

More blue-coats arrived and they broke up the gangs on Yonge and shoofed the boys off Toronto's main thoroughfares onto the side streets and over to Bay.

"The cashier would not sell tickets to such a mob," said Mr. J. Clarke, assistant manager of Loew's Downtown, "because they would raise a rumpus when they procured admittance. The police handled the crowd outside but it was not necessary for them to enter the theatre."

According to Mr. Clarke the theatre was packed at the time and the only space available was in the back of the balcony and in the aisles. The ushers had their hands full for a few minutes in an endeavour to quell the racket and keep the invaders out of the aisles.

Mr. Clarke was unable to say definitely whether the police had arrested any of the students for unlawfully entering the theatre. "We appreciate the patronage of the students, but we cannot tolerate a riotous mob which disturbs the rest of the customers who have paid to enjoy the show," he stated. "The Varsity" first tried to get in touch with Dean Mitchell of the School of Practical Science, but failed. Nate Adams, president of the Engineering Society stated to "The Varsity" last night when reached by phone: "I doubt very much if any students were arrested." Beyond that, he had nothing to say.

"The Varsity" interviewed the first S.P.S. man who was taken into custody by the police. His name is being withheld from publication until a formal charge is laid against him. "Do you know the rules against parading?" he was asked after being summoned to police station No. 2.

"No, I don't." "Have you been acting disorderly?" was the next question. "No, I don't think so," replied the arrested student.

After a few more questions, he and the other students who were picked up by the police were released.

Sir Robert Falconer, when called early this morning by "The Varsity" to make comment on the arrest of eight S.P.S. men by the police, had nothing to say.

It is proposed to institute a crime detection laboratory at Northwestern University. The course will include a six weeks' tour of Europe to study methods there.

Students at the University of Washington have to pay 50c for their Student Directories. At least, they do have directories.

QUEEN'S WIN CHAMPIONSHIP GAME 15-5

TRICOLOUR SECURES TITLE SIXTH TIME IN EIGHT SEASONS

Varsity Fails to Hit Stride While Wind Gives Queen's Advantage

RECORD CROWD AT STADIUM

Stuart Stops "Whitewashing" by Timely Touch Made in Last Quarter

By L. C. Dawson,
Sports Editor, "The Varsity"

For the sixth time in eight years the Tricolour of Queen's floats triumphantly at the top of Intercollegiate football. Before the largest crowd that ever packed the Richardson Stadium the Blue and White finished on the short end of a 15-5 score.

The Tricolour was the better team on Saturday's play, but it was the "breaks" that aided Queens to win by ten points.

Before the teams came on the field it was easily seen that the strong wind from the south would have a big share in the afternoon's proceedings. Queen's got a nice break in having the wind at their backs in the opening period and at once made full use of it. When Bell fumbled Carter's return of the kick-off Queen's got the ball well into Varsity territory where, after several minutes of play Gilmore kicked a goal from placement. The wind was carrying the ball a long way and on a particularly tough catch Bell fumbled and Hastings grabbed the oval to go over for a touch. Queen's added a rouge for a nine-point lead at the end of the first quarter.

It was expected that Varsity would get into their stride when the teams changed ends, but the Tricolour put up a stubborn resistance. Caldwell, who had replaced Carter almost held his own with Sinclair and Queen's plunging made up the difference.

In the third quarter Varsity, facing the wind, played their best. The line stiffened and Queen's were kept for the greater part within their own territory.

Going into the last quarter the Blue faced a nine-point deficit. Wood's injury forced him to retire and Billy Bell called the signals. Bell attempted to start an end run on Varsity's fifteen yard line and Ike Sutton broke through snared the ball and went over for a touch which he converted. Down fifteen points, the Blue kept trying and

The eminent McGill Daily takes a whirl at the fashion parade, dragging in a pun of fearful horsepower, originated by Wyndham Lewis, "Modern Women's Personality," he is quoted as saying, "reads entirely in her clothes; strip her of these and she has barely any charms for men."

Our illustrious contemporary, the Minnesota Daily, has evolved a fool-proof, sure-fire method of dealing with the liquor question. "After all," says an editorial, "the law (the w.k. Eighteenth Amendment) is here, and as long as it remains a statute cannot its enforcement be assured? On the other hand, if the law is an undesirable one, why not abolish it?" Just like that.

LEADER OF LABORITES TO ADDRESS FABIAN

Disclaims Any Connection With Red Organizations of Any Sort

FIRST MEETING WITH CLUB

"Don't say the reds have broken out again," was the laughing reply of Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., dean of laborites in the federal house and leader of the "Ginger Group," when interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding to-night's meeting at the University Settlement House, where, as the guest of the Fabius Club, Mr. Woodsworth will explain to university laborites just how they can assist the passing of labor legislation and also will suggest some labor legislation most urgently needed.

"Exactly! For goodness sake don't mix up any more foolishness about reds or radicals in announcing the meeting," exclaimed Miss Shelda Henderson, who is inviting the Fabius Club to the Grange Road settlement house.

This is Mr. Woodsworth's first meeting with the Fabius Club, which was started last session in response to his suggestion at an Open Forum in Wynmwood, that a Fabian Society be organized to study Canadian labor problems.

Hailed as a "red" movement in news articles last session, the club's leaders are most anxious that they shall not again be misrepresented.

Miss Mary Dewey, a graduate of St. Hilda's, vice-president of the Fabius Club, hopes that all co-eds interested will be at the University Settlement to-night.

Open house, held last night at the Women's Union, proved most interesting. Mr. Finsen Danish, pianist and composer, and Miss Doris Shields, were the artists of the evening. An enjoyable sing-song was led by Mrs. Dow.

Students' Directory

The Directory of Staff and Students will be ready for distribution to-morrow morning on information received at the University Registrar's Office, the delay in its publication and distribution has been due to the lack of co-operation on the part of the students and to the unusual increase in registration.

ENTHUSIASTIC FANS JOURNEY TO KINGSTON

Varsity Rooters Compete With Local Crowd as Cheering Improves

FREE-FOR-ALL AFTER GAME

Three thousand rugby fans from Toronto attended the game at Queen's on Saturday, according to unofficial estimates. A large number of these supporters went by special trains, others motored and not a few resorted to hitch-hiking in order to get to the game.

On the downward trip to the Limestone City, the special train carrying Varsity supporters was the scene of much enthusiasm and hilarity. After arriving at Kingston the newly re-organized Blue and White Band led these enthusiasts in an orderly parade thru the main streets, to Richardson Stadium.

By one o'clock Kingston was swarming with visitors wearing the Blue and White. Cafes and restaurants were packed with hungry throngs eager for a snack or meal before the game that meant the Intercollegiate championship.

Cheering at the game was unusually good. "It seems that you have some college spirit in Toronto after all," one Queen's man remarked to "The Varsity" on Saturday.

"The cheering of Varsity is much better than our own," another Queen's man admitted.

The goal posts at the north end of Richardson Stadium were regarded by Varsity supporters as legitimate objects upon which to wreak their will. But efforts to tear them up were prevented by the timely arrival of Queen's men, and the end was a general free-for-all in which several bit the dust. Colour snatching was the order of the day, in which co-eds of both universities joined with ardor. Several Queen's tams were reported to be in the possession of Varsity supporters. #### HUMAN SOUL CANNOT BE FED ON WORLDLY GOODS SAYS DR. GRAY

Famous Student Leader Speaks at Two Services on Sunday in Convocation

GUEST-LECTURER OF S.C.M.

Students' Mask of Cynicism Often Used to Conceal Unhappiness

"You might as well feed a baby on stocks, a steam engine on poetry, as try to feed the human soul on worldly goods," declared Dr. Herbert Gray, a well known English student leader and author speaking in Convocation Hall yesterday morning on the subject "The Place of Religion in the Life of Students To-day".

Rev. F. J. Moore, head of Student Christian Movement at the University of Toronto, conducted the service, the main feature of which was the address by the eminent guest, who will remain in Toronto, and will lecture to the students for part of this week.

Dr. Gray explained that it is not impossible for people to know what God is like, for Jesus introduces Him and makes Him likeable. "The mistake is made with children," Dr. Gray contended, "that God is mentioned to them only as a threat when they are naughty, so that the more they know of God the less they like Him."

"The deepest thing in men and women is the hunger of the soul which all the material things in civilization cannot satisfy; this hunger is the foundation of true greatness," Dr. Gray continued, "it is a poor kind of existence that is built up on dollars." (Continued on page 4)

AUTOMAT IS LOOTED BY PERSONS UNKNOWN

The Hart House slot machine was burglarized yesterday afternoon by persons unknown. According to estimation given "The Varsity", about 20 packages of cigarettes were stolen from the machine.

Authorities are working on the case and expect to discover the guilty parties. It is reported that Hart House attendants noticed several suspicious-looking persons about sometime before the crime was committed.

The machine, which was installed about two weeks ago has been temporarily removed by Hart House officials.

Abolish Annual Soph-Frosh Affair Result Of Student Raid On Theatre

There will be no Soph-Frosh banquet for the next year at least. The Engineering Society of the University of Toronto in a meeting last Friday passed a resolution favouring the abolition of this annual affair.

This decision was reached as a result of the riotous parade held after the event of last Thursday evening in which Loew's theatre was raided by a mob of students. The fact that Shea's theatre was entered last year after a similar occasion also influenced the decision of the Engineering Society to take this drastic action.

Dean Mitchell of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, will address the students of the first and second years and reprimand them for their actions, at the request of the Engineering Society, who deem the offense rather serious.

The Students' Administrative Council will not take any action in the matter, according to officials of that body, as it is deemed that the affair can be handled quite satisfactorily by the Engineering Society and the Council of the Faculty of Arts.

Inspector Johnson, of the city police force, refused to give any information whatever, when interviewed by "The Varsity". Nor would he divulge the names of those students arrested during the fracas. Chief D'Arcy, of the university police force, was out of town and could not be reached by "The Varsity" during the week-end.

NAUGHTY! NAUGHTY!

While lucky inmates were absent at the Masquerade, the unlucky ones apple-pied rooms in one of the Burwash Hall residences Friday night. It is understood that one of the ring-leaders disappeared later, and had a special lock put on his door by the Senior Tutor in anticipation of his return.

STUDENT VOCATIONAL CONFERENCE PLANNED

Women Students to Meet Coming Week to Hear Speeches on Various Subjects

SCHOOUE IS ANNOUNCED

So that women students of this university may have the opportunity of discussing post-graduation occupations with leaders of the various professions, a Vocational Conference has been arranged by Miss M. E. T. Addison, Dean of Women of Victoria College, and Miss L. M. Manning, Head of the Wynmwood Union. Speakers have been invited who are prominent in their particular lines, and the meetings have been arranged so that each speaker will speak for a few minutes and then the meeting will be open for questions and discussions.

Every woman student in the university is invited, and those particularly interested in each subject are urged to attend. There will be three meetings of the conference this week—Social Service, Public Health and Church Work on Monday; Business on Wednesday; and Literary Night on Thursday. There will be a conference night for those intending to go on in teaching, on Monday, December 2nd, and for those interested in Library Work, on Tuesday, December 3rd. All meetings will be held in Wynmwood at 7.30 p.m.

The schedule of the Vocational Conference for the year 1929-30 is as follows:—

Monday, Nov. 18th—Social Service, Public Health, Church Work. The speakers: Miss B. Hamilton, Miss K. Russell, and Miss W. Thomas. All members of the courses in Social Service and Public Health, and students of the United Church Training School particularly invited.

Wednesday, Nov. 20th—Business. The speakers: Miss M. MacMahon, Miss H. Sparling and Miss M. Dalley. All women students in Commerce and Finance, and members of the Free Lance Club particularly invited.

Thursday, Nov. 21st—Literary. The speakers: Mr. and Mrs. Austin Campbell, Mr. Hugh Ayres. All members of the Women's Press Club, and Varsity reporters particularly invited.

Special to "The Varsity"

New York, N.Y.—Professor A. Silverman of the University of Pittsburgh has expressed the opinion here that at some future date long rods may be installed whereby light may be brought to America from China, converting our night into day, and that heat also may be conveyed from the tropics to colder regions.

A delightful tea was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dunlop, 48 St. George Street, Saturday afternoon, when the senior class in Occupational Therapy and the Graduate Nurses were entertained.

COLORFULLY ATTIRE MOB MAKES WHOOPEE IN ANNUAL MASQUE

Saturday's Game at Kingston Fails to Keep Crowd From Participating

TICKETS EASIER TO OBTAIN

Prizes Given to Men and Women For Costumes Most Artistic and Original

Pierrettes and pirates, duchesses and devils, danced together in incongruous hilarity at the Hart House Masquerade on Friday night. Colours brightened and dimmed, orchestras blared and crooned, as the costumed throng stopped gaily to the music, like a shattered rainbow in its riot of colour.

Those who prophesied that interest in the game on Saturday would destroy interest in the social event of the year, proved, happily, to be false prophets. Perhaps tickets were a little easier to get, perhaps there was less anticipation of the great night, but to anyone who was there, it was clear that few tickets went unused, and that the Masque lost none of its brilliance.

Silver and black was the colour scheme in the big gym, but few people even noticed that there was a colour scheme, so much did interest in the costumes possess everybody. Conversation ran a good deal like this: "Oh, look, isn't that costume smart—There are a lot of harem girls here, aren't there? I wonder where the Sultan is to-night—Why, there he is! The old devil!—Say, there are a couple of apes, but I don't see Tarzan around anywhere. Was he censored? I thought so, this is such an intolerant place! Still, they might have been worse, by the lack of things," and so, ad infinitum.

The whole Canadian navy seemed to have turned out to the Masquerade, along with a large section of the army. Pirates were there too, but they seemed to have been largely killed off since last year. Perhaps that explained the presence of a number of uniformed nurses and doctors in the crowd. (Continued on page 3)

DENTISTS WILL HOLD ANNUAL STUNT NIGHT

Basketball Final Will Take Place, Followed by Dancing

Noctem Cuckoo, the annual stunt night of the Faculty of Dentistry will be held at Hart House this Friday at eight-thirty p.m. Despite the lower registration of recent years, tickets for the dental students annual frolic are always in great demand, due to the increasing number of graduates who return to renew old associations of undergraduate days.

Noctem Cuckoo was founded many years ago and was given its unique name by Dr. Gaston Brule. The Brule Cup will be awarded to the year presenting the best stick of the evening. Dean W. Seecombe, Drs. Mason, Holmes and Cole of the faculty, and Warden Bickerteth will act as judges in the contest.

The inter-year basketball final will be played in the upper gymnasium. Dancing will occupy the remainder of the evening.

This year the entertainment will be under the able direction of Mr. F. E. Harris, president of dramatics at the dental college. Mr. Harris has been associated with theatrical work for several years in Toronto and New York, and can be counted on to furnish a very versatile program.

THE QUEEN'S COMPLEX

After reviewing the defeat of our football team at Kingston on Saturday, we find, in common with other spectators, much disappointment. Beyond this, there is very little to say. For an analysis of the causes of the defeat would only injure feelings, and anyhow, the time for analysis is past.

But this one fact will stand out—the defeat seemed to be due to mental rather than to physical causes. The truth of this has to be sensed, rather than explained; yet there were few who saw the game who were not aware of it. The Blues were fighting something stronger than a squad of players.

If the fact were that the players, undoubtedly a match for their opponents, had lost only through their bad playing, it would be easy to scold. But they were fighting against themselves, too; in what way it is hard to say—perhaps against a conviction of inevitable defeat.

In this case it is impossible, almost, to find fault. And whatever does come to light, we do not think that it will be much to the discredit of the players.

Though disappointed, the university is certainly not ashamed of its team.

WE ARE! WE ARE. . . ?

Last Thursday those who were at the Soph-Frosh Banquet of the students of the Faculty of Applied Science went out for a little fun. The events do not need to be reviewed here.

Now, a maxim that everyone at University can rightly follow is, that everything worth doing is worth doing well. Presupposing that the parade was worth having, was it done well? We think not. The participants therein were chased away by the police with little beyond a verbal protest.

If the parade had been a real snorter, we could find much to commend in it and much to admire secretly, though not forgetting that such things are really not in the best interests of anyone. But when the parade turns out to be only a mild fizzle, the general reaction is a slight sensation of pain.

The authorities have done well in seeing that the parade does not become a custom. School men have a well-established reputation for a sort of ruggedness that may well persist as a valuable tradition, for where Engineers go, strong men are needed. But the actions of the foolish—with whom, as usual, the sane have to be grouped—would belie the reputation of their faculty, and lead us to believe that this reputation was not a fact, but only an accident of registration.

SOBRIETY

The costume is back at the costumers; the Hart House Masquerade is a matter of memory only. The impression that remains, apart from the good time conventionally had by all, is that it was a very orderly party. This fact becomes remarkable when one considers the number present, and the well-known propensity of boys for being boys. True enough, there are certain droll stories going the rounds, but the number is negligible.

We would like to bring those who wail concerning the degeneracy, frivolity, and decency of modern youth to the Masquerade.

Art, Music and Drama

Sunday Evening Concert

As the artist taking the title role in "Hugh the Drover", and as an artist having Dr. Ernest MacMillan for his accompanist, Mr. Allan Jones, tenor, needs no further recommendation.

In the programme which Mr. Jones offered, he displayed a voice of beautiful quality and of great power. His dramatic powers were given full scope, particularly in the Italian group.

The English songs were his most popular offerings. Dunn's "Under the Greenwood Tree" is quite the best setting of this popular Shakespeare song which this reviewer has heard. The Three Ghosts, Life, Death and Memory, an exquisite bit of writing, received delightful treatment, and was repeated by a request in which one is sure the whole audience joined. The Sleigh, a rollicking dashing number, inspired a storm of applause.

Mr. Jones, who has evidently specialized in opera, presented three selections from this source, of which "The Dream" from Massenet's "Manon" was probably the most attractive.

Happily, Dr. MacMillan requested Mr. Jones to give a number from the "Drover". "The Linnet" after the style of "The Willow" of Mikado fame, far outdoes it in naive beauty and art. Another aria from the opera was given as an encore.

Mr. Jones' excellent programme provided a delightful evening. His ability and musicianship, and the two numbers from "The Drover", will encourage many present last evening to attend the repeat performance of "Hugh the Drover" at the Royal York Hotel to-night.

W.U.A. Musicales

As guest artist for the W.U.A. musicale Madame Norah Drewett de Kresz gave a thoroughly delightful programme yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. The pianist remarked on her interest in doing unconventional things, and proceeded to open the musicale with a group of three Chopin Etudes, which were followed by the melodic Fantasy in F minor. Throughout this group the listeners could sense the very special individualistic touch that was given to each number. Rameau Arne and Scarlatti were found in the next group—a group of delicate seventeenth century writing, whose well defined runs, trills mordants, and staccato combined to render a charming effect. From these lighter numbers Madame de Kresz turned to Bach and played his English Suite in A minor. What an interesting and enjoyable suite it proved to be! Commencing with the spirited Prelude, the Allemande movement provided a slower and more rhythmic measure. Then the Courante returned to the cheery Prelude style to be followed by the stately dance, the Sarabande, and ended in a steady burst of colour with the Bourree and Gigue.

So many people are apt to say—"Fach—how boring! Beethoven—I cannot bear it!" But the audience yesterday seemed to appreciate genuinely the artist's energetic yet poetic treatment of the Bach and the Beethoven Sonata in F major, with which Madame de Kresz concluded her program. As an encore the pianist played the lovely Chopin Etude in A flat major—"The Harp". Then, in response to (Continued on page 4)

Great Stuff!

Editor,
"The Varsity":
Dear Sir:
We are indeed fortunate at Varsity in having an extremely efficient library staff. Of recent years a vigorous campaign has been carried on against smoking, objectionable people who wanted to study have been ejected from the stacks; and now the hue and cry is being raised against the culprits who deface library books with pen or pencil. However, there is one deficiency in this highly commendable system: so far no means have been provided for admiring undergraduates to be introduced to the various assistant librarians. I feel sure that when the Librarian realizes this oversight he will give it his earnest attention.

Thanking you for your space, I am,
Yours sincerely,

Hopeful.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Queen's are Intercollegiate football champions again. Varsity went into the Richardson Stadium Saturday and gave their best, but Queen's got all the breaks, which, added to a slight Tricolour margin, brought the Yates Trophy back to Kingston.

Varsity were not the same team that defeated Queen's in Toronto, and at the same time it must be admitted that the Tricolour were also a different outfit.

The usually reliable Varsity line were for the greater part of the game outplayed by the Queen's front works. The Blue made little headway on plunges, Jimmy Sinclair being the most successful in this respect.

It was a tough day for Billy Bell. The diminutive half had two costly fumbles in the first quarter, but this didn't shake his nerve to any appreciable extent. Bell made some great running catches after his early errors. Then in the last period when he took over the quarter position, Ike Sutton grabbed one of his passes to go over for a touch.

Queen's displayed about the nearest tackling by any Tricolour team since the days of "Doc" Campbell, Thomas, Walker, et al. Sinclair and Bell were grassed in their tracks. The Blue tacklers were not as effective, allowing Carter and Gilmore to break away for good gains.

Varsity Juniors were also eliminated Saturday. Ottawa Rideaus took them into camp at Ottawa by a 10-1 score.

Pharmacy and Jr. Meds will decide who will oppose Vic in the Mulock Cup finals. Victoria have a good team and will be hard to beat.

This season's Senior O.H.A. Group will have five entries, Varsity, Queen's, Hamilton, Young Rangers and the Nationals.

Echoes

Extract from Varsity student's Dictionary: "Nov. 16th, 4.30 p.m. Queen's 15, Varsity 5. Academic year in all faculties about to commence."

How'd'ya like the special Or did'ya mto?

Saturday's game had the best display of spirits—College spirits—we ever saw.

Did you see the game? Sure, the bridge game up front.

Who was the brave lad with the iron hat who refused to doff it upon request? And who was the serious young fellow who spent five minutes trying to persuade him to do so?

Did'ya see "Joe College" and his ham sandwich on the 6.30 train? Joe spent half the trip trying to start a "Toke Oike".

The Varsity band has a most delicate sense of the appropriate. When a Blue player took the count the sweet strains of "Bring Back My Bonnie to Me" came floating through the air.

Are the bagpipes classed as musical instruments? Why?

Who was the he-man who proudly displayed a chunk of the Queen's goal posts?

Were those the regular prices in the Kingston restaurants? Were you able to get any coffee at lunch?

COLOURFULLY ATTIRED CROWD MAKES WHOOPEE

As for the prize-winners, Miss Bernice Buchanan was adjudged to have the most artistic costume among the ladies. She was dressed as a Highland girl in a plaid gown. J. D. Bowerman was the best of the men in a bright green pirate costume. The prize for the most original costume went to R. O. Willmott and Miss H. E. Wootton, who were dressed as a pair of baboons.

At two in the morning or later, many went home just to snatch a few hours sleep before starting for Kingston in the morning.

TRICOLOUR SECURES

were rewarded when, with a few minutes to go Johnny Stewart grabbed Gilmore's fumble and tore over for Varsity's only score of the afternoon.

The game did not produce much brilliant football, the defenses being too strong, forcing both teams to rely on an aerial attack. The big surprise was the improvement of the Queen's line over their display in Toronto. Queen's tackled well, having five men down under every kick. Armour Munro was the outstanding Tricolour tackler, giving about the best performance of the year. Big "Blurp" Stewart at middle wing for Queen's tore through Varsity's line for big gains almost every time that he was given the ball. Carter kicked well and made several neat runs on the catches while Gilmore, his partner on the half line, was also effective.

For Varsity, Jimmy Sinclair was the best ground gainer. The "pocket Hercules" hit the line like a bullet and averaged about five yards per smash. Sinclair played a steady game, but both he and bell were closely watched. Johnny Stuart got Varsity's five points on a neat piece of work. Varsity's defense greatly missed Charlie Ruddell, whose injuries kept out of the game. His effective plunging would have strengthened the Blue attack. Keith, Little, Bean and Kelly did a Trojan's work, but could not halt the championship march of the Tricolour.

Varsity—Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Sinclair, Bell, Stuart; quarter, Wood; snap, Keith; insides, Kelly and Bean; middles, Morgan and Little; outsides, Gooderham and Subotsky; subs, Jimmy Sinclair, Fitzpatrick, Elson, Galloway, Dewar, Hallam, Davey, White.

Queen's—Flying wing, Britton; halves, Carter, Gilmore, Munro; quarter, Sutton; snap, Hastings; insides, Nicol, Basserman; middles, Stuart and Hamlin; outsides, Dickey and Gourley; subs, Caldwell, Gaetz, Gorman, Lackey, De Daria, Gorman, Elliott, Ralph.

JUNIOR GRID TEAM DEFEATED IN FINAL

Blue and White Squad Succumb to Battling Rideaus in Dominion Final

BLUES STRONG FIRST HALF

Special to "The Varsity"

Ottawa, Nov. 16—After annexing the Intercollegiate title, Varsity juniors succumbed to the Rideaus in the quest for Dominion honours by the score of 10-1. The game was played on a muddy field, but play throughout was fast and the big crowd was treated to good football.

The Blue and White held the Paddlers to 2-1 in the first half, but superiority on the line told in the final stanza. For Varsity Hodgetts, Cutner and Magdary stood out, with McFarlane, Sheehan and Ogilvie the pick of the winners.

Rideaus kicked off with the wind. They moved the sticks three times, but lost the ball on Varsity's five-yard line when the frosh line held. Ogilvie's attempted drop went for a rouge. Hodgetts took the ball bound his line and ran it out 15 yards. Ogilvie booted for a point to close the quarter.

In the second quarter Varsity kicked on their first down (with the wind) and carried the play into Rideaus' end of the field. Hodgetts kicked for Varsity's point. An inside kick by Varsity was broken up by Rideaus. Half-time: Rideaus 2, Varsity 1.

Donaldson blocked Hodgetts' kick and went over for a touch which was converted. Ogilvie booted for a counter. Hodgetts threw a successful forward pass to Cutler which intercepted a pass, ran it for 35 yards and kicked for another rouge.

Varsity attempted to go over for a touch twice in the last quarter, but the Paddlers' line was too strong. Ogilvie ran the ball from behind his own line to midfield. Final score: Rideaus 10, Varsity 1.

Varsity—Flying wing, King, halves, Hodgetts, Cutner, Gibson; quarter, Magdary; snap, Schipp; insides, Cverling, Booth; middles, Fear, Patterson; outsides, Stubbs, McGibbon; subs, Mudge, Ellsworth, Henry, Shapiro, Dyer, Rogers, Beynan, Hume.

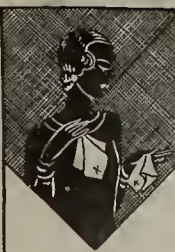

Rideaus—Flying wing, Quinn, halves, MacFarlane, Sheehan, Forster; quar-

BLUE RUGGER TEAMS MAKE GOOD SHOWING

First Squad in Brilliant Win as Seconds go Down Before Scottish Club

PUTS TEAM IN FIRST PLACE

Last Saturday was a big day for Varsity rugby. While the first fifteen were defeating the smart Toronto Welsh team, 10-3, at Upper Canada College, a second Varsity fifteen were playing on the back campus against the Toronto Scottish team. The University of Toronto British Rugby Club now has the honour of being the first club in the Ontario Union to enter two teams in competition on the same day. The 'B' team was beaten by the Scottish, 13-3, but this showing displayed plenty of excellent material for next season, and speaks volumes for the work of Alan Burton, Varsity coach.

By this defeat of the league leading Welsh club, previously unbeaten, the first team now dominates the situation in the O.E.R.U. Although playing regular three-quarters, who are out owing to injuries, the Varsity squad turned in a brilliant exhibition of fast play. The hard working forwards, fighting against a heavier and more experienced pack, deserve the "devil's due" for the way in which they got the ball back to their three-quarters. The Roome and Salter combination was often responsible for the big gains frequently made by McLean and Lee, who were giving and taking their passes faultlessly. Allan scored Varsity's first touchdown after a forward

FUMBLES COST JR. SCHOOL GROUP FOOTBALL TITLE

Fumbles proved costly to Junior School when they were defeated 13 to 3 by Junior Meds in Friday's play-off for the group football title. Graham started for the winners, and was easily the best man on the field, while Murphy's long booting was a big factor in the "doctors' victory. For the losers, Lickly, kicking for School, and McNichol excelled.

Graham grabbed both of his team's touchdowns which were the result of fumbles.

Meds—Gibb, Dickson, McKay, Graham, Lackner, Nicol, Bright, Tate, Mayor, Vaughan, Marquis, Barber, Eager, Thompson, Coleman, Murphy, Noble, Legget, Nugent. School—Wheaton, Lickly, McNichol, Hallitt, Muir, Moffat, Coulter, Mitchell, Swallow, Maybee, Little, Kane, Eastwood, Bartleman, Campbell, Freiland, Wood.

rush led by MacFie. A heady play by Rogers started a pretty run which ended in MacLean going over for the second Varsity score. Both tries were converted by McKay. The play was very close from beginning to end, and most exciting to watch, but Varsity, now a much improved combination, had the edge in their sure and rapid passing.

Of the backs, MacLean was outstanding. Lee, Salter, Brown, Garner and Knowles must be mentioned. Early in the second half Roome, who was playing a hard game, sustained a fractured rib, but he kept right on fighting. Line-up—Fullback, McKay; three-quarters, Thomas, MacLean, Rogers, Lee; halfbacks, Roome; Salter, Garner; forwards, Knowles, Brown, Nash, passes faultlessly. Allan scored Varsity's first touchdown after a forward

MEDS AND PHARMACY ENTER MULOCK CUP SEMI-FINALS

Meds and Pharmacy, by dint of winning their respective games on Friday afternoon on the back campus against Forestry and School earn the right to enter the semi-finals in the Mulock Cup schedule.

The Pharmacy-Forestry game was a close struggle between two well-matched teams, with Pharmacy in the lead in almost every department. Brown for Pharmacy was the better kicker and was responsible for all of their points by kicks and was well supported by Beckett, the best man on the field. Hodgins for Pharmacy was the best and Leslie of the half-line teamed up well. Final score: Pharmacy 3, Forestry 1.

Pharmacy—Clegg, Beckett, Wadland, Skarke, Keating, Goldsmith, Brown, Starkman, Robb, Wolfe, Wilkinson, Subs: Moffat, Thompson, Freibick, Miser.

Forestry—Start, Leslie, Simpson, Hodgins, Flatt, Hunt, Boulbee, Crea-lock, Miller, Christie, McBean, Myer, Subs: Walkom, Losee, Thomson, Young, Eidt.

Argyll House held a delightful house party Saturday night at which the hostesses were Mrs. Howard, Miss Kilpatrick and Margaret Patterson, head girl. The music was provided by Musgrave's orchestra.

there are no callings worth pursuing which do not bring men and women against huge problems." Dr. Gray's final plea was for students to learn to know the God presented by Jesus; that they might be able to live, masters of life and work for the betterment of Canada.

Speaking at the evening service on the same subject, Dr. Gray expressed the opinion, arrived at after long experience with student life, that students after all are just like other human beings and often use a mask of cynicism to conceal their unhappiness.

Interest in arts and politics rather than in the social side of life has been manifest by a large majority of

Aggie Aggravates Archie
Phoning Proves Futile

By Helen Price

No, Ag and I didn't go to the game. You see it was this way. "Clunk."

"Kingsdale 5914."

"Buzz, buzz, buzz, buzz." The deuce. "Blip."—This nickle is getting thin. The king's nose is almost wiped off. Wonder how long it'd take to wear a nickle out on a busy phone?

"Clunk."

"Kingsdale 5914."

"Dinginging—dinginging! Migosh!"

"Hullo?"

"Hillo—zat you Agnes?"

"Yes—zat you Archie?"

"Yeah, lissen, I'll know by ten bells if I can take you to the game at Queen's. Now if that phone of yours weren't so busy—"

"Well Archie, I'll phone you at ten bells—uh huh."

See—so I went for a ding at ten bells. But no ding—hey—what's keeping her? What's idea? Out some-where, I'll bet. Giving me the stand up, she is. Well, whadda I care. This is fine, this is dandy. Gee it's a great note. Phone at 10, eh? Yeah. What does she care how long I wait? She don't. I gave up a poker game to wait for this call, and whadda I get? Nothing.

Broke my neck getting the car for to-morrow. Ain't that like a dame though? What do I care. It don't mean anything in my life. There's plenty more, I can get 'em. Gee, what in blazes is keeping that dame. She oughta be in by now.

Lotsa dames'd be glad to have me around. I don't have to go trailing around no dames. Let 'em come to me. 'At's the system. Guy gets some-where when he does that.

There's the phone. Naw, not her. I ought to go and get pickled 'count of this. Show her I don't care. And I take her to the Hart House Masquerade, and the Royal York and the show twice a week, and I ast her to U.C. Follies and Athletic At-Home and all the football games. Why doesn't that phone ring? Huh, she's out with another guy. Whatta use. I guess people'll kick me around all my life. No one gives a hang what I do. Well see, I'm offa her, I don't care what she does either. I'll tell her off. She doesn't mean a thing to me.

Phone—Gee, maybe it's her. Nope, it wasn't. She ain't gonna call me. Giving me the cold fried egg for another guy.

Well, who wants to see the mouldy game. Long cold ride, we'll get beat—long cold ride again.

Well, I'll get myself another dame, a bunch of them. Why should a guy like me stick to one dame? I can get by. I got by before I saw her, and I can get by again.

Out with another guy. I'll show her. Wait a minute—phone. Nope—wasn't Ag.

I should worry over her. Hot dog—there goes the phone. That's her ring.

Aw tush!

How was I to know her phone was outta order?????

EMPTIES DO NOT SHOW PREVALENT DRINKING HABITS

So Thinks Hart House Warden
Masqueraders Were Well Behaved

BOTTLES ON CO-ED LAWN

Rev. F. Moore Saw No Tokens of Inebriation at Hart House Masque

"Gambling and drinking offer no problems around Hart House," declared Mr. Bickersteth, the Warden, when asked by "The Varsity" to comment on the behaviour of the Masqueraders. "Considering that there were 2,100 people attending the Masquerade, the evening was unusually quiet," Mr. Bickersteth commended the deportment of the members of the House, saying that better conditions could not be wished for.

Mr. Le Pan, superintendent of grounds for the university, when approached on the subject declared emphatically, "We have seen nothing but sobriety on the campus." Although rumours of empty crocks have been current lately "The Varsity" found the number of them to be negligible. Though a reporter stumbled upon a very dry gin empty near Simcoe Hall on Saturday. It is thought that this vessel was dropped in the mad rush for the special, early Saturday morning. The attention of "The Varsity" was also drawn to some empties on the lawn of a U.C. women's residence on St. George Street. There had apparently been tossed from an upper window and had broken in the fall.

"Toronto has reason to be pretty well satisfied with the moral behavior of the students," said Rev. F. J. Moore of the S.C.A. when approached on the subject. "Nothing about the university suggests that there isn't a high standard of morality at the order at the Masquerade was extraordinarily good and I saw no lack of sobriety; if there had been anything to speak of I should have come across it somewhere in the House. On the whole I consider the conduct of the students extremely good."

Nine delegates from Queen's University, Kingston; McGill University, Montreal, and from MacDonald Hall and O.A.C., Guelph, spent the weekend as guests of various University of Toronto residences, that they might hear Dr. Gray, who will not be able to visit the other universities.

Antics Afield

That Colossus of College Publications, the Minnesota Daily, is all set up over the vicious tendencies exhibited by students at the University of Michigan to seek a broad education, and reports that it has been necessary to provide each one with an identification card, to prevent students of one faculty from taking lectures in another.

The same Exalted Organ of Public Opinion announces that qualifications for rugby players are radically changed since the day Red Grange dropped the ice-tops to pick up the pigskin. Gridiron heroes are now advised to take up bad-carrying or wheel-barrow pushing in order to keep in trim.

Awards Offered For Special Contributions

Through the Literary and Debates Committee "The Varsity" announces that it will be enabled to publish from time to time a special literary section for material submitted by its readers.

The committee has granted a sum of money to be used for prizes, and the judges of material submitted will be P. E. Ussher, B.A., for "The Varsity" and N. A. Benson, M.A., for the committee.

The first section will be run on Wednesday, November 27. Complete details will be announced in "The Varsity" next Thursday.

DEITY FOUND BY ACTION

"We are living in an age when scientists no longer stand opposed to religion," stated Dr. Herbert Gray at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Student Christian Association in Hart House Theatre. The theme of his address was "The Place Religion Plays in the Life of Students."

"By Religion," he continued, "I mean a man's personal relation to God. The things scientists tell us within their own province is strengthening to our religion. The net result of all scientific writings is an impulse to worship." He went on to draw a parallel between the beauties in nature and God. The whole world is full of suggestions of His presence. We get our personal relation to God through Christ.

TRY TO RELIEVE NOON HOUR RUSH

Officials Seek Cause of One O'clock Congestion in Dining Hall

MAY REVISE LECTURE HOURS

Is it possible to relieve the dinner rush at 1 o'clock each day in the Great Hall at Hart House?

The answer to this question was the end sought by J. Royden Gilley, comptroller, and W. A. Rooke, secretary of the Hall Committee in a quiz of the diners at Hart House yesterday at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Gilley and Mr. Rooke, taking their stand at the entrance to the Great Hall, put this query to each diner entering the room:

"To what year and faculty do you belong?"

Students gazed in bewilderment, wondering, undoubtedly, as to what brought about the point-blank question.

The curiosity of "The Varsity" was likewise aroused by the question and a reporter sought out Mr. Gilley to find the reason.

"Mr. Rooke and I were endeavouring to obtain information to-day in the Great Hall as to the faculties which have lectures and classes letting out at 1 o'clock and resulting in the rush to the dining hall at that time," he said.

"Our intention is to continue checking the students who come to dinner for the remainder of the week in an effort to figure which one of the days (Continued on page 4)

COUNCIL BUDGET UNAFFECTED BY FEES REDUCTION

Decrease From Five to Three Dollars Possible Because Debts Are Paid

SAVE FOR TORONTONENSIS

Profits Will Provide Special
Prizes for "Varsity" Competitions

"The lowering of the S.A.C. fees to three dollars will in no way affect our budget," stated Mr. A. G. Burns, secretary-treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council. "As the extra fee was put on a few years ago to pay off the debt to the Board of Governors, it never figured in our budget."

"The large part of this year's profit will in all probability go to found a Torontonensis Contingent Liability Fund, which would insure protection in case the Torontonensis is not published in any year. In former years we have relied on the current year's expenses to publish it, but as for four years each student is reckoned to have paid a dollar twenty-five of his fee to publish the Torontonensis, it is necessary to have a liability fund actually possible to repay the student in case the book is not published."

When questioned if "The Varsity" was likely to get a definite part of the fee, Mr. Burns stated, "It was very unlikely, but if a profit was shown, 'The Varsity' usually shared in it. This year a large sum has been voted as special prizes to be offered by 'The Varsity' and any further profits in the budget are likely to result in still further advantages. There has been no idea of a reduction below the three dollar fee, but if profits continue satisfactorily it is quite likely that still further reductions will take place."

Professor S. Beatty, faculty representative of the S.A.C., thought the problem should be left to the report of the committee under Dean A. T. Delury, which is investigating student government. "If a large profit is shown," stated Professor Beatty, "the profit should come back to the student at large in a reduction of the fee. If 'The Varsity' were apportioned a direct part of the fee it might cause it to be extravagant, whereas now it is directed by a set budget. The fees could not very well be apportioned among the different enterprises of the S.A.C. without danger of trouble arising about proportioning the budget."

Kingston, Nov. 18.—The following editorial appeared in a recent issue of the Queen's Journal here:—

"Tolerant" Toronto's Mayor, Samuel McBride, is calling for a thorough reorganization of the faculty of the University of Toronto to the end that the institution "might turn out a race of boosters, not knucklers." It seems that Samuel was never so badly insulted in his life as on the occasion of the recent student vote, "the night they got me up to the Hart House and told me that Toronto was an intolerant city." And so Mr. McBride has begun a crusade. To a Lodge of Toronto Orangemen on Tuesday night he asserted roundly that "if that is the kind of ideas the university is putting into the heads of the young men of this city it is time we got rid (Continued on page 4)

Professor Meek has had this invitation for the last two years and like Professor Taylor, who is now in Jerusalem, will return to the university after this year."

Returning Students Run Wild On Saturday Evening Special

Wild scenes of maudlin hilarity characterized the late special train from Kingston on Saturday evening last according to the evidence of reliable eye-witnesses.

While those who were present are very reluctant to say anything on the matter, it has been ascertained that student coaches were badly damaged. Electric light bulbs were broken, windows smashed and general disorder was the order of the night. Co-eds joined in the fun, it is asserted, and according to one witness who refused to allow his name to be divulged, outdid the men.

One coach in particular was the scene of a huge crap game in which stakes ran high and which railroad employees did not attempt to prevent. A game of strip poker resulted in one man disembarking from the train minus his shirt, at least.

Complete darkness reigned in another section of the train in which several co-eds sat.

Railway officials could not be reached yesterday by "The Varsity" in an endeavour to find out the exact amount of the damage. Special student trains, it is recollected, have been banned by many railroads on account of the riotous parties breaking or otherwise damaging railroad property.

One young member of the band caused considerable commotion when he insisted in parading up and down the aisles around 3 a.m. beating a large bass drum and persisted in keeping two co-eds awake.

A REMNANT OF BUMBLEDOM

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The "Ottawa Citizen" commented as follows on the Hart House Debate:

The Mayor of Toronto is much annoyed. He went to take part in one of the university debates at Hart House on the question of Toronto's tolerance. He made the usual boasting speech, telling the students about Toronto's pre-eminence, but the young persons only smiled derisively. By an overwhelming vote the students decided that Toronto's reputation for intolerance is deserved.

Mayor Sam McBride's bewildered indignation is amusing, but it is also rather pathetic. He has doubtless imagined himself to be one of the great figures in Canadian public life. Contact with young people at the university has given him a rude jolt. It has suddenly dawned upon him that he may possibly be regarded by the new generation as nothing more than a ridiculous remnant of bumbledom.

At present he is angry. Last Tuesday night he went down to a local Orange Lodge, where he could still feel assured of being regarded as a great man. He told the Orangemen with virtuous indignation, of the treatment he had received at the university. He propounded a simple solution for this disrespect among college students toward such a personage as himself. He would reorganize the faculty of the University of Toronto. He would get rid of teachers who dared to give the university students any ideas that were above the intellectual level of Toronto city council. In place of such teachers he would "put in men (Continued on page 2)

MAKES DIAMONDS FROM SUGAR AND SCRAP IRON

McPherson, Kans.—Professor J. Willard Hershey, of McPherson College, has made a real diamond from sugar and iron filings.

The man-made gem, about the size of a grain of sand, was exhibited at a meeting of the American Chemical Society at Minneapolis, and the scientists gathered there accepted the proof offered by the McPherson professor that the stone was a real diamond.

Dr. Hershey believes the day will come when real diamonds of large size will be manufactured for decorative as well as commercial use.

The gem was made by exerting tons of pressure to the square inch on pure table sugar. This was done by heating the sugar to white heat at a temperature of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and then, while still white hot, dropping the mass into an ice cold brine. The theory is that the immense pressure created by such fast cooling turned the sugar into diamonds. The foreign matter in the product was then dissolved with various acids, until only the pure carbon remained—carbon now in the form of the world's most precious stone.

ATTRIBUTE SLOT MACHINE THEFT TO NON-MEMBERS

Machine Not Yet Purchased,
But Hart House Must Pay for Breakages

CONSTABLES BUSY ON CASE

Former Thefts Traced to Non-Students Masquerading
as Members

Officials of Hart House when interviewed yesterday stated that there were no further developments in the robbery of the slot machine outside the barber shop which took place Sunday afternoon.

As far as can be ascertained it was purely an outside job. The overcoat stealing and other petty thievery prevalent around Hart House last year has been proven to be the work of non-students who took to themselves the freedom of the house for the occasion. It is quite likely that this latest crime was also perpetrated by a similar person or persons. It is a very simple matter for a petty thief to enter the house and purloin desirable. The officials find it impossible to accost everyone entering Hart House and demand their membership card. It would lead to constant embarrassment for bona fide members. Tien, too, a criminal whose suit is cut properly, who wears his hat at the proper collegiate angle cannot externally be told from an undergraduate. There seems to be no solution for the problem.

The slot machine, which was only recently installed, had not yet been purchased. It was in on trial and still the property of the manufacturing company. Hart House, however, will have to stand the cost of the repairs, due to the broken glass. It will be put back in service in a few days as it meets a long felt want for smokers.

It appears that someone casually walked in, and finding no one about, took the opportunity of breaking the glass and helping himself to the cigarettes. Officials of Hart House were on the scene shortly after the occurrence, but no clues could be found. Chief Constable D'Arcy and his men are working on the case, but as yet no developments have taken place. However, they are expected shortly.

VICTORIA FRESHMAN COLLAPSES IN TANK

Last Friday morning in the midst of a life-saving class in the Hart House tank, A. C. Adam, I Victoria, collapsed and in doing so struck his head against a radiator. Mr. W. W. The medical director was summoned from the Athletic Office, and attended to the ent on the forehead which the student had suffered.

NINETEEN CENTS

In our editorial of Thursday last, which appeared concurrently with the statement of the Joint Executive, we pointed out that each member of the class of '29 received a Torontonensis which cost only nineteen cents for each year of his academic life. For four years he paid a fee, at least a dollar a year of which was supposed to contribute to his copy of Torontonensis, and for each yearly fee, he only got nineteen cents worth of Torontonensis. We did not cast aspersions; but we did suggest that the class of '29, in the name of economy, was given a mighty scrubby deal. We do not now cast aspersions; what is done is done. But in the name of the nine hundred members of the class of '30, and on behalf of all those classes soon to become seniors for which a precedent should be set, we declare that Torontonensis, from now on, should be a publication more nearly worthy of the University.

We have before, in this column, described the publication of last year, but having no figures, we did not know why it was inferior. Now we know. It was a cheap article. The editors did their best, but they were never given a chance.

We do not inquire into the processes of management or accounting by which the Joint Executive, which according to its published statement, can make a profit of ten thousand dollars a year, after fifteen years of operation came out paralyzed by deficit. All we know is that there was a deficit, some years ago, which resulted in a raise in the fee and rigid economy in the salaries and expenses of the publications. Perhaps the desire to get completely clear of debt and to build up a large surplus in some part justified the sorry treatment given to the year of '29. But these days are over.

We understand that the Joint Executive intend to build up a reserve for Torontonensis, so that it will not be printed each year out of the fees of that year, but that the fees of each class, during its whole course, will be saved up to print the Torontonensis of that class. This means that, if the Joint Executive were to go out of business at any time, there would be enough surplus on the books to pay back every class what it had paid in on account of Torontonensis. This is a very commendable object, and sound accounting. But the Joint Executive has right now, in cold cash or bonds, credit with the Bursar and good accounts due to it, and not counting the office furniture or the stock of pins, etc., over eighty-five hundred dollars; enough reserve to print eight complete issues of Torontonensis of the 1929 type without another cent of fees on that score. Eight complete issues! A Torontonensis for every graduating class, right down to those prospective classes now in second form high school! We understand that the Joint Executive are debating an accounting basis to evaluate this surplus as a reserve. Basis or no basis, the money is there. Let us have the Torontonensis.

We want to make it clear that we are not proposing any wild orgy of senseless expenditure. We only desire what is just. We maintain that the class of 1930, by the end of this year, will have paid in, at a dollar a year per member, at least five thousand dollars for Torontonensis and five thousand dollars worth, more or less, it should have. The class of '29, probably the classes of '28, '27 and '26, were penalized heavily for the follies of a past day. But, with nearly ten thousand dollars total surplus on the books, that is no reason why the class of '30 should be sacrificed to the building up of another enormous surplus for the future. If the Executive feels that ten thousand dollars is not enough surplus out of which to create a reserve, let them take a few hundred, even a thousand dollars, from the class of '30 to apply to that reserve. But, in the name of all Justice and Right, let us have a Torontonensis worthy of the name! Let the year of '30, get a better return than nineteen cents!

CHAMPUS CAT

ALL TRY IT ON THE WESTERN FRONT Chapter 3

I am not yet fully recovered from being run over by the tank, I still have that kruschen feeling. I am not yet fit for the front, and the lieutenant, who is a capital fellow, has detailed me for light duty searching for spies in the village of —, which is on the bank of the river — in the province of —. It is a cushy job.

I am to be quartered at the cottage of Herr Weiner. I am three quarters in there already; he has a lovely daughter called Dinkelsplink. That is a beautiful name; it reminds me of water dripping into a tin sink.

In the evenings Dinkelsplink and I walk together through her father's potato fields and along the river bank, beyond the village. And as the golden beams of the sinking sun play in her wavy hair and sparkle on her dandruff, she tells me of her life in the barnyard among the cattle and swine. Her talk is enriched with beautiful quotations from Schmitzer's "Manual of Veterinary Surgery", and Sploger's "Handbook on Fertilizers." Last night by the river in her low sweet voice she dreamily recited all the noon grain market quotations to me. It was very wonderful and filled me with admiration. In answer I crooned the tenth proposition in Euclid and named the cranial nerves in the original Greek.

I am in love with Dinkelsplink. She makes me feel like One-round Martin with his chest out. She makes me very happy when she calls me her "Tomcat". But when she talks of Otto Helffeller I am sad, for she likes him too. Yesterday I found her gathering daisies for him. That is a good idea, for I have something for Otto also. It is a brick.

Dinkelsplink is kind to everyone. All the children of the village love her, for on holidays she gives the little boys pretzels and the little girls dolls made of sausages dressed up in bits of bright ribbon.

The cows moo when they see her and the hens lay eggs for her. It breaks her heart to have to knock the potato bugs off the long rows of plants in the fields. She has trained some of them to run around her neck and down her arm. How tenderly she handles them!

Ah, how I love her! Last night was chilly and I took some of the potato bugs to bed with me for her sake. I dreamed that she was my married. I thought that she was in my arms, and when she tickled me I awoke, to find that she was not there. Even the potato bugs were gone. How sweet love is!

Rev. Fathers Lebel and Spratt Speakers at Hart House Gathering

Members of the freshmen Arts and Aquinas classes of St. Michael's College met at an informal entertainment Saturday night in Hart House East Common Room.

The Rev. Father Lebel and the Rev. Father Spratt were the guests of honour and spoke during the programme of the evening.

Members of both the Arts and Aquinas courses figured in the entertainment. A one-act play, "Moonshine", was presented by William McDonald and Patrick Plunkett, Aquinas members. A quartet, comprising William J. Dorgan, Thomas H. Sweeney, Earl J. Brady and Robert Brown, furnished several vocal selections.

The evening's program was rounded out with two boxing bouts and a wrestling match.

Harold T. Gillen, president of St. Michael's freshman class, acted as master of ceremonies for the affair.

With the Theatres

UPTOWN

The overworked student will find enough opportunity for relaxation at the Uptown Theatre this week in the long Harold Lloyd comedy "Welcome Danger". This picture is one of the best that has appeared in Toronto for a long time and is greatly assisted by Harold Lloyd's new leading lady, charming Barbara Kent. A good many laughs will be placed to the credit of this great fun maker during the coming week, and no one will find anything objectionable. As an amateur detective Harold outdoes the hard and callous staff of police at San Francisco, and brings home the bacon after a long struggle. Real comedy appears in a blank strip of film with just the voices to provide the stimulant. Harold, we find, has a pleasing voice and has certainly taken well.

The divertimento likewise is good, being a selection from "The Student Prince". A first class show.

W.F.P.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

A play which those who appreciate intelligent and thrilling drama must not miss is "Jealousy", an experiment, not merely successful, but triumphant, in the two-character play.

A man has just married his mistress, and apparently their passion is to survive the ceremony. But the husband is possessed of a fiend of jealous suspicion—and of no sense of humour. Through this jealousy is laid bare his wife's generous deceit; the husband commits a murder, gives himself up, and at the curtain we are left in suspense as to his fate.

The play is a remarkable study of a passionately devoted, cruelly suspicious, impetuously quixotic man and of a woman who loves madly and never admits defeat.

The acting of Fay Bainter is amazingly fine, both vocally and physically, and Melvyn Douglas at times reaches equal heights.

P.A.G.

SHEA'S

Talking about he-men—you should see the way Ian Keith bullies Dorothy Mackail in the feature at Shea's, the Great Divide.

The four-act vaudeville was rather mediocre with a few high lights; and the comedy aroused the usual amount of laughter. A good four-hour entertainment.

BLUE FOOD FOR BLUE CONSUMERS

Dr. Willard Questions Theory of Psychologists in Menu Planning

"Are we to have blue food for blue people?" said Dr. Willard of the Household Science Building, when questioned by "The Varsity" regarding Paul Redoux's book of new French cookery in which he advocates psycho-analyzing your dinner guests and having meals to suit their complexes.

"—And, if I have to taste fish I want it to be fish," she added regarding his suggestion that veal be flavoured with fish, which he used as an illustration of his idea that we should break away from custom in our diet to try new food combinations and flavourings.

"I do not think variety is so essential to our diet," she continued, "I have gone for fifteen days on exactly the same diet, and yet retained my appetite for it. However, I have the greatest faith in French cooking, and the French are masters of sauces." She related the story of the disgust of one Frenchman who said he could find only two kinds of sauce in America.

Miss Vau Allen, dietitian of Wymilwood, thought that we do cater to our guests' tastes unconsciously and that psycho-analysis was superfluous. "Variety is desirable, but custom binds us down to the usual meat, potato and vegetable dinner. In an institution, the frills a French cook might achieve would be impossible."

"Psycho-analysis might work if you had only one guest, but it would be rather difficult if you had several!" said Miss Nickell of Queen's Hall.

In this attitude, Mayor Sam McBride is, of course, simply the Toronto prototype of Big Bill Thompson of Chicago. # JRS. MEET VICTORIAS AT MUTUAL ARENA TO-NIGHT IN S.P.A.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The football season is over on the campus and the moleskins have been stored away for another year. On Saturday the Big Blue and the Juniors were stopped in their quest for championships.

To-night Varsity juniors oppose Victorias in the first round for the S.P.A. Cup. Coach Frank Sullivan has been working pretty hard with his team and his entry will be a strong contender for the cup. In addition to some of last year's sextette as a nucleus, he has some newcomers to the squad, notably Levinsky. The youngsters displayed all kinds of pep in their practices, and they look good on their pre-season form.

This afternoon at 3.30 Pharmacy and Junior Meds will meet at the Stadium to decide who will fight it out with Victoria for the Mulock Cup. Both teams have played well and the winner should provide an interesting game with the Scarlet and Gold in the finals on Friday the 22nd.

The Intercollegiate Hockey Association will have just two members again this year in its senior group. Varsity and McGill will meet in home-and-home games for the honours.

BASKETBALL BOOY MAY REVISE CONSTITUTION

Seek Standardized Baskets For Intercollegiate Competition

A special committee was appointed to deal with a revision of the constitution of the senior intercollegiate basketball association at the annual meeting of that organization held last Saturday in Montreal. The report of the committee will be ready for the next annual meeting.

An attempt will be made to have only official braceless baskets used in all intercollegiate matches. At the meeting referees Miller of Toronto and Mannon of Montreal, were appointed to handle the championship games.

The representatives at the meeting were Hauch of Western, Mason, McGill, Alexander, Queen's and Martin and McCutcheon of Varsity.

FIFTY TURN OUT FOR BASKETBALL

Surplus of Players May Cause Formation of Second Junior Team

SENIORS TO TOUR STATES

Close to fifty candidates have put in an appearance for the three university basketball teams this year. This large squad will be cut down in about a week. The names of the players for the various teams have already been selected but will not be divulged for another week. There is still time for any aspiring players to come out and show their stuff. In fact there are many rugby players who have not yet had the opportunity to come out. Both O'Leary and Davey have yet to show up. Wood, who has hurt his leg at rugby is expected soon to be in condition for basketball.

Horton, from Riverdale Grads, and Delane of Rochester are two players who have shown great speed and very accurate shooting. Douglas, from U.T.S., six foot seven, is fast rounding into form and should make a place on the senior team.

The seniors go on a trip during December and play a number of exhibition games. On Dec. 13, they play their first exhibition game with the University of Buffalo, and on the 14th they play the University of Rochester. The intermediates, coached by Newman, have a lot of promising material and should make a great bid for the championship. Pasternak, Brady and Foxe, the last year's mainstays, are again out for the team.

The juniors have so many good players out this year that there is a very great possibility of a fourth team being organized. Carr and Holderson from last year's team are again out. Under the management of Silverman from McGill they will soon be in great form.

VICTORIA WOMEN ARE BASKETBALL WINNERS

Trim St. Michael's in Stern Struggle at U.T.S.; Score 42-29

Vic seniors put up a hard fight to gain their leading score of 42 to 29 in their exciting game with St. Mike's at U.T.S. gym last night. From the first both teams worked their hardest, but the winners showed superior passing which kept them in the lead. Eleanor Sedgewick, Vic side-centre, was outstanding in her last work. Good shots were the order of the day both for St. Mike's and Vic.

VARSITY JUNIORS MEET VICTORIAS

Levinsky And Smillie Team On Defense in Opening S.P.A. Encounter

NIGHTCAP OF DOUBLE BILL

Varsity juniors open the local hockey season to-night when they hook up S.P.A. Cup series. The candidates, with Victorias in the first round of the for the team have been hard at work for the past week, and under the expert tutelage of Coach Frank Sullivan, show every sign of developing into a strong outfit. Given the material, Sullivan can be counted on to round out a real contender.

The regular forward line will probably consist of Art Brant at centre and Sid Hetherington and Benmet on the wings. Brant starred at this position last year and Hetherington and Benmet were also members of the 1928-29 team. There is plenty of speed in this combination and it should register a good many goals before the season closes. One or two newcomers have added considerable strength to the squad, notably Alex Levinsky, husky defense star of last year's champion Marlboros, Don Smillie, late of Young Rangers, is also showing great form in practice. These two players will team up on the defense and opposing forwards are going to have a tough time breaking through. Besides forming a strong rearguard both are fast finishers and will add to the score sheet more than once. The ever-dependable Frank Hummel in the nets completes a strong line-up. As regards substitutes the team is fairly well fixed. Cunningham, a Manitoba man, was a member of the champion intermediate team of that province last winter and should fill in nicely.

Victorias claim to have a greatly improved team for this season, but the blue and white should take them into camp to-night. The game will be played as the second of a double-header at the Mutual Street Arena. Marlboros and St. Mike's will clash in the first tilt. This pre-season series provides an opportunity to size up the teams as well as to see some good hockey.

DISCUSS PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING

Vocational Group Hear Talk by Miss K. Russell at Wymilwood

UNIVERSITY WOMEN NEEDED

The first meeting of the Women Students' Vocational Conference was held at Wymilwood last night. Miss K. Russell discussed Public Health Nursing, a new profession which has found expression since the war.

"It requires special interest," she said, "and is something that cannot be developed in a moment. It is not just for earning a living."

Miss Russell went on to say that it was a four year course and could not be shortened even for an Arts degree. "But," she added, "it is growing rapidly and there certainly is a demand."

Miss Thomas said that there are splendid openings. Some specialized training is required but university graduates are needed and as yet few have chosen church work as a vocation.

Of twenty-five Canadian women graduates who entered this work, eight were from University College and four from Victoria. Most adopt educational work first, later they may do religious work.

"But girls," she ended, "don't blur the issue by thinking of the remuneration. Philip Brooks said 'It is not tasks equal to our powers, but powers equal to our tasks.'"

The Official Varsity Crest—

Is made in various ways

Pin (only); Pin with year guard; Bar Pin; Split Shank Ring; Signet Ring, sapphire set; Seal Ring, raised crest, no stones; Seal Ring, sunken crest for sealing, no stones; Waldemar Drop (a tiny gold medallion for Waldemar watch chain).

The rings may be made in 14 kt. or 18 kt. White and Green Gold at slight additional cost if desired.

TWELVE SURVIVE WEEDING PROCESS

Coach Porter Cuts Down Senior Hockey Squad Early in Season

THREE GOALIES AVAILABLE

The University of Toronto senior hockey team, O.H.A. champions, have commenced practices in pursuit of a repetition of last year's success and even at this early date look to be in line to "do it again!" All of last year's sextet is back with the exception of Murray Snyder, the steady Blue net guardian, who has graduated. The regulars have realized the necessity of early rounding into shape, and all have attended the workouts. These include Whitehead, Paul, Harley, Murray and Marshall. The Blue team should be well supplied with excellent goalies in Ames, who two years ago was connected with the Newmarket juniors, Le Barre of Peterboro, and Moran, who was out of the game last year on account of illness, but who managed the "T" intermediates. So with last year's squad complete and an abundance of good goal keepers the Varsity hockey prospects are exceedingly bright.

Coach John "Red" Porter has already subjected the applicants to the "weeding" process and the squad has been cut down to the following: Stratham, Leake, George, Robinson, Williams, Smith, McMullen, Carroll, Stewart, McMillan.

ST. HILDA'S RECOVERED EARLY DEFICIT TO WIN

Defeat U.C. Seniors 21-12 With Fine Rally in Final Chukkers

Last night at the U.T.S. gym St. Hilda's defeated U.C. seniors, 21-12. The Saints got off to a poor start and at half-time U.C. were leading 12-8. The forwards, Phil Ferguson and Marion Henderson were especially effective, and the Saints' forwards could not get started. However, the interval revived them, and they came back a different team. Bee Symons and Sally Ballard rained shot after shot at the basket and were very fast. The defense worked hard, and Fran Crooks, jumping centre, was good. For U.C. Fran Dale and Edythe Peak on the defense stood out. It was a very rough game, although few penalties were handed out. Each side made many costly fumbles.

SR. U.C. WHITWASH DENTAL POLO SQUAD

In a closely contested but rather sloppily played water polo game yesterday afternoon Sr. U.C. defeated Dents by a score of 2-0. Beauregard was the pick of the winners, while Ayres also turned in a good game.

Sr. U.C.—Ayres, Brown, Richmond, Gibson, Dennis, Davies, Beauregard, Wilson, Cook.

Dents—Coupland, Merrell, Moser, Walden, Stewart, Jamieson, Marsh.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 17.—A pass in the Canadian Rockies has been named Gibbon, founder of the Trail Riders "Gibbon Pass", after John Murray of the Canadian Rockies and general publicity agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It was announced Saturday at the offices at Ottawa of the Geographic Board of Canada. The pass lies between Shadow Lake and Twin Lakes. At the same time it was also announced that a mountain north west of Banff would be known in future as "Brewster Mountain", after the famous hunter and sportsman, "Jim Brewster". Both Mr. Gibbon and Mr. Brewster have worked for years in building up the Trail Riders Association and at the present time it is the largest association of its kind in the world and with the annual ride attracting devotees from all over Europe as well as the continent.

Professor Taylor this morning and he makes a similar complaint, but he has been taking several trips around Jerusalem to visit the interesting points in connection with his work.

Professor Irwin thought that invitations to such a position as this did two things.

"In the first place it keeps the professor up in the faculty and in the second place it affords the professor a change and somewhat of a rest."

"The work which the American Schools of Archaeology does, is rather a superficial survey of the whole subject. They are established in Jerusalem and Bagdad and there will probably be one in India before very long."

"These schools do not concentrate in excavating in one particular spot as the Archaeological Society does. The schools spread their activity over a larger area."

of those teachers and put in men who would teach the young people to boast "Toronto." How lovely!

The teaching of patriotism in the schools, bringing the children up to be boosters of "my country, right or wrong" has so long been part and parcel of the educational system, that it is seldom noted outside the colleges and Communitarian gatherings. So deep rooted is the practice that when any one like Miss Agnes MacPhail ventures to suggest that Britain once took an immoral part in an unjust opium war, the whole country gets up in arms about it, and the lady gets pummeled by press and public as disloyal and seditious.

It is only in the universities that this moulding of history and thought to the raising up a breed of blind boosters does not exist. Academic freedom is precious, and professors the country over guard it jealously. Now and then ignorant fellows try to storm these citadels of intellectual liberty, but it is doubtful if the Mayor of Toronto will be able to oust many of the faculty of that institution—his influence with G. Howard Ferguson notwithstanding. Samuel might much better devote his time to Toronto's public school teachers—to have them saturate the children with the ideas that General Draper's stout fellows are "Toronto's finest," that Toronto is a "city of homes," that she is also the "most British city in Canada," and that her Police Commissioners are (tolerant) guardian angels.

Eustace Emerges as Regular Guy Creates Commotion With Lemon Pie

By P. E. Usher

Our cousin Eustace eagerly craned the dastardly attack. He wasn't at all his neck forward; his eyes goggled; and his hair stood on end. The Queen's Varsity game was about to commence. To put the thing briefly, Eustace was on edge. In short, he was all set. Or in other words, he was ready to spit the old larynx and bust up the vocal chords to spur on the big Blue team to victory. We have never seen him so worked up. Overhead the sun shone, the birds twittered, and the breezes breezed. Below in the vast arena was a titanic struggle of men, with a championship at stake. Let us draw a curtain over the game. . . .

Amongst the swirling nob which left the stadium was Eustace. We say this so that there can be no doubt that he left the scene. Eustace had motored down with us from Toronto. Our first intimation that the game had unraveled Eustace came when he cried in a hoarse whisper: "Pie." We shuddered. Apparently the desire passed off. But just then we thought he was returning to normalcy, our cousin grasped a fur rug and threw it over the head of a prominent university debater who had travelled with us. "This fellow ought to be strangled," he declared in a ferocious voice. And for a moment, the onset assumed the proportions of a major engagement. Order was finally restored, and the debater was restrained from exacting a prompt revenge upon the author of

Home for Christmas

Mulled ale, roasted chestnuts, real English plum pudding, Tom Smith's crackers, the "waits," the piping treble of young carol singers, the joyous Christmas peal of the "Bells of St. Martins," poultry shops with their rows of be-ribboned turkeys, the home-yfoggy atmosphere of England on a slightly frosty Christmas morning—and the myriad other recollections of Dickens' conception of Christmas at home are the beacons that guide many Britishers homeward in late November and early December.

From prairie farmstead, British Columbia fruit farm, the peach orchards of the Niagara Peninsula, the apple districts of Northumberland and Durham, and from the lovely country of Evangeline a steady stream heads towards Saint John, N.B. whence the Christmas ships sail.

This year five Canadian Pacific ships have been detailed for the Christmas movement—"Mianedosa" November 26, "Duchess of Athol" Dec. 6, "Montcalm" Dec. 12, "Duchess of Richmond" Dec. 14, and "Duchess of York" Dec. 18th. The last four sail from Saint John, but the "Mianedosa" as usual, closes the Montreal season.

A large number of Canadians from the British Isles and European countries are planning on travelling to their former homes for Christmas, and already the Canadian Pacific is arranging special train services from inland points to the Christmas ships.

VARSITY JRS. BLANK VICTORIA SEXTET 2-0 IN FIRST HOCKEY TILT

Blue's Strong Defense Holds Victorias Scoreless in Fast Game

DON SMILLIE SHOWS FORM

Hunnisset Turns in Smart Game —Stewart and Teasdale Losers' Best

Varsity junior hockey sextet defeated the Victorias 2 to 0 in the opening game of the season in the S.P.A. series last night at the Arena Gardens. The Blue and White presented an evenly balanced aggregation with what looks like one of the strongest defences in the O.H.A. Levisky and Don Smillie form one sweet defensive pair and seldom did the Victorias sharpshooters break through to get a clear shot on Hunnisset. What difficult shots the Varsity goalie was called upon to stop, he shovelled aside with amazing coolness. Hunnisset performed like a veteran. Williamson, the lanky lad from U.T.S., did relief work on the defence and his presence on the ice in no way weakened the Blue crew.

The regular "T" forward line composed of Brant at centre, and Hetherington and Bennett on the wings, are fast and tricky. They failed to check back at all times and depended too much on the undoubted ability of the guards. The substitutes worked hard and checked back fiercely. Coach Sullivan used his spares freely and allowed the squad to go at full speed for the entire 60 minutes.

Don Smillie, last year with Young Rangers, was the best man on the ice. He played a steady game on the defence. (Continued on page 3)

LITTLE THEATRE HAS BIG APPEAL SAYS SIR JACKSON

Working Classes Interested in Good Plays as Reaction From Talkies

'ARTY' FOLK TABOO

Bernard Shaw Writes New Play for Production in Little Theatre

"We are chary of 'arty' folk in our theatre and try to make an appeal to theatre-loving people of all classes," said Sir Barry Jackson in an interview with "The Varsity".

Sir Barry Jackson is in the forefront of the so-called Little Theatre Movement in England and operates a famous small theatre in Birmingham, for which G. B. Shaw wrote his latest play, "The Apple Cart." He is now staying in Hart House on a return trip to England from the west.

"The best in the drama can only be brought out through the small theatre," continued Sir Barry, "for no large producer can afford to gamble on new ideas or plays that are not sure-fire, and ordinary stock companies have rather a limited horizon. But even the little theatre must pass the test of popular support, and should never depend entirely on a few devotees of one class." He went on to explain, how, to boost Monday and Tuesday houses he had given cheap rates to certain working class societies, and that actors found these audiences the most intelligent. "These people have a tremendous interest in really good plays," he said, "probably as a reaction from the 'talkies'. They do not talk much about the Little Theatre, but they come to the plays and appreciate them."

Sir Barry strongly prefers professional actors. "Amateurs can get to a certain point," he said, "but there is (Continued on page 4)

STUDENT ROWDYISM ON SPECIAL TRAIN DENIED BY OFFICIALS

MISCONDUCT DENIED

C.N.R. Not Likely to Discontinue Student Excursion Trains

That the story in yesterday's "Varsity", concerning the supposed misconduct of students returning from Kingston, created confusion as to what train was meant was pointed out by S.A.C. and railroad officials last night. The account printed, however, according to those acquainted with the situation, could only have referred to the regular public train leaving Kingston at 12.15 p.m., as it was the consensus of opinion that the conduct on the student special trains was all that could have been desired.

"I was on the special train that left Kingston at 6.30," said an official prominent in football circles, "and everything was absolutely O.K. The students were all very quiet and nothing at all occurred that might be considered a reflection on Miss Parkes, the chaperone."

"Certainly none of the statements that appeared in 'The Varsity' could apply to the last student special, which left Kingston at 6.30," said Miss A. E. M. Parkes, to "The Varsity" yesterday. "I felt that the students were very orderly, and I am sure that the (Continued on page 4)

LIBERAL EDUCATION WILL BE DISCUSSED AT NEXT DEBATE

Shyness Claimed Among Men Who Hesitate to Speak at Debates

PARLIAMENT EXPERIENCE

Debates Committee Will Act as Hosts to McGill Speakers

"I don't think that all the subjects in the Hart House debates will be in a jocular vein," Prof. Norman MacKenzie, chairman of the Debates Committee told "The Varsity" yesterday. "However, that is up to the Committee." Although the subject of the coming debate on Wednesday, Nov. 27, "That this House views with alarm the spread of liberal education in North America", may be construed as a humorous manner, Prof. MacKenzie thought that there was not much likelihood of all the subjects being of such a tenor. When asked by "The Varsity" if anything would come of the feigned insult to Mr. McBride, seeing that "the Speaker never apologizes", the "Tay Pay" of the Hart House Debates stated that "Mr. McBride on entering the House is the same as any other member" and that "Mr. McBride should have been amused rather than insulted."

Antics Afield

Our eminently voracious contemporary, the University Daily Kansan, publishes a United Press report of a revolutionary reign of horror at Drake University, Des Moines, for the second time in a year. Bloodthirsty students, enraged at their officious dean, Dr. R. Davis, who had the temerity to interfere with six members of the cheering squad in their attempt to kidnap four men from Iowa State University, bombarded his home with antiquated eggs and lynched him in effigy. This outbreak was a repetition of one which took place last spring, when trustees were "egged" and "rocked" and the Administration Building was besieged.

Financial Basis Misconstrued Claims Editor of Torontonensis

PRESS CLUB

The next meeting of the University Press Club will be a dinner held in the North Common Room of Hart House, November 21, at 6.00 p.m. Mr. John Clarke, managing editor of the Toronto Daily Star, will be the guest speaker.

Expenditure Limited by Budget Laid Down by Finance Committee

DISCUSSION HAMPERED

No Part of Ten Dollar Degree Fee Devoted to Torontonensis

"A great deal of the discussion on the question is hampered by the false belief that a portion of the S.A.C. fee is definitely a payment towards a subscription to Torontonensis," commented Mr. Mitchell, editor of Torontonensis, on the editorial that appeared in yesterday's "Varsity". "While the Students' Administrative Council may be influenced by the amount of money paid in by the graduating year, the total expenditure is limited by the budget laid down by the finance committee. In the last two or three years it has been only a small fraction of the money paid in by the students."

"With the present budget, which does exceed that of last year," he continued, "the editor is allowed little scope for improvement, and must confine himself largely to making the present type of book as good a one as possible under the circumstances. If you compare the Torontonensis of '24 with '25 and '26, you will see the vast improvement that has been made over the old style editions. But it is an improvement that has not been continued in later editions."

"When 'The Varsity' claims," he said, "that eight complete editions such as the '29, can be printed on the S.A.C. surplus, it is going on the assumption that each issue can be put out for approximately one thousand dollars of fees collected; the remaining (Continued on page 4)

APPEAL IS NEEDED TO EVERYDAY LIFE

Christian Experience Should Meet Demands of Common-place Problems

CHRISTIAN UNION MEETS

Pointing out to those present as a group taking a definite stand for the true principles of orthodox Christianity, the need at the present time of making Christ appeal to the needs of everyday life, Miss Muriel David, vice president of the Toronto Intercollegiate Christian Union, gave a short talk at the regular weekly prayer meeting of that body yesterday afternoon at Wynniwood.

Miss David chose as her subject "Interpreting Christ in terms of life." She deplored the way in which many evangelists were wont to speak of souls as things detached and unrelated to everyday life as like so much matter. "In our work salvation is not only for the future, but for the present. Eternal life is life beginning with birth and continuing through eternity."

The speaker next explained the necessity of making Christ appeal to all people—not necessarily those brought up in an atmosphere of theology—that is the necessity of making Christ realistic. "What reality is there to us of our Christian experience if it doesn't meet the demands of everyday life—life on the campus?" she asked.

Following Miss David's talk some correspondence from the University of British Columbia Christian Union was read and Gordon Russell was elected treasurer of the local organization.

MODERN WAR NOVELS SUBJECT OF TALK

"All Quiet" Shows Bits of Philosophy Says Violet Maw

U.C. WOMEN'S LIT.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" is not purely descriptive; there are spurts of philosophy in it that show that Remarque is thinking as well as feeling," said Miss Violet Maw, in her paper on Modern War Novels at the U.C. Women's Lit. last night. Flashes of cynicism are shaded with humour in this most remarkable, yet most dreadful of the modern war stories. There are glimpses of reality in it which the author seems forced to express, through the medium of poetic prose.

Arnold Zweig's "The Case of Sergeant Grisha", is more dramatic than Remarque's book, although both have the same feeling of inevitable hopelessness. "Zweig does not emphasize crudeness for crudeness' sake," said Miss Maw. As for Maurice Samuel's translation of the German "Schlumpf"—"It is simply not worth reading—it leaves you with a slight memory of utter ugliness," the speaker declared. "All Else, is Folly," a Canadian book, whose hero is "rather a nice person," provides a good contrast to the preceding works, in that it glorifies war. "There are war books and war books, typified by a brutal frankness," concluded Miss Maw. "Dour curiosity makes them popular for a while, but we'll turn from them to idealistic tales again."

VISION OF JESUS EMBRACES WORLD

Class Distinctions Cause Great Troubles, Says Doctor Herbert Gray

PATRIOTISM ROOT OF WAR

"Jesus spoke in a world filled with evil," said Dr. Herbert Gray last night when he lectured before the students in Hart House Theatre. "The ordinary citizen was taxed very hard. It was a cruel world, a world in which human lives seemed failing," he continued.

"Jesus had a clear vision which embraced the whole world. His message was against that dark background. He had an interest in mankind and was a man with essentially a message for the present time. His message was the way to the Kingdom of God."

"You can't understand Jesus," he proceeded, "until you know what He meant by the Kingdom of God. He came to inaugurate a new kind of civilization, an order based on God, a Kingdom to be built on this earth. God is our Father and therefore we (Continued on page 4)

HART HOUSE STRING QUARTET

The Quartet gives its first concert here on November 22. They received, while abroad, a letter from Godfrey Thomas, Private Secretary to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, expressing appreciation of their work in the following words:

I am desired by the Prince of Wales to convey to you his sincere thanks for the two latest records produced by the Hart House Quartet, which His Royal Highness is very pleased to accept.

A NICE POINT OF ACCOUNTING

In commenting elsewhere in this issue on our editorial of yesterday, "Nineteen Cents", Mr. R. C. H. Mitchell, Editor of "Torontoensis", suggests that we have "a false belief that a portion of the S.A.C. fee is definitely a payment towards a subscription to 'Torontoensis'." He is misled by our attempts to make the real issues absolutely clear to everyone, without beclouding them in a discussion of accounting niceties. We fully understand that the Joint Executive has administered all its activities out of a common fund, without designating any portion of that fund to any specific purpose, and, though we personally do not believe that this is the clearest way of presenting the accounts or of regarding the enterprises from an accounting point of view, for the benefit of those thousands of undergraduates who are bored by book-keeping, yet pay their fees, we cannot quarrel with the soundness of this accounting procedure. But accounting niceties all apart, the S.A.C. fee exists for three purposes: to provide subscriptions to "The Varsity", to give each graduating class its "Torontoensis", and to provide for certain administration expenses, and other minor services. To consider the monetary return which the payers of the fee receive on account of each of these activities is fundamental to any discussion of the issues involved. More than that, by setting up a reserve against Torontoensis, the Finance Committee themselves tacitly admit that, however they may regard the matter in their books, they actually think of some definite part of the S.A.C. fee as assignable to Torontoensis.

The point we tried to present to the student body was that, with substantial reserves now existing in liquid form, the present fee payers should be utterly sacrificed to the passion to build even stronger reserves. The financial stability of the S.A.C. must be preserved and strengthened, but, lest this natural reaction to days of poverty be continued unreasonably, we wish definitely to point to the rights of the class of '30 to receive a "Torontoensis". But the subsidiary revenue was paid by private campus societies for private values received. The fact remains that only a thousand dollars was paid for the 1929 "Torontoensis" out of the large fees of the university populace. And we consider that a grant this year of even two thousand dollars is absolutely unfair to the class of 1930, forcing it to pay unduly to a very large reserve for the future. If, in presenting our case, we did not perfectly explain our understanding of a nice point of accounting, it was because we wished to drive the real issue home to every undergraduate, without boring him by avoidable discussions beside that issue.

A PRIVILEGE

This coming Friday the Hart House String Quartet will play the first of a series of four concerts for the undergraduates of the university. The Quartet has just returned from a tour abroad, and we understand that they were given a reception that was at all times respectful, cordial and appreciative, and almost always laudatory without qualification. In seasons past the tours of the Quartet have been what might be termed triumphs; particularly in Canada and the United States, and we can say without hesitation that the Quartet is among the great quartets of musical history.

As Mr. Milton Blackstone points out:

"We have this year reduced the price of admission to 75c for four concerts, so that all will be able to afford to participate in this form of their education. The University of Toronto is the only institution of its kind in the world having a quartet of the ability of the Hart House group making music within its borders."

It is not the custom of "The Varsity" to speak in such fulsome terms of a professional group; we do so now for two reasons: the Quartet is a Toronto organization and more, allied with Hart House; it offers the privilege of attending four of its concerts to undergraduates at a price that is absurdly low—75 cents. Those who do not avail themselves of this opportunity will be ignoring a remarkable offer, and in addition, doing a discourtesy to the four artists who are so exerting themselves on behalf of the students.

Art, Music and Drama

M.C.A. Production

The two one-act plays presented last evening by the University College Alumnae Association were not particularly good, but were rather well produced. "The Fourth Mrs. Phillips," by Carl Glick, consisted largely of one scene, which was quite cleverly contrived and gave an opportunity for contrasting characterizations, but the play was almost innocent of plot, and the characters were superficially drawn. Never once did the playwright show any depth in his work, and the machinery of the play creaked in spots. However, the Misses Pearl Gray as "Dolly Harrison" and Erskine Keys as "Madge Smith" did extremely well with the lines and all the cast deserves fine comment.

"Three Players, a Pop and a Duchess," by Babette Hughes was somewhat better. It concerns a quaint episode in the early life of David Garrick, is quite amusing, and the characters at times showed a real spark of intelligence. Most unfortunately an "overheard from behind the screen" scene, which is distinctly not done in these days. Sheridan did it rather well some time ago. There were only five players and they were all extremely good, Miss Eleanor Norton as "Georgiana Bellamy" and Mr. Andrew Allan as "Dave Garrick" being worthy of special mention.

The directing of both plays was very capably done, though not especially difficult, and both plays had a certain unusualness of idea which in some measure compensated for dramatic weakness.

The Cat is a mangy poor creature this morning. After each edition of "All Noisy on the Eastern Back", poor Gaspard is unable to eat for twenty-four hours.

It seems that certain students went up to Kingston to see a rugby game and came back in various trains. By "students" we infer subtly that we mean students.

C-C

On coming down to the Press, your Cat observed some gentlemen of Trinity College staging a jolly. This consisted of marching up to St. Hilda's en masse, singing "Hail, hail, etc.", on arrival singing "Good Night Ladies", and immediately returning to Trinity House in snake dance formation. Whether this orgy was for evening exercise or for the esthetic enjoyment of St. Hilda's was not determined.

C-C

A gentleman of our acquaintance has worked out the mathematical theory of crap shooting, to twenty-seven places of decimals. It seems that, by the law of averages, if a man were to play at a quarter a throw, a hundred throws an hour, for eight hours a day, betting always a certain way, he would stand to win $2.38 a day.

C-C

The same amateur statistician, has figured out that, if all the undergraduates of this university were stood in a row, the sight would not be an unusual one.

C-C

At this last mow, an entire box full of letter "g" type was thrown at your Cat, so the poor creature takes it as a suggestion to go.

SLOT AGAIN INSTALLED IN HART HOUSE

No Clue Has As Yet Been Found of Thieves Says Comptroller

The slot machine has been installed again in Hart House, and is in working order once more. It stands in all the splendor and former affluence with the pane of glass which was smashed replaced by a new one.

Mr. Gilley, the comptroller, told "The Varsity" that as yet no clues have been found of the pilferers of the machine.

LIBERAL EDUCATION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Mr. Lionel M. Gelber, secretary of the Hart House Debates Committee, told "The Varsity" that "There is still some misunderstanding in regard to students wishing to speak. A member of Hart House," stated Mr. Gelber, "should rise in his place during the progress of the debate and attract the speaker's eye." There is still an extraordinary shyness among many men who debate in their own faculties and colleges yet who hesitate to speak at Hart House. Our debates should become most popular through the very special type of parliamentary experience offered in Hart House. Regarding the chances of speaking, Mr. Gelber told "The Varsity" that to facilitate matters those desiring to speak may hand their names into the Warden's office on the day of the debate. When questioned regarding the visit of two McGill debaters to the next Hart House debate, Mr. Gelber stated "We are very pleased to act as hosts to a team from McGill. These men are particularly able to deal with the topic and to meet the criticism which has been levelled at our students and the function of a university in a business sense, "Main Street" and Mr. Mencken."

The motion for the debate of Nov. 27, "That the House views with alarm the spread of liberal education in North America", will be moved by Mr. G. O. Murrell-Wright, Trinity College. It will be opposed by Mr. J. A. Edmonson of McGill University, who is well known in Montreal and Toronto debating circles. Mr. B. M. Alexander of McGill will speak third. Mr. Alexander represented the National Federation of Canadian University Students in a series of debates in Great Britain last year. Mr. H. S. Dodgson of Emmanuel College will speak fourth on the question.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

A theatre night is being held by the Women's Athletic Association. Who is coming?

* * *

Lack of funds again hinders the W.A.A. in its efforts to finance athletic activities. It receives no grant and hence its income depends on gate receipts—not a fruitful source of revenue in the case of women's sports.

* * *

Tag days have partly made up this deficiency in former years, but latterly the sales have fallen off and it has been decided to abandon the scheme.

* * *

The theatre night is being substituted this year, and supporters of the W.A.A. now have a chance to display enthusiasm without tears. Are the men going to return the support which the women have always given to men's athletics?

* * *

Tickets for the event of the night, Barrie's "Kiss of Cinderella" at the Empire, can be obtained from Miss Parkes or members of the athletic teams. Next Tuesday night will tell the tale.

* * *

Betty Edwards, a U.C. freshe, won the inter-Provincial backstroke event in the swimming meet at Montreal last Saturday. She also tied for first place in the 100-yard free style for the Dominion title, but lost out in the re-race to Mary Casson. The winning time was one minute and ten seconds, and Betty was one-fifth of a second short of that.

PHARMACY BEATS JR. MEDS IN MULOCK CUP PLAY-OFF

Wadland and Beckett Star For Winners While Graham Best of Losers

Pharmacy defeated Jr. Meds yesterday afternoon in the first of the interfaculty play-offs for the Muloock Cup, by the score of 20 to 12. Pharmacy was much the better team, and if it had not been for the poor catching of their halves they would have run up a much bigger score. The tackling of the wings and outsides on both teams was faultless. Just after the start of the game Wadland and Beckett combined on two runs to net Pharmacy 85 yards. Brown then took the ball over for a touch. After the second quarter had commenced Meds came to life and scored 6 points and held their advantage to the end of the period.

The second half began with Pharmacy in possession. They immediately set to work and Beckett went over for five points. Score 18 to 6. Meds also scored another touchdown and Pharmacy a safety touch. Game ended with Meds in possession.

For Pharmacy Wadland, Beckett, and Brown were the best, while Graham, Murby and Lackner were the pick of the Meds.

Jr. Meds—Graham, Murby, Gibb, Dekson, Lackner, Nichol, Merrett, Vaughan, Marquis, Coleman, Tait, Jackson.

Pharmacy—Beckett, Wadland, Cain, Moffat, Wilkinson, Keating, Goldsmith, Brown, Robb, Wolfe, Walberg.

St. Mike's won their third straight game in the women's interfaculty basketball league when they defeated the Occupational Therapy sextette 36-15 at the McGill St. Y.W.C.A. gym. It was 23-5 at half-time.

Olive Macklin was the scoring star of the winners, notching nine baskets, and "Vic" Quinlan had three long shots in her score. Loretto McGarry turned in a good game at jumping centre for St. Mike's.

For Occupational Therapy, Isabel Adams was the outstanding forward, and Dot Burton, the jumping centre, also played well.

Failing to break through Senior Vics clever six-man defense, the U.C. freshettes went down to a 56-7 defeat in an exhibition women's basketball game at the U.T.S. gym.

Senior Vic had a big edge all the way, as the score indicates. Eleanor Sedgewick and Helen Hilliard starred on the forward line and Norma Bateman, of hockey and tennis fame, was outstanding on the defense. The Vic aggregation played real basketball and broke very fast on their attack.

Junior Vic basketball team defeated Meds 31-15. The play in the first half was close but in the second half Vic piled up a large score. Mabel Curiston starred for the winning team.

Playing steady ball behind the good pitching of Marion Shadle, the U.C. women's baseball team defeated Victoria College 12-3 in the opening game of the interfaculty league on Thursday night.

The victors did some clever fielding, Phyl Ferguson contributing a spectacular catch and their freshe twirler puzzling the Vic batters.

The Vic nine appeared to be below form. Daisy Quance turned in a nice pitching effort, but her support was rather erratic and on top of that the Scarlet and Gold got very few of the breaks.

At U.T.S. gym last night U.C. jnniors completely whitewashed Medettes by a score of 43-10 in basketball. Both teams showed a lack of co-operation, and fumbles were frequent. Fair passing was displayed by U.C. particularly at the first of the game, but at the end everyone played wildly.

Bath Occupies Position of Dignity in Home of Chinese Emperor

"A bath filled with chrysanthemums, the pattern woven into the Imperial robes which graced the sacred floor before the throne of the Chinese emperor," said Miss Ruth M. Home in a lecture on "Textiles in China" yesterday afternoon at the Museum. "You may wonder why they used a bath to occupy a position of dignity," she continued. "In Chinese, bath, food and happiness all have the same phonetic sound, and thus they believe that they will bring happiness to them by placing it concretely before them."

Miss Home showed the various types of Chinese rugs and explained the relation of the designs to their religion
